'Longest day of my life'

Humphrey recalls his loss to Nixon

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Election Day, 1968. "The longest day of my life," recalls Hubert H. Humphrey.

It was the day he nearly won the presidency. A day to think about the people and issues that had helped his campaign and the ones that hadn't.

In his autobiography, "The Education of A Public Man," to be published next week, Humphrey wrote:

"It was a day when every minute lingered, when time was suspended, when suddenly there was nothing more to do after months on a treadmill, when fatigue finally overwhelmed me."

More than 73 million Americans voted that day, and Humphrey lost to Richard M. Nixon by about 510,000 votes.

Humphrey recalled some of the names that went through his mind while he waited for the election results and what his thoughts were:

"Jesse Unruh ... he proved so often that he can't be trusted ... Gene McCarthy could have helped. I thought we had an understanding, but he didn't deliver ...

"Clark Clifford would make a fine secretary of state ... I wonder how Ed Muskie is doing. What a job he's done. What a wonderful guy ... Henry Kissinger should be in the White House ...

"Ted Kennedy. He had so many reasons not to help, but he really gave ... Imagine a guy like Wallace getting so many votes. North. South. Everywhere. Such an ugly part of American politics."

And finally the results were in:

"To lose to Nixon. Ye Gods! No warmth, no strength, no emotion, no spirit. No heart."

Humphrey started for the hall where he would admit to the nation he had lost:

"This is the worst moment of my life. What a disappointment to have failed. We could have won it. We should have won it."

One name and one issue overshadowed all of Humphrey's recol-

With presidential primaries slated Tuesday in South Dakota, Rhode Island and Montana, the Republicans spent the holiday weekend at home while most of the Democrats hit the campaign trail.

Republican Ronald Reagan was in California, while President Ford stayed in Washington.

Democrat Jimmy Carter spent Saturday in Georgia but planned to fly to Rhode Island today.

Other Democratic hopefuls continued campaigning — Sen. Frank Church of Idaho and Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. of California in Rhode Island, and Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona in South Dakota.

Meantime, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, refuting a weekend magazine article, said he would not participate in any debate with Reagan.

Parade, a Sunday supplement included in the Independent, Press-Telegram, quoted Kissinger as saying he would be willing to debate Reagan "providing I have the time and some reasonable ground rules can be set out."

Jimmy Carter and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. will campaign in Long Beach this week. Page A-17.

But Kissinger said Saturday that he would not participate "in any such debate."

Ford planned to relax in Washington and later at the presidential retreat in Camp David, Md., until Monday.

Although Reagan was at home, he was seeking votes. The California primary is slated for June 8.

Reagan took his presidential campaign to the dusty coastal foothills of central California Saturday and gave a brief speech on horseback.

Wearing cowboy boots, scruffy ranch clothes and a white hat, Reagan met 1,500 supporters at a calf-roping exhibition and political rally at a cattle ranch near Paso Robles.

Reagan repeated the familiar anti-government, anti-Washington themes of his campaign against Ford. And he again challenged Ford's claim that the President has turned the economy around and restored prosperity.

"I don't believe that Washington has the answers to our problem. I believe Washington is the problem," he said.

Neither Ford nor Reagan have campaigned in any of the three states with primaries on Tuesday. There are a total of 59 Republican and 56 Democratic national delegates at stake.

Defense issues loom in debate

Tunney, Hayden name day

Associated Press

Sen. John Tunney and his Democratic rival, Tom Hayden, are sparring over national defense, and Republican challenger Robert Finch is critical of Tunney for missing a Senate vote on the B1 bomber.

Meantime, Hayden's and Tunney's campaign offices issued a joint statement Saturday evening that a debate between the two candidates will take place next Saturday.

Such a debate was agreed upon earlier this week after Hayden reportedly apologized to Tunney for a personal remark he and his actress-wife Jane Fonda had made about Tunney. Both sides, however, haggled for several days over whether Hayden's retraction pertained only to the personal remark or to the broader issue of Hayden's criticism of Tunney's record as a senator.

Hayden said his retraction was limited to a comment he made about Tunney at what he believed was an off-the-record meeting with supporters. He said he felt his criticism of Tunney's record was both accurate and justified, and that he intended to stand by it.

The Democratic senator fired the first shot on defense Friday, saying Hayden is making a "reckless and irresponsible" proposal to cut U.S. military forces in half.

A Hayden spokesman said Saturday Tunney was overstating Hayden's proposals, and criticized Tunney for supporting the B1 bomber, which Hayden opposes. And Finch questioned Tunney's support of the B1, noting that Tunney was absent this week when the Senate voted to put off a decision on the supersonic bomber until next February.

"If John Tunney had any skill he could have changed three votes in the Senate, plus his own vote, and saved the B1 decision from being put off until next year," said Finch, a former lieutenant governor and one of four GOP contenders in the June 8 primary. The other three are John Harmer, S.I. Hayakawa and Alphonzo Bell.

Finch said the issue is vital to California's economy, and accused Tunney of having an "infamous absentee record" in the Senate.

France wins A-power plant job in S. Africa

By LARRY HEINZERLING

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South Africa announced Saturday it has selected a French consortium over a U.S.-led group for a controversial $1-billion project to build the nation's first nuclear-power station.

The French won the contract over a group of American, Swiss and Dutch firms that had faced strong domestic opposition to the scheme because of South Africa's race policies and also because Pretoria has not signed the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

Informed sources said government officials here were furious about the opposition, especially in the United States and the Netherlands. But there was no indication whether this played a role in the selection of the French group.

Officials said the U.S.-Swiss-Dutch group was rejected because of the failure of the Dutch government to provide necessary guarantees and assurances by May 21. The Electricity Supply Commission said it suspended negotiations last Monday with the consortium of General Electric, Brown Bovari of Switzerland and Rijn-Schelde-Verolme of Holland.

The officials said the contract for the construction of the two-unit power station, about 17 miles north of Cape Town, was awarded to the French consortium of Framatome, Alsthom and Spie Batignolles.

A third group bidding for the contract was Kraftwerk Union of West Germany in collaboration with Murray and Roberts of South Africa.

The U.S.-led group had been regarded as the front-runner for the contract until political controversy erupted over the project. GE had already applied to the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission for the licenses needed to ship plutonium for the plants to South Africa.

The project's opponents said the two proposed reactors would produce about 1,000 pounds of plutonium a year, enough for 100 atomic bombs the size of the one dropped on Nagasaki, Japan.

South Africa's nuclear capacity already is considered more advanced than that of India, which exploded its first nuclear device in 1974.

Some U.S. congressional opponents of the deal said it would undermine America's declared policy of support for black majorities in southern Africa.

17 killed as shells fall on Beirut market

BEIRUT (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas accused right-wing Christian militiamen Saturday of killing 17 persons, including women and children, in a rocket and artillery barrage on a vegetable market.

A Palestinian spokesman called the one-hour bombardment, in which more than 100 Palestinian refugees were wounded, one of the ugliest incidents in Lebanon's 14-month civil war, and vowed revenge.

The target of the midday barrage, the spokesman said, was the vegetable market of the Sabra refugee camp on the southern fringe of Beirut.

"IT HAPPENED as housewives crowded the market at the rush buying hour," the spokesman said. "Ambulances from the main hospitals of the Moslem half of Beirut, including the American University of Beirut Hospital, were unable to cope with the emergency."

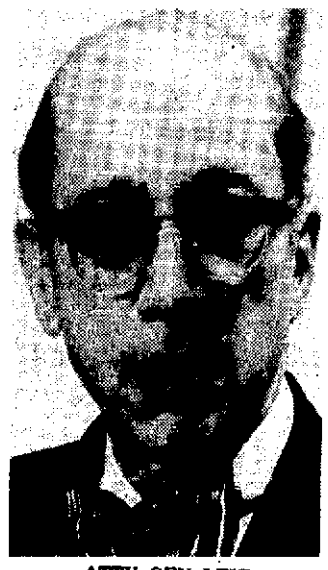

At least 40 rounds of French-made incendiary rockets and 155mm American-made howitzer cannon shells shattered the camp's market, the spokesman said.

Fighting also flared in mountain summer resorts overlooking the capital and in northern Leba-

Case against Hays said enough for grand jury

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal investigators have found enough evidence to consider asking Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, to testify before a grand jury about allegations that he put a woman on his congressional committee staff to be his mistress, a source close to the probe said Saturday.

Requiring an employe of Congress to provide sex as part of her job could be a violation of federal laws against misusing public funds.

"There is starting to be hard stuff here," the source said of efforts to evaluate a claim by Elizabeth Ray, 33, that Hays put her on his Administration Committee payroll to provide him with sex. Hays has admitted a "personal relationship" with Miss Ray but denied she received her $14,000-a-year salary just to be his mistress.

Meanwhile, Miss Ray's attorney said federal prosecutors have agreed to grant her immunity from prosecution "if she testifies truthfully" before the grand jury. The attorney, Albert Ahern, said Miss Ray was in seclusion and had not yet appeared before the panel.

The Justice Department has not decided yet whether to call Hays before the grand jury, the source said. But he added that generally "you would invite the guy, and he could give us his side if he wanted to." The source said Hays would be called only if he agreed to testify.

Hays' attorney, Judah Best, said the government has not asked Hays to testify, and he declined to speculate what Hays would do if invited.

$500 reward offered in Compton holdup

Two men, one armed with a Luger-type pistol, forced their way into the cashier's office at Ralphs Market, 4410 E. Compton Blvd. in Compton, at 9:50 a.m. on May 1. They forced the store manager to turn over $5,000 in store receipts.

At this point, an armored car guard carrying $29,500 in cash for the store knocked at the door. He was admitted and robbed of the cash and his pistol. The holdup men escaped with a confederate waiting outside in a car.

The car was described as a 1964 to 1969 GMC sedan, black over yellow-orange, with damage to the rear bumper and trunk. Witnesses said the radiator was overheated and steaming. The suspects were described as black men in their early 20s, 6 feet tall, 160 to 170 pounds. One carried a large brown leather purse in which he placed the loot.

Secret Witness will pay $500 for information leading to the arrest and armed robbery conviction of the men.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South Africa announced Saturday it has selected a French consortium over a U.S.-led group for a controversial $1-billion project to build the nation's first nuclear-power station.

The French won the contract over a group of American, Swiss and Dutch firms that had faced strong domestic opposition to the scheme because of South Africa's race policies and also because Pretoria has not signed the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

Informed sources said government officials here were furious about the opposition, especially in the United States and the Netherlands. But there was no indication whether this played a role in the selection of the French group.

Officials said the U.S.-Swiss-Dutch group was rejected because of the failure of the Dutch government to provide necessary guarantees and assurances by May 21. The Electricity Supply Commission said it suspended negotiations last Monday with the consortium of General Electric, Brown Bovari of Switzerland and Rijn-Schelde-Verolme of Holland.

The officials said the contract for the construction of the two-unit power station, about 17 miles north of Cape Town, was awarded to the French consortium of Framatome, Alsthom and Spie Batignolles.

A third group bidding for the contract was Kraftwerk Union of West Germany in collaboration with Murray and Roberts of South Africa.

The U.S.-led group had been regarded as the front-runner for the contract until political controversy erupted over the project. GE had already applied to the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission for the licenses needed to ship plutonium for the plants to South Africa.

The project's opponents said the two proposed reactors would produce about 1,000 pounds of plutonium a year, enough for 100 atomic bombs the size of the one dropped on Nagasaki, Japan.

South Africa's nuclear capacity already is considered more advanced than that of India, which exploded its first nuclear device in 1974.

Some U.S. congressional opponents of the deal said it would undermine America's declared policy of support for black majorities in southern Africa.

U.S. stays off Boston busing case

By MARGARET GENTRY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi will stay out of the Boston school busing case for now but may ask the Supreme Court later to restrict the scope of court-ordered desegregation remedies, the Justice Department said Saturday.

Levi and Solicitor Gen. Robert H. Bork refused to explain their reasons for deciding against intervening in the Boston case.

Case against Hays said enough for grand jury

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal investigators have found enough evidence to consider asking Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, to testify before a grand jury about allegations that he put a woman on his congressional committee staff to be his mistress, a source close to the probe said Saturday.

Requiring an employe of Congress to provide sex as part of her job could be a violation of federal laws against misusing public funds.

"There is starting to be hard stuff here," the source said of efforts to evaluate a claim by Elizabeth Ray, 33, that Hays put her on his Administration Committee payroll to provide him with sex. Hays has admitted a "personal relationship" with Miss Ray but denied she received her $14,000-a-year salary just to be his mistress.

Meanwhile, Miss Ray's attorney said federal prosecutors have agreed to grant her immunity from prosecution "if she testifies truthfully" before the grand jury. The attorney, Albert Ahern, said Miss Ray was in seclusion and had not yet appeared before the panel.

The Justice Department has not decided yet whether to call Hays before the grand jury, the source said. But he added that generally "you would invite the guy, and he could give us his side if he wanted to." The source said Hays would be called only if he agreed to testify.

Hays' attorney, Judah Best, said the government has not asked Hays to testify, and he declined to speculate what Hays would do if invited.

17 killed as shells fall on Beirut market

BEIRUT (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas accused right-wing Christian militiamen Saturday of killing 17 persons, including women and children, in a rocket and artillery barrage on a vegetable market.

A Palestinian spokesman called the one-hour bombardment, in which more than 100 Palestinian refugees were wounded, one of the ugliest incidents in Lebanon's 14-month civil war, and vowed revenge.

The target of the midday barrage, the spokesman said, was the vegetable market of the Sabra refugee camp on the southern fringe of Beirut.

"IT HAPPENED as housewives crowded the market at the rush buying hour," the spokesman said. "Ambulances from the main hospitals of the Moslem half of Beirut, including the American University of Beirut Hospital, were unable to cope with the emergency."

At least 40 rounds of French-made incendiary rockets and 155mm American-made howitzer cannon shells shattered the camp's market, the spokesman said.

Fighting also flared in mountain summer resorts overlooking the capital and in northern Leba-

Defense issues loom in debate

Tunney, Hayden name day

Associated Press

Sen. John Tunney and his Democratic rival, Tom Hayden, are sparring over national defense, and Republican challenger Robert Finch is critical of Tunney for missing a Senate vote on the B1 bomber.

Meantime, Hayden's and Tunney's campaign offices issued a joint statement Saturday evening that a debate between the two candidates will take place next Saturday.

Such a debate was agreed upon earlier this week after Hayden reportedly apologized to Tunney for a personal remark he and his actress-wife Jane Fonda had made about Tunney. Both sides, however, haggled for several days over whether Hayden's retraction pertained only to the personal remark or to the broader issue of Hayden's criticism of Tunney's record as a senator.

Hayden said his retraction was limited to a comment he made about Tunney at what he believed was an off-the-record meeting with supporters. He said he felt his criticism of Tunney's record was both accurate and justified, and that he intended to stand by it.

The Democratic senator fired the first shot on defense Friday, saying Hayden is making a "reckless and irresponsible" proposal to cut U.S. military forces in half.

A Hayden spokesman said Saturday Tunney was overstating Hayden's proposals, and criticized Tunney for supporting the B1 bomber, which Hayden opposes. And Finch questioned Tunney's support of the B1, noting that Tunney was absent this week when the Senate voted to put off a decision on the supersonic bomber until next February.

"If John Tunney had any skill he could have changed three votes in the Senate, plus his own vote, and saved the B1 decision from being put off until next year," said Finch, a former lieutenant governor and one of four GOP contenders in the June 8 primary. The other three are John Harmer, S.I. Hayakawa and Alphonzo Bell.

Finch said the issue is vital to California's economy, and accused Tunney of having an "infamous absentee record" in the Senate.

$500 reward offered in Compton holdup

Two men, one armed with a Luger-type pistol, forced their way into the cashier's office at Ralphs Market, 4410 E. Compton Blvd. in Compton, at 9:50 a.m. on May 1. They forced the store manager to turn over $5,000 in store receipts.

At this point, an armored car guard carrying $29,500 in cash for the store knocked at the door. He was admitted and robbed of the cash and his pistol. The holdup men escaped with a confederate waiting outside in a car.

The car was described as a 1964 to 1969 GMC sedan, black over yellow-orange, with damage to the rear bumper and trunk. Witnesses said the radiator was overheated and steaming. The suspects were described as black men in their early 20s, 6 feet tall, 160 to 170 pounds. One carried a large brown leather purse in which he placed the loot.

Secret Witness will pay $500 for information leading to the arrest and armed robbery conviction of the men.

If you have such information, call Secret Witness at 436-2526 between 8 a.m. and midnight on weekdays, or between 3 p.m. and 11 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Or write to: Secret Witness, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90844.

Car thief 'just going for drive'

Combined News Services

"First of all, I'm a dummy."

That's how Paul Catalano, 45, explained how he managed to hand over a $24,000 vintage Rolls Royce to a thief.

Catalano, who lives in the Long Island community of Manhasset, left the car, complete with keys, at Stage Automobiles in Valley Stream, N.Y., telling the manager that "a guy named Jim Peterson will be along to test drive it."

Catalano had taken out a newspaper advertisement to sell the car. A man calling himself Jim Peterson telephoned Catalano and said he was interested in the Rolls. Peterson showed up to try the car—and was never seen again.

When Catalano told police what had happened, he said, "The detective thought I was absolutely crazy," he said.

Mrs. Catalano put it more mildly: "You have to know my husband."

Reunion outsider

As prisoners of war, the American and Australian soldiers and sailors toiled for months to build the famous bridge over the River Kwai. Then they watched it destroyed in seconds by a single American bomber.

The men from the Japanese POW camp, meeting in Belton, Texas, for their first reunion, may get a chance to meet the American bombardier who blew up the bridge.

"I don't know if I'll be welcome at their reunion in Houston or not ... after all, I was the one who destroyed their bridge," said Belton rancher Bill Henderson, who claims he was the bombardier who blew up the bridge over the River Kwai on April 3, 1945.

Homosexual reprieve

Ens. Vernon Berg III, the first Navy officer to publicly admit his homosexuality, says he has won an 11th-hour reprieve in his battle to remain in the service.

Berg, who was due for a "less than honorable" discharge at the end of May, said in Virginia Beach on Saturday that U.S. District Court Judge Howard Corcoran of the District of Columbia granted his plea for a stay of the discharge, pending a hearing on his case in the civilian courts.

A "less than honorable" discharge, in Navy parlance, means either a general or dishonorable discharge. Berg is fighting the Navy regulation barring homosexuals from the service, and he also wants to force a full review of the Navy's discharge procedures.

Going home

Baby Jennifer, isolated in a bacteria-free environment in Baltimore for the last nine months, is going home. Doctors think the 13-month-old infant can now survive in a germ-filled world.

Jennifer was born without any natural body defenses against disease. Three months ago doctors developed a gland transplant in an effort to save the child's life. The child's production of antibodies was stimulated artificially, but doctors warn that the new defense mechanism still may not be strong enough to resist all infections.

Jennifer was born without a thymus, a ductless gland near the neck which makes up part of the body's immune system. Most infants suffering from the condition, known as combined immune deficiency, succumb to infections.

Female cadets 'silly'

Gen. William Westmoreland said Saturday it was "silly" to permit women to enroll at the West Point military academy.

"It's depriving young men of the limited places that are there," the former chief of staff and West Point superintendent during Memorial Day services in Middletown, Ohio. "The purpose of West Point is to train combat officers, and women are not physically able to lead in combat.

"Maybe you could find one women in 10,000 who could lead in combat, but she would be a freak and we're not running the military academy for freaks," he said.

Honorary chieftain

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau has been made a chief of the Haida Indian nation and given the name Kithgoolana, meaning "He who speaks with the golden tongue." Trudeau received the name Friday while visiting the Queen Charlotte archipelago, home of the once powerful Haida tribe and the site of a Canadian armed forces base.

Actress honored

Actress Jean Stapleton received an honorary Doctorate of Humane Letters on Saturday from Monmouth College in West Long Branch, N.J.

Mrs. Stapleton — Edith Bunker in television's "All in the Family" — received the degree from college President Richard Stonesifer. "Today, unquestionably, was Edith Bunker's finest hour," Mrs. Stapleton said.

Eisenhower kin weds

Mary Jean Eisenhower, youngest of the four grandchildren of the late President Dwight Eisenhower, was married Saturday evening in New York to 2nd Lt. James Brewton Millard of the Army.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sheldon Doud Eisenhower of Valley Forge, Pa.

The bride's grandmother, Mamie Eisenhower of Gettysburg, Pa., was among the guests at the wedding, after which a reception was held in Mellon Hall of the Valley Forge Military academy.

Happy divorce

"I even bought a new suit," said Albert Rabas, 48, a farm equipment sales manager of Luxemburg, Wis., who was throwing a divorce party for himself Saturday at a ballroom. "I bought a new suit when I got married, so I bought a new suit for my divorce."

After Rabas was divorced Feb. 28 from Judy Rabas, his wife of 22 years, "I said, 'By golly, it's all over, and I'm kind of happy. I ought to throw a party.'"

Pat Brown sidelined in son's presidential bid

By JOSEPH LELYVELD
New York Times Service

"Governor Brown, please," said the secretary who was putting through the call. "Former Governor Brown is calling."

A moment passed and then she punched a button on her phone. "Governor Brown," she said, "Jerry will call you back in a few minutes."

While waiting for the call in his paneled law office in Beverly Hills, the original Edmund G. Brown talked about his son's presidential campaign with a parent's fretful love and the frustrations of a sidelined war horse.

Pat Brown learned about his son's decision to run only after it had been announced in the press. Later, when he offered to campaign in Maryland, he was politely but firmly rebuffed.

The decision was relayed not by his son but by his son's campaign manager, Mickey Kantor.

"He said they didn't think it would be necessary," the former governor said. "They wanted my daughter but they thought it would be overkill if I came in. Overkill, I couldn't figure that out. I guess it was just some sort of an excuse."

In the circle of the candidate's advisers, where Pat Brown is affectionately viewed as an anachronism, there had been a division over whether he would be an asset to the campaign. Finally, when a decision was made, it was not really a matter of calculation but the son's firm wish.

Pat Brown was hurt but not put off. If he couldn't be useful one way, he would be useful another. So he got on the phone to old campaign contributors and dictated letters to Democratic governors of his generation, not one of whom was still in office, asking them to use their influence for his son. And while the governor was out of state campaigning, the former governor filled in for him on speaking engagements in California.

He has stayed as close to the campaign as he could ever since and worried about every tactical decision, but that has not been very close and he has never been consulted. In the two months since his son announced, he says, he has spoken to him perhaps six times on the phone and seen him only at fund-raising dinners.

At a dinner in Beverly Hills Wednesday night, the former governor was seated next to Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles when his son was swept into the ballroom on a tide of television crews and photographers and seated, finally, next to the actress Candice Bergen. The candidate passed within inches of his father and the mayor but seemed to see neither of them.

To avoid the appearance of a snub, Pat Brown urgently maneuvered the mayor into the TV lights that were shining on his son, then stood aside, waiting his turn to say a few words. In that moment, he could have been mistaken for a contributor who wanted to be introduced.

The night before at a dinner in San Francisco, the sensitive nerve ends of the relationship were even more strained by a long speech that mentioned his father only at the end.

And when Gov. Brown was leaving the hall, his father had to remind him to say goodnight to his mother. "Laugh, I thought I'd die," the senior Brown then said to no one in particular in tones that were plainly exasperated.

But by the next afternoon, Pat Brown was boasting about his son's speech and the write-in votes he had accumulated in Oregon, which were not enough for the stunning victory Jerry Brown had sought there but were twice as much as his his father had imagined he might get.

At 71, the former governor is well-tanned from the golf course and as exuberant as most candidates the voters will see this year. That exuberance is not easily checked, but he understands how it is with sons and can even find the words a son might use to talk about a father. "You love him," he said, "but you don't want to overwhelm him."

If he were asked, Brown would advise his son to reach out now to his elders — men like George Meany, Sen. Edward Kennedy, Mayor Richard Daley and Sen. Hubert Humphrey — in hopes of eventually getting their endorsements.

But he is not sure what course his son will follow on his candidacy or on other matters such as California's Proposition 15, the hotly contested referendum that seeks to block the further development of nuclear power in California.

The senior Brown is co-chairman of the committee to defeat the referendum. There is even a 30-second Pat Brown spot on TV on behalf of the "No" vote.

The governor has yet to take a stand on Proposition 15. "He may just endorse it to counteract me," his father said. "He may just feel that I've identified him with the negative side."

The phone rang as the former governor rose to see his guest to the door. Once he lifted the receiver, an expression of happy relief came over his face. Cupping a hand over the mouthpiece, he whispered, "It's my son."

Physicians willing to allow Karen Anne Quinlan to die

NEW YORK — The parents of Karen Anne Quinlan have found physicians willing to treat the 22-year-old comatose woman as a "chronic-care patient" and to refrain from using extraordinary medical procedures to keep her alive, but have not found a medical facility that will accept the young woman as a patient.

Miss Quinlan, who has been in an irreversible coma for 13 months, is a patient at St. Clare's Hospital in Denville, N.J. Hospital officials and her attending physicians, Drs. Robert Morse and Arshad Javed, have indicated they will take whatever steps are necessary to keep her alive, even if it means reconnecting her to a mechanical respirator.

Miss Quinlan has been free for 10 days of the respirator that supported her breathing for more than a year. If she is transferred to the care of new doctors and a new medical facility, she would not be put back on a respirator in the event of a medical crisis and would be allowed to die.

Dr. Joseph Fennelly of Madison, N.J., said he was the spokesman for a team of seven physicians who were willing to care for Miss Quinlan as a "chronic-care patient." He said this means the physicians and family, in caring for Miss Quinlan, "would maintain the usual standards of nutrition and do all possible to alleviate pain and suffering."

The physician said that since Miss Quinlan had demonstrated she could breathe without a respirator, "the basic problem of extraordinary means has been settled."

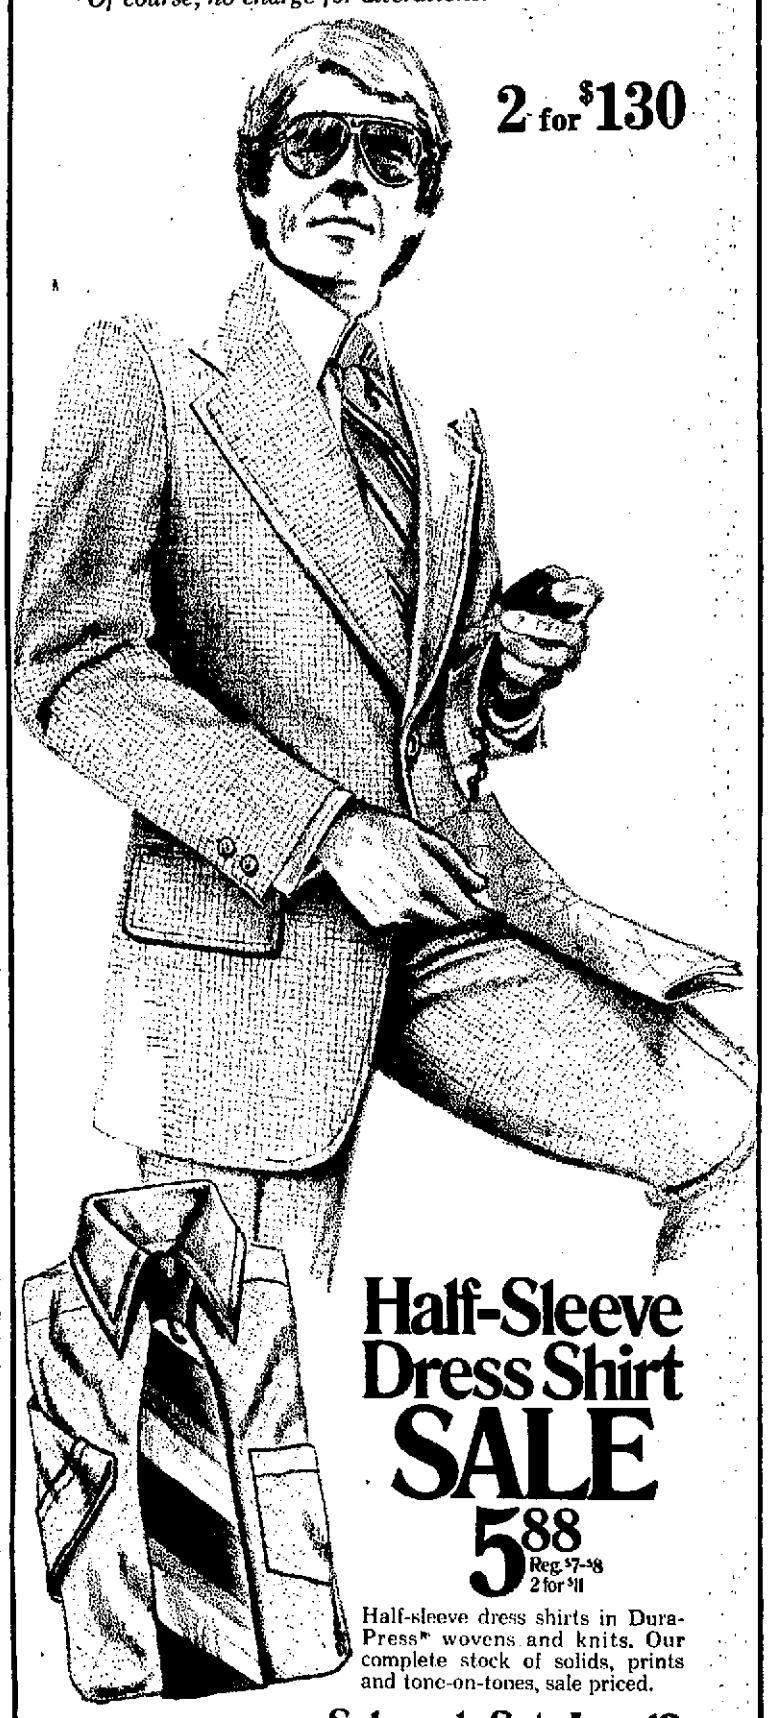

The young woman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Quinlan, went to court last year when her attending physicians at the hospital refused to remove Miss Quinlan from the respirator, believing it was needed to keep her alive and that removing the machine would violate accepted medical practice.

The parents' request was turned down following a Superior Court hearing but granted by the State Supreme Court on appeal.

'It can be real therapy'

Poets meet for a few words

By KRIS SHERMAN
Staff Writer

A few years ago, people found it hard to believe that Rosey Grier, 260-pound defensive lineman for the Los Angeles Rams, had taken up needlepoint for relaxation.

Nevertheless, he-men across the country tried it and found that the art was both relaxing and rewarding.

SO IT'S not surprising that out of that same sort of Rosey Grier needlepoint philosophy comes yet another means of relaxation and release — poetry.

All it takes is paper, pen and the desire to express one's self in words, according to Scholer Bangs, a member of the California Federation of Chaparral Poets.

About 400 of the group's members were meeting at the Grand Hotel in Anaheim this weekend for the organization's 37th annual statewide Poetry Convention.

"WE'VE done studies that show that one out of four adults say they have written poetry, are writing poetry or are poetry aficionados," Bangs said. "That means that there are about five million poetry fans in California."

But why poetry?

Bangs said poetry can take many forms — the Japanese haiku, free verse, blank verse, ballad and sonnet, for instance — and any topic whether it be real or imagined.

"It can be real therapy for someone who wants to relax after a difficult day on the job," Bangs said. "Some people write for profit, some write because they feel they have something to say and some write for the sheer pleasure of writing," he added.

BUT whatever a poet's reasons for putting his thoughts on paper, poetry is no longer something that's done "in the closet," according to Bangs.

"We've come a long way from the days when poetry was considered an effeminate art," he added. "A lot of our members are industrialists, presidents of corporations, businessmen, athletes and actors. And a lot of them write very good poetry.

"I don't think people really realize how much poetry is used in everyday communications," he continued. "There's poetry in greeting cards, rock music — the Beatles did a lot to popularize to that form of verse — and even television commercials."

BANGS said the poetry federation, which has about 800 members, holds meetings where poets gather to share their works, conducts a legislative lobby in Sacramento and encourages schoolchildren to try their hands at poetry by sponsoring contests and displaying the works of elementary school youngsters at the annual convention.

He said the group, founded in 1941 at Glendale, drew the 'chaparral' portion of its name from "landscape chaparral that adds beauty of its own to the mountains."

"Similarly," he concluded, "our poetry adds a beauty all its own to the literature of California."

City planning not hurt by shakeup

All planning functions in Long Beach, including zoning matters, special permits, subdivision approvals and environmental reports, are operating on a normal schedule, Assistant City Planning Director Carl Mooers said Friday.

Mooers has been in charge of the Planning Department since May 21, when City Manager John Mansell fired Planning Director Ernest Mayer Jr. after Mayer was arrested on charges of accepting $50,000 in bribes.

Property owners, architects, builders or developers requiring actions of the Planning Department or the Planning Commission need expect no unusual delays, Mooers said.

There had been some reports that district attorney's investigators looking into Mayer's activities had seized Planning Department records and files, handicapping the department's work, but Mooers said this is not the case.

"The only material taken by the investigators involved Mr. Mayer, and in no way has restricted the normal operations of the department," he said.

Doctor panel to rate jail's medical care

A panel of eight or 10 doctors will be named next week to evaluate the medical care of prisoners in the Orange County Jail, where three persons died last year as a result of falls or seizures.

Sheriff Brad Gates said physicians provided by the Orange County Medical Association will do the work as volunteers since the county has no funds for the work.

Everett Bannister, executive director of the association, said the request from the sheriff to make the evaluation was the first of its kind received by the medical association.

However, the American Medical Association makes such reviews for federal institutions, and the California Medical Association does the same for state penal facilities regularly, he said.

Most businesses to be closed for holiday

There will be no regular residential or business mail delivery on Monday, and most federal, state, county and city offices will be closed because of the Memorial Day holiday.

Banks, schools, libraries, post offices and other government offices as well as most private business offices will be closed.

The Independent, Press-Telegram will publish a combined edition, which will be delivered Monday morning.

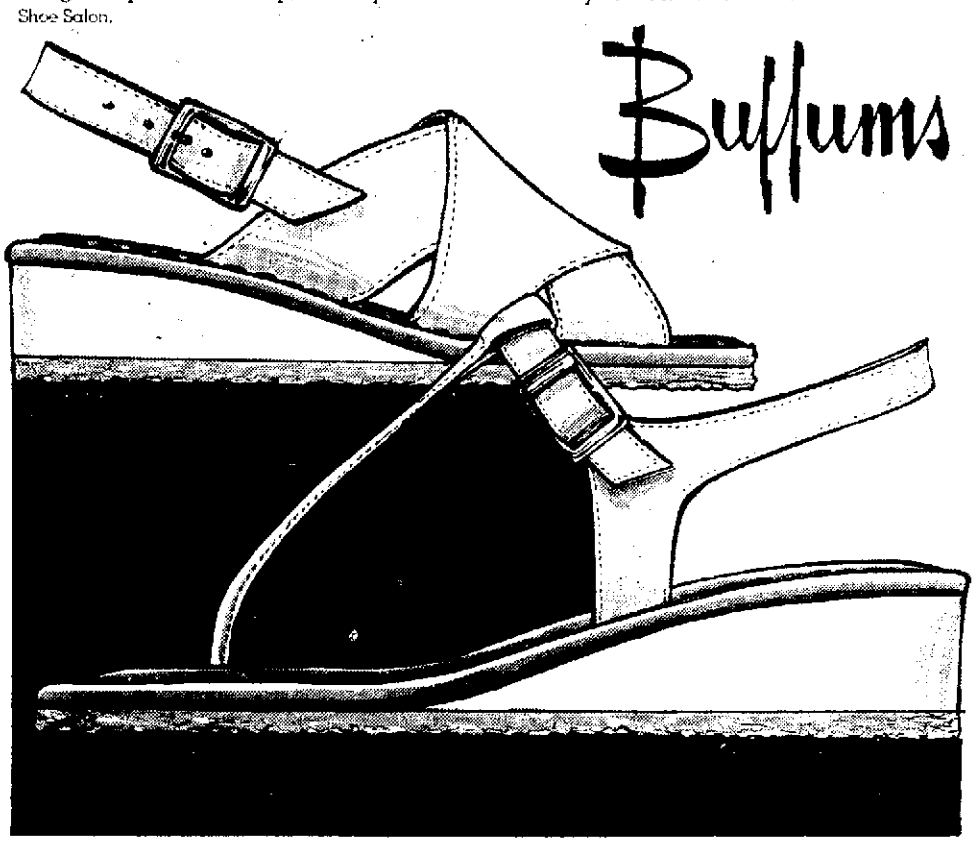

The Postal Service said limited post office window service would be provided.

TV, cash stolen

Burglars who climbed through a window at the home of Joel Douty, 2284 Locust Ave., took a television, radio, stereo equipment and currency with a total value of $1,000.

Woman lies helpless 6 days after stroke

MILPITAS (AP) — For seven days and six nights a 56-year-old widow who suffered a sudden, paralyzing stroke in her mobile home struggled vainly to cry for help or reach the telephone.

Leora Walker Reas lay virtually helpless inside her home until firemen pried open the door and found her Thursday night. They took her to Washington Hospital in Fremont, where she was reported in good condition Saturday.

"I never gave up hope. I have a lot of faith in the man upstairs," Mrs. Reas said from her hospital bed.

She said the ordeal began when she suffered the stroke a week ago Friday after walking into her living room, fresh from a shower. She collapsed, the left side of her body paralyzed from head to toe.

"It took me a day and a half to crawl to the kitchen," Mrs. Reas recalled. "I was hopeful I could get a drink of water, a shot of bourbon or some food—just something to survive."

She reached an open can of peaches, a basket of strawberries and a pan used to catch melting ice from the refrigerator. Everything else was beyond her grasp.

Her telephone rang and rang. It was tantalizingly close, but not close enough.

Finally on the seventh night help arrived. Her son, worried that she did not answer her phone, had called a neighbor, who went over and knocked on the door.

After hearing Mrs. Reas' muffled cries, the neighbor called the Fire Department.

"I knew you'd come before long," Mrs. Reas whispered to her rescuer, Fire Capt. Tim Jones.

"She didn't cry; she was calm," he said. "It was if we stopped by for a planned visit."

New seat belt study set

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Highway Patrol, which recently received a study saying seat belts wouldn't help school bus safety, said Saturday another study would be made to see if seat belts would have saved lives in the May 21 Martinez bus crash.

The consultant making the study, Charles Ursell, is from the same firm, Southwest Research Institute, that presented the report on seat belts two months ago, said CHP Commissioner Glen Craig.

Twenty-eight high school choir members and a music teacher were killed in the Martinez crash when their bus smashed through a guard rail at a highway offramp, fell about 25 feet and landed on its roof.

The earlier study concluded that seat belts would be impractical and unnecessary on school buses and that their use would be difficult to enforce, Craig said.

He said the study suggested that any safety changes in buses "should be in the area of seat redesign to eliminate exposed metal tubing and add to padding."

But despite the report, Craig said, a new study may "give us additional insight into the wisdom of requiring belts on school buses."

Brown hit on busing view

Associated Press

Gov. Brown's reported statement during taping for a televison show Friday "that widescale busing just ahead in Los Angeles doesn't make a lot of sense to me" was criticized in Los Angeles Saturday by Virna M. Canson, West Coast regional director of the NAACP.

Maid finds drugs; 5 arrested

Associated Press

A hotel maid's discovery of a shoe box allegedly filled with heroin and cocaine led to the arrest of five persons for investigation of illegal drugs, Los Angeles police said Saturday.

Authorities said 3½ ounces of drugs valued at $5,500 purportedly were in the box and another $55,340 in cash was confiscated during the arrests at the Los Angeles Hilton.

Booked for investigation of possession of drugs for sale were Michael Hampton, 30, Claudie Helton, 33, and Jacqueline Smith, 20, all of New York City, and David Stevens, 36, and Janis Smith, 22, both of Greenville, S.C.

Police said the maid was cleaning the 11th floor room Friday when she discovered the shoe box. Believing the occupants to have checked out, she took the box to the hotel claims counter where the drugs and several syringes were discovered.

Baja bandits threaten, rob U.S. campers

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A camping instructor said Saturday that he and eight other campers were robbed and terrorized by four bandits who burst into their Baja California campsite in the predawn hours armed with guns and machetes.

Bob Long said his group was robbed of about $1,200 in money and equipment and that two other smaller groups of campers at Punta Banda, about 20 miles south of Ensenada, also were victimized.

Long said the bandits threatened the campers, demanding money and other valuables. He said one bandit placed a machete at the throat of a pregnant woman but that neither she nor anyone else was injured.

Long, 37, of El Cajon, a camping teacher with the San Diego County Department of Education, said he had made more than 100 camping trips to Mexico without incident. He said he had reported the robbery to U.S. and Mexican authorities when the group returned to the border.

MILLS OK'S OWN LAW

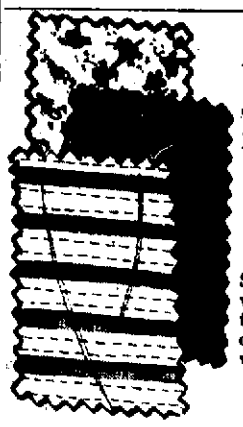

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Sen. James Mills got to sign one of his own bills into law this past week. The San Diego Democrat, as Senate president pro tem, became acting governor Friday with both Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. and Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally out of the state.

One of the four bills Mills signed late in the day was his own, a technical measure clarifying the state law on access for the handicapped to certain historic buildings.

Edgy Demos taunt each other on the holiday campaign trail

Carter now has 880 of the 1,505 delegates needed for nomination at the Democratic National Convention, and Udall is in second place with half a vote short of 300.

Ford leads te GOP race with 777 national delegates and Reagan has 643 with 1,130 needed for nomination.

Before heading for his home in Plains, former Georgia Gov. Carter attended a series of fundraisers in Ohio. He said he plans to spend about $100,000 on a media campaign for that state's June 8 primary.

In an appearance in Youngstown, Carter blasted Udall's animated television ads which depict the Georgian as two-faced and noncommittal on the issues, calling the ads "the first example" of direct personal attacks in the campaign.

Udall, in Cleveland, did not respond directly to Carter's criticism but said he did not believe the three radio spots to be used in the Ohio campaign were "out of bounds."

The Arizona congressman then took off for South Dakota, where he plans two days of campaigning in an effort to secure his first primary victory outside his home state.

At a Sioux Falls municipal airport news conference Saturday, Udall said Carter is planning some previously unscheduled campaigning in South Dakota on Monday and that "when he adds a day to his schedule, you know he's in trouble."

The congressman then flew to Brookings, where he repeated his charge that Carter is fuzzy on the issues.

Udall said he intends to emphasize in his South Dakota campaign his endorsement by Sens. James Abourezk and George McGovern.

Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, who has withdrawn from active campaigning, is also on the South Dakota ballot, along with antiabortion candidate Ellen McCormack, Gov. George Wallace of Alabama and an uncommitted slate believed to favor Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, who has said he is not seeking the nomination but would accept a draft.

Of Democrats Carter, Udall, Wallace, Jackson and Church listed on the Montana ballot, only Church has campaigned there. The senator has spent most weekends in his neighboring state.

Brown, buoyed by a record write-in vote that won him nine national convention delegates from Oregon last Tuesday, and Church exchanged criticisms on qualifications while campaigning in Rhode Island on Saturday.

The presidency "is not a glorified governorship," Church told a crowd in Cranston. "It's an office of very different dimensions...It's never been thought that 18 months in Sacramento was a sufficient preparation for the presidency of the United States."

The California governor responded to the senator at a Providence news conference later, saying: "I don't think that 20 years in Washington reading the Congressional Record necessarily qualifies a person for the top executive job in this country. The idea that because a man is 20 years in Washington you ought to send him back for another four years, I don't agree with.

"I think that the understanding and the experience that one gets as governor of particularly a state like New York or California — states that are larger than most of the countries of the world — is far more suited in terms of training for the presidency," he said.

Both Brown and Church scheduled full days of campaigning Saturday and today. Brown toured two areas of Providence on Saturday and drew about 200 listeners for a speech at a downtown shopping mall. Church addressed a crowd of about 150 senior citizens at an elderly housing project.

—In New York, pollster Louis Harris said he and others are having a difficult time determining Carter's strength because voters who express preferences for him during surveys before voting are apparently changing their minds before casting ballots.

Harris said 5 to 10 per cent of the people who said they would vote for Carter in their state primaries voted for other candidates or did not vote when election day came. And a reputable firm's poll for the Baltimore Sun predicted a narrow victory for Carter in the Maryland primary, which Brown won with a substantial 49-37 margin, Harris said.

—The Michigan Democratic Central Committee met Saturday and announced the official allocation of national delegates from the May 18 state primary gave Carter 69, Udall 58 and Wallace two. Four national delegates will attend the convention uncommitted.

Tunney, Hayden set day

A Tunney spokesman, Hadley Roff, said Tunney had just left Washington for California and had "no advance warning" that the B1 vote was upcoming. "The Senate is sometimes capricious," Roff said.

At campaign stops in San Francisco and Sacramento Friday, Tunney assailed defense proposals outlined in Hayden's campaign tome, "The Future Is Ours."

Tunney said he had analyzed the proposals and concluded they would cut the army by 58 per cent and the navy and air force by 51 per cent and eliminate nearly 2.6 million jobs.

Hayden's plans, Tunney said, would "dismantle our national defenses, disrupt important alliances(and) disrupt our economy."

But Hayden spokesman Sam Hurst said Hayden was only describing some defense cuts proposed by others, including Sens. George McGovern and William Proxmire and the Brookings Institution, and suggesting that Congress examine all defense programs meticulously.

Hayden believes "substantial cuts can be made" in defense spending but hasn't put a dollar figure on the cuts, Hurst said. He added, "We want the U.S. to be strong enough to defend itself, without exorbitant defense profits, hunting lodges, cost overruns, boondoggles like the B1 bomber, aid to dictators, and covert activities of the CIA."

Boy Scouts snub KKK

DAVIE, Fla. (AP) — Boy Scout officials, faced with the prospect of the Ku Klux Klan joining a scout-sponsored Memorial Day march Monday, are prepared. If the Klan marches, the scouts will take a walk.

"We'll be there and ready to march, but if they show up we'll pull our kids out," said scoutmaster Zeke Landis.

Hughes 'billions' dwindling day by day

By DONALD L. BARLETT and JAMES B. STEELE

Knight News Service

The celebrated will first made public following the death of Howard Hughes—and the only one of the many Hughes wills that have surfaced to which any credibility has been attached—is almost certainly a forgery.

As a consequence, the Hughes estate, which probably is worth much less than estimates previously published, seems certain to be all but gutted by federal estate taxes, legal fees and administrative expenses.

Indeed, it is possible that as little as $100 million to $200 million of the legendary Hughes "billions" may ever be distributed to relatives and heirs. The rest of the fortune either doesn't exist or is on its way to the federal government, whence it came, in the form of estate taxes.

First of a series

THOSE ARE some of the findings of a continuing investigation by The Philadelphia Inquirer into the Hughes business organization, and into the tangled series of complex legal actions filed in recent weeks by Hughes attorneys and relatives in state courts in California, Delaware, Nevada and Texas.

That investigation has established that:

—For every document examiner brought forth who is ready to declare a Hughes will as "authentic" there is another examiner ready to label the same will as a "forgery."

—There are strong indications that memoranda already introduced in proceedings in several courts around the country as examples of Hughes' handwritten messages—and thus used for comparative purposes—actually represent the writing of two or more persons.

—The overall value of the Hughes estate—placed at between $1.5 and $2.5 billion by newspaper, magazine, television and radio reports—has been grossly exaggerated. In fact, it is probable the estate will fall short of the $1 billion mark.

— While the Hughes fortune will be far less than published reports have estimated—because the same secrecy that surrounded the industrialists's organization while he was alive continues after his death—it will be difficult, if not impossible, to determine whether the value of the estate has been further reduced by either mismanagement or diversion of assets.

—If there is no legitimate Hughes will, what is left of the Hughes millions, after payment of federal estate taxes and claims, will be distributed among a handful of his relatives with whom he had little contact, and some of whom he never even met.

—It is estimated that federal estate taxes, and interest payments on those taxes, will range upwards of a half-billion dollars, the actual figure depending upon the final valuation placed on the estate and the total amount of claims.

—Although legal hearings related to the Hughes estate can be expected to drag on for years—legal actions already are pending in four courts in four different states—there is one date that must be kept: The first installment of the federal estate tax bill—10 per cent of the total due—must be paid in July 1977.

—Depending upon the amount of cash and readily negotiable securities Hughes owned when he died, it is likely that some of the assets of his wholly-owned Summa Corp. will have to be sold to pay both the tax bill and the interest due on the tax next year. The total payments for the year could reach nearly $100 million.

WHILE HUGHES attorneys and relatives already are entangled in a morass of legal actions in four state courts—so that Howard Hughes continues in death as he did in life, in perpetual litigation—if there is in fact no will, the ultimate disposition will follow fairly clear legal guidelines and can, to some degree, be discerned in advance.

Here is what will happen:

—Upwards of 60 per cent of the estate will go to the Internal Revenue Service in the form of estate taxes, the percentage depending upon the amount of claims and other expenses. The tax payments may be spread over a maximum of 10 years, with an annual interest charge on the unpaid balance presently fixed at 7 per cent.

—Legal fees, administrative expenses and other claims will take anywhere from two or three per cent to more than 15 per cent of the estate, the amount depending largely on the outcome of several major lawsuits pending against Hughes and his companies.

—Depending upon which state probate laws ultimately are applied in the case, the balance of the estate will go, on paper, either to one relative or be distributed among 16 relatives.

—As the Inquirer disclosed two weeks ago, all Summa Corp. assets are presently held by a Delaware state court, sequestered in connection with a 15-year-old TWA-Hughes lawsuit that may drag on for years. Until that legal battle is resolved, Summa's assets cannot be given away, notwithstanding the actions of any probate court. IRS, though, could probably have the order set aside to free enough of the assets to pay taxes.

The federal estate tax payment, Washington tax law specialists say, could be the largest in the nation's history. And in that there is a financial irony for both Hughes and the American taxpayer. Over the past decade alone the Hughes empire received upwards of $6 billion in federal government contracts — contracts financed by the American taxpayer.

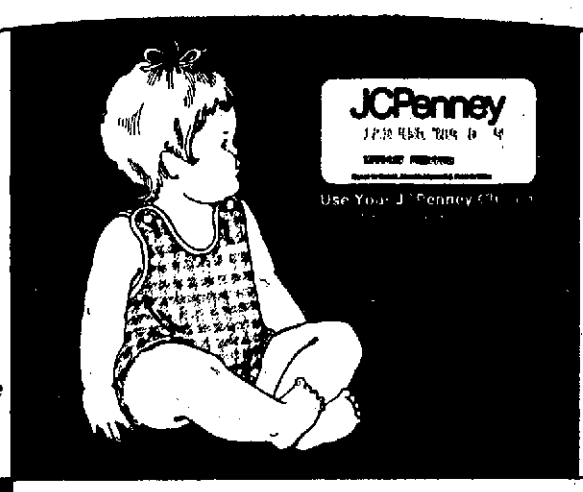

Although more than two dozen alleged Hughes wills have surfaced since the recluse died on April 5, only the will found in the Mormon Church headquarters has been submitted for probate to courts in both Las Vegas and Los Angeles.

Attorneys for Hughes' Summa Corp. and relatives of Hughes' father contend the will was not written by Hughes. But Noah Dietrich, who was named executor in the purported will, maintains it is genuine.

Much of Hughes' fortune a myth?

Attorneys for the 87-year-old Dietrich, who for years was Hughes' chief business executive and financial adviser, say they are awaiting a report on the authenticity of the will by a Maryland questioned documents examiner, Michael P. Kradz.

Kradz, who says he has had 32 years of experience in police work, declined to say who hired him to examine the Hughes will. Although he has been identified in West Coast newspapers only as a handwriting expert retained by Dietrich's attorneys, Kradz indicated he had been retained by someone else.

"Let me put it to you this way," he said. "I was approached to look at this thing, okay? And I offered to do this, and look at it, as a friend of the court.

"I got permission from the court (in Las Vegas) and went out there and photographed it, the original, and naturally the people involved will get a report from me."

Kradz said his report will be completed on Tuesday.

Harold Rhoden, an attorney for Dietrich, said Kradz is not being paid by Dietrich for his services. "He (Kradz) was made available to me and I grabbed him," Rhoden said. "I want an expert. I want to know whether it's a forgery or not."

Neither Rhoden nor Kradz would identify the third party who asked Kradz to examine the will.

The three-page, handwritten will, dated March 19, 1968, directs a series of bequests, including the following:

Four-sixteenths of the estate to the Howard Hughes Medical Institute; 2/16 to four colleges, University of Texas, Rice, the University of Nevada and the University of California; 1/16 to the Mormon Church; 1/16 to establish a home for orphans and 1/16 to the Boy Scouts.

THE MOST interesting provision of the will was that 1/16 of the estate was to go to Melvin Dummar, a Mormon service station operator in Willard, Utah.

The 31-year-old Dummar has said that in January 1968—three months before the alleged will was signed—he was driving in the Nevada desert when he picked up a tall, skinny man wearing "baggy pants and tennis shoes" who was lying by the side of the road.

Dummar said he drove the stranger to Las Vegas, where he identified himself as Howard Hughes. (At the time, Hughes was thought to be living in seclusion in the Desert Inn.)

AS SOON AS what turned out to be the first in a long series of Hughes wills was made public on April 30, there were immediate efforts to label it authentic.

The Los Angeles Times quoted a long-time Hughes aide as saying there was "no question of the will's authenticity."

A questioned documents expert retained by the Mormon Church said there was "a very good chance" that Hughes did indeed write the will.

A handwriting authority in New York, described by a wire service as "a renowned autograph expert," said the Hughes' signature on the document "is indeed genuine."

Explaining why Hughes would appoint him executor—since the two had a falling out in the late 1950s and have been locked in continuing legal battles since the early 1960s—Dietrich observed: "He had so much respect for my integrity and abilities, it does not surprise me he named me as the administrator."

Nearly a month has gone by now and for every expert who first pronounced the will genuine, another expert has labeled it a forgery.

THE WILL has been challenged by attorneys representing relatives of Hughes' mother—the same lawyers also are counsel for the recluse's wholly owned Summa Corp—and by attorneys representing relatives of Hughes' father. Said one Hughes executive: "I think it's becoming apparent there are a lot of people who can write like Howard Hughes."

Even a handwriting expert retained by Dietrich's own attorney the last few weeks cast doubt on the authenticity of the will. Indeed, there seems to be little doubt now among some state and federal investigators that the will is a fraud.

To be sure, the will contains misspellings and language errors that are also to be found in some memoranda accepted by the courts as genuine Hughes products—"Fourth" spelled as "forth" and "revoke" spelled as "revolk," "divide" as "devide" and plural usages confused with possessive usages.

HOWEVER, there are also on record many handwritten memoranda introduced in court proceedings as examples of Hughes' handwriting that contain no grammatical or spelling errors.

The 261-word "will," by comparison, contains more than a dozen errors in spelling or usage—an average of better than one mistake every 20 words. It even misspells the name of Hughes' first cousin, William R. Lummis, as "Lommis."

At least one investigator thinks the various and sundry handwritten memoranda, long believed to have been all written by Hughes, actually were written by two different persons.

Another possibility is that Hughes was a man who slipped in and out of periods of lucidity and that he did indeed write all the memoranda and perhaps even the will. If this is the case, however, the investigator points out, there would then be a question as to the part of the will in which "Hughes" declares himself as "being of sound and disposing mind and memory" when the will was written.

Since Hughes' death on April 5, the two major unknown factors in coming up with a precise estimate of his fortune are these:

—The extent of his investment in bonds, certificates of deposit or similar holdings. Based on what is known of Hughes' past financial practices, it is presumed this figure would not be substantial.

—The extent of his investment in other companies in which the stock may be held by a nominee—a long-time Hughes business practice—making it impossible to determine from existing public records the exact nature of such investments.

For example, the Inquirer has learned that since the early 1970s Hughes maintained a multi-million dollar account at a leading Wall Street securities firm, which made investments for him.

With the exception of those two unknown areas, Hughes single largest investment is in hotels, gambling casinos and undeveloped land in Clark County, Nevada.

Dow falls in slow market

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Interest rate uncertainties — a recurring source of distress in recent weeks — occupied the stock market much of last week, cutting back prices and keeping the trading pace slow.

The worst of it occurred last Monday when the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials tumbled 19.22 points, the largest one-day drop since the average fell 20.88 points on May 6, 1975.

The price erosion, which by Thursday had taken the Dow Jones industrial average back down to its lowest closing since February, was unaccompanied by any perceptible buildup in trading volume that might have reflected selling pressure. It was, rather, a matter of a lack of buying demand, reflecting what some analysts perceived as a weakening in confidence.

Elements in the weakening in confidence, analysts suggested, included inflationary prospects, some dull earnings forecasts and the unknowns surrounding the presidential primary campaigns.

None of these questions were resolved at week's end, but Friday the equities markets turned around, registering what several specialists described as a technical recovery. This recovery, from what was described as "an oversold condition," was also helped by reports that the oil ministers of the 13 member nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, meeting in Indonesia, had not as yet reached a decision on an oil price increase.

The fact that there had been no quick move to raise oil prices offset, for the time being at least, the series of prime rate increases — to 7 per cent — announced Friday morning by a number of New York commercial banks.

Rising interest rates also were in evidence — for the sixth consecutive week in the credit markets.

For the week as a whole the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 15.25 points at 975.23. Volume was 84.25 million shares, compared with 91.85 million traded in the previous week.

Porpoise war steps up as ban deadline nears

WASHINGTON (AP) — A court-ordered ban on killing of porpoises by tuna fishermen goes into effect Monday, but a campaign is under way to overcome the ruling.

A May 11 decision by U.S. District Court Judge Charles Richey forbids the fishermen from continuing to kill porpoises. However, the tuna industry says it is preparing an appeal to the U.S. Circuit of Appeals. Meanwhile, the industry's supporters in Congress, alleging that consumers will suffer, are pressing a bill to nullify Richey's decision.

Environmental groups that brought the suit are fighting to let the decision stand.

President Ford entered the controversy on the side of the industry while campaigning last week in California. He went aboard a tuna boat in San Diego Harbor and said "the tuna industry will be destroyed if the full impact of Judge Richey's decision is carried out."

The controversy concerns a method of catching tuna that accounts for a major share of the nation's tuna. It also has accounted for hundreds of thousands of dead porpoises during the last 15 years.

Up to about 1960, tuna fish were taken with poles. Then it was discovered that some yellow-fin tuna swim under schools of porpoises. When the fishermen spot a school of porpoises, they put down their nets and haul in the tuna underneath.

The tuna industry, supported by the federal agency that regulates it and by some California congressmen, cites progress in reducing porpoise killings. The Commerce Department says porpoise killings from Jan. 1 to April 14 were 23,709, a 67 per cent reduction from the 74,352 killed in the same period last year.

Richey ruled that this progress is not enough. The Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972, passed because of earlier experessions of concern for the porpoises, required the department to take steps within two years to reduce porpoise killings "to insignificant levels approaching zero."

The judge, setting the ban for this Monday, said the department was "in violation of both the letter and spirit of the law."

Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-Calif., leader of the move in Congress to nullify the decision, said it will result in higher prices for tuna to consumers and "threatens to destroy the American tuna industry."

Environmentalists scoff at claims of economic damage to the tuna industry, citing statistics showing that most tuna is still caught by the pole method. "There is plenty of tuna that can be caught without harming porpoise stocks," said Toby Cooper of the Defenders of Wildlife.

State hails new low-pollution Volvo

Associated Press

The California Air Resources Board said in Los Angeles Saturday that Volvo has developed a nearly pollution-free car which will be sold in the state later this year.

Board Chairman Tom Quinn said the new Swedish import, which uses an American-made catalytic converter and a special fuel-injection system, is the "most significant breakthrough ever achieved" in the effort to reduce smog emissions from auto mobiles.

Quinn told a news conference that the new Volvo "in addition to being nearly smog-free, actually gets 10 per cent better mileage than current models."

He said a 1976 four-cylinder Volvo sedan with the new converter averaged 22 miles per gallon, while a regular 1976 Volvo averaged 20 miles per gallon and an "average car," which was not further defined, averaged 17.6 miles per gallon.

Quinn said the converter was the first to control all three kinds of automobile pollution: hydrocarbon, carbon monoxide and oxides of nitrogen. The conventional system is an oxidation catalyst which reduced only hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide, he said.

In addition, the engine has a fuel-injection system which includes a device that measures each dose of fuel for the engine. While the normal method is for fuel to be measured out into the air flow, the Volvo system varies the amount of air and fuel.

Quinn said he expected the catalyst would work with cars with conventional carburetors but it would require the metered fuel system.

Quinn said the new Volvo has completed lengthy tests required by the state Air Resources Board and the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

California's antismog rules, already the toughest in the nation, will be further stiffened next year. Quinn said most auto manufacturers have developed systems that meet the state's new requirements but that Volvo's exceeded the rules by a wide margin.

In Washington, the EPA had no comment on Quinn's statements but confirmed that Volvo mileage and emission figures released by Quinn were correct.

Quinn said, "We were astounded by the results, which show that within the next decade we can nearly eliminate the automobile as a major cause of smog."

The board estimated the cost of the catalytic converter at between $25 and $50 per car but said the price would go down with mass production. There was no cost placed on a special fuel injection system necessary to get th mileage-performance results reported.

Quinn said the new Volvo is 10 times cleaner than cars sold in most of the nation and seven times cleaner than cars currently sold in California, which has more stringent emission requirements. He said the new system was discovered inadvertently.

"Volvo was trying to develop an emissions system to meet California's stringent 1977 smog standards and at the same time improve fuel economy," he said. "Volvo had no idea that its new control system would result in a nearly pollution-free car."

Problem delays SST flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The takeoff of one of Air France's supersonic Concorde airliners was delayed Saturday when an afterburner apparently overheated, according to the Federal Aviation Administration.

A spokesman for Air France confirmed that the plane was delayed by a "minor technical problem," which he said was quickly repaired.

Jim Collins of Air France said the plane took off from Dulles International Airport for Paris at 1:58 p.m. with 60 passengers. It has a capacity of 80.

The plane had begun a takeoff run at 1:10 p.m., but when the afterburner problem appeared the plane was returned to the terminal for repairs and fuel.

A spokesman for the FAA said the plane had used 4,000 feet of the 11,500-foot runway when the takeoff was aborted. It was halted at the 7,500-foot mark and taxied back.

The malfunction was described as apparently an overheated afterburner by the FAA, but the spokesman said it wasn't certain if the afterburner itself had malfunctioned or only the warning light.

A-PLANTS GET SECURITY ALERT OVER HOLIDAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has issued a security alert for all 58 nuclear power plants across the nation for the Memorial Day weekend, a spokesman said Saturday.

One power company official said the NRC notification of an alert mentioned the fact an NRC agent lost his identification, and police warned in a separate communication that a midget submarine had been stolen.

Another official contacted in a spot check of nuclear plants said radical activity had prompted the alert.

Emigres from Israel assailed

Knight News Service

TEL AVIV—Prime Minister Yitshak Rabin Saturday denounced Jews who have joined the growing flow of emigres from Israel, calling them "deserters" and "weakling dropouts."

Rabin's slashing attack on emigres, who this year threaten for the first time to outnumber immigrants to Israel, sharply contrasted with a vigorous campaign by Israel's government and the Jewish Agency to convince hundreds of thousands of former Israelis to return to the country.

The prime minister's statements brewed counterfire from Israel's foremost newspaper, Ha'Aretz, which accused Rabin of sabotaging official efforts to coax back emigres.

Rabin issued his first attack in a nationwide interview, calling emigres "weakling dropouts." He renewed his attack in a speech to university students here, declaring, "I consider them deserters."

"I DON'T see any justification, come what may," Rabin said, "for anyone born in this country or living here to get up and say: 'I'm deserting the battlefield'."

Rabin's stand contradicted officials here who have been calling for a change of attitude about emigres. "We must not say emigrants are traitors," Menahem Sherman, absorption minister director-general, said recently. "They made a mistake to leave, but that doesn't mean we shouldn't help them to come back."

The newspaper Ha'aretz said: "While it is true that everyone who leaves Israel at this time is in effect weakening it, imposing an additional burden on those who remain, and strengthening its enemies, we do not want to sever our ties with these people or eliminate the prospect that some of them will return.

"The policy toward emigres by the government and the Jewish Agency is directed to this end, and the prime minister's epithet has had the effect of undermining that policy," Ha'aretz stated.

OFFICIALS said that about half the current effort by absorption agencies here was directed at attracting back emigres, offering them housing, loans and other inducements. The drive is seen aimed at compensating for declining immigration resulting from tightened Kremlin restrictions on Jews wanting to emigrate and the large percentage of Soviet emigres who switch to destinations other than Israel once receiving permission to leave Russia. Such dropouts totaled 60 per cent of those reaching Vienna supposedly en route to Israel in April.

Upwards of 20,000 people emigrated from Israel last year, and there are indications that the total may be higher this year. Many are veteran Israelis who complain of the country's quality of life, economic problems and other hardships.

The latest batch of emigres are 450 Soviet Jews who left Israel and are now stranded in Rome awaiting entry visas to the United States.

Ransom paid but girl still missing

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Belgian ambassador and his wife paid leftist kidnapers $640,000 in cash Saturday as ransom for their 16-year-old daughter, Nadine Chaval, police sources said.

There still was no word, however, that the victim had been released.

Nadine's mother, Mrs. Denise Mireille Chaval, told a morning news conference:

"We are waiting for communication from them, to hear the voice of Nadine. This is the code, we have to listen to Nadine's voice in order to turn the money over."

Ambassador Andre Chaval and his wife had raised the ransom by selling property and other valuables and with gifts of money from friends here and abroad.

TRADE MEETING STALEMATED

New York Times Service

NAIROBI, Kenya—A search for an 11th-hour compromise on the critical issues of commodities and debts continued on a round-the-clock basis as delegates to the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development met in dozens of informal contact groups.

As matters stood on the afternoon of the 26th day of the conference the positions of all of the poor and most of the rich nations had not moved much. Furthermore, in a collateral dialogue, one between the developing countries and the socialist nations of Eastern Europe on restructuring monetary and trade agreements, there has similarly been no narrowing of the gap.

But by far the greatest emphasis has been placed by the poor countries on their attempts to wrest concessions on debt relief and a coordinated price support system for commodities, which make up the lion's share of export earnings for the underdeveloped countries.

They had come here with concrete and specific proposals calling for the establishment of a common fund — an international clearing house that would through the acquisition of buffer stocks maintain price levels for key commodities. In addition they called for an international debt conference to establish guidelines for debt relief.

Suez Canal making a comeback

By ELIAS ANTAR

ISMAILIA, Egypt (AP) — A year after its reopening, the Suez Canal has yet to regain its old role as a major highway of international trade, but the graphs are beginning to point upward.

Egyptians regard the canal as visible evidence that they genuinely seek peace with Israel. The dozens of ships using the 103-mile waterway every day, and the rebirth of the cities along its banks, make it difficult, Egyptians say, to envisage the whole enterprise being jeopardized in another war.

Officials of the Suez Canal Authority report that after an initial period of "experimentation and testing," shippers now are showing more confidence that the canal is safe and likely to stay open.

"The monthly increases in traffic are a good sign that the canal is gaining importance as a link between East and West," said the chairman of the authority, Mashour Ahmed Mashour.

In the first month of renewed operation, an average of 11 ships a day went through the canal. The present average is 46 ships a day, and the canal may increase traffic from two to three convoys a day next month.

The canal was closed on June 5, 1967, on the first day of the six-day war which brought the Israelis to its eastern bank. President Anwar Sadat reopened it last June 5.

By then the Israelis had pulled back from the canal and under an agreement last September withdrew to the central Sinai Peninsula, out of artillery range of the waterway. Americans operate electronic monitoring stations to ensure that neither side launches an attack.

As another Egyptian bet on peace, the agreement gave Israel the right to send cargo through the canal on foreign ships for the first time in more than 20 years. Canal officials say there has been about one such passage a month since the canal reopened.

Despite all the reassurances, business in the canal picked up slowly. Canal authority figures show that in the 12 months since it reopened, traffic amounted to 234.2 million tons, in contrast to 548 million tons in 1966, its last full year of operation.

Initial reluctance to use the canal may have stemmed from the fact that engineers removed 42,000 live explosives from the bottom and 700,000 mines from its banks. Naval units from the United States, the Soviet Union, France, Britain and Egypt took part in a year-long clearing effort.

"You should judge the performance of the canal from January," Mashour said in an interview at canal authority headquarters here. Traffic is increasing now by 8.22 per cent a month.

The authority has embarked on a program that will widen and deepen the canal so that 150,000-ton tankers can go through loaded by early 1979.

Patient

I'm eligible for Medi-Cal benefits, but I haven't been able to find a doctor who will accept me as a patient. I broke my hip and knee a year ago, and I need a check-up, but all the doctors I've called say they don't treat Medi-Cal patients. How can I find out which doctors do? M.S., Wilmington.

The Long Beach Medical Association, which covers Long Beach, Lakewood and Wilmington, can refer you to physicians who will accept new Medi-Cal patients. You can call the association at 432-3971. A spokeswoman for the association told Action Line she didn't know of any local orthopedic specialist who would accept Medi-Cal patients, but she can supply you with the names of several general practitioners who will treat persons on state aid. "Very few specialists will treat Medi-Cal recipients unless the patient is referred by another doctor," she added.

Policeman

I heard an oration about the police on the Lawrence Welk show. It was a masterpiece and I'd like to know where I can purchase a copy of it. K.L., Long Beach.

A copy of "The Policeman" has been sent to you by Welk's production company, Teleklew, 100 Wilshire Blvd., Santa Monica, Calif. 90401. A spokeswoman for the firm said she didn't know who wrote the piece, which was recited on the Lawrence Welk show several years ago by one of the members of the band. That particular show is frequently rerun on television. The essay, which opens with "A policeman is a composite of what all men are . . . a mingling of saint and sinner," laments that "he is at once the most needed and the most unwanted . . . a strangely nameless creature who is 'sir' to his face and 'fuzz' behind his back." The essay warns that an officer "must know where all the sin is and not partake. A policeman must be a minister, a social worker, a diplomat, a tough guy and a gentleman."

I didn't get past the ninth grade and I'd like to finish high school. I'm 36 years old. Can Action Line help me? R.J., Long Beach.

You can get your high school diploma through the Long Beach School for Adults-Evening High School, 845 Park Ave. After evaluating your education and employment background, the school will set the number of course credits you need to earn to get your diploma. An adult usually is given some credits for military or work experience, and you can earn course units by passing the General Education Development subject tests. It is impossible, however, in California, unlike some other states, to obtain a high school diploma simply by passing the GED tests. You can get a certificate of high school equivalency from the California Department of Education if you successfully pass the GED tests, but to get a diploma, you must complete classes in U.S. government and history plus any other courses required by the school district after evaluating your school records. The school for adults, which begins its summer session June 21, is open Mondays through Thursdays, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 10 p.m., and Fridays, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. You can call 433-7446 for more information.

REACTION

In reference to your item on "kitnaping." I don't condone the malicious killing of animals, owned by someone or not. I also don't believe in free range or share your pets, as the case may be. I think the law pertaining to dogs running loose should apply to cats, also. These pets become pests when they are let free to roam and foul the neighbors' yards rather than their owners'. I feel that any animal that is running loose should be trapped, and if owners of these animals cannot be located, the animals should be destroyed. Also, any owners of pets running loose should be fined. J.B., Cypress.

HHH recalls his longest day—'68 defeat

lections of that campaign: Lyndon B. Johnson and the Vietnam war.

During the four years Humphrey served as vice president under Johnson, American involvement in the war had escalated, and as antiwar sentiment grew, Humphrey came under pressure to repudiate Johnson's position on the war.

"I had a choice," wrote Humphrey. "Break with the president and be denounced as irresponsible. Or muddle through. Really no choice if I wanted to be president."

As for Johnson, Humphrey described his as "impossible on the war ...

"Wonder why Johnson shot me down when I said that troops would be withdrawn in 1968? I was right. I got the information from the White House. Ruined my credibility, made me look like a damn fool. It hurt. Never really recovered from that."

And then there were the frustrations of the vice presidency:

"Johnson did not like my being interviewed. He decreed that we would carry no press on my journeys around the United States ...

"The vice presidential life was colored by more than LBJ's temper. The temper of the times was no better. My visits to colleges and universities — about a hundred of them up to the time I became a candidate for the presidency — became more difficult as the war in Vietnam went on and protests began.

"Except for the President, I had been the administration's primary defender of the increasingly ugly and unpopular war. I may have been wrong, but I acted out of conviction and upon the information made available to me."

In recalling Johnson, Humphrey also wrote, "I had no single attitude toward Lyndon Johnson. He is not my 'fall guy' to be blamed for my mistakes or failures. I owe far too much to him. He made possible my being Senate majority whip and vice president of the United States. No one played a more important role in my receiving the nomination for the presidency ...

"When I am critical of Lyndon Johnson, it is in the context that I consider him an outstanding president, whose domestic achievements were formidable."

SAUDI ARABIA'S Zaki Yamani pauses to answer newsmen's questions Saturday as he departs from Bali, where the oil-producing nations announced there would be no increase, for the moment, in the price of oil. —AP Wirephoto

Saudi oil minister sees price stability

BALI, Indonesia (AP) — The oil minister of Saudi Arabia said Saturday he expects oil prices to remain unchanged for the rest of the year despite pressure by some oil exporters to boost prices earlier.

Sheik Zaki Ahmed Yamani acknowledged that some members of the world oil cartel want a special meeting to consider new prices before their next scheduled ministerial session in December. But he said: "I don't see why we should go to a special meeting."

ASKED WHETHER others might try to boost prices on their own, Yamani said: "I wish them good luck. No one can increase without Saudi Arabia."

He said Saudi Araba stood firm against an increase this year "because we feel it's in the interests of OPEC as well as in the world's economy which is about to recover."

Yamani spoke with reporters before leaving Bali after a meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries which decided Friday to leave oil prices unchanged. The current price of $11.51 per barrel of a standard grade oil was set last Oct. 1 when OPEC voted a 10 per cent increase.

AN OPEC communique said the oil nations, after considering an economic commission report, decided to instruct the commission to continue its work and report back to the next OPEC ministers' meeting.

The communique set the next meeting for Dec. 15 in Doha, Qatar, but OPEC Secretary General M.O. Feyide and other representatives said they would not rule out an earlier special meeting.

Those members of the 13-nation cartel seeking a price boost, notably Iran and Iraq, argued that oil prices should be raised to match rising costs of Western manufactured goods. They spoke of increases up to 15 per cent.

subcommittee, said last week black African leaders would view it as "a signal that the United States hasn't really changed its African policy at all and has no intention of doing so. I think this will only increase the potential for violence and bloodshed in southern Africa."

Three American environmental groups — the Sierra Club, the Natural Resources Defense Council and the Union of Concerned Scientists — filed a petition with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission asking that GE be denied licenses to export plutonium for the plants.

The U.S. State Department had no comment on the announcement. General Electric officials were unavailable.

The South African announcement said Framatome will supply the nuclear reactors and Alsthom the turbogenerators while Spie Batignolles will be responsible for engineering, South African officials said.

The power station will consist of two pressurized water reactors, each with an electrical output of 922 megawatts. The first unit is scheduled for commissioning in November 1982, the second a year later.

The officials said said financing will be provided by a consortium of French banks in the form of a buyer credit for 85 per cent of the overseas portion of the contract.

Three Dutch firms blamed the Dutch government Saturday for the loss of the contract. A statement from the firm of Rijn Schelde Verolme said the government did not act in time to fulfill its offer to cooperate in granting a credit guarantee. The statement also was issued in behalf of the two other Dutch firms involved, Bredero and Conprimo.

Earlier this week the issue caused a political storm in the Netherlands. Labor and leftists ministers in Premier Joop den Uyl's coalition government opposed participation on grounds it would indicate support of South Africa's policy of racial segregation. Christian Democrats argued the orders would create employment.

There was no official reaction in Paris.

France has maintained good relations with South Africa and has sold the Pretoria government arms. Neither France nor South Africa signed the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

But they said if the court agreed to review it, the department would file a brief as it does in virtually all desegregation cases before the high court.

In a department brief in the Boston case or any other school case, the department will take the position that busing or any other tool of desegregation should be restricted, Bork told reporters.

"The remedies should be tailored to the violation," Bork said.

He said the department position would encompass a wide range of desegregation methods, rather than busing alone.

Bork insisted that the decision to stay out of the Boston case now was made "on entirely legal grounds" and that political considerations played no part at all.

President Ford had been accused by some Democrats of raising the issue for political reasons before he faced a primary election in Kentucky and Tennessee, where busing had been a matter of controversy. He denied the allegation as he won those elections last Tuesday.

Ford issued a statement Saturday saying that he respected Levi's decision. But he directed the attorney general "to continue an active search for a busing case which would be suitable for judicial review of current case law on forced school busing."

Ford also pushed Levi "to develop legislative remedies to minimize forced school busing."

"I believe that ways can be found to minimize forced busing while also remaining true to the nation's ideals and our educational goals," the President said.

In Boston, civil rights leaders praised Levi's decision, while antibusing forces assailed it.

Boston Mayor Kevin White, who wants a Supreme Court review of the city's court-ordered desegregation plan, said, "I am surprised at the attorney general's decision, but it will not affect my own suit ..."

Asked if the latest development might touch off a new wave of violence in Boston, White said, "It shouldn't. There's no excuse for that."

But antibusing leader Louise Day Hicks said Levi's announcement might make the people of Boston "lose their heads."

"The decision of the attorney general is the result of political pressure," said Mrs. Hicks, Boston City Council president. "It's a victory for the high-pressured hypocrites who abound in Washington. President Gerald Ford is a fraud. This is an antiwhite decision."

Thomas I. Atkins, president of the Boston chapter of the NAACP, applauded Levi's decision. "The significance of the attorney general's statement is that he has resisted the effort by the President to manipulate and politicize the U.S. Supreme Court," he said.

The Senate's only black member, Edward W. Brooke, said Levi's decision was neither a victory nor a defeat for either side of the busing issue.

"The attorney general has acted in a judicious and statesmanlike manner, after carefully weighing the arguments of both sides of this extremely controversial matter," the Massachusetts Republican said.

Opponents of Boston busing, appealing a ruling by Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr., have said he went too far by trying to undo racial separation resulting from housing patterns, not the intentional segregation policies of the Boston School Committee.

non, police reported. More than 90 persons were killed and 200 wounded during 24 hours of fighting on all fronts of the sectarian conflict that has killed nearly 26,000 since April 1975, the spokesman said.

Police reported renegade Moslem forces from the nation's 18,000-man regular army overran the Christian garrison town of Andket, with a population of 5,000, near the Syrian border in northern Lebanon.

As a Syrian-sponsored ceasefire in the area collapsed, a police spokesman added, neighboring Qibyat, with a largely Christian population of 20,000, came under heavy rocket and artillery bombardment.

In other Lebanese developments:

—Leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt said in a radio interview broadcast in Paris that French intervention in the Lebanese struggle "should be limited to an invitation to the opposing sides to organize roundtable talks in France." He made the comment after France had offered to send troops to Lebanon to monitor a cease-fire.

—Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat visited Libya on Friday amid reports of a Libyan campaign to enlist Syria in a grouping of hardline anti-Israeli countries against Egypt. Libya has criticized Egypt as a traitor to the Arab cause since last September's troop withdrawal agreement with Israel.

Iraq and Algeria were also reported to be members of the group opposed to Egypt's "capitulationist schemes."

Carter stubborn, mother says

By MARIE W. RIDDER
Our National Bureau

PLAINS, Ga. — "So soft, so kind until you hit the steel." Mrs. Earl Carter, known in this tiny Georgia town as Miss Lillian, sat with her legs curled under her in a large armchair, talking about the Democratic front-runner, her son, Jimmy Carter.

"If we're in disagreement, I can tell when the curtain comes down. A vein stands out in his right temple. He has a sharp claws when he gets angry. He is adamant.

"He hardly ever says anything. I've seen him lose his temper maybe three times. He doesn't want to hurt anybody so he stays quiet but you can tell."

The energetic, 78-year-old mother of the former governor of Georgia prides herself on being frank. "I am," she says, "the most liberal woman in Georgia. Everyone knows I am an integrationist. I get tired of explaining. My feelings are so different from others around here. I don't have an intimate friend in this town except my children, so I know how people can treat you when they don't agree with you. I have always tried to be tolerant — even of people from Alabama."

Miss Lillian, a lady of the Deep South, invited blacks to her front door years ago, stood beside her son when he fought to integrate their church. At 67, she joined the Peace Corps to care for the desperately ill in India. She would be special anywhere. But now her shaded brick rambler "in town" and her wood A-frame on a quiet, pine-fringed pond a few miles away have become meccas for those who want to know more about her son.

"I used to say 'if he becomes president,' and he used to say, 'mother, you are so negative about me.' It would get his goat. But since Florida," the white-haired lady, trim in her turquoise blue pants suit pases, "I say 'when'."

Son's decision to run recalled

She still remembers, with a note of surprise in her voice, the moment she first heard Jimmy had decided to run for that awesome office.

"I was recuperating in the governor's mansion in Atlanta from a shoulder I had broken in Hawaii, sitting up in bed, reading, when Jimmy came in from tennis to visit with me. He was in blue jeans and a T-shirt, barefoot. I asked him what are you going to do after you have finished your term as governor?"

"I am going to run for president," he answered.

"President of what?" I said, thinking he was joking.

"President of the United States, and I am going to win. "I have this eerie feeling he was right. It's all been so gradual and still so rapid."

Miss Lillian talks of a little boy who was an avid reader, who plowed earnestly through "War and Peace" at 12, a teaser and a prankster who sometimes deserved his father's switching for being hard on his little sisters, a boy who loved to hunt and fish and comb the woods for arrowheads. She remembers a serious young man — inspired by postcards from a sailor uncle — who was determined to go to Annapolis.

More expected out of Jimmy

"We wanted him to have an education. We expected more out of Jimmy than a small town can offer. We didn't want him to end up as a filling station attendant. Our congressman came from Americus and we knew that if Jimmy had the qualifications he would get an appointment to the naval academy. It was a chance for the kind of education we couldn't afford to give him."

Jimmy pursued his appointment with a singlemindedness that has since become a trait recognized from New Hampshire to California. He was flat-footed so he rolled Coca-Cola bottles under his arches for "hours and hours." He was underweight so he gorged himself on final examination day with bananas.

His first ambition achieved with appointment to Annapolis, the young midshipman immediately looked ahead. "I always hoped Jimmy might make admiral. He wanted to become chief of Naval Operations. But I never did think Jimmy might be president," said his mother. "I still can't visualize Jimmy in the White House. I still think of the president as a far-away being, far from my touch or my knowing of him."

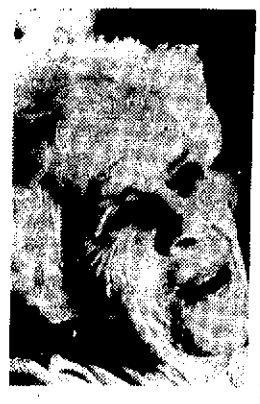

Sitting in the quiet green living room waiting for the Carters' youngest child, 8-year-old Amy, to return from school to her grandmother's brownies and chilled cocoa, a reporter wonders what about the campaign most distresses this forthright lady with steel blue eyes.

She answers with a laugh, the number of cousins that have suddenly appeared, the flattery that annoys even more than criticism and most seriously, the constant carping about Jimmy's christianity.

"If you live in Plains, the church is the only place we have to go except a beer joint. The old windows in that church are the only things of artistic merit in this town. All our lives gravitate to that big white building."

Miss Lillian doesn't like her son to say, "I will never tell a lie." She finds it unnecessary. "It's your deeds that count," she states firmly. "But I don't tell Jimmy. I am all sweetness and light when he comes home. He needs his time here to be unruffled."

She was worried that Jimmy's gubernatorial experience had not sufficiently equipped him for dealing with foreign policy, but since his speech at the United Nations she is sure he will do fine.

"He has always applied himself to what ever needed doing with intelligence and discipline. When he came back to run the farms and peanut business he didn't just drift. He learned what to do to improve the crop and the marketing. He read every book on the subject and took agriculture classes. He said just last week, 'I hope I am never too old to want to learn something new.' "

Driving down the quiet roads, fragrant with honeysuckle, one wonders what brought a man, with a brilliant career ahead of him, back to this red clay country. "His priorities," say his mother. "Jimmy has a strong sense of duty. We needed him after his father died to help collect the $90,000 credit we had due from farmers over the county.

'He has always applied himself'

A man who as a boy had never liked working in the fields, always dreamed of leaving this country of pine and peanuts, came back to rescue his family's inheritance. "At first", says Miss Lillian, "He came to help out. Then he used that singlemindedness to improve our farms and build up the warehouse. His father left 3,000 acres so we weren't hurting, but Jimmy turned it all into a very good business that Billy runs now. It takes care of all of us."

Last year, the Carter enterprises were able to buy a peanut sheller that cost over $90,000, says Miss Lillian.

We pass the pleasant, painted, wood farmhouse where Jimmy lived as a boy. A towering pecan tree and a flowering magnolia remind Miss Lillian of planting the seedlings when her children were little. Then back to town past a main street that seems to have been borrowed from a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer back lot. Seven 19th Century buildings, neat store fronts, set sternly by the railroad track. At one end stands Hugh Carter's antique store. At the other, the Carter warehouse.

Cousin combines worms, politics

It is a flourishing business, she reports, "started with crickets raised in a coffin but he switched to worms after a bit."

Hugh Carter's worms are shipped to bait shops all over the country. It is the largest worm farm in the country, harvesting 150 million worms a year. Hugh Carter calls his produce, "wiggly gold." Like Jimmy, Hugh is thorough. He has written seven books on growing worms. "Those worms," she adds, "have built him a fine, new house."

Hugh Carter, who succeeded his cousin Jimmy in the legislature, currently has a hectic time between shipping worms, selling mementos of Plains to a suddenly numerous clientele and rounding up delegates for his cousin on the telephone at the back of his store.

"It's a WATTS line," he explains but a far cry from the smoke-filled rooms traditionally used for delegate pressuring. He also keeps an eye on Carter For President headquarters, spitting distance away in the old depot, where volunteers are busy painting peanuts to sell as fund raising souvenirs.

The Carter family has dominated this town of 633 since Jimmy's great-great grandfather, Wiley, settled here 150 years ago. Jimmy's father was in the legislature. Hugh's father, 87-year old Alton, was mayor of Plains for 28 years.

"But," adds Miss Lillian, "Most people in this town are black and poor. They have a very hard life."

We drive past a sprawling red brick school that Jimmy as a chairman of the school board failed to consolidate with a larger one in Americus. "He wanted," says Miss Lillian, "to have more books, more courses just a teenie bit wider view of the world for the children, but people here didn't see it that way."

We stop by a brick house with a steep pitched roof and big windows. "Jimmy's," his mother says. Looking up the tree-lined driveway filled with cars she adds dryly, "Secret Service."

It's been 18 months since Jimmy and his wife, Rosalyn, started campaigning. Miss Lillian has been delighted to have Amy but has left the Siamese cat to the Secret Service.

"First thing they do when they get back is pick up Amy," says Miss Lillian." Jimmy has given up a lot of the things he used to love like tennis and fishing, doesn't have time anymore."

A frisbee lies on the grass waiting for that odd spare moment when the presidential candidate will take a few minutes to play with his little girl. The Carters, however, always take a walk together in the woods behind the house. "It's their favorite part of the weekend," says Miss Lillian. "They spend a lot of Sunday in church. Jimmy still teaches his Sunday school class."

Rosalyn has been away as much as her husband. "She is not a homebody," says her mother-in-law. "She feels restless when she isn't out on the road campaigning for Jimmy. She always liked to travel anyway."

A paragraph in Jimmy Carter's biography comes to mind. Rosalyn Carter did not want to come back to live in her hometown. She told her young husband that she was afraid of being dominated by both her mother and her mother-in-law.

Miss Lillian describes her own family as close. Jimmy, his sisters, Gloria Spann and Ruth Stapleton, and his brother, Billy. There is currently, however some tension between go-go Gloria Spann and her brother.

Gloria, her husband and some "other partners" have launched an unusual real estate business. They are selling land next to her brother's farm for $5 a square inch. Since it is her land it is legitimately a part of the Carter peanut farm.

"It's a memento from Plains," she explains. The purchaser receives a large parchment, gold-embossed title of ownership and the pleasure of knowing he owns land next to Jimmy Carter's. "I thought it would cheer up the campaign. Everything has got ton so serious," says hi

Carter and Brown schedule L.B. meetings

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Democratic presidential candidates Jimmy Carter, former governor of Georgia, and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California will make campaign appearances in Long Beach this week.

Carter will meet with senior citizens Tuesday noon in Bixby Park, Cherry Avenue at First Street.

Brown will speak Thursday at a special noon luncheon meeting of the Third Friday Forum at the Golden Sails Inn.

Cora Cocks, of Long Beach, chairperson of the California Commission on Aging, will introduce Carter at the public rally in the park. It will be Carter's only preprimary appearance in the greater Long Beach area.

The Brown luncheon is open to the public but tickets must be purchased in advance; none will be sold at the door. The price is $5 for Third Friday Forum members and $6 for nonmembers.

Arrangements for picking up tickets may be made with Chuck Greenberg at 435-5631, Helen Potepan at 425-3637 or JoHana Blado at 428-1130.

Brown's appearance is billed as one of only two major Southern California luncheon addresses he has scheduled before the June 8 primary. There will be a no-host cocktail period starting at 11:30 a.m.

Voter info

Election Extra, a publication by the League of Women Voters of the Long Beach area, is available at the league office, 1001 E. Fourth St., for 25 cents a copy or $15 per 100 copies.

The paper contains pros and cons on ballot measures and candidate questionnaires for the June 8 primary election.

The office will be open 10 a.m. to noon on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays; 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Wednesdays and 9 to 11 a.m. on Saturdays until the election.

Long Beach Area Citizens Involved announced its 12-page tabloid of election information is available free of charge by phoning 431-5915 or writing to 6317 Eliot St., Long Beach, Ca 90803.

It contains a reprint of the League of Women Voters candidate questionnaire and the LBACI executive board recommendations on ballot propositions.

Lakewood Demos

Aris Anagnos, president of the Southern California chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, will speak at the 8 p.m. Wednesday meeting of the Lakewood Democratic Club at State Mutual Savings, 5101 Lakewood Blvd., Lakewood.

Unruh to speak

California Treasurer Jess Unruh will speak at the Friday noon luncheon meeting of the Democratic Women's Study Club in the Lafayette Hotel.

Unruh served in the Assembly for 16 years and was its speaker for 7½ years, a record tenure in that post.

Luncheon reservations may be made by calling 438-0300.

laughing motorcycle-riding sister.

But her brother, Jimmy, a man quick with figures, is horrified that a scheme that could well make its backers a fortune is using his fame for what he has termed a "cheap commercial gimmick." Gloria, reluctant to be interviewed but quick to receive a purchaser says, "I love my life here on the farm, which is lucky as I don't think I will be asked up to Washington."

Miss Lillian says it all happened "at a bad time," just after Jimmy talked about 'ethnic purity'. He has worked so hard on the campaign, been so meticulous about each step that his sense of humor is some strained."

How will her son react if he should lose? "He is flexible like a rubber ball. I have absolute faith in Jimmy. God has given him courage and wisdom and he has always been lucky. I don't pray for him to be president. I pray for him to have the courage to say and to do what he feels is right."

Wife restless not campaigning

As the afternoon sun is reflected on the pond, Miss Lillian talks about the big bass she catches, about her attachment to her patients in the clinic in India.

She would rather be here than anywhere—except possibly Ebbets Field. An ardent Dodger fan, she and her husband made an annual voyage north to cheer the Brooklyn team. She remembers her excitement that first day that Jackie Robinson played major league baseball. "I cheered 'til I was hoarse.

"I was always so tired at the end of the week from cheering all afternoon and seeing the shows at night." She says she wonders aloud how Jimmy keeps going, day after day, night after night. She recalls his last visit home when he looked so tired.

"Mother," he said, "don't you ever feel sorry for me. I am doing exactly what I want to do. I love every minute of it."

Board denies drug agents let on campus

Associated Press

The Los Angeles city school board did not approve the use of undercover narcotics officers on high school campuses that led to the arrest of 33 students, the board president said.

Dr. Robert Doctor said in a statement that the "undercover method of surveillance and arrest leaves a great deal to be desired."

The statement, released Friday, followed the disclosure that four undercover police narcotics agents had maintained surveillance at four schools during a 14-week period.

Police claimed the undercover officers bought about $6,000 worth of drugs from 41 students during the period.

SS Catalina named landmark

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

THE WATERFRONT

The 52-year-old, 2,200-passenger SS Catalina, which this waterfront observer contends has carried more seagoing passengers than any other ship in history, has been declared Landmark No. 894 by the State Historical Resources Commission.

Why?

Because it is believed to be the only ship in California under U.S. registry with a triple expansion reciprocating steam engine (TERSE).

Not only has the ship been declared a state landmark, it has been nominated to be put in the National Registry of Historic Places.

Capt. Thomas Wolfe, chief of the Coast Guard's Marine Inspection Office, explained how a TERSE works. Steam under high pressure is piped into a cylinder where it expands and pushes a connecting rod linked to a drive shaft, which turns the ship's propeller.

The steam is then fed into a second cylinder with enough pressure to drive a second connecting rod, which also is linked to the propeller shaft. From there, it is fed into a third cylinder, also connected to the drive/propeller shaft.

The connecting rods go up and down, a motion called reciprocating. Hence the identification of a triple expansion reciprocating steam engine.

THE ENGINE is unique in that, unlike an automobile or truck engine in which most of the major moving parts are inside the engine, the Catalina's con rods (slippers) and crank shaft are exposed. It is hoped the operators can make some arrangement for passengers sailing on the Catalina to view the engine when it is running.

Stanleigh Megargee, director of public affairs for M.G.R.S, operators of the "Big White Steamer," has scheduled a dedication ceremony for 6 p.m. Saturday. The Harbor Department has agreed to decorate the Catalina Terminal and use its mailing list to send out invitations for the ceremonies.

Megargee said among those who have indicated they would attend the dedication ceremonies are State Sen. James Wedworth, Assemblyman Vincent Thomas and the president of the Los Angeles City Council, John S. Gibson, whose district includes the harbor area.

During last week's commission meeting, Megargee promised to appear before the commission Wednesday to detail the company's alleged revitalized financial condition.

ASKED IF the financially plagued company (which reportedly owes nearly $1 million to various creditors, including $450,000 to the Farmers and Merchants Bank, $145,000 to the Pension Fund of the Marine Cooks and Stewards Union, and a sum to the city of Avalon) was going to operate the cross-channel cruise ship this season, Megargee said it was planned to put the ship back into operation between San Pedro and Avalon on Catalina Island by the latter part of June. Traditionally the ship begins trips to and from the island around Memorial Day.

Looming on the horizon are other problems for the steamer's operators. The operators of three 700-passenger, three-deck cruise ships, Long Beach/Catalina Cruises, have pending before the State Public Utilities Commission an application to operate their boats from the same terminal in San Pedro as does the Catalina.

Owners and operators of the Catalina are trying to arrange new sources of financing, including a federal grant of between $200,000 and $300,000 from the Economic Development Administration. The grant, if approved, would enable the company's 70-plus employes to buy into the company. However, that plan, too, is fraught with problems.

For example, if the employes (members of seven different maritime unions) become part owners of the company, what position do they take during future management-labor negotiations?

What's the siren?

The following emergency calls were answered by the Long Beach Police and Fire departments during the 20-hour period ending at 8 p.m. Saturday:

12:01 a.m., noninjury traffic accident, Artesia Street at Susanna Road; 12:50, first aid, Queen Mary; 1:30, injury traffic accident, Seventh Street at Studebaker Road; 2:19, injury traffic accident, 15th Street at Molino Avenue; 2:24, man down, 10th Street at Linden Avenue; 5:52, noninjury traffic accident, 170 W. Bort St.; 6:39, man down, 3707 Lewis Court; 8:55, injury traffic accident, Long Beach Freeway at Willow Street; 8:56, first aid, Pacific Coast Highway at Long Beach Freeway; 9:25, noninjury traffic accident, 600 E. Broadway; 10:12, noninjury traffic accident, 536 E. 25th St.; 10:27, first aid, 436 W. Fourth St.; 1:25 p.m., noninjury traffic accident, Market Street at Olive Avenue; 2:03, first aid, Harvey Way at Bellflower Boulevard; 2:58, man down, Long Beach Airport; 3:37, man down, 214 E. New gas bill called costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise natural gas deregulation bill headed for Senate action could send gas prices to consumers soaring by as much as $17.5 billion over the next three years, a new congressional study said Saturday.

The study by the Library of Congress is the first formal estimate of what the measure would cost. The bill, which has broad backing in the Senate, was designed to break a months-long impasse over natural gas deregulation. It would maintain some price limits and phase out others.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: Presages a year of deepening intuition. Material prosperity increases, and with it, a trend to spend more cash. Make an effort to ensure a tenable base of operations, and set up a long-term program. Take initiative in relationships, declare your feelings in deeds as well as words. Today's natives seek logical solutions, have nimble minds that notice and employ tiny details.

Aries (March 21-April 19): A yen to travel is strong. Start early, or be content with nearby, unfamiliar spots. Insight into the workings of another mind provides food for thought.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Keep trips short with definite objectives: people to see, messages to convey. Friends want to help; let them try even if their aid is inconvenient.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You have access to obscure information; better facts and figures. Take advantage of opportunities. Health care is important; don't overdo foolish things.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Enterprises progress as you quietly ask a serious question. In due time you get a dependable answer. Share leisure hours with others of like tastes.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Escape from the crowd and recuperate. Recap progress to date. You learn something of no apparent value now which contributes to your prosperity later.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Distant events mean more to your future than appears on the surface. Be willing to listen to someone with technical knowledge. Pull budget strings tighter.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Group or material prospects are on the upswing. Even if holidaying, you will have to think about career and future negotiations. Make some plans.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Agreement in principle among close associates, family, forms the basis for the future. Relax, meet everyone halfway or better for a round of fun.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Today is a lesson in tolerance. Nothing is quite in order yet not far enough out of line to justify complaints. Travel light, don't get sidetracked.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Through no fault of yours, things creep at a snail's pace. By waiting for the last detail to be perfected, you miss out someplace. See what goes on elsewhere.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): In the event you don't have to work, put in a few strokes on ventures you find beneficial. Leave repairs to people who make a regular job of it.

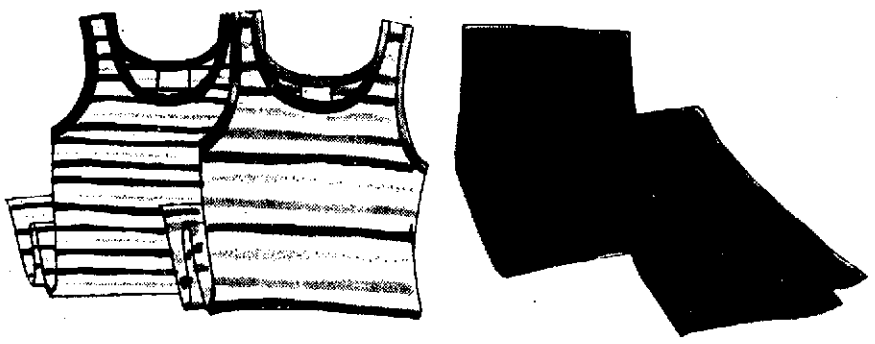

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Creativity stretches to reach public attention. Whatever is involved, bring along extras. Catering to family's emotional needs comes naturally.

Rodeo thrills today in L.B.

Three teams of charros will compete today in a charreada at the Long Beach Mounted Guard Arena at Wardlow Road and Golden Avenue. The Mexican rodeo begins at 2 p.m. with a grand entry featuring the Long Beach Mounted Police.

In addition to the rodeo events, there will be a demonstration of fancy team riding.

Summary of Secret Witness rewards, cases

The Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program has resulted in the arrest of 66 criminal suspects and fugitives from justice since the program was inaugurated on June 10, 1972, with rewards totaling $45,000 paid or committed on conviction of suspects waiting trial. Additional reward money available for informants is specified in the case list below, one of the selected and varying summaries of Secret Witness cases printed in the Independent and Press-Telegram each Sunday and Thursday.

Cases are dropped from the summaries from time to time, but rewards will remain in effect for these until such cases have been closed by police or until notification in print that reward offers have been withdrawn.

Rewards also will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any other major criminal cases, whether covered in these summaries or not, and for the apprehension of fugitives from justice. These rewards will vary in amount depending on the seriousness of the offense.

To ensure eligibility for Secret Witness rewards, informants are required to channel all information DIRECTLY through Secret Witness — that is, to notify Secret Witness FIRST — either by calling the special Secret Witness telephone number or by writing in care of the Secret Witness post office box.

Today's summaries follow:

— A $500 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and assault-robbery conviction of the man and woman holdup team who shot and wounded Joseph H. O'Connor, 35-year-old Torrance area market owner, during the attempted holdup next door of the National Environmental Corp. food stamp headquarters, 22848 S. Western Ave., at 1:15 p.m. on April 1, 1976.

— A $1,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and manslaughter conviction of the hit-run driver who struck and killed Alexander Burdelas, 53, of Norwalk, at the intersection of San Antonio Drive and Firestone Boulevard in Norwalk at 1 p.m. Sept. 27, 1975. The hit-run car was described as a 1964 light-colored Pontiac with chrome rims.

— A $500 reward is offered for the arrest and armed robbery conviction of the gunman who forced his way into the home of Long Beach antique dealer and jewel collector Bernard Kaplan and took $80,000 worth of jewelry on the night of Dec. 30, 1975. Kaplan has pledged an additional $1,000 for arrest and conviction, and still another $1,000 for the recovery of the loss still outstanding, or any percentage of this amount for a like percentage recovered.

— A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest of fugitive Charles Mack, 23, wanted in connection with a series of apartment house armed robberies throughout the Southland since last February, with bodily injury suffered in two of the robberies and the rape of a woman manager in another. Mack is a black man 5 feet 9 inches tall, 150 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes. In the event he is convicted on armed robbery charges, the Secret Witness providing information leading to his capture will be eligible for an additional $500 reward.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the slayer of James Hamilton Macgenn, 50-year-old employe of King's Imperial Restaurant in Lynwood at 1004 Atlantic Ave, stabbed to death in the restaurant parking lot as he was leaving work at 3:30 a.m. on June 1, 1975.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the slayers of George W. Harrison, 50-year-old chef at Peppy's Steak House in San Pedro, found stabbed to death in his home on S. Pacific Avenue in San Pedro at 7 p.m. on Aug. 22, 1975.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 42-year-old Donna Rae Goodell, found beaten to death in her home at 12230 Briarwood St. in Stanton on April 21, 1975.

— Rewards totaling $2,500 — including $2,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness and $500 pledged by Knights of Columbus Council 3449 — will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the slayer of Steven Robert Snedeker, 18-year-old clerk shot to death during a robbery at the H & O Liquor Store, 6069 Cherry Ave., on the night of Jan. 27, 1975.

— A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 37-year-old Tom Littlebear, of Carson, found shot to death in his car parked in the 22400 block on S. Avalon Boulevard in Carson on the afternoon of June 4, 1975.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Mrs. Evelyn Sarah Cunningham, 56, found beaten and stabbed to death on the kitchen floor of her home at 3701 Linden Ave. on March 20, 1975.

How to become a 'Witness'

Secret Witness seeks information from the public leading to the capture of fugitives and the arrest and conviction of criminals.

For this purpose a guaranteed fund of $100,000 has been established by the Independent, Press-Telegram to be used for rewards of varying amounts.

Identities of informants will be kept secret.

You will be paid a reward if the information you give Secret Witness results in the arrest and conviction of a criminal or the capture of a fugitive in cases publicized in this column. Rewards also will be paid for information given to Secret Witness resulting in arrests and convictions, or the capture of fugitives, in cases not published in Secret Witness.

To contact Secret Witness, telephone 436-2526 from 8 a.m. to midnight on weekdays, or from 3 pm. to 11 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Do NOT give us your name. Or write to: Secret Witness. Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90844.

Walk-in theft

Burglars who entered through an unlocked door at the home of Reed M. Wright, 7820 Tarma St., took tools valued at $500.

Police beaten during melee

A Downey man, shot during a melee between two officers and about 10 residents of a Downey apartment building, was in serious condition Saturday in a county hospital prison ward.

Downey police said Armando Kraft Garcia, 26, of 4240 Elm Vista Drive, was in stable condition with a groin wound caused by a bullet that severed an artery in his leg. He was booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer.

Similarly booked were Raul Kraft Garcia, also 26, and Silvia Kraft Garcia, 24, both also of 4240 Elm Vista Drive. They were identified as Garcia's brother and sister.

Officers Steven Guthrie and Robert McDonough, who were knocked to the ground and kicked and beaten during the Friday night donnybrook, were treated for cuts and bruises of the face and head and released.

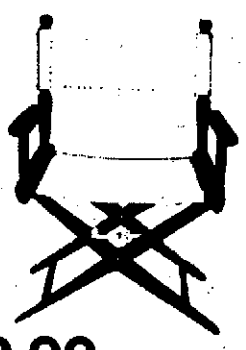

Police said the fight began about 11:20 p.m. after Guthrie and McDonough followed a car with Armando and Raul behind the Kraft Garcia apartment complex to talk to them about a possible traffic violation.

The two suspects became belligerent, police said, and during the discussion the two officers were allegedly attacked by about 10 persons from the apartment complex.

A radio call brought help from other units, and Armando Kraft Garcia was shot by officer Al Brannon, who was the first to arrive. Police said the man was shot after he used a flashlight and his feet during an attack on officers.

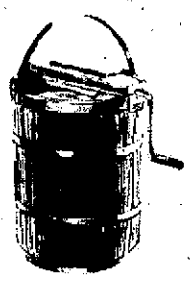

Window forced

Melissa Austin, 116 Miramar Ave., told Long Beach police Saturday that burglars who forced her kitchen window took a television and currency with a total value at $20.

Leaders in Crisis: Buchanan

Battle over San Juan Island

By SID MOODY
Associated Press Writer

Once upon a time, a greedy Canadian hog did its damnedest to make James Buchannan a wartime president.

The upwelling of secession in the South seemed by far the darkest war cloud in the United States in 1859. But that June, on the far-off island of San Juan in Puget Sound, a pig broke down a fence and began rooting in Lyman A. Cutler's potato field. Angered, Cutler shot the animal. Almost as quickly as you could say "pigs is pigs," American and British soldiers were staring down their gun barrels at each other.

Buchanan

That such a chain of events could occur was because its weakest link was the month it took for news

Twelfth of a series

of pigs, or anything else, to reach from Washington Territory to Washington, D.C. Add in a freewheeling general operating on his own initiative far from headquarters — a recurring phenomenon in American history from Andrew Jackson in Florida to Douglas MacArthur in Korea — and the hog fat was in the fire.

THE problem was who owned San Juan Island, the United States or British Canada. Ironically, Buchanan had seemingly settled the matter in 1846 as President Polk's secretary of state, by negotiating the Canadian boundary along the 49th parallel. Left undecided, however, was the extension of the line through the myriad islands of Puget Sound to the Pacific.

The Hudson's Bay Company, a power in the Northwest, decided for itself that San Juan Island was British and opened a fishing station there in 1852. British sheep, pigs and farmers followed. So did Cutler and a handful of other American settlers. And eventually, a tax collector from Washington Territory who defiantly raised an American flag atop his tent and squatted for a year demanding the Hudson's Bay farm pay taxes on its livestock.

The British insisted San Juan was their territory, and the Americans were trespassers. In 1855 the sheriff of Whatcom County in Washington landed with eight men and two Indians armed with pistols and herded off a flock of sheep to be sold in lieu of taxes. Gov. James Douglas of the Colony of Vancouver Island (later British Columbia) was enraged.

EFFORTS to resolve the dispute were stalemated until the pig and Gen. William S. Harney arrived on the scene. Lyman Cutler had told the upset Hudson's Bay Co. he would pay for the pig—$3. The company said the pig was a prize boar worth $100. An armed vessel of the company was sent over from Vancouver, and tempers escalated, among them Gen. Harney's.

Harney was a man who knew his own mind and enjoyed outrunning his men in foot races and would take on any Indians as well who thought they could beat him — which they usually couldn't.

During the Mexican War, Harney had refused to surrender his command on order from the crusty American commander, Maj. Gen. Winfield Scott, and was found guilty at a court-martial for disobedience and insubordination. He had been in other hot water for excessive independence, so when, as new commander of the Oregon Territory, he received a petition from Americans on San Juan for military protection, his reaction was not unpredictable.

On July 18, 1859, he ordered Capt. George E. Pickett, who later led the famous Confederate charge at Gettysburg, to move a company of men to the island. The soldiers were to safeguard the Americans from Indians, Britain and the Hudson's Bay Co.

THE following day, Harney thought to advise Scott of his order but sent the dispatch to New York instead of Washington. It took six weeks to arrive.

The British at Vancouver fumed at the "clandestine landing" of Pickett's men, who arrived "like thieves in the night." They sent over a 31-gun steam frigate with orders to land a force equal to the American (which exceeded the number of U.S. settlers on the island). His admiral, however, being absent, the warship's captain decided to merely anchor offshore without landing. Both sides put ashore magistrates, however, and the American found Cutler guilty of willful damage and fined him heavily. Tempers cooled briefly.

Gov. Douglas took a hard line towards the American garrison, but when the missing admiral, Robert L. Baynes, showed up, he also refused to land Marines. Instead he would keep warships in the area to protect British interests and await word from the Admiralty, twice as distant as Washington.

Harney's explanation of what he had done reached Buchanan Sept. 3. Lord knew what had happened in the interim. Buchanan quickly had Harney notified that he "had not anticipated that so decided a step (as occupation) would have been resorted to without instruction." Harney was reminded the watery boundary was still in dispute "between two friendly nations."

British and American troops continued to occupy the island until 1872, when Emperor William I of Germany, at the request of both parties, arbitrated the dispute and awarded San Juan to the United States.

The Lutzes—Mark and Francie

Just your typical Olympians next door

RICH ROBERTS

SUNDAY Sports
Independent Press-Telegram
JOHN DIXON, Sports Editor
Sunday, May 30, 1976

A wife has to appreciate a husband who does not complain when she comes home late after running around all day and, in fact, has a hot, home-cooked meal waiting on the table.

"It was like coming home from a hard day's work and sitting down to a nice dinner," says Francie Larrieu, whose activity was more athletic than social.

"I'm not giving up anything. My lifestyle hasn't changed . . . other than living with Francie." — Mark Lutz.

She is America's foremost woman distance runner. Four months ago she ran down the aisle with Mark Lutz, a world-class sprinter—an inbred marriage, of sorts, between athletes of the Pacific Coast Club that coach Tom Jennings fantasizes may someday produce a super strain of runners with both endurance and speed.

BUT MARK and Francie are less interested in assuring the perpetuity of Jennings' PCC than they are in their common goal: the Olympic Games in Montreal. All other considerations have been pushed into the background.

"It's lucky for him and it's lucky for me that we're both athletes," says Francie, "because we understand each other. We understand the feelings . . . what we're looking for."

They share an apartment in east Long Beach, near the campus of Long Beach State where they recently completed a light semester of studies. Neither works, but with their heavy training schedules time seems as pressing as the relentless ticking of a stopwatch.

"We share responsibilities around here," Francie says. "If the dishes need to be done and I'm not around, Mark does them. Or if I'm too tired, he knows. There's not anything set up. It's just the way it happens.

"There are a lot of times when Mark's hungry and I'm not ready to cook yet. For instance, I had a really rough week last week and was really tired. I was still feeling it yesterday and I just conked out and took a nap for about three hours, so I didn't do my running until about 6 o'clock.

"Mark had already been out running and he was getting ready to eat, so while I was out running he fixed dinner—pork chops and rice, a recipe his mother gave him."

MARK, 24, AND Francie, 23, find the attention focused on their young marriage to be an additional strain—the little married couple running off together to the Olympics, tip-toeing through the Tartan.

"Olympic years are always busier," says Francie, who ran eighth in the semifinals of the women's 1,500 meters at Munich in '72. "But especially since we're a newlywed couple there have been a lot of people coming around wanting to do interviews.

"It's lucky for him and it's lucky for me that we're both athletes, because we understand each other. We understand the feelings." — Francie Larrieu.

LBCC blanks Harbor for state baseball title

By PAUL McLEOD
Staff Writer

Long Beach City College athletic director Rollie Eilerts couldn't have received a better birthday present than the one he got Saturday afternoon at Harbor College before nearly 700 patrons.

The 50-year old Eilerts, in his second year as athletic director, watched Long Beach make the best of three hits and play flawless defense to defeat Harbor College, 5-0, for the California junior college baseball title.

It marked the third state title garnered by the Vikings this season. LBCC, which participates in 13 men's sports, also won one national and two regional championships during the year.

Eilerts was quick to turn the attention toward the Vikings and first-year coach Bob Myers, who picked up the pieces of a floundering baseball program and guided it into the No. 1 position in the state with a 34-9-1 record.

"I'm really proud of these guys," said Eilerts. "This is like frosting on the cake. If there's a way to feel better than great, that's how I feel."

This was Myers' day, too, but, overcome by tears, he groped for comments.

Indy winner? Aggie tabs A.J.

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Staff Writer

If J.C. Agajanian's record 29 consecutive years as a car owner at the Indianapolis 500 qualify him as a prophet, A.J. Foyt will be the winner of today's gruelling brickpile grind.

Even though he has an unprecedented three cars in the race, J.C. dispenses with provincialism and tabs Foyt because of the Texan's experience and dependability.

Aggie's forecast of the top 10 finishers, by telephone from Indianapolis, is as follows:

1. A.J. FOYT. "Mostly because of his experience and the fact that he has unlimited funds to go with it. He builds his own engines and he's always dependable. He's a shoo-in, if he has no bad racing luck. If his Coyote doesn't have any problems, A.J. should win."

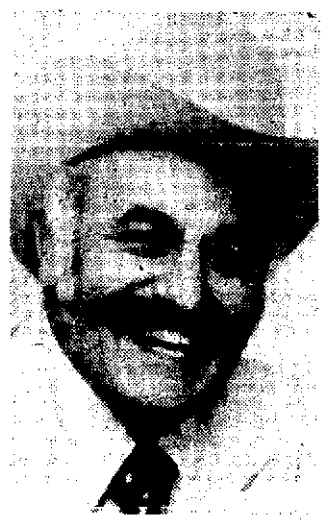

2. JOHNNY RUTHERFORD. "He knocked around a long time in my sprint car races at Ascot, and because of his penchant for accidents the guys called him 'Wreckaford' instead of Rutherford. He won at Indy two years ago and that really helped him. He's completely confident now. Johnny doesn't take many chances these days and relies on skill."

3-4. AL and BOBBY UNSER. "I can't separate these two guys. I only know that they're both helluva good drivers and they'd almost rather beat one another than anyone else. Al has a new Cosworth engine and a new chassis. He was the top qualifier at my Phoenix race in March and can handle the new car very well. Bobby is the defending champion and always runs a top race."

5. JOHN MARTIN. "John's my man. I like him because he's very knowledgeable. He knows cars and how to pace them....and how to fix them, too. I'm also prejudiced toward his car this year, too."

6-7. GORDON JOHNCOCK and WALLY DALLENBACH. "They're on the Simmast team and also tough to separate. They're both seasoned drivers and have fine cars, but, mainly, they've got a great mechanic, George Bignotti."

8. MARIO ANDRETTI. "He's with the Penske team now and that's a big plus for Mario. He's got a real car this year. You have to have a decent car in this race and that hasn't always been the case for Mario. He would have been a world champion 10-times over if he always had a good car. He had the best qualifying speed this year, too. Does that tell you something?"

J.C. AGAJANIAN
The proud owner

9. TOM SNEVA. "He's also with the Penske team, and you never sell guys on that team short."

10. VERN SCHUPPAN. "This Australian's a rookie, but he was around Formula 5,000 cars a long time and knows what it's all about. He looked good in his rookie test and during qualifying. He can ride the Indy track. He has a well-designed car, Dan Gurney's Eagle-Offy, and Bobby Unser won the race last year with the same type engine. He should be the top rookie this year."

Reds shade Dodgers; vault into first place

"I didn't throw a pitch I didn't want to throw. It seems almost like they were reading my mind. It was just a good job of hitting." — Mike Marshall.

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

CINCINNATI—The Relentless Reds—successors to The Big Red Machine—are just beginning to roll.

At least that's what their manager, Sparky Anderson, says.

But please don't tell Mike Marshall. He's already seen plenty.

In dispatching the Dodgers Saturday for the second day in a row, Cincinnati put together one of its patented come-from-behind performances, battering Iron Mike for two singles and a triple in the bottom of the ninth inning to emerge with a 6-5 victory.

The Dodgers not only have dropped four of their last five games, they've also dropped out of first place in the National League West, by five percentage points. To hear Sparky tell it, the worst is yet to come.

"We're close to putting things together," he said Saturday. "We're almost ready to start moving."

Close to putting things together? Start moving?

If this is just the start, ouch!

After battering the Dodgers, 9-0, Friday night, the Reds teased and taunted their foes for eight innings Saturday, getting at least one runner aboard every round. By the time the ninth arrived it was like Ali against Richard Dunn.

Young Rick Rhoden took a 5-3 lead into the ninth, but few among the Riverfront Stadium faithful of 40,112 had departed. They knew. Last year the Reds roared from behind 51 times.

Dave Concepcion opened with a single and immediately manager Walter Alston summoned Marshall, his ace reliever. The fact that Marshall was nailed for four runs on five hits in two innings Friday night had no bearing on his decision, he said ("That didn't count." Marshall was to say later in a strange bit of logic).

Marshall was in trouble right off the bat when Cesar Geronimo singled and pinch hitter Ed Armbrister advanced the runners with a perfectly-placed bunt.

Pete Rose sent a bouncer toward first that was the second out, but it produced a run and the Reds were within one, at 5-4, with the tying run now at third.

Ken Griffey then hit Marshall's next pitch against the rightfield wall for a triple, and now the winning run was at third.

Little Joe Morgan, who drove in three runs Friday evening, drove a single through the middle and the Reds had won.

"Yes, it's tougher losing a game like that than getting your brains beat out, like Friday night," reasoned Alston, finding no solace in either defeat.

Asked about Marshall, Alston said, "I thought his stuff was good, but they knocked the (bleep) out of him."

Said Marshall, "You have to give them credit. Sometimes they're better than you are. I didn't throw a pitch I didn't want to

'Generation gap' L.B. golf finale

BY DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

A 56-year-old carpenter who doesn't make many mistakes and a 20-year-old collegian who is just now living up to his potential are the surprise finalists today in the 52nd Long Beach City Match Play Golf Championships at El Dorado.

Chuck Wallace, from Long Beach State University, was the giant-killer Saturday, knocking off defending champion Tony Campregher, 1 up, in a classic match which featured nine birdies, five by the winner, and under-par scores by both.

Ed McBratney, representing the Geritol set, put away the other favorite, 21-year-old Roger Fagan of Torrance, 2-1, with steady if unspectacular golf which included two long-distance birdie putts.

The pair will play 36 holes today, starting at 8:30 a.m. McBratney was a finalist on the same course nine years ago, losing to Steve Cook.

No man over the age of 27 has won this tournament in the last eight years.

Wallace, a product of the Long Beach public courses, was a teenage sensation of sorts, first qualifying for this tournament at age 14, but he had never been able to win more than two matches.

"It's nice for an old man to be in there with the tigers," said McBratney, who reached the afternoon semis against Fagan by beating Gary Ballantyne, 4-3, in his morning match.

McBratney was 2-over-par in both matches. He was outdriven by 20 to 30 yards every hole by Fagan but was superior with his approach shots and his putting. He had no three-putts in his 32 holes.

"I've played well most of the year," said Wallace, who had to labor 19 holes in the morning to outlast another youngster, Randy Pallis. Wallace 3-putted to lose the 18th, then won with a par when Pallis couldn't execute a punch shot from under a tree and hit it into the water on the first extra hole.

Angels' sweep comes gift-wrapped

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

This one came gift-wrapped plain and simple.

About the only thing the Kansas City Royals didn't do in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader Saturday was tie a ribbon on it.

But maybe they didn't have to because they handed it over personally.

Given two incredible ninth inning breaks—breaks that have not been coming their way with an degree of regularity—the Angels came up with three runs and stunned the Royals, 3-2.

More breaks were in the offing in the nightcap—like five unearned runs—and the Angels, errupting for a season-high six runs in the eighth inning, snapped a 1-1 tie and went on to trounce the Royals, 7-2, completing a sweep.

It was the first Angel sweep of a doubleheader at Anaheim Stadium since way back when—June 24, 1970—when they took two from Chicago. A Cushion Night crowd of 28,415 was on hand to enjoy it.

Muted on three hits for the first eight innings by sore-shouldered Steve Busby and Steve Mingori and without a run to show for their previous 18 innings, the Angels took avantage of some astounding magnaminity on the part of Kansas City to claim the opener.

For openers, Bobby Bonds led off the ninth with a broken bat single to second base. It was a single only because the Royals' Frank White tried to play the bat instead of the ball.

Two outs later, Mingori, claiming his previous dealings with Bill Melton, the next Angel hitter, were anything but successful, left the game and was replaced by Mark Littell.

Littell walked Melton. This brought the struggling Ron Jackson and his .172 average to the plate.

Jackson responded by hitting a fly to deep right—long but exdeedingly catchable. But Al Cowens, the Royals outfielder, didn't play it that way. He raced to his right in plenty of time to glove the ball but stumbled en route.

Then he lost his footing completely and crumpled face first in the grass. The ball arched over his head and rolled to the wall for a two-run triple.

The shaken Littell then served up a game-winning single to Andy Etchebarren. Naturally, Etchebarren was 0-for-15 at the time.

"Sure it was a give," acknowledged Williams, whose eyesight is as good as anyone else's. "But I'm not going to throw it back. . .I've given too many away.

"They gave us four outs in the inning. . .a second baseman who played a bat instead of the ball and an outfielder who fell down."

"It's about time the breaks started going our way," said Jackson, who, with one swing of his bat, matched his RBI total for 25 previous games. "We needed something like that."

Jackson is one of 11 Angels hitting .215 or less. Only four have figures in excess of that subterranean mark.

"Hell, I think everybody on this ball club is a better hitter than his average shows," remarked Williams.

The dramatic turnaround in the ninth made a winner of Sid Monge, 2-1, who went the route, yielding nine hits.

Busby, making his first appearance since May 14 because of a recurring shoulder problem, went five innings and blaanked the Angels on three hits.

But he didn't look like the Busby who owns a 10-2 career advantage over the Angels. He wasn't fast and he wasn't particularly accurate with his control.

"I feel sorry for him," said Williams. "He looks like he's ailing."

Gary Ross, not exactly overpowered by robust support this year, won his second game in the nightcap when the Angels, utilizing a pair of Kansas City errors, helped themselves to a six-run eighth and thereby dropped the Royals into a flatfooted tie with Texas atop the A.L. West.

The key plays were Bruce Bochet's run-scoring singled that sent across the go-ahead run, Fred Patek's wild throw home with the bases loaded and Dave Chalk's two-run bases-loaded single which turned into three runs when KC leftfielder Tom Poquette overran the ball.

"We made mistakes tonight," said Williams, "and over all I wasn't pleased with the way we played. But I'm thankful to win a pair."

If Williams was unhappy, think how Royals' manager Whitey Herzogg must have felt.

Downright depressed probably would describe it.

SID MONGE and GARY ROSS were winning pitchers as Angels swept Kansas City, 3-2 and 7-2.

Bell (18-7¼) sets mark; Stones, Larrieu triumph

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Earl Bell of Arkansas State University shattered the world pole vault record Saturday night with an 18-7¼ vault at the U.S. Track and Field Federation championships in Wichita.

Bell's vault was a full inch better than the 1975 record set by Dave Roberts of the Florida Track Club and far above Bell's own meet record of 17-8 set here a year ago.

Bell cleared the bar on his first try after Terry Porter of Tyler, Tex., Junior College failed to make the height.

Bell, whose best vault this year was 18-3½, rolled out of the cushion and pranced around the field as a crowd of more than 8,900 jumped to its feet and cheered the new world mark.

The meet produced numerous meet records in addition to Bell's world mark in the pole vault.

World high jump record holder Dwight Stones of Long Beach State won his event with a leap of 7-3, falling more than three inches short of his world mark. Stones won on fewest misses over Tom Woods, Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach, who also cleared 7-3.

John Craft, Chicago Track Club, set a meet record of 54-½ in the triple jump. He bettered his previous record of 54-1½ set in 1971.

Jim Bolding, Pacific Coast Club, captured the men's 400-meter intermediate hurdles with a time of 49.10, only one second off his American record.

Bolding almost was eliminated from the race on a false start, but his appeal to the officials was allowed. He and the others in the race claimed the start was caused by crowd noise.

Frank Shorter, Olympic medal winner, won the 5,000-meter run covering the distance in 13:42.01.

In the men's mile relay, the Pacific Coast Club shaded its 1975 meet record of 3:05.14 with a 3:05.12.

In the women's events, Francie Larrieu of the PCC, who won the 800-meter run Friday night, easily captured the 1500-meter run with a time of 4:16.06. Francie's time was far off her American mark of 4:10.4.

Debbie Esser, Iowa State, broke her own meet mark in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles, covering the distance in 57.94. Her mark set last year was 1:00.19.

The Prairie View A&M 440-yard relay team set a meet mark of 44.99. The old mark of 45.9 was held by Texas Womens University.

Prairie View also set a meet standard in the women's mile relay with a time of 3:36.67. The old mark held by Prairie View was 3:47.

In the men's team scoring, Pacific Coast Club retained its championship with 84 points, edging the University of Kansas which had 79. Chicago Track club finished third with 67.

The 20-year-old Bell from Jonesboro said he "felt extra fast tonight. I was too much horizontal, but I guess it was enough."

Bell, who shattered the world mark on his first try after the bar was moved up from 18-1, was delighted with the warm evening and the track.

"Everything was perfect. This runway is super," he said. "It's just like the one at home that I practice on."

He said he knew he had a good jump when he lifted off, and he felt he didn't make any mistakes.

"There really was not any feeling. You only feel the mistakes when they happen. All I could feel this time was the arch. When you jump over 18 feet, every mistake is magnified," Bell remarked.

Giant-killing ends for Edles

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Unheralded Bill Scanlon of Trinity and Tim Garcia of New Mexico continued to mow down giants in the NCAA tennis tournament by advancing to the semifinals with victories over seeded players Saturday.

Scanlon, ace of the San Antonio, Tex., school, upset Stanford's Pat DuPre 5-7, 6-3, 6-4. Garcia, the only New Mexico player in the tournament, shocked No. 8 seed Joao Soares of Pepperdine 6-2, 1-6, 6-2.

The giant-killing act of SMU's Joe Edles came to an end, though. The Poly High graduate lost to UCLA's Peter Fleming 6-2, 7-5.

The team title race was turned into a battle between Pacific-8 rivals, USC and UCLA when Stanford's final entry—the doubles team of Dupre and Bill Maze were beaten by Brigham Young's Mike Nissley and Bruce Kleege 7-6, 6-4.

USC and Stanford are tied with 20 points and UCLA follows with 18, but the Trojans and Bruins each have one singles player and one doubles team in the semifinals.

The USC doubles team of Manson and Chris Lewis topped Houston's Ross Walker and Dan Vaneltincic, 6-3, 3-6, 7-6, the Trojans taking the tiebreaker by a 5-1 score.

SINGLES

Fleming, UCLA, d. Edles, Southern Methodist, 6-4, 6-3; Manson, USC, d. Tygan, UCLA, 6-2, 7-5; Garcia, New Mexico, d. Soares, Pepperdine, 6-2, 1-6, 6-2; Scanlon, Trinity, d. DuPre, Stanford, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4.

DOUBLES

Kleggo-Missley, BYU, d. DuPre-Maze, Stanford, 7-6 6-4; Fleming-Taygan, UCLA, d. McNeil-Meyers, San Jose St., 7-5, 6-3; Manson-Lewis, USC, d. Walker-Valentincic, Houston, 6-3, 3-6, 7-6; Eagleton-Martinez, Miami, d. Bennett-Whitehead, BYU, 6-3, 5-7, 6-1.

Babashoff heads swim qualifiers

Olympic gold medalist Shirley Babashoff heads a list of five women and two men whose times Friday night at the Western Olympic Development swimming meet at Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool earned them spots in the U.S. Olympic Trials.

Miss Babashoff, of Mission Viejo, won the 400-meter freestyle in 4:21.3 to easily surpass the qualifying standard.

The top three finishers in the 100 butterfly—Debbie Loob, Cynthia Butner and Alice Browne—also bettered the standard in their event, as did Melissa Beloit in the 100 backstroke.

Casey Converse and Brian Goodell, 1-2 in the 400 free, also advanced.

Competition continues today and Monday.

Van Blom gains final in single sculls trials

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — John Van Blom of the Long Beach Rowing Association, a former Olympian, regained his 1968 form and moved into today's finals of the U.S. Olympic men's single sculls rowing trials on Lake Carnegie.

Van Blom was a third place finisher in the second semifinal heat, though he and Pete Cortez of the Vesper B.C. of Philadelphia were in a virtual dead heat.

Jim Dietz and Ken Foote led the qualifiers with semifinal victories. Dietz posted the fastest time of the regatta with a 7:11.5 clocking over the 2,000-meter course. Foote was timed in 7:11.6.

First semifinal: Jim Dietz, New York Athletic Club, 7:11.5; Dr. Larry Klecatsky, New York A.C., 7:14.4; Chris Allsopp, Oyster Bay, N.Y., Rowing Association, 7:17.6; Jim Castellan, Fairmount R.A., Philadelphia, 7:19; Neil Halleen, Wisconsin, 7:26.5; Jim Rastavsky, Undine Boat Club, Philadelphia, 7:32. (First three qualify for finals)

Second semifinal: Ken Foote, Narragansett R.A., Providence, R.I., 7:11.6; Pete Cortez, Vesper B.C., Philadelphia, 7:14.2; John Van Blom, Long Beach R.A., 7:14.5; Eric Meyers, Potomac B.C., Washington, 7:20.2; Bill Belden, Undine B.C., 7:21.6; Guy Iverson, Vesper B.C., 7:32.7. (First three qualify for finals).

LBCC CHAMPS—

"My feelings—I just can't think of anything," he said immediately following the game and a bear hug from Eilerts. "I'm sorry. I'm mute."

The men of the moment for the Vikings were pitcher Ken Price and shortstop Vern Followell. Price, a righthanded freshman with a 1.54 Metropolitan Conference earned run average, allowed only three hits. Followell delivered the big hit of the day—an inside-the-park grand slam with two out in the fifth inning.

Long Beach's fifth run came on another inside-the-park homer with two out—a solo shot to right field by Dan Gausepohl in the seventh. Gausepohl collected the only other LBCC hit—a single in the third.

Harbor pitcher Lefty Olguin absorbed the loss. The 6-1, 230-pound righthander entered the game with a 1.57 ERA and a 3-0 record. He struck out six and walked four. The San Pedro graduate allowed only one earned run.

"I really didn't think he (Price) could handle our lineup," said Harbor coach Jim O'Brien referring to his team's .292 over-all batting average. "I thought we'd really go after him. But he threw strikes and his defense made the plays.

"We had all the confidence in the world," explained Myers after recovering from congratulatory shock. "I'm not popping off. I felt coming into this weekend that our good pitching could shut down their good hitting."

That's exactly how things turned out.

On Friday the righthanded Harris went nine strong innings and set down the Seahawks, 4-1. Saturday, Price did the same on 136 pitches, with Harris backing Price in the bullpen during the late innings.

"I expected good pitching, but I didn't think they'd only score one run during the series. But we showed good defense, as we have all year," concluded Myers.

(Harbor scored 53 runs during the five-game Southern California playoffs last week. Long Beach did not make an error during the tournament).

Olguin and Price locked horns in a pitching duel in the early innings. Olguin struck out four through four innings, allowing only a single to Gausepohl and hitting Todd Hewitt with a pitch. Both occurred in the fourth.

Price threw strikes and let his infield do the work. Harbor's first ball out of the infield came in the fifth on a fly ball to rightfield by Don Thomas. The Seahawks hit just six balls out of the infield all day—two for safeties. Price served up 16 ground-ball outs and seven infield popups.

Back-to-back errors by second baseman Mike Griffin set the stage for Followell's blast in the fifth. With two out Griffin muffed successive grounders from Brad Liebeck and Gausepohl. Olguin served up his third walk of the game to Todd Hewitt and Followell stepped in.

In a defensive move, O'Brien signaled his outfield to move in. Followell countered with a line drive to center that cleared drawn-in Mark Toma and rolled 458 feet to the soccer net in left center.

Gausephol's drive to right in the seventh also rolled to the fence of the massive Harbor field, 470 feet from the plate.

Shorthanded Lancers do well in N.M.

Because of a lack of funds, the Long Beach Lancers track club could not take full squads to the Albuquerque Invitational but dominated the events it competed in Saturday.

The teams were outnumbered in over-all team competition but scored firsts in 15 of the 17 events they entered.

The Lancers had only two entrants — Dino Dawson and Ricardo Moore — in the 9-under division, but finished second in the team standings.

Indy 500: A slice of Americana

By BRUCE LOWITT

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — For Johnny Rutherford, it's a chance to prove that he was cheated a year ago. For Bobby Unser, it's a chance to prove that he wasn't.

Last year, the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race became the Indianapolis 435, marked down for one day only by a sudden thunderstorm that turned the sleek racers into helpless hydroplaning hunks of metal which fishtailed their way along Indy's banked 2.5-mile oval.

Rutherford was running first in the 1975 Memorial Day classic when he decided to pull into the pits for a little shot of gasoline. When he pulled back out, he was second to Unser—and he was left there shortly thereafter when the rains came.

Rutherford insisted, not without some justification, that he could have won that race (making it two victories in a row here) if the track hadn't been reduced to a wading pool. And Unser agreed that luck as well as skill had brought him his second Indy victory and the accompanying $214,031 in total prize money.

Rutherford, who settled for the $97,886 runnerup purse, set out with a vengeance to prove he deserves to be No. 1 this year. He qualified his McLaren Drake-Offenhauser on the pole position with a speed of 188.957 miles an hour while Unser had to settle for the 12th position, outside the fourth row, in the 33-car field, qualifying his Eagle Drake-Offy at 187.520 mph.

THE MAMMOTH spectacle, which annually attracts hundreds of thousands of race fans and revelers to this sprawling monument to speed is, of course, anything but a two-man race. There are 31 other drivers, some new to this sort of madness and some grizzled veterans, out to dethrone Unser.

There's Mario Andretti, the 1969 Indy winner but a hardluck driver here the past few years, knocked out of action early by mechanical problems or minor wrecks.

His qualifying speed of 189.414 mph was the fastest of any entry, but because it came on the second weekend of qualifying, he was relegated to the inside of the seventh row, 19th in the field. Competing in European Grand Prix races prevented him from first-weekend qualifying and knocked him back in the pack.

There's Al Unser, like his brother, Bobby, a two-time winner (1970-71) but a distant also ran since finishing second in 1972. He's starting on the inside of the second row.

There's Gordon Johncock, starting next to Rutherford in the first row. He was the winner of the rain-shortened 1973 race, the last disastrous Indy. It was a year in which Art Pollard was killed in practice, in which Salt Walther was critically burned in a multi-car crash that aborted the race on one day, in which Swede Savage was killed in a flaming crash during the race and a crewman was killed by a truck racing to Savage's rescue.

THERE'S TOM SNEVA, whom many race fans figured would never live through last year's race, when his car hit the wall and exploded. Amazingly, he was only slightly burned in the wreck and is back as the outside starter in the front row.

There's ol' A.J. Foyt, who's been trying since 1967 to become Indy's first four-time winner. He's in good position to get it this year, starting in the middle of the second row between Al Unser and Pancho Carter, who has finished seventh and fourth in his two previous starts.

And there's the favorite of all of life's losers, Lloyd Ruby. He's been trying—and failing—every year since 1960 to win this thing.

There are names like Billy Vukovich and Gary Bettenhausen, names which exhume the ghosts of racers past. Each one's father was a racer here and each one died in flaming wrecks.

There are names like Carter and Johnny Parsons, whose fathers also raced here but who survived to retire and still prowl around this old brickyard each race day, reliving old memories.

There are names like Vern Schuppan, Billy Scott, Al Loquasto and Spike Gelhausen, rookies in this race. Schuppan was the best of them in qualifying, slipping into the middle of the sixth row.

Noticeably absent from the field is Janet Guthrie, who smashed down Indy's sexual barriers simply by becoming the first woman ever to make an official run on this ancient track.

She did it a few weeks ago, passing her driving test with flying colors, a step that enabled her to qualify for this 60th annual Indy 500. But in qualification runs, her car let her down.

Foyt, in a gallant display of chivalry, loaned Janet his backup car, just to see what she was capable of doing with a truly sound machine. What she did was register better than 181 mph, a speed which most certainly would have made her the first woman ever to start an Indy 500.

But since Foyt's car was only loaned to her for that "Let's see what she's made of" run and not for qualifying—and since her own machine was woefully inadequate—she failed to make the field. Instead, her performance earned her an invitation to compete in today's World 600 in Charlotte, N.C.

ABOVE ALL, though, are the fans—the swarming mass of humanity which sandwiches itself into the more than 250,000 seats. And they're only a part of the crowd.

There are another hundred thousand or so who pour into the infield, seeing little—if any—of the race.

It's a chunk of Americana unmatched by any other event on earth. It's been described as everything from a death watch to a religious experience, from the best way to watch a true test of man and machine to the wildest way to scarf down a bunch of fried chicken and a couple of six packs—and maybe to hustle up a sunburn.

For the optimists, there are memories of great, close races, of winners and losers decided by scant seconds, by strategy and, occasionally, by pure luck.

For the pessimists, there are memories of the hellish crashes that took the lives of human beings—drivers, mechanics, spectators.

And for the bottom-liners who measure success in terms of wealth, there is the more than $1 million in prize money for grabs in the three hours or so of shrieking machines and people which, once evey year, turn this old brickyard into a frenzy of sound and fury signifying ... well, they've never really figured that out.

Jan Opperman: A hot car —and a hot line to Jesus

BY WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS—It will be Jan Opperman's hands on the steering wheel but a higher authority at the navigator's controls when car No. 8, "The Spirit of Truth," goes after auto racing's highest prize Sunday in the Indianapolis 500.

"I got to believe I am in this race because two people had a pipeline to God," the 37-year-old converted hippie, junkie and Devil-worshipper said Saturday.

"I don't say I'm going to win—I wouldn't dare tempt the Lord with a prophesy like that—but I have to believe that what has happened to me is of divine origin. The Lord works in peculiar ways."

Jan Opperman's blue eyes shine with what he calls a "new-found faith." A copper cross dangles at his chest. Pinned to the front of his sloppy cowboy hat is a white dove carrying a smaller symbol of the crucifix. In Gasoline Alley, workmen were busy painting the words "The Spirit of Truth" on the fuel-guzzling monster that he will guide today against A.J. Foyt, Johnny Rutherford, Al Unser, and the rest of the world's best drivers.

Last weekend, Opperman's hopes of qualifing appeared hopeless. On Saturday, next to the last day of the trials, he was "on the bubble"—in other words on the verge of being bumped.

"I was very downcast and ashamed of myself," he explained. "I was acting like a child who had lost his candy. I called my wife, Mary Lou, back home in Nebraska. She told me not to worry, that she would check with Grandma Sellmer.

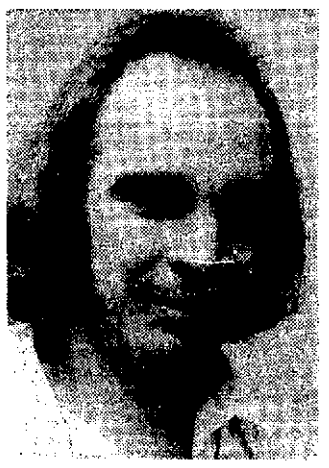

"Now Grandma Sellmer, I know, is a great woman. She has a hot line to God. She has been dialing Him for 30 years. She prayed and then told Mary Lou not to worry. I would be in the race.

"Now you can't always be sure of one prophecy. But two prophecies, you have to believe. I asked Mary Lou to call Dale Brooks. He is a minister, he is wired to God, too.

"Later, Mary Lou called back and asked me, 'How's your faith?' 'Shaky,' I told her. 'Start praising God,' she said. 'Everything is going to be all right'."

Opperman said with three men having a chance to bump him, he was certain that rain or tragedy would derail all of them. "They were nice guys and I dreaded to think of something bad happening to them, but because of the prophecies, I knew it would," he said.

EARLY SUNDAY, Tom Bigelow qualified with 181.9 mph. Opperman was bumped.

JAN OPPERMAN
A pipeline to God

"I was confused and disillusioned, I didn't think it possible for those prophecies not to come true," he said. "I was hanging around the track Sunday, the last day, when Dick Routh called me over and said, 'I like the way your head is on. I want you to give my car a try.' It was a minute to six o'clock—the deadline—when I took the car out and made those four scary laps around the track."

Opperman qualified with 181.7 mph. The prophecies held true. Opperman's faith was restored.

He is the evangelist of the grease pits, constantly giving testimony of a life that fell to the dregs but picked itself up through conversion to a higher ideal.

Opperman was born in Los Angeles, son of a truck driver. He played football in high school, started racing motor bikes as a teenager, shifted to midget cars and to bigger racers in 1969.

"I was a squirrely kid," he explained. "I got tied up with the hippie freaks. They weren't bad kids. Most of them were intelligent, sympathetic people disillusioned with the world.

"We let our hair grow long. I went the route, mainly with the oral stuff-acid, LSD, cocaine. But never heroin or the hard stuff. I don't have a needle prick in my arm."

Opperman's travels took him into Idaho, Montana, the Bay Area around San Francisco and finally to Beaver Crossing in Nebraska.

"Our group was invaded by liars, deceivers, and drifters. We fought all the time, punching each other's light out. I became disappointed with society. I started experimenting with spiritualism—even devil worship.

"IT WASN'T until 1969 when I moved my wife and four children to Montana—away out in the boondocks—that my life changed. This neighbor came up to our house and said, 'Our place is always open. Anything you need, you can come and get it.'

"He showed me what true Christianity is. Pretty soon we started holding services at our houses. It started small and got big. We organized a group which we call USCRY, Us Converted Racers for Youth. We've got a rock band. We want to go all over the country with our message.

"I am broke. I am racing to raise money for our tour. I have to believe everything is going to work out all right. Maybe I will finish in the first ten."

Aggie's pick: A.J. will score 4th Indy 500 win

AGGIE ORIGINALLY tabbed Bobby Olivero of Lakewood as his 10th choice and to be the top rookie. After Olivero made the qualifying field, though, he was bumped on the final day.

"Bobby was to be my big surprise," sighed J.C. "His first time in a championship race was at Phoenix and he qualified 10th. He was the top rookie in that race. He beat a lot of big names. In three of four of my '75 races that he entered, he won; also my first one this year at Ascot.

"He was real hot here (Indianapolis), but he got a lousy break. He qualified when the weather was at its worst. It was cold, wet and windy, and Bobby lost two to three miles-per-hour in speed. He was so certain he could do better that he searched frantically for a backup car, but none was available.

"I wish for his sake that he had done like Andretti and qualified on the final weekend when the weather was great. But who can predict things like that?"

AGGIE IS ON a cloud because he and his partner, Grant King, Indiana car builder and mechanic, have qualified the three cars for today's race. In addition to Martin and Sheldon Kinser in Dragon-Offys, the pair has Bob Harkey in a Kingfish-Offy.

"The is the first time that anybody has qualified three cars," enthused J.C. "Grant took a basic Eagle chassis and made some modifications, and Harkey got his ride. The car is the 1975 machine in which Kinser finished 12th last year."

The fact that Harkey and Kinser are side-by-side in the 10th row of the 11-row field doesn't dim Aggie's enthusiasm. Neither does the fact that Kinser's 181.114 mph is the slowest qualifying speed in the field.

"They got in—that's the main thing," insisted the 62-year-old former San Pedran, who took over this year as sole operator of Ascot Park in Gardena. "And you never, never can tell what might happen in an auto race."

HAVING THREE cars in the Indy 500 has its problems, though.

"It's rewarding, but it's tough on Grant and me," said J.C. "We have to have 33 people just to service the three race cars....you know, three signalmen on the wall, three scorers, three holding the fuel vent valve. It goes on and on.

"Kinser's car, in fact all three cars, are capable of going faster. We barely got the two new cars—the Dragons of Martin and Kinser—done in time, and I feel pretty good about how well they worked right out of the box.

"Everybody is an arm's-length ahead of us in testing and development."

Aggie gives a lot of credit to Foyt for helping him and King get Kinser's problem car in the field.

"A.J. came to us and offered to help. He took the car to his garage, locked all the doors, took all four corners off the machine and set it up just like his car. He opened our eyes on some stuff.

"He talked to Sheldon and helped us find the extra five miles-an-hour in him and the car. People think Foyt's tough and crusty, but inside he's a real softy."

NOT CONTENT with having a record three cars in the Indianapolis 500, J.C. regrets that he doen't have four machines in the Brickpile grind.

"We could have had four, we could have," insisted Agajanian. "John Martin contends that his own car, the one that he never could get sponsored and which has been running extremely well, could have been our fourth entrant.

"Hell, if I hadn't been so concerned over our first two cars at the beginning, I might have given Martin's car some more thought. Wouldn't that have been something to have four cars at Indianapolis?"

Aggie is the first to admit that his new relationship with King has been a most productive one.

"We've got a car builder-mechanic, a driver-mechanic in Martin, and an owner-mechanic in me," he chuckled. "Well, I know when to turn up the boost in a car, anyway."

EVERYTHING is turning up roses for the happy Agajanian these days. Another factor of this Indianapolis 500 that makes him beam is that 10 of his "boys" are in the big race.

"It's old home week with 10 Ascot grads in the field," said J.C., who promoted races at Ascot for decades, and now is its owner.

The 10 Ascot graduates are Al and Bobby Unser, Rutherford, Gary Bettenhausen, Johnny Parsons, Billy Scott, Mike Mosley, Billy Vukovich, Roger McCluskey and Jan Opperman, the last man in the last row of the "500".

Maybe Aggie feels that he has 13 cars in today's field now instead of a "mere" three.

Hughes stops Texas with three-hit gem

BLOOMINGTON (AP) — Minnesota's Jim Hughes stopped Texas on three hits Saturday and snapped a personal six-game losing streak with a 5-1 victory over the Rangers.

Hughes, 1-5, lost his bid for a no-hitter with two out in the seventh when Minnesota right fielder Dan Ford misjudged Tom Grieve's fly ball and it sailed over his head for a double.

The 24-year-old Minnesota righthander lost his final outing last year and dropped five consecutive games this season. He lost his shutout on Jeff Burroughs' run-scoring double play grounder in the ninth.

Hughes, who was 16-14 last year as a rookie, fanned six and walked three.

Steve Braun singled in Rod Carew in the first inning and the Twins added a pair of runs in each of the seventh and eighth innings. Minnesota's two-run seventh finished Texas starter Steve Hargan, 1-2.

Yanks bombed by Tigers, 4-1

DETROIT (AP) — Dave Roberts fired a three-hitter and Jason Thompson and John Wockenfuss slammed home runs as the Detroit Tigers beat the New York Yankees, 4-1, Saturday.

Roberts (4-3) gave up only an infield single to Willie Randolph in the third inning, a bunt single to Mickey Rivers in the sixth and a double by Rivers in the ninth. The Yankees broke through for their only run in the ninth on Thurman Munson's RBI grounder.

Willie Horton, back in the Detroit lineup after being out for a few games with an injured heel, staked Roberts to a 1-0 lead in the opening inning with a 420-foot sacrifice fly.

Rookie Thompson slugged his homer in the sixth after a walk to Horton and a forceout. Then Wockenfuss opened the seventh with his home run off Dock Ellis, 4-3.

Horton's sacrifice followed singles by Tom Veryzer and Rusty Staub. Thompson homer, his second, snapped an 0-12 hitting slump.

The brothers Niekro: Joe defeats Phil

ATLANTA (AP) — Houston pitcher Joe Niekro smashed a home run off his brother Phil as the Astros edged the Atlanta Braves 4-3 Saturday night.

It wasn't known whether it was the first time a major leaguer had homered off his brother, but it was the first home run of Joe Niekro's career.

The solo blast over the leftfield fence in the seventh inning gave Houston a 2-2 tie and the Astros broke on top 4-2 in the eighth.

Cesar Cedeno started the rally with a walk and scored on a double by Jose Cruz. Ken Boswell got his third single of the game, scoring Cruz.

Atlanta cut into the margin in its half of the eighth when Jim Wynn smashed his fifth home run of the season.

The victory for Joe Niekro, 3-5, gave him a 3-2 edge in head-to-head competition with his brother. Phil's record fell to 3-4.

It was the first meeting as starting pitchers for the Niekro brothers in almost seven years. The last time they met the Braves won 9-4 during their September stretch drive to the divisional title in 1969. Phil was angry about it because San Diego had held Joe out of the rotation for two days so he would face his brother.

Allen's HR caps Phils' explosion

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dick Allen's two-run homer capped a four-run seventh inning while Larry Christenson and Gene Garber combined on a seven-hitter as Philadelphia defeated Montreal, 6-1, Saturday.

The victory increased the Philadelphia's National League East lead to 6½ games over Pittsburgh.

The Phillies, 20-4 this month, got shutout pitching from Christenson (6-1) until the 22-year old righthander strained his right thigh after doubling home what proved to be the winning run in the bottom of the fifth. Garber worked the final four innings.

Red Sox stymied by Orioles, 7-2

BOSTON (AP) — Reggie Jackson and Mark Belanger collected three singles apiece and Cy Young Award-winner Jim Palmer notched his sixth victory as Baltimore downed Boston, 7-2, Saturday night.

Ken Singleton had a pair of singles and a sacrifice fly, driving in two runs while helping the Orioles to their fourth victory in five meetings this year with Boston's defending American League champs.

Palmer, 6-5 after failing three previous times since May 13 for victory No. 6, allowed seven hits, including Rico Petrocelli's third home run.

The Orioles scored two runs in each of the fourth, fifth and seventh innings in maintaining their supremecy over the Red Sox and climbing to with 2½ games of the New York Yankees in the American League East.

Jackson led off the fourth with a single and took second on an infield hit by Singleton. Tony Muser flied out but Paul Blair and Doug DeCinces followed with consecutive doubles for two runs.

Boston starter Luis Tiant (6-3) was tagged for two more runs in the fifth before calling it a night. A single by Belanger, a walk, a single by Jackson and a sacrifice fly by Singleton did the damage.

The Orioles added two insurance runs in the seventh on a walk, singles by Jackson and Singleton and a wild pitch.

Cleveland rallies on grand slam

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Duane Kuiper slapped a two-run bloop single and Rick Manning blasted a bases-loaded homer in a six-run 10th inning, propelling the Cleveland Indians to a 6-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday.

Kuiper's single came off Jerry Augustine, who replace Brewer starter Jim Colborn with two out and the bases loaded in the 10th, and enabled Jackie Brown, 5-1, to win what had been a torrid pitchers' duel.

Colborn walked Boog Powell to start the 10th and pinch runner Doug Howard took second as George Hendrick grounded out. Colborn fanned Charlie Spikes for the second out but Alan Ashby was walked intentionally and an infield single by pinch-hitter John Lowenstein off Colborn's glove filled the bases.

Augustine, a left-hander, replaced Colborn and served the bloop single to Kuiper, a lefthanded batter, on a 3-2 count.

DODGERS LOSE—

throw. It seems almost like they were reading my mind. It was just a good job of hitting."

Earlier, Bill Russell's two-run single in the second tied the game and Russell later scored on Dave Lopes' sacrifice fly to give the Dodgers a lead they held until the ninth. Steve Garvey slugged his second homer in the third and Bill Buckner tripled home a fifth run in the fourth.

Tony Perez started the Reds back with a mammoth home run in the eighth inning, a shot that cleared the wall in straightaway center.

"I was glad when he (Rhoden) knocked Tony down," said Sparky, recalling when Perez was sprawled in the dirt in the third. "He never forgets and I knew—I knew—he was going to get even."

Perez didn't forget, nor did the Reds forget how to hit Mike Marshall.

DODGER DOPE: Dusty Baker, demoted to the No. 6 spot in the lineup, is 2-for-20 in five games on the current trip . . . Dave Concepcion's third-inning error was his 13th. Last year, when he won the Gold Glove, the Reds' shortstop committed only 16 all season . . . George Foster, the N.L. RBI leader, now has driven home at least one run in his last eight games (the record is 11) and has knocked in 15 in his last five games . . . Griffey has scored 14 runs in the last 12 games . . . A year ago today the Dodgers were in first place, by 2 12 games . . . Pitching today's doubleheader will be Tommy John (2-3) and Burt Hooton (4-3) for the Dodgers, Gary Nolan (3-3) and Santo Alcala (4-0) for the Reds . . . Both games will be televised by Channel 11 beginning at 10:15 a.m.

How they scored

REDS FIRST

DODGERS SECOND

Ferguson singled to short. Baker walked. Yeager was hit by a pitch, loading the bases. Russell singled to center, scoring Ferguson and Baker. Rhoden sacrificed. Lopes hit a sacrifice fly, scoring Yeager. Buckner grounded out. Three runs, two hits, one left.

DODGERS THIRD

DODGERS FOURTH

REDS EIGHTH

With one out, Perez homered to center, his fourth. Foster flied out. Bench struck out. One run, one hit.

REDS NINTH

U.S. travels to USSR for volleyball

The U.S. national men's volleyball team, headed by Gerald Gregory, Mike Cram, Fred Sturm and Mike Cote, leaves Monday for Russia to compete in an eight-team international tournament in Moscow.

The American squad is bracketed with Poland, Hungary and Russia's No. 2 national team while Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Cuba and the USSR's No. 1 team comprise the second pool.

Coached by Carl McGown of Long Beach, other members on the U.S. team are Dave Olbright, John Zajec, Ted Dodd, Marc Waldie, Reede Reynolds, Chris Marlowe, Paul Sunderland and Denny Cline.

Following the Mowcow tournament which begins Thursday, the Yanks will play a series of matches in Dusseldorf against the West Germany's national team.

Shua debuts with 2-0 win

Frank Followell, Jim Estes and John White combined on a one-hitter as Shua opened the American Legion season with a 2-0 victory over the Retail Clerks Saturday.

The only hit the trio surrendered came in the first inning when Followell allowed a one-out double.

Rick Martin provide all the scoring the Shua needed when he brought Brian English home with a single in the fourth inning.

Freisleben hurls 2nd blank; Padres triumph

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Righthander Dave Freisleben pitched his second sucessive shutout since being called up from the minor leagues to spark the San Diego Padres to a 4-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants Saturday night.

Freisleben, who shut out the Dodgers 2-0 Monday, blanked the Giants on 10 hits to improve his record to 2-0 since joining the Padres from their Hawaii farm club of the Pacific Coast League.

Doug Rader, Dave Winfield and Willie McCovey paced San Diego's nine-hit attack with two hits each as the Padres claimed their fourth victory in five games against the Giants this season.

The Padres took control of the game in the seventh inning when they scored three runs off Giants' reliever Randy Moffitt, a rally ignited by Rader's leadoff double and a single by Jerry Turner.

The Giants repeatedly threatened against Freisleben, managing nine hits through the first eight innings but stranding 10 runners for lack of a timely hit.

Monday's HR paces Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Rick Monday's tie-breaking three-run homer with two out in the seventh inning lifted the Chicago Cubs to a 4-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday and stretched their winning streak to three games.

After two were out in the seventh, Mick Kelleher and pinch hitter Champ Summers singled before Monday unloaded his ninth home run of the season into the left field bleachers off loser Bruce Kison, 3-4.

The Cubs scored their first run in the first inning on a single by Jose Cardenal and a double by Bill Madlock, who has doubled in each of the last five games.

The Pirates tied it in the second on a pair of walks and a run-scoring single by Frank Taveras before winner Bill Bonham, 3-2, and Kison settled down to a pitching duel which was shattered by Monday's first home run since May 16.

Oscar Zamora worked the final two innings for Chicago to earn his first save of the season.

Titans, Wash. St. in Far West finals

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Fullerton State's John Alvarez and Jack Ramirez both slammed two-run doubles in the fifth inning to lead the Titans into today's finals of the NCAA Far West regional baseball tournament with an 11-3 romp over Pepperdine Saturday.

The Titans scored eight runs in the fifth on nine hits. Titan catcher Andy Passillas also doubled in the fifth to drive in a run.

Eric Mustad scattered seven hits to pick up the victory, going the distance.

Dow Cowgill did all the damage for the Waves as he doubled and scored in the fifth, then hit a two-run homer off Mustad in the seventh.

Fullerton will face Washington State in the tourney finals. WSU defeated the Titans 5-1 in an earlier game Saturday.

In that game, Fullerton jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the first inning, but Cougar pitcher Bob Sherwood blanked the Titans for the rest of the contest, allowing seven hits.

Blue blanks Chisox on five-hitter

OAKLAND (AP) — Lefthander Vida Blue pitched a five-hitter as the Oakland A's defeated the Chicago White Sox 2-0 Saturday for their fifth victory in six games.

Blue (5-5) struck out four and walked one.

The A's scored in the second inning on a walk to Sal Bando and a double by Phil Garner. They got their other run in the sixth on a single by Bill North, a stolen base, a sacrifice by Bert Campaneris and a single by Don Baylor.

Losing pitcher Terry Forster gave up only six hits. The A's had runners on base in every inning except the eighth.

Nitehawks advance in tournament

Bruce Klemme's bases-loaded single was the big blow in a three-run fifth inning as the Long Beach Nitehawks rallied for a 5-2 victory over Ogden, Utah in the Phoenix Memorial softball tournament.

Bob Todd weathered 104-degree heat to go the distance for the Nitehawks. Todd scattered four hits and struck out ten.

Long Beach, the 1975 International Softball Congress champion, faces 1974 champ, Sun City, Ariz. today at 9:30 a.m. in the second round of the tournament.

Cards sink Mets on Reggie's blast

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Smith smashed a leadoff home run off New York reliever Ken Sanders in the 10th inning to give St. Louis a 3-2 victory over the New York Mets Saturday night.

Smith, who entered the game batting .189, hit Sanders' second pitch of the game over the rightfield fence for his eighth homer of the season.

Smith's blast provided Cardinal relief ace Al Hrabosky with his second victory in six decisions.

The Cards tied it 2-2 in the eighth. Bake McBride singled off Met starter Mickey Lolich and two outs later, Mike Anderson singled for his third hit of the game.

Lolich was replaced by Met relief ace Skip Lockwood, who walked pinch-hitter Ron Fairly to load the bases. Pinch-hitter Lou Brock then singled to tie the game but centerfielder Del Unser's perfect throw to the plate nailed Anderson to end the threat.

The Mets had taken a 2-1 lead in the fifth when Unser doubled, took third on a groundout and scored on rookie Roy Staiger's single to center.

Rich Hollypark turf stakes continue

Easy win by Cascapedia

The $55,600 Will Rogers Handicap today and the $200,000 Hollywood Invitational Turf Handicap Monday complete what is perhaps the most outstanding three-day span of thoroughbred racing ever presented in the history of Hollywood Park.

B.J. Ridder's three-year-old filly Cascapedia got Hollypark's Memorial Day weekend stakes tripleheader off to a start Saturday, capturing the $44,750 Honeymoon Handicap by 2½-lengths over Go March.

An Act, the often brilliant, sometimes disappointing but always heavily-backed three-year-old colt, puts his reputation on the line today in the Will Rogers.

Millionairess Dahlia and her three talented stablemates, Caucasus, King Pellinore and Top Command, are among a prestigious field of 12 marathoners in Monday's climax, the richest grass event in American racing.

CASCAPEDIA, A DAUGHTER of Chieftain and carrying the familiar pink and green colors of newspaper publisher Ridder, had little difficulty besting nine rivals in the mile and 1/16 turf Honeymoon before a crowd of 35,628, who also was Rudy Campas escape injury in a first-race spill and leading jockey Sandy Hawley score four times.

Bill Shoemaker, boosting his career totals to 7,057 wins and 672 stakes victories, handled Cascapedia, who raced as an entry with Ridder's Dream Of Spring.

As a 4-5 favorite, the entry returned $3.60, $2.80 and $3.20. Dream Of Spring, after getting off poorly, closed well to finish third, three-quarters of a length behind the runnerup Go March.

The Honeymoon, worth $26,759 to the winner, was the fourth victory in six career starts for Cascapedia, one of the few horses in Ridder's stable which he did not breed in California.

"I saw her listed for sale in a magazine ad and after having a vet check her out in Virginia I bought her and another filly at the same time from Raymond Guest," said Ridder.

Jerry Lambert, currently sidelined with a broken foot, had been Cascapedia's regular rider and Shoemaker handled her for the first time.

Shoe kept her in an excellent spot all the way, just behind pacesetting Now Pending. He moved her past the leader coming to the head of the stretch and from there it was merely a question of what the winning margin would be.

"Maybe it's the way she always runs, but she never took hold of the bit at any time," said Shoemaker. "I was clucking to her all the way so she could keep her position."

AN ACT, OWNED BY a parternship headed by Katz, Brun and Roberts, makes his first start on Hollypark's lakeside turf layout, shoulders high weight of 126 pounds and breaks from outside post position nine when he faces eight other sophomores in today's Will Rogers.

Thus, despite his well-deserved reputation as one of the West's finest Derby-aged runners, An Act will have to be at his best to be successful against an excellent group of second-year performers racing a mile and 1/16.

Marco Castaneda, who replaced Laffit Pincay as An Act's regular pilot, will reprise today, seeking the winner's share of $33,100.

Opposing An Act, in post position order, will be: Today N Tomorrow (Darrel McHargue), Sure Fire (Fernando Toro), L'Hereux (Don Pierce), Five Up Player (Frank Olivares), Classy Surgeon (Ismael Valenzuela), Delta Junction (Hawley), Madera Sun (Pincay) and Bynoderm (Shoemaker).

An Act began his career last winter at Santa Anita, taking his first three starts, including the Santa Catalina Stakes, in spectacular fashion. But installed as the 1-2 favorite in the $150,000 California Derby at Golden Gate, he inexplicably wound up fourth.

Then the Ron McAnally-trained colt rebounded with a wire-to-wire triumph in the $157,700 Santa Anita Derby before expiring at the top of the stretch in the $240,250 Hollywood Derby.

In his most recent outing, An Act cam back to perform superbly in the El Dorado Handicap, defeating Crystal Water by a nose in 1:34⅖, the fastest time for a mile this meeting.

So which An Act will show up today?

MONDAY'S TURF INVITATIONAL, with no entry or starter fees, will be worth $120,000 to the victor, with secondary awards of $40,000, $24,000, $12,000 and $4,000.

The field, in post position order: Landscaper (Darrel Montoya, 116), Dahlia (Shoemaker, 117), Announcer (Jean Cruguet, 117), King Pellinore (Howard Grant, 121), Avatar (Pincay 122), Top Command (Jacinto Vasquez, 117), One On The Aisle (Hawley, 121), Toonerville (Gene St. Leon, 120), Winds Of Thought (Octavia Vergara, 118), Caucasus (Castaneda, 119), Pass The Glass (Toro, 121) and Top Crowd (Don Pierce, 118).

All of the 12 entrants have won a major stakes race during their careers.

Dahlia will be the only distaffer in the field, but the six-year-old Vaguely Noble mare has earned almost all of her $1,392,943 bankroll while running against males.

She has won major events in England, Ireland, France, Canada and the U.S., and earned champion grass horse honors in America in 1974. She currently ranks as the richest active thoroughbred and only three horses—Kelso, Round Table annd Buckpasser—have earned more.

BIG WEEKEND AT RACETRACKS

Associated Press

If it's horse racing you want, tracks around the country will provide more than enough this big Memorial Day weekend.

Highlighting the sport will be attractive holdiday features at Belmont Park, Garden State and Hollywood Park.

At Belmont, Forego gets down to serious business in a bid for a third successive Horse of the Year title and at Garden State, trainer Laz Barrera shoots at the Jersey Derby with two three-year-olds as his stable star, Bold Forbes, awaits the June 5 Belmont Stakes.

Forego will make 1976 stakes debut, and only his second start of the year, when he opposes eight other handicap runners, including Foolish Pleasure and Master Derby, in the main track mile, $100,000-added Metropolitan Handicap.

Barrera will send out the entry of Life's Hope, Louis Wolfson's Illinois Derby winner, and Enrigue Ubarri's El Portugues against nine other three-year-olds in the 1⅛-mile, $100,000-added Jersey Derby.

FOREGO, THE HUGE six-year-old gelding owned by Martha Gerry, also will be trying to break a jinx in the Met. He finished second under 134 pounds in the race in 1974 and then was third under 136 last year. The $1 million winner, who was sidelined by injury last September and got back to races with a win in a seven-furlong allowance test May 20, will carry 130 pounds Monday, two more than Foolish Pleasure and four more than Master Derby.

Life's Hope, although he was sixth in the Preakness, is considered the toughest half of Barrera's entry for the Jersey Derby. His stiffest competition should come from Dan Lasater's Wardlaw, second to Life's Hope in the Illinois Derby and first in the Hawthorne Derby in his last outing; Entrement's Cojak, sixth in the Kentucky Derby and fourth in the Preakness, and Balmak Stable's On the Sly, a probable for the Belmont Stakes. Each Jersey Derby starter carries 122 pounds.

IN OTHER MONDAY STAKES, Our First Delight, 120, and Spirit Lake, 116, head 11 fillies and mares for the $50,000-added Yerba Buena Handicap over 1⅜-mile on the grass at Golden Gate Fields; Beyond Reasoning, 121, and Rattlemark, 116, are among 14 sprinters set for the six-furlong, $30,000-added Florence R Handicap at Arlington Park, and Christopher R., 130, spots six rivals from nine to 20 pounds for the six-furlong, $25,000-added Terrapin Handicap at Pimlico.

Also, Honky Star, 120, will meet 11 other fillies and mares in trying to win Delaware Park's six-furlong, $25,000 Endie Handicap for the second consecutive year.

OUCH lagged to the far turn, rallied inside to the three-sixteenth pole, eased out for a clear path and outraced BARGING IN through the final furlong. The latter broke poorly, swung wide on the first turn, closed to rally boldly from the middle of the course on the far turn, battled the winner from along the rail and seemed to gradually prop in somewhat close quarters nearing the finish line. SIBIRRI raced far off the pace then made up ground in the drive.

CASCAPEDIA raced close up early under light restraint, rallied into the stretch to get a commanding lead but was in full stride to insure. GO MARCH showed no early speed to drop far back, rallied seven horses wide on the stretch turn but never lost interest and closed with determination to finish fastest. DREAM OF SPRING took up when blocked at the five-sixteenth pole then rallied when clear inside in the stretch. I GOING raced blocked on the far turn. ANSWER was always within easy striking distance of the leaders but hung from the middle of the course in the drive. NOW PENDING set much of the early pace then weakened. Kaweah Bar, Adair click

One of the most popular combinations ever in quarter horse racing history, Kaweah Bar and Robert Adair, teamed for an $18.20 upset Saturday night at Los Alamitos as the former world champion horse began his final summer of competition with a speedy victory.

The 10-year-old gelded palomino, who must retire following the 1976 season according to California regulations, greeted the return of his favorite rider Adair with a head decision in the fifth race over 3-2 favorite Five Chics.

The triumph, accomplished in a swift 17.77 seconds, was the 38th of Kaweah Bar's brilliant career.

Sweet swingers

Ed McBratney (above) carved out a 2-1 victory over Roger Fagan Saturday in semifinals of the Long Beach City Match Play championship and will face Chuck Wallace (below) in today's 36-hole final at El Dorado. Wallace disposed of Tony Campregher, 1-up, in the other semifinal.

— Staff photos by ROBERT GINN

GENERATION GAP—

The Wallace-Campregher match was one of the finest ever played in this championship. Wallace finished a 2-under-par 70, Campregher at 71. Tony never led but never quit, canning birdie putts on the 16th and 17th holes after going dormie at 15.

The first three holes were halved in par. Both birdied the par-5 fourth, Wallace missing a 14-foot eagle try and Campregher coming through the trees and eventually wedging to within a foot of the cup.

Campregher continued to scramble for pars on the next two holes and then both men bogied the seventh. Wallace finally broke the stalemate with a 14-foot birdie on the par-5 eighth, the same hole where he sunk a 50-foot sand wedge for an eagle in his match against Pallis.

It was Wallace's turn to save par on the ninth, wedging from behind a trap, and then they halved again on the par-5 10th with birdies, both chipping up and sinking three-foot putts.

Campregher got even on 11, saving par from behind a trap with a nifty pitch as Wallace's 7-iron approach clipped a tree. He had a 12-footer for par and just missed. After that, however, he flawless with his putter.

Wallace chipped poorly on the 12th but ran in a 12-footer and won the hole to go 1 up again when Campregher hit long, put his approach 10 feet past the cup and missed coming back.

The 402-yard 13th hole is a tough one and both players birdied it. Campregher did it the hard way, knocking in a 14-footer, and Wallace had only a 2½-footer after lipping out an iron from 150 yards.

Wallace came right back with a 15-foot birdie on the 14th, only to push his drive right in the trees on the 15th. But this proved to be the pivotal hole. Ironically, it was played the worst by both men.

Campregher was short in two, pitched long and three-putted from 12 feet for a double bogey. Wallace flew the trees but came up short, chipped to within 10 feet and got it down in two.

Now dormie, Campregher made a surge, like the champion golfer he is. He watched Wallace make some bad shots but can a 15-footer for par, then rolled in a five-foot birdie to stay alive.

On the par-5 17th, Campregher hooked his first two shots, layed up a nifty approach and made an eight-foot birdie after Wallace two-putted for par from the fringe.

But Campregher didn't have a great shot left in his bag. He was on the green on the par-3 hole but 45 feet from the cup. Wallace was dead center, 20 feet away. Campregher rammed his putt nine feet past and Wallace was a scant eight inches away.

He knew he was beaten, but Campregher rolled in his putt nonetheless. The way Wallace had been putting, there was no way he was going to miss from such a short distance, however.

The McBratney-Fagan match unfolded in much the same manner, except they were making more pars than birdies. Only one hole was exchanged in the first nine, that when McBratney canned a 35-footer for a bird on the fifth.

Putting proved to be Fagan's undoing. Normally that is an asset for him, but he never made a birdie all day. When he three-putted for a bogey on the 10th, he went two down and failed to take advantage of McBratney's tree problems on the 11th by dumping an easy approach in the bunker. Both bogeyed the hole.

Fagan finally won a hole, the 13th, when McBratney missed his second shot and couldn't save par from eight feet. They halved the 14th, then the winner picked a propituous time for another long-distance birdie on the 15th. He rolled his putt in from 30 feet.

McBratney parred the next two holes to finish it off.

Last week McBratney knocked off Mike Bellmar and although he plays with poise and confidence, he had made a starting time at Skylinks today "just in case."

But he will be at El Dorado instead to see if a tough, old senior can stop the stranglehold of young golfers is this prestigious event.

Quarterfinals: Roger Fagan (1-over) def. Doug Peters, 1-2; Ed McBratney (2-over) def. Gary Ballantyne, 4-3; Tony Campregher (1-over) def. Les Ramm, 4-2; Chuck Wallace (1-over) def. Randy Pallis, 19th hole.

Semifinals: McBratney (2-over) def. Fagan (4-over), 2-1; Wallace (2-under) def. Campregher (1-under), 1 up.

RICH ROBERTS—

"It gets to the point where . . . well, first of all, there is an invasion of privacy and, second, it tends to cut into your time—very precious time, when it comes to training. Sometimes it gets on your nerves."

The attention comes, of course, because Mark and Francie are something more than a normal young married couple.

Francie asks the rhetorical question, "What is normal? I think I feel perfectly comfortable and normal. We're not normal in the sense that Mark doesn't get up in the morning and go to work, and we don't come home at the same time. Other than that, I think we're normal, if that's what normal is."

SHE CONSIDERS the comment a moment, then concedes that the lives of other young marrieds, "compared to our lifestyle, our travels, might be a little dull.

Mark says, "I think it'll be a shock to me when I quit running, because that's what I look forward to doing now . . . going away on the weekends, going to see other friends—track friends—and competing."

Most of their friends are track friends.

"Everybody that we know is in track or athletics somewhere," Francie says.

If they have one thing in common with most newlyweds, it is that they are usually broke. Their apartment is partially furnished with knick-knacks they have won. A '66 Volkswagen is parked in the street. A '66 Chevy is in the garage.

"We don't drive it," Mark shrugs. "There's no insurance on it."

"Mark has a scholarship and I had a savings account," Francie says. "I've had various jobs. Usually over Christmas time I'll work in a department store. I worked for a year in the office of a dry cleaning establishment. I worked in a pizza parlor once."

UNTIL COMMENCING serious training, Mark clerked 50 hours a week in a liquor store. They get by.

"Between his parents and mine," Francie says, "we're just hanging on. Both of our parents back us more than I can say. They've done so much for us."

The parents — Francie's in Sunnyvale in northern California, Mark's in Rochester, Minn. — do not despair of their offspring living as they do.

"They look at it the way we do," says Francie, "that this is the one time in our lives we can do this."

While Mark was running for the University of Kansas his father, an employe of IBM, attended so many meets wearing his Big Eight cap and stopwatch that "the other coaches thought he was a coach.

"My parents have followed me all over the country since I've been running. They'll be at the Olympic Trials in Eugene (June 19-27), for sure."

MARK AND FRANCIE agree that their marriage hasn't placed a burden on their careers or complicated their lives.

"This is how I've lived my whole life," Mark says. "I think I may feel a little more secure, because for the last six years I've just kind of been living out of a suitcase. But my lifestyle hasn't changed . . . other than living with Francie."

They met on a 1973 AAU track tour of Europe and began dating when they returned to Long Beach that fall. They were wed Jan. 24 in a San Francisco hotel.

"The day after the (indoor) meet," Francie says. "We selected the date according to the track schedule."

They picked San Francisco because most of Francie's relatives live in the area, and most of their friends—track friends—were around for the meet that weekend. Francie has difficulty recalling the name of the hotel.

"The Royal Inn," Mark says.

"The Royal Inn," Francie says, "that was it."

It didn't upset their performances the night before.

"We both won," Francie says.

PERHAPS IT was an omen. Francie is expected to qualify for the Olympics, but Mark, with best times of 10.2 for 100 meters, 20.4 for 200 and 46.5 for 400, would rate as something of a longshot.

What if only one should qualify?

"We haven't really talked about it," says Francie, looking at Mark.

"I don't know," Mark says. "I haven't thought about it."

Francie says, "If one of us doesn't make it, we'd probably both go because his parents are going. If they have a camper . . . well, we can just stay with them."

It doesn't seem to bother Mark that Francie still carries her maiden name, Larrieu.

"I'm a Lutz in everything but track," she says. "The reason I kept it is I didn't want to confuse everybody. Now I'm the one that's being confused because everybody's calling me Larrieu-Lutz, even though I enter as Larrieu. So next year I'm just going to switch to Lutz and forget it.

"I like being married. Hey, we're happy. They can say we're going to live happily ever after, but who knows? We just live day by day and take things as we can."

Maltbie tip-toes to lead

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Roger Maltbie had bogeyed three in a row. He'd seen his once-commanding five-shot lead dwindle to two strokes. He'd tip-toed barefoot through weeds and water to a minor miracle of a par on the 18th hole.

"Any time you get to thinking you're a better player than it is a golf course, it's gonna jump up and grab you," he said.

"All you can do is keep plugging away at it and hope you get out alive."

With that in mind, Maltbie placed little faith in his two-stroke lead going into today's final round of the new, $200,000 Memorial Golf Tournament.

"It is such a humbling course I might go out there and shoot 87," he said. "I don't expect it, but it could happen.

"I'll just hang on to one end of the golf club and swing it and see what happens," said the chipper young man after his varied escapades that included one whistle-producing barefoot jaunt into a weed-choked creek.

Maltbie, a 25-year-old tour sophomore, survived the menacing monster that is Muirfield despite his intimate acquaintance with the woods and water, traps and trees that characterize the 7,072 yards of Ohio countryside that Jack Nicklaus designed and constructed into the Muirfield Village Golf Club.

The mustachioed Maltbie, a two-time winner as the 1975 rookie of the year, broke into a high-stepping victory dance after his par on the final hole that put him through three rounds with a 212 total, four-under-par on what has proved to be the most difficult course the pros encountered all year.

Don Bies managed a one-under-par 71 that left him second at 214.

Burfeindt leads by 1

BALTIMORE (AP) — Betty Burfeindt, the third-leading money winner of 1976 who has not scored a tournament victory in three years, shot a par 73 under miserable playing conditions and took the third-round lead Saturday in the Ladies Professional Golf Association Championship.

The 30-year-old Miss Burfeindt said she was lucky with her par round because of the high winds and rain, which caused her to lose the club out of her hands on one swing.

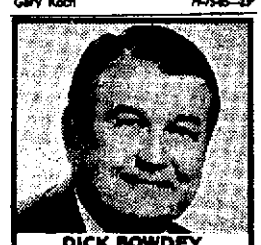

Going into today's final round and a chance for the $8,000 first prize, she had a 54-hole total of 216, three-under-par and one stroke ahead of Judy Rankin, the leading money winner on the tour who has won three tournaments this season.

Laura Baugh, the first-day leader, faded to 223 by carding a 78.

Miss Burfeindt started the day one stroke off the pace, while Mrs. Rankin had started the round five strokes behind.

A four-way tie for third place included Jan Stephenson, a two-time winner this year, Carole Jo Skala, Sharon Miller and Chako Higuchi of Japan at 218.

Selected by teammates

LBCC women honored

By ELAINE RISINGER
Staff Writer

Too often an athletic program is assessed only by the win-loss ratio. In reality, sports participation involves much more than that. That's why each semester Long Beach City College honors two members of each women's and coed team for individual accomplishments in skill development.

Selections are made by team members, not the coaches, and the ground rules designate that no player can receive the same award twice.

Gail Harris was chosen as the outstanding competitor of the gymnastics squad, coached by Peggy Stoll. A sophomore in her second year on the team, Gail was the number one or two all around gymnast all year. She was also one of the top two all around performers in the league along with Gaye Wilson, who won this award last year.

Tabbed by her teammates as the most improved competitor was Susie Raap, a freshman. Performing only on the balance beam and in floor exercise, Susie started the year on the Class II squad and "made her way rapidly not only into Class I but to the top of that class in her speciality, the balance beam," her coach said.

Susie, who took first place in this event during league finals with 8.0 points, co-holds the school record on the beam with Gaye Wilson at 8.15.

Kim Doyle, who played three positions, was selected most valuable softball player. Starting as a catcher and left fielder, Kim ended the year as pitcher.

Coach Donna Prindle described Kim as a "very talented and versatile softball player." In 58⅓ innings, Kim had a .276 ERA and 21 strikeouts.

Kim's .426 batting average was one of the highest on the team. Batting successfully in 12 games, Kim's 23 hits included four doubles, one triple and one home run for 13 RBIs.

One of the quickest fielders in the league, centerfielder Dawn Wiley, was honored as most inspirational team member. She led the squad with four stolen bases, and in one of the most exciting games of the season provided the seventh-inning hit that gave LBCC a victory over Chaffey College.

A FRESHMAN from Jordan High School, Janis Chok, who has also swam with the Lakewood Synchronettes, received outstanding honors from her fellow swimmers. Janis participated in the 50 and 100 breastroke and 100 and 200 individual medley.

Chosen as the other outstanding swimmer was June graduate Becky Thomas. A versatile swimmer who can fill in wherever needed, according to coach Gunning, Becky placed regularly in her specialities, the 50 and 100 backstroke, 50 butterfly and 100 individual medley.

MARILYN PRUETT came to LBCC from Millikan High School, to continue her outstanding play on the tennis courts. A freshman, Marilyn had a perfect 10-0 record during the season as the No.1 singles player. "She was an inspiration to the other girls on the team, and we expect to see more great things from her next year," coach Sally Monsoor said.

Carole Cooper was picked as the most improved tennis player. "Carole joined the team with little tennis experience, and in a short period of time has shown great improvement in skill and playing ability," coach Monsoor commented.

Tracy Laurin, on the double A volleyball team, and Irish Ryan, on the single As, were selected as outstanding competitors. Coach Merri Machado praised Tracy for "outstanding achievement and effort" and Irish for "constant, consistent improvement with many great plays during the season."

DENNIS PROWANT and Reba Edmond received awards for their contributions to the coed badminton team. Gillis Brown is coach of the Viking squad.

The two skippers who will be competing in the Women's National Sailing Championships have been chosen for the coed sailing trophies. Coach Jerry Miller noted that Cathy Black was the low point sailor at the Women's National Eliminations held recently at Newport Beach. Jo Ann Ellerman followed Cathy in the event. Jo Ann also was seventh in the dinghy championships during the spring semester.

Cathy, Jo Ann and their crew members Lorna Ramos and Andrea Zahn left Saturday with their coach for Boston, where they will be sailing Tech Dinghys and Lark sloops in the Women's Collegiate National Championships this week.

WOMEN IN SPORTS

The four LBCC women plus four San Diego State women, second place finishers in the Newport Beach elimination, will be representing the Pacific Coash Intercollegiate Yacht Racing Assn.

The round robin tournament is sponsored by MIT, and the young women will be practice racing today and Monday with the series set for Tuesday and Wednesday.

Although the boats and sailing area will be new to the LBCC athletes, coach Miller feels his entries stand a good chance in the competition.

IT WAS A difficult and disappointing SCCCLIAC softball tournament for the Cerritos College team coached by Nancy Kelly. The Falcons, who entered the annual event as the Southern League champions with a perfect 10-0 record, played their first game in Van Nuys in a temperature of 107 degrees during a first stage smog alert.

Although the team rolled by its first opponent, East Los Angeles College, 6-0, the squad was "drained" for their second game which was scheduled a few hours later.

"We were tired," said Nancy. "And wouldn't you know that our second game went 13 innings."

Playing in the evening on a poorly lighted field, a Falcon player lost the ball following a hit into right field allowing Los Angeles Valley to score the winning run.

Back the next day, Cerritos needed three wins to get back into the finals. The Falcons downed El Camino, 6-0, and then had to take to the field 20 minutes later to face Fullerton College, which edged Cerritos, 4-3.

"The tournament really needs some restructuring next year," said Nancy. "We outhit and really outclassed everyone we played, but fatigue set in, and we started making mistakes we hadn't made all year."

Nancy's top pitcher, Barbara Reinaldo, hurled 30 innings, in four games in less than 48 hours. She limited 1[illegible] batters to only four hits, struck out 17 and gave up only two earned runs.

"I was really proud of our team" said Nancy, "But I felt sorry for them having to play under those conditions."

People Talk

DR. TRUDY CLARK of Bellflower High School is light years younger than Mr. Chips and prom queen beautiful, but she's much like Chips in her caring for students.

Bellflower senior Ronda Moxon thinks Trudy Clark is a "very special lady," and you'll agree after reading what Ronda wrote to me:

"Dear Mr. Anderson: Please help me express my thanks to a very special lady. I'm referring to my friend and counselor at Bellflower High School, Dr. Trudy Clark.

"She has given me much needed encouragement when I was discouraged. Having had a bad experience, I wanted to quit school, give up and be nobody. Dr. Clark put her foot down (in a friendly way), talked with me and helped my parents show me how much fun and importance school really is.

"In her eight years at B.H.S., as a counselor, she has helped many kids with problems. On June 17, I graduate from Bellflower High. I'm leaving with a satisfaction and an outlook that is far better than the one I started with.

"I am happy knowing that this coming September my sister will have the privilege of knowing Dr. Trudy Clark.

"To Dr. Clark, I say, 'Thank you for all your help and encouragement. Because of my parents and you, I will have a good life.' "

Dr. Clark has several degrees, many prizes and academic distinction. But I don't think any of her honors are more cherished than the gratitude expressed to her by Ronda Moxon, the senior who has it all together for now and the future.

TRUDY CLARK doesn't look it, but she's been involved in counseling for 25 years. She's worked with students at all levels: pre-school, elementary, junior high, high school, community college, adult education. Like her heart and her mind, her door is always open.

In her tribute to Dr. Clark, Ronda Moxon described her as "my friend and counselor." At Bellflower High, the terms "friend" and "counselor" are interchangeable, which may explain why Dr. Clark has been so successful with youngsters.

On graduation day, Trudy Clark will look down the rows of seniors and see hundreds of young people she has known since they were in the ninth grade. She'll see friends she has helped with a word, an idea, a pat on the back, a figurative kick in the pants.

The solution of personal, behavorial and attendance problems is just a part of Trudy Clark's school day. She advises the kids how to "shop" for colleges and scholarships, how to seek employment, how to identify their own worth as people and build on that knowledge.

There are some defeats. A child she has just begun to reach may move out of the district or change gears all of a sudden and decide to settle for less than he or she is capable of achieving. School counseling is like life itself—you win some, you lose some.

Dr. Clark and her fellow counselors deal with the total child, the child as an individual with special needs. There is no one formula or approach that can be be applied en masse.

THE SOCIAL pressures on students are heavier than many adults realize. The kids' parents expect maturity of judgment to go hand in hand with maturity of body. And that's asking a lot of a teenager.

Potential employers expect youngsters to be well trained. The armed services expect the youngsters coming to them to be well disciplined.

There's nothing wrong with such expectations, but a youngster may well feel hard pressed to deliver on all of them to perfection. In many cases, society expects better performance from youngsters than it does from adults. It's the old "Don't do as I do, do as I say" syndrome at work.

Dr. Clark gives parents generally good marks. "Once parents are apprised of a problem their child is having they rally around. They're more helpful and understanding than the kids ever dreamed."

The sheer weight of being young, pressured and searching can crush a youngster who has no one with whom to share the burden, go to or confide in.

When there is no one to turn to, when the load becomes intolerable, the consequence may be a school dropout or a behavior rebellion.

The students at Bellflower know where to turn when they're troubled, confused, questing for answers and down on themselves. Like Ronda Moxon, they turn to Dr. Trudy Clark, a "very special lady" who cares and understands.

Began with A-bomb, say backers

Proposition 15 idea conceived years ago

By MIKE JELF
Staff Writer

The originators of Proposition 15, the nuclear power measure which faces California voters June 8, say it is the result of months of volunteer effort by groups which for years have been concerned with the consequences of radioactive products.

The initiative proposes stringent safety tests for atomic plants. If these tests can't be met, the measure proposes a ban on future plant construction and limitations of operation of existing plants.

"We got into this really through our concern with the weapons problem," said Dorothy Jones of Another Mother for Peace. "We've been active in the whole nuclear field for many years."

Her group was one of several—including the conservationist Sierra Club —which laid the groundwork for the June 8 vote.

"It was a group action right from the start," she said. "There is no (single) who."

ANALYSIS

The proposition came into being through a "checkered history of fits and starts," attorney Dave Pesonen of Yes on 15 said.

Pesonen, one of the lawyers who helped draft the measure, said the first attempt to put an initiative on nuclear safety on the ballot came in late fall of 1973.

Earlier, nuclear controls proponents tried to go the legislative route. However Assemblyman Charles Warren, D-Los Angeles, told them it was hopeless to get such a measure through the Legislature, Pesonen said.

Following Warren's warning, members of the pro-15 organizations spent more than six months drafting the measure on their own. "It's a hell of a lot of work," Pesonen said.

The main issues that concerned them were the problems of waste disposal, emergency reactor-core cooling-system reliability and the federal limitation on liability in case of a reactor accident, he said.

The initiative's framers decided to seek safety regulation through state law because they thought hearings conducted by the then-Atomic Energy Commission on plant licensing were rigged in favor of the plants.

Petition circulators, mostly volunteers, took to the streets in mid-November of 1974, trying to gather the required 490,000 signatures.

Richard Spohn, then of the Citizens' Action Group, said about $50,000 was spent on gathering the signatures.

Gathering the signatures "is a bear," he said.

About 25 to 30 full-time signature gatherers worked from eight to 12 hours a day, he said, while roughly 125 at a time worked part time. Several hundred persons worked at signature gathering overall, he said.

Except for one director who was paid $1,200 a month, full-time signature gatherers "lived really cheap," sleeping in sleeping bags and working when they could, Pesonen added.

Though opponents of 15 are outspending proponents by a wide margin, Spohn thinks the initiative has a good chance of passing.

The basic issues raised by the proposition are policy questions and "are not technical issues," he said.

JOE MAHER TAKES IT EASY WHILE HIS EARTHWORMS GROW

Doctors open can of worms by telling Joe to find a hobby

By DICK EMERY

The docs told Joe Maher to take it easy.

"Get a nice, quiet hobby," they said.

After all, within snapping distance of man's promised threescore and ten years, Joseph F. Maher had earned a bit of rest and silence. That was seven years ago.

So he started looking around for a hobby neither noisy nor calisthenic, nor even spectacular.

He finally decided to cultivate earthworms.

"Ideal!" he said, a day or two ago, hardly moving from his comfortable, cushioned chair in the shade of a banana tree behind his cottage near 14th Street and Pine Avenue in Long Beach.

His feet were resting on a wheelbarrow in which stood a rumpled paper sack full of apples past their prime.

"The worms LOVE apples," he explained.

"They eat all kinds of organic trash. Meat scraps they adore. You should see how they polish a steak bone!"

QUIETLY, in their many wooden lug-boxes, thousands and thousands of splendid young earthworms were eating apples, ignoring rotten spots and other imperfections.

"What a lovely hobby!" Maher said.

"My pets never talk back. They do not bark, or whine, or scratch the door to get in or out. They have no working parts to short-circuit, like toy trains. They aren't panicked by cats, as canaries are, and when they're hungry, they don't moo like cows or scream like parrots. No, they just quietly wait."

The doctors gave Maher their prescription after pretty well working him over with surgery and pills. They told him he was in terrible shape and should get his affairs in order. He told them he had no intention whatever of failing to greet the sunrise on Jan. 1, 2000. On that morning, he will have seen three centuries.

"THE DOCTORS gave me the bad word back in 1968," he said. "It took me a while to settle down and get this hobby going.

"Do you know that the earthworm is man's best friend? That without earthworms, farms would be useless? That the earthworm. . ."

Maher chuckled. He admitted that as pets, earthworms lack one essential.

"They won't come when you call them."

"THE DOCTORS who prescribed a quiet hobby for Maher had studied his record.

Between boyhood in New York and his present loafing, he led a lively and usually noisy life as a deckhand on a square-rigger, a U.S. Cavalry troop cook on the Mexican border in World War I, a Texas mule skinner, an oil driller, a hearse driver (that was quiet until the last few minutes, when the two-horse team ran away), a dragline operator on a canal project, a laborer on the first concrete highway in New York and a shipyard electrician through World War II on Terminal Island.

From May 1947 to December 1962 he was the oldest recruit in any U.S. military outfit, serving as bombardier and electronics expert on a Navy P2V antisub patrol plane flying with the Naval Air Reserve at Los Alamitos.

"Toss in quite a few years of running restaurants and furniture stores in Long Beach, Pasadena, Bellflower, Garden Grove, Santa Ana and Palm Springs."

MAHER laughed heartily. He picked up one of the blemished apples, brushed it on his sleeve, and hunted for a place to bite.

"It was always hubbub and salesmanship in my selling days—people demanding bargains. Now, an earthworm never argues. He doesn't complain. He doesn't question the slice of apple you offer him — he just eats it, happy as can be, and doesn't say a word."

Allison promoted

Levinson named managing editor

Larry Allison, managing editor of the Independent, Press-Telegram since 1969, will begin an interim assignment Tuesday with the Knight-Ridder Newspapers in Lexington, Ky., and Detroit.

David Levinson, the I,P-T's chief editorial writer, will become the new managing editor.

Allison, who came to these papers in 1957, will spend the next six months as assistant to the publisher of the Lexington Herald and Leader.

Following that, he'll work for a year in a managerial capacity in the editorial department of the Detroit Free Press.

Allison, 41, attended Long Beach State University and the Sorbonne in Paris and spent a year at Harvard on a Nieman Fellowship.

Starting as a reporter at the I,P-T, he became, successively, a copy editor, makeup editor, telegraph editor, picture editor, assistant city editor, city editor and managing editor.

DAVID LEVINSON

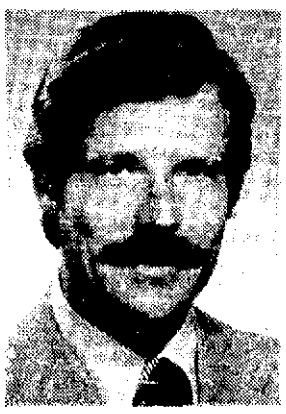

He is a member of the board of directors of the Associated Press Managing Editors Association and for two years edited its monthly publication, the APME News.

Levinson, 46, has been the chief editorial writer of these newspapers since 1970. He also has been the papers' music critic, although he will give up his reviewing assignment with the assumption of his new duties.

A native of Gary, Ind., Levinson graduated from the University of Chicago and holds a master's degree in music theory from Indiana University.

He was a reporter in Hartford, Conn., and Chicago, and a copy editor in Cleveland. Before coming to Long Beach, he was city editor and managing editor in Redding, Calif.

He has also taught courses in editorial and feature writing.

Jolly, 80, is still in driver's seat, but pace is slower now

"Don't call me Missus. Call me Jolly."

With that command, the pert, gray-haired woman turned on a slippered heel and shuffled into the kitchen of her North Long Beach home.

" I hope you don't mind instant coffee," she continued. "I can remember when no one would drink it, but now it's popular. But I can remember when the telephone first came in. That was popular, too. Now we take it for granted. Soon we'll take instant coffee for granted. That's just the way things go.

"I'VE BEEN interested in history ever since the first grade. That was back in 1902."

Maybel Jolly placed two steaming mugs of coffee on the kitchen table, sat down and lit a cigarette.

"And don't be telling me about cigarettes being bad for me. I don't want to hear it."

Delivering orders comes easy for Jolly. She's used to it. As the chief dispatcher for the Yellow Cab Co. in San Francisco for 20 years she gave a lot of orders.

Before that she was a cab driver.

"I had a jitney run in Joplin, Mo.," she said from behind a cloud of cigarette smoke. "A jitney is a taxi that has a fixed route. My cab was a Model T Ford.

"I'VE BEEN behind the wheel most of my life. It hasn't always been in cars," said Jolly, who turned 80 on Friday.

"The first ride I remember was in back of a wagon comin' across the prairie from Medicine County, Arkansas, to Baxter Springs, Kan. I was sleeping on a mattress in the back of the wagon.

"I grew up in Baxter Springs. It was just two miles by horse and buggy to the Oklahoma Territory.

GOP faces a unique dilemma

LOS ANGELES — One consequence of the possible nomination of Ronald Reagan as the Republican presidential candidate will be unique in this century. In that event, Reagan will have defeated a sitting President of his own party, who will remain in office throughout the campaign, and in fact for five months after the roll is called at the Republican convention.

Nobody knows what problems that might bring. Presidents Truman and Johnson were in nothing like the same position in 1952 and 1968. Each of them withdrew voluntarily. Truman helped choose Adlai Stevenson as the Democratic nominee and Johnson had chosen Hubert Humphrey four years earlier as his vice-presidential running mate.

BUT IF FORD loses the nomination, he will not only have to run the government for half a year after having been repudiated by his own party; he will certainly not have favored Reagan and he will also be in the position of possibly contributing to his conqueror's ultimate victory or defeat by his actions as President.

That possibility could be foreclosed on June 8, the last primary day, but it's not likely. Ford could win the 167 delegates at stake here on Reagan's home ground, which probably would clinch a Ford nomination. But the political betting is that Reagan will win here, with Ford offsetting that victory in Ohio and New Jersey, and the issue remaining to be settled at the convention in Kansas City.

No president in office has had to fight that hard for renomination since Taft in 1912, and none has been defeated by his own party in this century. If the Ford-Reagan battle goes all the way to the convention, two differing political pressures will be at work there.

ONE WILL arise from Ford's incumbency. Uncommitted delegates may fear his power of reprisal, seek his favors, or shrink from the political consequences of rejecting their own President — and by inference all his policies. Some might worry about turning Ford into a lame duck, a caretaker President in a period of worldwide stress, with no one sure whether

Tom Wicker

New York Times News Service

Ford's policy or Reagan's campaign positions were being taken the most seriously in foreign capitals.

On the other hand, the uncommitted delegates who could hold the power of decision might feel, with considerable justification, that Ford had shown himself a weak President and an inept campaigner. They might ask themselves whether, if he could not use the powers of incumbency to defeat a challenger in his own party, he would know how to use them against the Democratic candidate.

That candidate will already have been chosen, when the Republicans meet, and if he is the Southerner Jimmy Carter, an uncommitted Republican might well wonder, too, if another non-Washingtonian with appeal in the South might not be a stronger candidate than Ford.

IRONICALLY, THE issue might well be settled outside the campaign. If Ford found himself embroiled in a foreign crisis — say in the Middle East or southern Africa — as the convention opened, there would most likely be a rally-round-the-President effect. Bad economic news or some other setback could tip things Reagan's way.

If by some means Ford does rescue his nomination, Reagan has been making it plain in recent days that he does not intend to go gentle into that good night. Any way you count the delegates, he is going to come close to nomination; and those supporting him tend to be strongly motivated and ideologically persuaded. What Reagan and his backers might demand in return for their support of a Ford ticket — anything from the vice presidency to platform concessions — could get the Republican campaign off to a disastrous start.

But if Reagan ekes out the nomination, he simply will not be able to ignore the fact that Ford still will hold all the powers of office throughout the campaign. This could produce some high comedy — the spectacle, for example, of victorious candidate Reagan having to put down cash on the barrelhead for a chartered plane, while the defeated Ford flies around in Air Force 1.

BUT THE consequences could be serious, too. Could Ford, for example, proceed with Panama Canal negotiations in good faith, knowing Reagan takes a position flatly contradictory to his own? And what if the Democratic nominee agreed with Ford, as he probably will?

The campaign of 1968 is instructive to recall. Humphrey, the Democratic nominee, obviously feared to move too far from Johnson's position on the Vietnam War, for fear Johnson would retaliate; and Humphrey believes today that if Johnson had let farm prices rise that fall, through the operations of the Commodity Credit Corporation, he might have won rather than suffer a narrow defeat.

On the other hand, the President's announcement of the Paris peace talks in the closing days of the campaign probably gave Humphrey a last-minute lift. Would Gerald Ford do as much for a man who had defeated him for the nomination?

America still longs for faith

FIERY RUN, Va. — The most interesting thing about the presidential election is that so many people in this secularized and largely agnostic country have given their votes to a devout evangelical Southern Baptist.

This hasn't happened because Governor Carter is an elegant preacher like

James Reston

New York Times News Service

Woodrow Wilson, with a compelling vision of the future. He does not have the muscular vigor of President Ford, or the theatrical charm of Ronald Reagan, or the youthful good looks of Governor Brown. He is, on the whole, a pleasant, intelligent, courteous, hopeful and determined man, but no more so than many others like Governor Askew of Florida, who might have come forward.

WHAT, THEN, explains his success? I believe it is that he has come along at a time of reaction against the pessimism and moral anarchy of the present age, when so many people are depressed by the history of the past decade, and perplexed by the consequences of their own lack of personal faith.

It might have been supposed that so liberated and even defiant a generation would have rejected Carter precisely because he gives public witness to his religious convictions, and of course, many people do. Quite a few people regard him as a throwback to the age of illusion and even as a personal rebuke to their hard-won emancipation, and their liberating "life-style."

But it seems that, while Carter will lose this particular vote, he is getting the support of a much wider constituency in America that longs for something it has lost and thinks he represents. And this is not merely the church-going "regulars" — though they are a numerous and powerful political force — but also the social weekend "believers" who are not very happy with the "liberation" or "style" of their lives.

CARTER'S POWER with these folk, which the political and labor union leaders of his party cannot ignore, and Ford and Reagan fear, is that it is strongest in the Republican conservative regions of the South and Middle West. He is doing with personality and theology what Goldwater, Nixon and Ford have tried to do with conservative political ideology — he is not only holding his own with the Democratic organizations in the North, but cutting into the "silent majority" of the "Middle America" that the Republicans thought was their strongest base.

For the moment, Carter is stumbling and may do no more than hold his own in the remaining primary elections, but that's really all he has to do. He has most of the convention delegates and even more important, he has the philosophy that is infuriating the liberal minority in his own party but touching the doubts and hopes of the majority. It will not be easy for his opponents to get rid of him, for they cannot dump him without risking the loss of the people who see him as a new personality appealing to the old but not quite forgotten values.

This struggle between belief and unbelief has been going on in America for a very long time. The old faith may have been destroyed but the longing for faith remains. Even in Lincoln's day, he felt that we were "bereft of faith but terrified of skepticism."

IT IS THE Vietnam War, the Watergate scandals, the revelations of moral squalor around the White House and also of the latest corruption of Wayne Hays and staff in the Congress that have brought all this now to a critical point in the election of 1976.

It is merely more obvious now. Walter Lippmann defined the modern dilemma probably better than anybody else in A Preface to Morals in 1929. "Among those who no longer believe in the religion of their fathers," he wrote, "some are proudly defiant, and many are indifferent. But there are also a few, perhaps an increasing number, who feel that there is a vacancy in their lives. . . .

"What most distinguishes the generation who have approached maturity since the debacle of idealism at the end of World War I, is not their rebellion against the religion and the moral code of their parents, but their disillusionment with their own rebellion. It is common for young men and women to rebel, but that they should rebel sadly and without faith in their own rebellion, that they should discuss the new freedom no less than the old certainties — that is something of a novelty."

This is the spirit of regret Carter seems to have touched, and it is a formidable moral and political force.

How clemency board failed

WASHINGTON — Just eight days after President Ford pardoned Richard Nixon for his Watergate crimes, the President established a clemency board to offer similar charity to the draft dodgers and deserters of the Vietnam War.

He promised at an Oval Office ceremony in September 1974 that the new board would bind up the nation's wounds and would offer the Vietnam violators an opportunity "to earn their return to the mainstream of American society."

For the next year, the board became bogged down in a jungle of red tape.

The board offered conditional clemency to about 100,000 servicemen and 13,000 civilians who had committed offenses related to the war. To encourage the violators to apply, the board pledged not to make the files available "to any other agency of government." It was a promise the board shortly violated by voting to forward evidence of serious crimes to the Justice Department.

This heightened the distrust of members of an alienated generation who, therefore, were slow to respond to the clemency offer. They were just beginning to gain confidence in the board when its charter ran out. The board asked President Ford for a six-month extension. But he extended the board only a month, then another month.

Of 113,337 eligible for clemency, only 21,729 applied before the deadline. The program ended in failure.

The President, under increasing fire from the right wing of his own party, had become uneasy over the clemency program. He wanted to wind it up, according to White House sources, with a report that would appease its conservative critics. The staff produced draft reports, however, that contained blistering criticisms of the selected service system. One report assailed local boards for failing sometimes to inform the registrants of their legal rights.

Selective service officials often refused to certify registrants as conscientious objectors, a staff report charges, because of a "lack of familiarity with teachings of religion (and) lack of general acceptance."

Jack Anderson with Les Whitten

Another staff analysis charged that the military discharge office had failed to consider a man's entire service career before slapping him with an undesirable discharge.

But in September 1975 the board met at the Camp David, Md., presidential retreat and quietly cut out almost all criticism of the selective service system. They produced a final report that our sources describe simply as a "whitewash." As evidence, they have shown us copies of the suppressed draft reports.

From several sources, we have also pieced together the story of how the clemency program was mishandled. Here are the highlights:

• The board unanimously recommended honorable discharges for scores of servicemen who went AWOL after heroic service in Vietnam. The board also urged upgrading the discharges of servicemen who deserted their military units after being injured. Ex-Senator Charles Goodell, R-N.Y., personally presented these recommendations to White House counsel Philip Buchen in late 1974. Goodell made another personal appeal directly to the President. Ford still hasn't acted on the recommendations.

• He has ignored another board recommendation to grant pardons to about 700 servicemen who face prosecution for minor offenses they committed after returning from Vietnam.

• The board granted "clemency discharges" to thousands of Vietnam servicemen. These were supposed to remove the stigma of an undesirable discharge. Yet, incredibly, servicemen with undesirable discharges have had better results getting veterans' benefits. Goodell has acknowledged privately that a clemency discharge is sometimes worse than an undesirable discharge.

• A clemency discharge is also supposed to improve the veteran's chance of eventually gaining an honorable discharge from the Pentagon. Yet our sources say the Pentagon brass look with scorn upon the clemency discharges. The practical effect has been to make it more difficult for the veterans to upgrade their discharges.

• The clemency board promised applicants that they could comment on the case summaries before they were submitted to the board. These summaries were used by the board members to help them judge the case. However, the board usually made decisions before giving the applicants a chance to respond. When some applicants learned about this, they threatened to sue. The board immediately reneged on the promise, issued new regulations and applied them retroactively.

Goodell acknowledged that certain criticisms had been deleted from the final report. The board felt it shouldn't evaluate the work of other agencies, he said. He also contended that President Ford backed the board on most matters.

No on Proposition 15

Several of the ballot measures in the June 8 California election could have an important impact in our state.

One — Proposition 15 — would have an impact so great that if citizens go to the polls for no other reason they should go to cast a no vote.

Passage of Proposition 15 would mean an end to California's use of nuclear energy to produce electricity.

THE PROPOSITION is advertised as a measure to assure nuclear safety. In fact, its conditions are impossible to meet. One condition would require that the U.S. Congress within one year repeal key provisions of a nuclear insurance law that Congress has just voted overwhelmingly to extend for 10 years. Another provision would allow 14 state senators to shut down California nuclear power plants just by not voting — even if all the assemblymen and most of the senators agreed the plants are safe.

There is no satisfactory substitute for nuclear power. Electricity could be produced from coal, but the resulting air pollution would be horrendous. Electricity could be produced from oil-burning plants, but there would still be added air pollution. And if there is another foreign oil boycott, as there was in 1973, there might not be enough petroleum for both the power plants and for motorists.

Even without a boycott, information from the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration indicates that by 1985 a nuclear moratorium in California woud create an additional demand for oil equivalent to about 30 per cent of current consumption of motor fuel in California. That would inevitably cause large increases in gasoline prices.

IN THIS AND other ways, a nuclear shutdown would cost the typical California family $7,500 in increased prices of energy, goods and services over the next 20 years.

The costs to many Californians would be even greater. If Proposition 15 leaves California unable to meet industrial energy needs, widespread unemployment is likely.

Every industrialized nation in the world uses nuclear power. The U.S. nuclear power industry has a perfect safety record. The major government study on nuclear safety — by Dr. Norman Rasmussen of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology — concluded that the likelihood of any kind of serious nuclear power accident is negligible.

The Rasmussen report found that if the United States had 100 nuclear power plants (it now has 55), the individual chance of a fatality per year was 1 in 300 million. The individual chance of a fatality from being hit by lightning is 150 times as great: 1 in 2 million. The chance of being killed in an automobile accident is 1 in 4,000 — or 75,000 times as great as the chance of being killed from a nuclear reactor accident.

NUCLEAR POWER is the cheapest and cleanest energy source. Despite what the proponents of Proposition 15 say, it is also the safest.

There is no reason for California to lag behind the rest of the nation and the rest of the world in cheap, clean and safe power. Proposition 15 must be defeated.

Fluoridation 'peril'

Referring to a letter written by Mirian Hippensteel, "John Mansell and his cronies," not only have brought the Queen Mary, the Grand Prix, the oil islands which have ruined the view from our beaches, the filled—in harbor docks which shut Catalina from view and have caused the disappearance of our beach, but are responsible for our city water system being fluoridated. They denied the citizens the right to vote — twice — before the citizens turned down fluoridation. This is a costly project and extremely wasteful, as only 1 per cent of a water supply is used for drinking purposes and the 99 per cent is wasted as far as fluoridating in relation to the teeth.

There are statistics now available which indicate that 25,000 cancer deaths per year can be attributed to fluoridation. The ten largest cities fluoridated before 1960 have a cancer death rate 12 per cent higher than the ten largest nonfluoridated cites and later figures show a continued increase in cancer death rates between fluoridated and nonfluoridated cities.

A fine manager

I am really sick and tired of hearing the so-called in-the-know people request John Mansell's resignation. They are blaming everything on him but the sinking of the Titanic. Does the City Council bear no blame?

I realize that everyone is so disgusted with anyone in a city, state or federal position now, after Watergate, that we are striking out quickly out of frustration. I suggest you make sure of all the facts before anyone asks for this man's resignation.

I grew up in Long Beach. My father worked for almost 20 years for the city as a welder and mechanic. He is retired now, and lives in the East, but I'll never forget his personal knowledge of Mr. Mansell. His opinion, from personal knowledge, was that Mr. Mansell was the only city manager he ever knew who cared for all his men, not just the supervisors and foremen.

The average man working for the city could always count on a fair deal from Mr. Mansell. Ask a city employe — a garbage collector, a mechanic at the police garage, etc. — what kind of man Mr. Mansell is. They are in a position to know.

Ending a tax break

Common Cause and the League of Women Voters are sponsoring Proposition 5 for tax reform. Your editorial "Proposition 5: a step back" says it is the reverse of tax reform, but your arguments are specious and you avoid some important facts.

Today, most taxes can be changed by a majority of the Legislature. Amending the state constitution so that tax laws covering banks, insurance companies and other corporations could also be changed by a majority vote, instead of by the two-thirds vote now required, would make it much more possible to achieve comprehensive tax reform.

The two-thirds provision was placed in the state constitution 65 years ago when the state was predominantly under the control of railroads and banks. Since there there have been numerous attempts to reduce the two-thirds provision. Proposition 5 is the first opportunity the people of California have had to vote on this special protection allowed banks and corporations.

Opponents of Proposition 5 argue that it is an antibusiness measure. But the majority vote provision would make it equally easy to lower taxes as well as raise them. Also, most of the businesses in California are not corporations and do not derive any protection from Article 13 of the constitution.

The overall effect of the two-thirds provision can be seen in where the state gets its revenue. In the past 12 years bank and corporation contributions to the state general fund have declined from 20 per cent to 12 per cent. At the same time the share from personal income tax has increased from 13 per cent to 34 per cent.

Forty-four states, including all other major industrial states, and the U.S. Congress require only a simple majority vote on tax matters. The present discriminating two-thirds vote creates a minority veto vulnerable to the power of corporate lobbyists who need only 14 senators' votes to block tax reform.

Deserved praise

F. C. Anderson's splendid column of May 2, devoted entirely to the quiet courage and tenacity of Frances Bond, community relations director for the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities, is an appropriate tribute to a gallant woman.

It is indeed fitting that her professionalism should be exalted by one of her own calling, for I am sure that appreciative words by one journalist, in recognition of another, are the ultimate compliment.

We at Regional Community Services Administration also have long admired Frances, for all the qualities enumerated by Mr. Anderson.

That we should have waited to acknowledge her dedication only until it was recognized in her home town newspaper is our own frailty — and it stands in stark contrast to Frances' accomplishments as scribe for the annals of the poor.

Thank you for plaudits too long unspoken.

Letter misleads

As a Republican, I resent the letter my family received from Modestus Bauer, asking us to write the name of a Democrat, Mike Cullen, on our Republican primary ballot. The letter did not make clear that Cullen is a Democrat. Should enough Republicans be fooled, our party would have a Democrat as a standard-bearer in the general election in November.

We would then have Cullen vs. Cullen. With his voting record, one Cullen is more than enough.

Irritating advice

I am becoming more and more disgusted with the TV commercials, and the printed material stuffed in my mailbox and handed me at my door advising me to vote No on Proposition 15. The more I am inundated with this propaganda being paid for by the major oil and utility corporations, who have the millions to do it, the more I am determined to vote Yes.

All this proposition will do is to see that the nuclear plants operate efficiently and safely.

Everyone wants help from old Moe Mentum

Russell Baker

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — The most sought-after man in politics this year is Moe Mentum. The political reporters pay attention to scarcely anyone else. It is a rare Tuesday night that doesn't find Walter Cronkite or John Chancellor analyzing the day's returns to find out which candidates have Moe Mentum on their side, and which candidates Moe has rejected.

It is an odd development in the career of a man who, just a few brief years ago, seemed to have no future in politics, and no one is more astounded by his sudden political fame than Mentum himself. Quite by accident, I ran into Mentum the other day and was surprised to discover that he and I had spent three years together in the same high-school Latin class in the 1930s.

AT THAT TIME, of course, he answered roll call to the name of Morris Mentumsky and was famous only for his failed translations, one of his better being the rendering of Caesar's "forte dux in aro" as "forty ducks in a row." By the third year, when he translated Horace's "Non egit Mauris Jaculis" as "Don't egg at Maury's ejaculations," the authorities decided that his Latin suffered from a lack of Morris Mentumsky, or Moe Mentum, as the pundits would call it nowadays, and he was transferred to football.

Recalling these days, Moe told me he had been no more successful at football than at Latin until, just a few years ago, he shortened his name to make it easier for television's football voices to pronounce. "I had noticed," he said, "that there were certain football names that got pronounced constantly, simply because they had names that were so much fun to say on television. Names like Mick Tinglehoff and Mercury Morris were always making great plays."

In short, he saw that a player with a name like Morris Mentumsky, which was no fun at all to pronounce on television, was never going to succeed. He shortened it to Moe Mentum. His triumph was almost instant. How many games has the television watcher seen won these past few years because the victorious side had Moe Mentum?

I REMEMBER just last December seeing the Oakland Raiders beat the Washington Redskins at the final instant because of Moe Mentum's last-minute intervention. Naturally, I did not associate him with the failed Latinist Mentumsky, nor did I anticipate that he was about to launch a brilliant political career.

Neither did Moe. "I was about to hang up the shoulder pads for another season," he said, "when, in early January, a delegation of political reporters called on me. They said no candidate could win without me and I owed it to the country to get into the campaign."

Moe was reluctant at first. Not because he didn't have a normal American thirst for power. He did. But he was afraid of going up against the toughest political king-maker of the past two decades, the mighty Charisma.

SINCE 1960, when he elected John Kennedy, Charisma had become such a political power that the reporters had granted him the accolade reserved for the very greatest stars — billing him simply by his last name, in the manner of Garbo, Gable and Karloff. His full name, of course, is Irving Charisma.

"So I said to the reporters," Moe recalled, "I said, 'You're asking me to go up against Irv Charisma? You think the pols are going to start courting a jock like Moe Mentum when there's a chance they can get Charisma on their side? You've got holes in the head.'"

The reporters told Moe that Charisma was all washed up. He had lost the hum on his fast ball, his legs were gone and he could no longer hit the curve on the outside corner. In 1968 and 1972, Charisma had been a joke. This year the candidates wouldn't go near him. He had begun drinking heavily and talking about getting married, which would seal his fate.

"I don't follow that," said Moe.

"No candidate can risk having Charisma without first making sure Mrs. Charisma will go along," the reporters explained. "Even then, all the candidate can say is that he has the Charismas, which sounds like an admission that he has the D.T.'s, particularly in view of Irv Charisma's drinking problem."

AND SO political triumph came to Moe Mentum simply because there was no one else available to accept the glory, and now the most ambitious men in America camp at his door beseeching boons.

What does it all mean? Perhaps it is best summed up by the Latin philosopher who said, "Amo mentem sea tempora timeo." Or, in Moe's translation, "'I'm Moe Mentum,' said temper at me, oh!"

In a complex state, local boys may make good

By WALLACE TURNER
The New York Times

LOS ANGELES — The political tides seem to run in favor of the home towners as the wave of presidential primaries crests in California June 8.

Former Gov. Ronald Reagan looks to the winner-take-all Republican primary for the 167 delegates that could give him a commanding lead at the Republican National Convention.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. hopes for a big enough bite when the 280 Democratic convention delegation is divided to give him a strong position at New York six weeks from now.

Sen. Frank Church, a Westerner from Idaho, went to college at Stanford University and can be expected to talk about it as he hustles votes up and down the state.

But the third Democratic candidate who will be active here, former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, and the other Republican candidate, President Ford, a former Michigan representative, have no California ties.

Those local relationships are of more than usual importance here, for this is an extremely complex place where the subtleties sometimes escape even the seasoned campaigner.

Among the more than 21 million residents, 900,000 are unemployed. The population is clustered in urban complexes — as the approximately 7 million living around this city, or the 4.5 million around San Francisco.

For a quarter century, the pattern here has been for fields and orchards and even vineyards to disappear under the gradually spreading carpet of real estate developments.

The inner cities of Oakland, San Francisco, and Los Angeles have changed radically in those years as the middle class moved to the suburbs — Orange County, Walnut Creek, the San Francisco Peninsula and so forth.

This immense physical change was accompanied by sociological change that has been at the root of some of the most startling developments in American life.

The litany of "first" developments that came out of California to sweep the country has been repeated endlessly — student revolt that began at Berkeley, black militance with the Black Panthers, senseless mass murder by such as Charles Manson's group and others, the Sexual Freedom League of a decade ago in Berkeley, all were on those lists.

A year or so ago, articles suggested that California was calming, as a volcano cools after eruption. Then two women, one a Manson follower, the other a former Federal Bureau of Investigation informant, tried to shoot President Ford in separate incidents. Patricia Hearst was tried and convicted of bank robbery committed with the radicals who had kidnaped her.

This is a big place. The topography is awesome. It is about 750 miles from Tijuana, Mexico, to the Oregon border. A great deal of the 158,695 square miles of California is rugged mountain.

A lot of it once was desert, and still is, but thousands of acres are under irrigation with water that fell as snow and rain in the damp northern counties and has been moved hundreds of miles in a state-financed system of canals to the desert country.

The agricultural labor force has been one of the causes of social friction, for the "factories in the field" have been built on cheap labor from immigrants. Cesar Chavez and the United Farm Workers built national support for boycotts to attempt to organize field workers, only to be supplanted in many areas by the Teamsters Union.

Brown points proudly to an Agricultural Labor Relations Act passed with his administration's leadership. But his critics point out that the law is moribund because the governor has not been able to get the legislature to renew financing.

The conflict over the farm labor bill involves an industry in which total employment is 256,000. But there are 1.7 million federal, state and local employees in California.

There is no state law providing special union protections for state employees, although at one time Brown spoke favorably of legislation to provide for collective bargaining for public workers.

Labor's position historically has been strongest in Northern California, while in the Southern California counties there still are many nonunion enterprises.

So when public employes in San Francisco struck the city, curtailing many functions, such as public transit, it was assumed that members of other unions would support the strike. They did not.

It is unclear to most observers what the effect of this strike loss will be in the long run on labor's strong influence on political life here. That influence was in part constructed on labor's ability to give big contributions at campaign time.

But a campaign reform law adopted in a statewide vote in 1974 has had a deep effect on that ability to, in effect, buy into a campaign and then dominate it. The state continues to change quickly so that today's truisms are tomorrow's mistakes.

Among registered voters, 57 per cent are Democrats and 36.4 per cent are Republican.

The state has no firm records on numbers of black and Chicano voters. Activists in both groups have estimated that there are 600,000 registered blacks, and 700,000 to 900,000 registered Mexican-American voters.

In the presidential primary, Reagan is thought by most observers to have a substantial margin over Ford.

Reagan managed in 1966 to win the governorship from Edmund G. Brown, father of the present governor, and then to hold onto it by a comfortable margin in 1970. He did this by a combination of the same qualities that have enabled him to mount a credible challenge to a sitting president of his own party — an attractive and compelling speaking style that is used to articulate a political and economic philosophy that is anti-Washington.

Brown, meantime, has in 17 months in office articulated his own brand of anti-government philosophy which — together with the hometown advantage — has given him a lead over Carter and Church, as the stretch drive begins.

60 years of driving

Jolly's still on the road at 80

"Oh, I'm so glad I grew up in that era. Everything was so fresh and exciting.

"My husband was the first jitney driver in Joplin. He died in the flu epidemic after the war (World War I). That's where I got the idea about being a jitney driver myself.

"I got my chauffeur's license in 1917. Back in those days you didn't need a license to drive a pleasure car. You just got in and drove. And what drivers. I told you things were exciting," she added with a wink.

"I have 60 years of driving under my belt. There's a 1959 Chevrolet in the garage. Drove it off the showroom floor and it still gets me where I want to go. I just had my California driver's license renewed.

"I was a volunteer driver for Senior Opportunities Services for a few years. I took elderly, sick and handicapped people to the doctor. It's hard to depend on someone else when you're old and sick."

The fiercely independent woman looked down into her mug of coffee. "I've been through three wars — declared and undeclared — and an economic depression. We were poor as church mice, but I wouldn't trade my life for anything."

Jolly walked into the living room and returned with a cream-colored scrapbook. It was thick with memories.

She flipped through the pages and settled on one with yellowed newspaper clippings describing the exploits of Yellow Cab drivers in San Francisco when Jolly was at the helm dispatching the orders.

"Here's the story of the waitress who changed her clothes in the back of a cab after telling the driver, 'Full speed ahead and don't spare the horses.' She was on her way to see her husband before he was shipped overseas, and she wanted to wear a nice dress instead of her uniform.

"Then there was the time I was dispatching a cab to Third and Church streets. The driver misunderstood me and kept saying 'Third and Turk street.' I kept saying 'Church Street' and he kept repeating 'Turk Street.' Finally I said to him, 'Driver, where do you go on Sundays?' He paused and answered, 'On Sundays I go to the show.'"

Back at the table, Jolly flipped through a few more pages of her scrapbook, mingling smiles and frowns as she wandered through brief segments of her life.

Now the memories keep her going as she faces the new experiences of losing some of her prized independence to the inevitable ravages of time.

Several accidents and illnesses have temporarily depleted her vast store of energy.

Her Social Security check doesn't go as far as she'd like. And a recent attempt to sell her charming little house failed because she couldn't find any other place to go.

Yet, she admits, "I'll be 80 and I'm not afraid to admit I'm scared. For the first time in my life, I'm scared."

Mostly, it's the loneliness that the restrictions of age place on people that gets her.

"Loneliness is like any other disease. It saps your energy and keeps you from doing the things you normally do," Jolly said.

LBMA head

Dr. Seymour L. Alban, an orthopedist, will be installed as president of the Long Beach Medical Association June 12 at the Long Beach Petroleum Club. Alban holds staff positions at St. Mary and Memorial Hospital medical centers and Long Beach Community and Los Alamitos General hospitals. Dr. R. Darrell Cannon and Dr. John Crivaro will be installed as LBMA vice president and secretary-treasurer, respectively.

New commander

Capt. John J. Dirschel Jr., left, a graduate of Long Beach State University, has taken over command of the Coast Guard icebreaker Glacier. In ceremonies aboard the ship in Long Beach Friday, Dirschel, 45, took over the helm from Capt. C. Richard Gillett, right.

Summer job link set for teen-agers

A youth employment service, designed to match teen-agers who want work with community residents and businessmen who need summer help, has been set up at the Los Altos branch of the YMCA in Long Beach.

Stan Welch, director of the service, said 'Y' officials are lining up residents and businessmen who will pay an hourly wage to youngsters from 14 to 18 years old.

"We're really taking a double-pronged approach here," he explained. "We're hoping that homeowners, for instance, will provide jobs such a yard work, window washing and babysitting for the younger kids, and that businessmen will be able to hire the older kids for jobs in their offices."

WELCH said the only requirement for persons who want to hire the youths is that they agree to pay an hourly wage.

"We don't want a youngster to agree to do a certain job for a fixed fee and then find out that it takes him so long to finish the task that he winds up making only 50 or 75 cents an hour," he explained.

Welch said there are no income restrictions for youths who wish to apply for work through the center.

"We feel that there's a need in the community to bring youths and jobs together," he said. "There are no geographic limits—it doesn't matter where the youngster lives—and it doesn't matter how much money his or her parents make."

WELCH said interested youths should come by the YMCA office at 1720 Bellflower Blvd. and fill out a job application form. Each teen-ager will then be given an appointment for an interview with a member of the 'Y' staff before he or she is lined up with a job.

He said the office would be open from 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. on Fridays and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays.

Interviews will be conducted from 1 to 4 p.m. Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays and by special appointment at other times, Welch said.

He added that homeowners or businessmen who wish to offer jobs through the service should contact him at the 'Y', 596-7765. He said a 24-hour answer phone will be hooked up so that interested persons may leave messages at any time.

Services set for Navy's L. Ozsyanyi

Funeral services for Louis Ozsyanyi, a career Navy man who was active in Long Beach activities, will be conducted at 10 a.m. Tuesday at Sheelar/Stricklin Chapel.

Mr. Ozsyanyi, also known as Oscar Lewis, died Wednesday at 62.

A 30-year veteran of the Navy, he served as aide and driver to three admirals. He was the owner of the Fleet Locker Club and was one of the founders of the Independent Business Men's Association.

He is survived by three brothers, Andrew, of Boston, Mass.; and Ernest and Stephen, both of Long Beach; and four sisters, Margaret Takacs and Bertha Herzog, both of Passaic, N.J.; and Susan Enhoffer and Ann Enhoffer, both of Clifton, N.J.

Memorial donations to the Heart Association were suggested.

C.E. Witte funeral set

Services for Charles E. Witte, a 51-year Long Beach resident, are to be conducted at 2 p.m. Tuesday in Ramona Chapel, Ramona. Mr. Witte died at his home in Ramona Friday morning. He was 68.

A native of Lincoln, Neb., Mr. Witte came to Long Beach in 1924. He was a World War II veteran and served as payroll officer at the Seal Beach Ammunition Depot. He left Long Beach 14 months ago to live with his sister in a rest home.

Mr. Witte is survived by four sisters, Ella I. Johnson of Los Angeles, Grace M. Stout of Washington, D.C., Gertrude M. Holland of Ramona and Florence Chettle of Lake Arrowhead, and six nieces and nephews.

Human Relations unit

Hands off panel, says jury

The Orange County Grand Jury has recommended that the Human Relations Commission be allowed to retain its "autonomous status" and not be placed "under the umbrella of the Human Services Agency."

If supervision of the commission is needed, it could best be provided by the county administrative office, jurors said Friday. Jurors also called on the Board of Supervisors for "complete cooperation and encouragement. . .to the commission."

The jury predicted the commission, whose budget for the year is $102,839, will wind up with a surplus of $16,794.

The jury called the money budgeted to the commission "well spent" and said the commission's mission is important because "it seeks to resolve problems relating to prejudice, discrimination and disorder in any field of human relations."

The jury, whose members attended some of the commission's neighborhood meetings, dealt at length with the commission's work in various cities and neighborhoods.

The report also lauded the Anaheim Police Department for initiating, with the commission, a study of police-community relations in Anaheim.

Referring to the over-all mission of the commission, the grand jurors held that "while a complete solution may not be resolved in the very near future, ...proper steps are being taken to eliminate concerns of the participants."

Sign-up time for schools

Preregistration for kindergarteners and other children entering Long Beach area elementary schools for the first time this fall will be held Thursday.

Parents can sign up their children at local elementary schools from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 3:30 p.m. Proof of age and immunizations required by law must be furnished.

52 Poly High students win $350,000 in scholarships

Fifty-two high school seniors in the newest alternative education program in the Long Beach Unified School District have won scholarships worth more than a third of a million dollars.

Students in the Program of Additional Curricular Experiences (PACE) at Poly High have won $351,556 in scholarships and the total is still growing, according to Nancy Gray, PACE coordinator.

"All the hard work has really paid off," she said. "In addition to scholarships, PACE seniors have taken more than 100 advanced placement tests to earn college credits while still in high school."

She said two PACE juniors, Alexis Brown and Gayle Montgomery, have won summer National Science Foundation Grants to Humboldt State College. Only 70 such grants are awarded in the nation.

Seniors in PACE have received scholarships from Harvard, Yale, Brown, Georgetown, Stanford, MIT and other top universities.

Enrollment in PACE is limited to 200 students.

Problems of elderly will be discussed

A general meeting of senior citizens of Orange County, focusing on concerns of the elderly, will be held Friday in Garden Grove.

The first such meeting ever held in Orange County by the state's Department on Aging, it will hear testimony on such subjects as the cost of living, housing, transportation, health, employment and nutrition.

More than 1,000 senior citizens are expected to attend the sessions at the Garden Grove Community Center, 11300 Stanford Ave. The meeting will run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Senior citizen legal aid will start Tuesday

Assistance on legal problems common to senior citizens will be provided three days a week beginning Tuesday in Torrance and Lomita as part of a continuing program sponsored by the Legal Aid Project.

Julius A. Glogovcsan, legal aid officer, will be available from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Bartlett Adult Center, 1318 Cravens Ave., Torrance, on Tuesdays; at the Lomita City Hall, 24300 Narbonne Ave., Lomita, Wednesdays, and Joslyn Center of the Arts, 3335 Torrance Blvd., Torrance, Fridays.

Scholarships awarded to 130 students

Scholarships worth more than $60,000 have been awarded to 130 Long Beach City College students for their academic achievement in the 1975-76 school year.

The top individual scholarship of $2,000 was awarded to Steve Ray, a business administration major, by the Sully-Miller Contracting Co. Ray has an A grade average and will attend USC next fall.

The Ruth Ball Hines Memorial Scholarship of $1,000 was given to David Harvey, an engineering major. Roger G. Jay II and Frank Schreck each won $1,000 from the new Purple Heart Veterans Scholarship Fund.

The Rotary Club of Long Beach gave a total of $11,250 in scholarships to 45 students. Thirty-six students got state scholarships for next year.

Jenny Agutter's a new MGM household word

NEW YORK — Jenny Agutter, a big movie star of tomorrow, has difficulty getting people to understand her name.

"The accent," she tells them patiently, "is on the first syllable, making it 'Ah-guter,' and it's spelled like 'a gutter.' "

Miss Agutter is 23, 5 feet 7, brown-haired, London-born and rather serious.

"I do not have a beautiful face," she says. "It changes a lot, and some people couldn't believe it would work at all. I do not have a perfect nose. It's not straight. However, I've become attached to it."

"The color of my eyes is also changeable," further declares the Lady with the Changing Face. "They're mainly gray but yellowish in the middle, tending to become green in the sunlight and gray in dull weather."

Despite all these confessed imperfections, Jenny Agutter is being called MGM's finest talent find since Elizabeth Taylor. While filming "Logan's Run," a futuristic picture about life 300 years from now, she was signed for three more movies by Dan Melnick, MGM studio chief. Studios don't make many multiple-picture deals any more. Now the next job is to make Jenny Agutter a household name.

"I SPENT a long time thinking about my name," she told me on a recent afternoon at 21. "I thought of using my mother's name, Brody, but Jenny Brody sounded a little too cowgirlish. Agutter is not hard when you get used to it. It could be either French or German."

Jenny was headed back to London for a film with Michael Caine and Donald Sutherland based on the novel "The Eagle Has Landed" about an attempt to kidnap Winston Churchill. She plays the girl friend of Sutherland, an alleged Irish traitor trying to help the Germans. Caine heads a team of Germans trying to abduct Churchill.

She's mentioned also for MGM's projected filming of "Forever," the Mildred Cramme story of reincarnation which has been discussed for 30 years. Then there's the Percy Bysshe Shelley tale "The Haunted Summer."

"Logan's Run" is to be released June 23 while there's a science-fiction convention here. Jenny loves science-fiction, and science-fiction should love the Utopia she lives in (in the movie).

Jenny intends to move from London to Los Angeles in two months.

"My desire is to be in the center of the film industry, and I think that's in Hollywood," she said.

JENNY HARDLY seemed aware that she was getting a star buildup such as the studios gave all their new girls 30 years ago. It will take some time. I phoned the Sherry-Netherland Bar for her later after our interview and they had trouble finding her.

"What name did you say?" the headwaiter said.

I finally said, "It's spelled just like 'a gutter.' " They located her.

TODAY'S BEST laugh: A visit to Las Vegas shows that the only thing tougher than the winning of the West is winning in the West.

WISH I'D said that: A basketball fan unhappily described his losing team: "We couldn't do any worse if Toulouse-Lautrec played center."

REMEMBERED quote: The late Louis L. Levinson's "Complete Book of Pickles and Relishes" described the delights of dill pickles: "They're good alone — or with someone."

EARL'S PEARLS: The late Max Asnas of the Stage Deli said he once hated a waiter so much that he fired him: "But first I gave him a raise — so he would be losing a better job."

Bob Newhart mentioned that he had once been an accountant but had to quit: "It was a matter of equilibrium — I could never get the books to balance." That's earl, brother.

BEATLES GO ON

Knight News Service

The Beatles are still getting by with a little help from their friends and millions of fans. Though they disbanded long ago, their legend lingers on. They remain the standard by which all rock music must be judged.

The combination of reunion rumors (backed by a $50-million offer from promoters), the climb of old Beatle hits on the British record charts and Paul McCartney's tour of the U.S. is enough to spark talk of a new Beatle mania.

For many, the Beatles remain a vital link in our personal progression. It goes something like this: They changed rock, rock changed our culture, and the culture changed us. And now a whole new audience that grew up with Elton John and John Denver is discovering the Beatles' musical legacy.

A spokesman for Capitol Records said there are plans to repackage some of the old tunes in a double album to be released in June. The working title is "Rock and Roll Music—Beatles."

A similar promotion effort in England recently put 20 Beatle hits back on the pop charts in England. Among the most successful are "Yesterday," "Get Back," "Paperback Writer" and "Hey, Jude."

Since the Beatles separated in 1970, each former member has pursued his own distinctive interests.

Certainly no other group has stamped its image on our era as have the Beatles. The Rolling Stones might have been meaner, Bob Dylan more profound lyrically, the San Francisco bands more daring—but the Beatles consolidated and led us through the apocalyptic '60s.

Torrance naval hero portrayed in 'Midway'

By HARRY TESSEL
Staff Writer

A World War II hero, now 78 and living in Torrance, will be portrayed in a new and large-scale film, "Midway," to be released in the Long Beach area June 16.

Retired Navy Capt. Joseph Rochefort Jr., wartime commander of Navy combat intelligence at Pearl Harbor, and his group were credited by Adm. Chester Nimitz with leading U.S. forces to victory at the Battle of Midway.

Historians consider the June 1942 battle as America's most decisive naval engagement and a turning point in the war.

Rochefort and his intelligence group broke a Japanese secret code that made it possible for Nimitz's ships to ambush and defeat numerically superior Japanese forces.

It was at a time when the U.S., still reeling from the Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor, feared that Hawaii or California might next come under attack.

Coded Japanese messages that were monitored indicated that an attack was planned. Was it a ruse or the real thing? The messages included the letter groupings "AF" and "MI."

Rochefort recalled the period:

"Well, the Japanese are real clever. They have this communication system, and in it are two or three little ciphers they would use on occassion.

"They kept referring to the place as 'AF,' and sometimes they would talk about 'MI'—obviously Midway. We figured 'AF' and 'MI' were the same thing, but from different code books.

"We asked Nimitz to send a message by underwater cable (the Japanese couldn't reach it) to Midway telling them to send a message on the air in plain language: "We are short of fresh water on Midway Island,' or something like that. So that the Japanese would later transmit it in code, and we could identify Midway.

"We beefed the message up a bit, but that was the idea. Then we sat back and waited.

"Two days later the Japanese came out in plain language and said, 'There is a water shortage on AF.' And that's how we learned the Japanese objective of attacking at Midway.

I think we sold Nimitz real early on the whole thing."

"Midway" (the film) blends dramatizations of fictional and actual characters' activities with war footage, filmed in color by Navy photographers and by cameras on fighter planes.

The film also refects U.S. and Japanese viewpoints on the battle.

The cast includes Charlton Heston, Henry Fonda, James Coburn, Glenn Ford, Hal Holbrook (as Rochefort), Toshiro Mifune, Robert Mitchum, Cliff Robertson and Robert Wagner.

Locations for the "Sensurround" Mirisch presentation, released by Universal, included Fort MacArthur, the Long Beach naval facility and Point Mugu naval air station, as well as aboard the USS Lexington at sea.

PETER Fonda will star as a fugitive from jail who becomes a top country-western singer in "Outlaw Blues." Warner Bros. has slated production for September.

JOHN Kander and Fred Ebb, Tony Award-winning composer and lyricist of "Cabaret," have been inked for seven songs for United Artists' "New York, New York," starring Liza Minnelli and Robert DeNiro, directed by Martin Scorsese. Filming begins in June.

DOMINIQUE Sanda will share top billing with George Peppard and Jan-Michael Vincent in 20th Century-Fox's futuristic adventure "Damnation Alley."

HUEY Long, the Louisiana Kingfish and American political phenomenon, will be the subject of a Warner Bros. film based on a Pulitzer Prize-winning biography by T. Harry Williams. Assassinated in 1935 when he was 42, Long was at the summit of his power with his "Share the Wealth" program.

Film castings:

Sally Field, formerly "Gidget" and "The Flying Nun," takes over the title role in "Sybil," NBC's four-hour version of the best-seller about a woman with 16 personalities.

Joanne Woodward, who won an Oscar in a similar role for "The Three Faces of Eve," plays the psychiatrist.

ERNEST Borgnine joins the stellar cast of "The Prince and the Pauper," produced by Alexander and Ilya Salkind.

Nashville rediscovers Western swing

By MATT YANCEY

NASHVILLE (AP) — At the height of his career in the late 1930s, Bob Wills and his Texas Playboys could outdraw Glenn Miller at any night club or ballroom in Texas, Oklahoma or California.

Wills' music was a combination of bluegrass, Dixieland, blues and the big dance-band sound. It was produced by slurring steel guitars and fiddles and a dominating rhythm section. Played mainly in dance halls, it became known as Western swing.

Unlike the cowboy ballads or the "listening" type of country music coming out of Nashville, Western swing was for dancing—not a square dance, but the kind in which a man would take hold of his partner and two-step her across the floor.

Wills was not the originator of Western swing, but he was certainly its king. Others like Spade Cooley, Hank Thompson, Al Dexter and Pee Wee King attracted devoted followers throughout the Southwest.

When Elvis Presley and the Twist came along, Western swing went the route of most country music. It fell to the wayside. The younger audiences did not want the same music their parents enjoyed.

To Thompson, it never even faded away.

"Although I was using the Nashville-commercial kind of sound like truck driver songs on records, I certainly was not playing that kind of music at personal appearances," Thompson says.

"When the radio stations went with the big swing to rock during the '50s, we had our biggest surge in personal appearances," he says. "People didn't quit liking country music; other people just stopped offering it to them."

Like the bluegrass revival of the late 1960s and early '70s among a younger group of listeners seeking a return to a more pure,less polished sound, Western swing is now enjoying its rebirth.

Commander Cody spawned the return to swing among rock fans a few years ago. But it wasn't until a young group of East Coast musicians called Asleep at the Wheel emigrated to Austin, Tex., that the revival spread.

Asleep at the Wheel is produced by Tommy Alsup, who put together Bob Wills' last records. Alsup has teamed with Thompson and a group of swing devotees among the studio musicians in Nashville in hopes that the new fans will follow the lead of their bluegrass counterparts.

This month they recorded a back-to-the-basics album that includes a waltz, a polka and some of the songs Thompson and others performed 20 years ago.

"I was probably the last to use Western swing's distinctive styling a few years ago," Thompson says. "It went out of style because, all of a sudden, it was no longer there, and it's coming back because the people want something they haven't got."

Western swing is the only phase of country music that has never had its day on top.

"I think radio really brought about the demise of Western swing," Thompson says. "The radio stations were always trying to reach up above country music. They'd play it, but they'd do it apologetically."

Thompson says the new fans, more attuned to listening than dancing, are swinging away from the Nashville sound and turning to his type of music, mainly because it's more colorful.

"To me, the Nashville sound has always been very bland, kind of neutral," he says. "Everybody's trying to tone everything down to where it's not objectionable to anybody."

The rebellion against Nashville reached its height last year with the emergence of the Austin music scene and its heroes — Willie Nelson and Waylon Jennings.

"This progressive-country thing has progressed right back to Western swing," says Thompson. "Willie Nelson doesn't use the fiddle, but he uses a very definite swing beat. It's different dress-wise and image-wise, but music-wise it's not that much different."

Unlike Nelson with his long hair, bandana and tennis shoes, Thompson is very comfortable with his diamond watch and rings and colorful, mod outfits.

"Flashy dress was associated with Western swing music; it was part of the showmanship," he says. "I know that I got away from it."

Alternatives seen for future buyers

Fixed-term mortgages called faulty, obsolete

By GARY WASHBURN
Knight News Service

The traditional fixed-rate, long-term mortgage that Americans have used in buying their homes for decades is under attack as experts search for new ways to finance home purchases.

Some observers who say the traditional mortgage has serious shortcomings, both for lenders and borrowers, go so far as to assert it may become extinct.

Its critics say it has two basic flaws. For one thing, lenders, who are locked into long-term loans at fixed rates of interest, can be ravaged by inflation over the life of mortgages they issue.

The money they are paid back over the years is worth much less than the money they loaned, and their return is set, even though the interest they must pay savers on their deposits may increase.

The second flaw is tied to the increasingly high cost of homes. Fewer people, especially first-time buyers with no equity in another house, can afford to buy because the traditional mortgage is too inflexible, the critics say.

The mortgage, for instance, calls for identical monthly payments over the life of the mortgage without regard to changes in earning power.

One critic is Garth Marston, acting chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, overseer of the nation's federally chartered savings and loan associations.

Marston said recently that the traditional instrument doesn't recognize the typically rising income pattern among young working families, the more level and then declining income pattern of retired home owners, and the periodic lapses of income for temporarily unemployed or incapacitated home owners.

Marston noted the traditional mortgage's shortcomings as he announced the upcoming Alternative Mortgage Instruments Research Study to be conducted by the Federal Home Loan Bank.

The options are many and varied.

Warren Pursell, executive vice president of the Illinois Savings and Loan League, believes the variable rate mortgage (VRM) is the best.

"It is being tested in California by a number of state-chartered S&Ls and they seem to be happy with it," he said.

With VRMs, the interest rate rises and declines over the life of the mortgage with changes in the money market. VRMs protect S&Ls from inflation, supporters say, and at the same time, moderate interest rates. Borrowers obtaining mortgages today at 8 per cent are in effect subsidizing those who obtained them years ago who are paying as little as 5 or 6 per cent, Pursell said.

By letting rates rise and fall with the cost of money, the argument goes that nobody gets a very low mortgage interest rate and nobody gets a very high rate.

The FHLBB has tried to let federally chartered S&Ls offer VRMs on several occasions, but congressional pressure generated by a fear of increasing rates has thwarted it each time.

The Bank of America, meanwhile, has touted the negotiable term "rollover" mortgage as a possible replacement for the traditional instrument.

Under the roll-over, lender and borrower agree on a set interest rate for a limited length of time—say, five years—with amortization based on a 20 to 30-year term.

Monthly payments would be the same per month as if the loan had been written for 20 or 30 years.

At the end of the agreed-upon period, the borrower pays off the remaining principal on the loan or obtains a new loan at a renegotiated interest rate.

In a policy statement the bank said that in Canada, where the roll-over is common, it has resulted in a steady supply of mortgage money.

Another alternative, the bank said, is a flexible payment mortgage featuring a low down payment and graduated monthly payments over the life of the mortgage. Payments would be lower in the early years of the Mortgage and rise in the later years.

"Presently, escalating housing prices effectively preclude 70 to 80 per cent of the population from acquiring a first house," the bank said. By easing early payment schedules, such a new instrument would open the door for many young families now frozen out, it believes.

Other alternatives include:

—Lengthening the mortgage term to make monthly payments smaller and more affordable.

—Deferring interest rate increases to the end of the term of the mortgage, at which time the balance of money due would be paid in one lump sum.

—Sharing in the appreciation of property by both the lender and borrower, with a relatively low interest rate charged by the lender in exchange for a slice of the profits when the home is sold.

Despite talk of these and other alternatives, H. Robert Bartell, president of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Chicago, the local adjunct of the Federal Home Loan Bank, believes that the traditional mortgage won't disappear in a sudden puff of smoke.

"No institution is going to come out and say, 'No more long-term, fixed-rate mortgages,'" he asserted. "That's not in the cards. I think the whole intent (of searching for mortgage options) is to make a wider range of products available in the market. It's seldom that any new product takes over the entire market. There's a certain amount of inertia and comfortableness with what you're doing."

Bartell believes optional mortgages will be offered with the traditional mortgage. What survives and prospers will be determined by what the market dictates, he said.

Forest shadows homes large

Nestled in the woods of the rolling countryside of Lake Forest is the new Schmid Development, Inc. single-family home development of Forest Shadows, a collection of 55 homes.

They are among the largest to be built in the 1,800-acre master-planned residential community. With three, four and five bedrooms and square footage ranging from 2,443 to 2,930 square feet, the new homes designed by William F. Wolsborn of Santa Ana will be ready for occupancy in early September.

Situated beside a wilderness park preserved for the enjoyment of Lake Forest residents, the $5-million development is laced with gently curving drives and cul-de-sac streets. Prices for the executive homes range from $83,950 to $93,700, with conventional financing programs available.

Residents of Forest Shadows are less than a half a mile from 36-acre New Lake and the extensive recreational facilities of the Sun and Sail Club which are at their disposal. The 14,000 square-foot clubhouse is a multilevel structure with a lounge, connecting kitchen and wet bar, card room, pool room and conference center.

Rising more than 45 feet with five separate roof levels, the $1 million clubhouse overlooks the lake. An exercise room, locker rooms and showers complete the facility. A separate Teen Clubhouse is situated on the nine-acre site. A swimming pool, diving pool and children's wading pool are located between the adult clubhouse and the lakeside beach.

Five tennis courts, two sand volleyball courts and a basketball court are available in addition to launching facilities for the small fleet of sailboats and paddleboat maintained by the Lake Forest II Homeowners Association. Members can also launch their own small craft from the areas. A tot lot is located near the clubhouse.

Within the new residential community of Forest Shadows, the homes display expanses of tongue-and-groove wood ceilings with massive open wood beams, hand-laid tile Roman tubs and double basin lavs in the master suite bathrooms, long-life tile roofs, and exteriors of wood and stucco accented by brick and stone.

Each of the three two-story plans is available in a choice of three exterior stylings. Ceramic tile entries and plush wall-to-wall carpeting is standard.

All kitchens at Forest Shadows are equipped with a coop top, built-in microwave oven, self-cleaning oven, dishwasher, trash compactor and disposal. Hardwood cabinets, luminous ceilings and wide ceramic tiled countertops surround the appliances and a pass-through serving window opens to the back patio area. Refrigerator space has plumbing for an ice-maker and each plan has a large storage pantry.

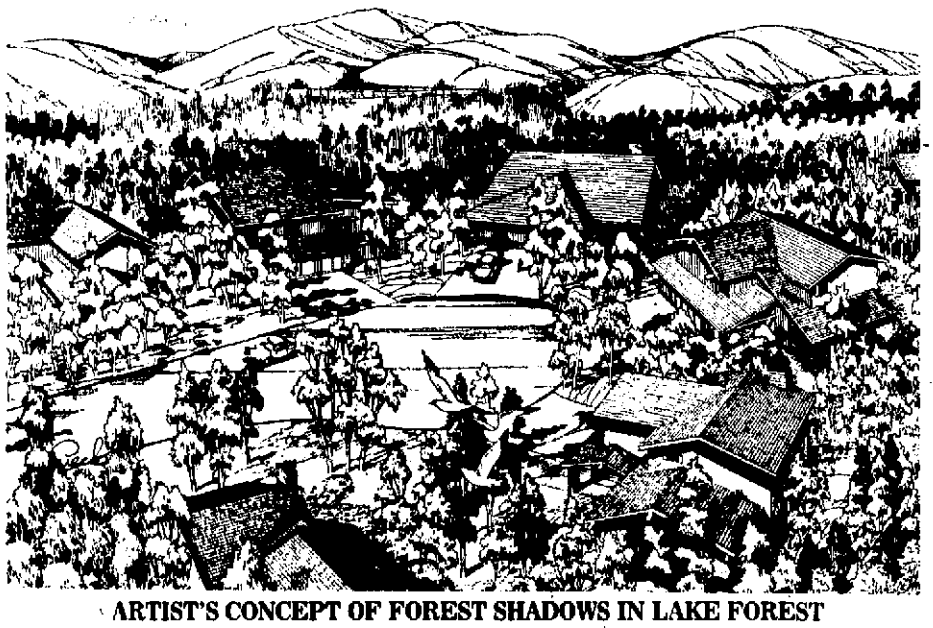

A three-car attached garage is a standard feature with all plans, and direct interior access is provided. A separate laundry service room is located on the main living level. All exterior walls and ceilings are fully insulated for energy-saving comfort.

The homes at Forest Shadows are within walking distance of El Toro High School, within an easy drive of the Laguna Hills Mall with its fashionable shops and restaurants, and have excellent access to the San Diego Freeway.

Homeowners association dues, including membership in the Lake Forest Homeowners Association, are approximately $17 per month.

Three models are open daily except Friday for touring from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. The sales information center is adjacent to the models on Toledo Way at Ridge Route.

To reach the new, country homes of Forest Shadows, take the San Diego Freeway and exit at Lake Forest Drive. Travel toward Lake Forest to Toledo Way and turn right to the corner of Toledo and Ridge Route in Lake Forest.

COUPLE VIEWS LAGUNA VILLAGE FROM TOWNHOME

Laguna Village to begin third phase

Laguna Village, a $45 million townhome condominium community located amid rolling hills, announced the construction preview of a third phase of 95 townhomes.

The planned 914 unit development, which offers views of the Saddleback Valley, has all two-story townhome condominiums in the third phase. Two and three bedrooms and two baths are offered. The floor plans vary in size from approximately 1,350 to 1,665 square feet of living area.

Laguna Village, located west on Lake Forest Drive off the San Diego Freeway, has condominiums grouped in clusters of three to five units. Five decorated models are open from 10 a.m. daily and there is a 3,000 square foot decorator center at the sales complex.

The recently opened recreation center features a 5,500 square foot clubhouse and three pools, including therapy pool. The clubhouse has a main lounge with wet bar and large fireplace, card room, kitchen and activity rooms, billiard room and men's and women's saunas. There is a children's play area, two regulation-sized double tennis courts, lawn bowling field and sandlot volleyball court. Clubhouse areas can be partitioned off as well.

A few of the interior touches of the townhomes include central air conditioning, decorative swag lamps, Italian ceramic tile kitchen countertops, private view decks, ash cabinets, single-lever faucets, concrete patios, all-electric appliances, and easy-to-clean fiberglass tubs and showers.

According to Bruce Hill, president of Pacific Coast Realty, agents for Laguna Village townhomes, the current savings program in effect at Laguna Village has done two things. First, since the program was announced hundreds of visitors have personally inspected the Laguna Village models, and, secondly, the program has resulted in a 95% sell out of Phases 1 and II, since the first of the year.

Here is how Hill explains the savings plan. You purchase a Laguna Village new townhome at $45,500. After two years, the builders projected reproduction cost for the unit would be approximately $55,000, while you have enjoyed the home at today's prices. That's a potential savings of $9,550.

"Buying now is still one of your very best hedges against inflation," Hill advised. Unit 2 prices range from $40,900 to $55,100.

There is a $50 monthly homeowners fee which includes maintenance of the recreational facilities and the townhome exteriors, the green areas and greenbelts, the personal water bill of each homeowner and fire insurance on each unit.

Buyers will be offered current interest protection for 120 days so that at the close of escrow the lowest possible rate will apply.

To reach Laguna Village, take the San Diego or Santa Ana freeways to Lake Forest Drive and go west toward the ocean about one mile.

VAULTED CEILINGS ADD TO THE LUXURY AT MONARCH SUMMIT II

Monarch Summit II unveils second phase of townhomes

The second phase of 47 townhomes opens today at the $23.7 million Monarch Summit II, a community designed for adult living overlooking South Orange County.

Located on top of the highest point along Orange County's coastline, Monarch Summit II has a Mediteranean-like climate and magnificient views that stretch from the mountains to the sea.

Priced from $59,900 to $74,500, three furnished models are open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. for buyer inspection at 22956 Solera Drive, Laguna Niguel.

Constructed by Lan Ron Enterprises, Inc., Newport Beach, homes are located along a plaza, cul-de-sac street system that minimizes traffic flow.

The one-story homes, with three varied floor plans, were designed by Richard L. Martin, Los Angeles, to meet the requirements most often requested by adults, Lane noted.

"The quiet seclusion of this hilltop retreat is evident," Lane pointed out.

All homes have private, enclosed courtyards where homeowners with green thumbs may putter. Private, shaded rear patios provide exciting views, and front and rear yards are fully landscaped.

Roofs are covered with concrete tile that won't burn. Utilities are underground. And a fully landscaped green belt winds throughout the development.

Full exterior maintenance of all painting, landscaping and gardening is provided by the homeowners' association through payment of a monthly homeowners' fee of $46.36. An individual fee title ensures ownership of the townhome and land, and a proportionate share of all community property and the recreation center.

The 6,000 square foot recreation center, now under construction, will include a swimming pool, Jacuzzi, pool and bridge rooms, a lounge with a fireplace and a fully outfitted kitchen. In addition, there are nature and bike trails, several golf courses just minutes away and historical Dana Point Harbor.

"While the outside look of Monarch Summit II continues to remain pleasantly stable, the interiors have undergone changes that make the homes even more liveable," Lane said.

"Some alterations in floor plans now provide more living space, and the addition of General Electric built-ins are proving to be more popular."

Kitchens now have a General Electric range and continuous cleaning ovens, dishwasher and disposal, plus stainless steel double-sinks. There are ceramic counter tops, custom hardwood cabinetry, an old-fashioned walk-in pantry and a luminous ceiling.

Laundry facilities are inside. There are cable TV outlets, prewired telephone outlets, tinted bronze glass windows and doors in the living area, cathedral ceilings, ceramic tile in baths and shower, and cast iron tubs.

Handsome brick, wood burning fireplaces with gas log lighters, thermostatically controlled forced air heating, attached two-car garage, exterior gas and electric barbecue outlets and fully insulated exterior walls and ceilings are other features.

The three floor plans range from a cozy 1,400 square feet to a spacious 1,670 square feet. Homes have two bedrooms and two baths. The two larger models also have a den.

Model homes were decorated by Frank Ferris and Associates and Cheryl Manbeck and Associates, Newport Beach. The landscape architecture was designed by Courtland Paul, Arthur Geggs and Associates, Newport Beach.

Teal & Babcock Realty, Inc., Laguna Niguel, is the sales agent. To reach Monarch Summit II take the San Diego Freeway to Crown Valley Parkway in Laguna Niguel, and turn west to Pacific Island Drive. Turn north up the hill and follow the signs with the sea gull.

Meredith beginning new units

With 65 per cent of the first-unit homes already sold and 50 per cent of the second-unit homes sold, construction has started on the first two phases of luxury residences at Meredith Hills, a new community which will ultimately consist of 146 view homes in Orange County's southern coastal hills just off the San Diego Freeway

In addition, sales have commenced on the third phase of Meredith Hills and work is progressing on four new model homes which are planned to open within 90 days, according to Eddy Meredith, president of the Meredith Company, Tustin-based builder of luxury homes for more than 35 years.

The homes at Meredith Hills, ranging in price from $79,000 to $135,000, offer three to five-bedroom floor plans with up to approximately 3,600 square feet of living area.

Meredith Hills provides home buyers a selection of up to seven elevations for each of eight floor plans, which contributes to the custom-quality character of the project. The homes are all split-level or two-story plans with three-car garages.

Plans include the newest version of Meredith's famous "Galleria" model which features an incredible eight-foot-wide stairway in the two-story entry hall. "Galleria" is now available with five bedrooms as well as the four bedrooms previously offered.

To visit Meredith Canyon, exit the San Diego Freeway at Las Ramblas, drive inland on Las Ramblas, left on Via de Aqua and right on Calle Miramar to the models. Meredith Hills may be reached by taking the San Diego Freeway to the Alicia Parkway exit and turning south on Alicia Parkway to the project.

Lake, stream theme gives style of Europe

Construction is under way on a 368-unit lake-and-stream-oriented apartment complex which will bring the architectural style of a European village to Irvine's adult recreational community of Rancho San Joaquin.

Scheduled for mid-August occupancy, the Rancho San Joaquin Apartments is an $8 million development by The Irvine Co. at Culver Drive and Sandburg Way adjacent to the Rancho San Joaquin Golf Course and the 30-court Irvine Tennis Club and within view of the University of California's Irvine campus.

Designed by the architectural firm of Backen, Arrigoni and Ross, Inc., of San Francisco, the apartments will offer six unit types from one bedroom and one bath to two bedrooms-and-den and two baths with monthly rentals from $250 to $425.

The 17-acre site includes a picturesque lake, a meandering stream, a central recreational complex, two secondary recreational spas and a system of winding pedestrian walkways and plazas. Located on the edge of the 11th fairway, the complex offers views of the golf course, the lake or the streams.

Landscaping is by POD, Inc., with J. Harlan Glenn and Associates as lake and stream consultant.

"OUR CONCEPT in developing Rancho San Joaquin apartments was to create a village situated around a lake and a stream reminiscent of a village in Europe with its simple, vertical walls, interestingly placed vertical windows, sloping roofs with protruding chimneys and quaint pedestrian streets and plazas," William Watt, Irvine Co. vice president in charge of the multi-family division, explained.

Entry to Rancho San Joaquin will be along a tree-lined avenue, past the lake and stream and terminating in a plaza with a fountain at the entry court of the main recreation building.

The main recreation center, overlooking an exquisite golf course lake on one side and the interior lake and stream on the other, will include a lounge wing with pub area, billiards area and the Inglenook lounge conversation area with a massive fireplace.

A LARGE swimming pool and a therapeutic pool will be located on the sun deck of the main recreation center, a second recreation center will include a smaller swimming pool, a therapeutic pool and a sun deck and a third recreation area will have therapeutic pool and sun deck.

Entry to most apartments will be from plaza into one of six unit types: The Bower and The Lakes, both one bedroom and bath; The Springs, one bedroom-and-den and one-and-one-quarter baths; The Arbor and The Greens, two bedrooms and two baths; and The Fairway, two bedroom-and-den and two baths.

All apartments include gas fireplaces, central air conditioning and gas forced air heating, continuous cleaning gas ovens, dishwashers, luminous kitchen ceilings, hollow-core wardrobe doors, carpets and drapes and either a patio or a deck. Golf course units will include parquet entry flooring and eye-level range ovens.

The eight-unit buildings are taken out of the apartment project mold by a unique placement which alternates the front of buildings and the side of buildings to the walkway, and by treating the living and the bedroom areas as two distinct units from the exterior by alternating the roof heights, recessing the walls and utilizing different colors.

The exterior color palette consists of eggshell-white, sierra yellow and dark beige stucco with a warm brown accent on the wood trim around the windows. Selected windows will be protected by brightly striped awnings and will include flower pot holders. Roofs will be natural shake.

The pedestrian walkway, like an European street, will lead to the sequence of plazas, each plaza featuring a tree, benches and enriched paving. A feature will be a broad lakeside promenade, permitting residents and their guests a special viewing area.

Social Security benefits may dictate investment plans

By DON CAMPBELL

Whether retirement is going to be a period of relaxation or a nightmare of uncertainties depends, in large measure, on whether we start planning for it just before the paychecks stop or a few years in advance.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

We have just sold our house, giving us $43,000 cash. We have $4,000 in certificates paying 7½ per cent (four years) and also have $4,000 in savings at 5¼ per cent.

Our problem now is what to invest the $43,000 in. My husband is 58, I'm 54, and he is talking retirement at 62. We have no pension to think about, only Social Security.

I would like to go into another house. Do you suggest paying cash for one (it would be smaller than the one we had), or putting a certain amount down and borrowing the rest?

We are now in an apartment paying $280 a month (utilities included) which to me is quite a bit, considering we had our home paid for the last five years. My husband's take-home pay is aboug $13,500 a year. I don't work.—Mrs. R. S., Whitehall, Pa.

ANSWER: It's always painful to pay ANY rent after you've escaped from mortgage payments. I'm assuming you've already checked with Social Security and already know, pretty well to the dollar, what you'll receive after your husband's retirement.

This, rather than whether you should buy a new home outright, will have to be your guideline. I wouldn't advise paying the full amount toward a new home — partially because the tax deductibility of your mortgage interest rates can be a money saver for you, and partially because a good part of that $43,000 can be more profitably employed (as in high-grade corporate bonds yielding about 9 to 9½ per cent a year).

But what size mortage you can handle is directly tied to your Social Security benefits. You might, for instance, buy a $30,000 house, pay half of it down and finance the $15,000 balance. At 9 per cent on a 20-year mortage, this would cost you about $134.96 a month for principal and interest — leaving you $28,000 to invest. This money at 9 per cent (for a corporate bond) would bring you $2,520 a year ($210 a month). In this instance, the bond yield would offset the house payments.

One other point: Your husband has four years to go until retirement. Since he has no pension plan, he should be taking advantage of the new Individual Retirement Account legislation or (if he's self-employed) the Keogh Plan. Both permit him to set aside 15 per cent of his annual income before taxes toward his pension plan. Four years isn't much, but it would add, at least, another $8,100 to your retirement "kitty" ($2,025 times four).

Dear Mr. Campbell:

My husband and I are in our late 20s, have been married five years and have a year-old son. Our total income before taxes is $22,000, based on my husband's $20,000 salary and my part-time income of $2,000. We own a $50,000 home which has an $18,000 mortgage.

Our savings total $30,000, of which $8,000 is in savings certificates maturing in two years. We are now considering investing in a two-family house. Do you think this is a good idea for us at this time, or would you suggest something else?—Mrs. M.A.S., Windsor, Conn.

ANSWER: For a couple of youngsters you're in great shape — $30,000 in savings on a $22,000 income is fantastic!

Are you talking about a two-family house with you occupying half of it, or renting out both halves? In either case, it's all right if your husband is handy enough to take care of the maintenance.

In your situation, though, you need an investment program a little broader than this. You should take a good chunk of that $38,000 and invest in equities (stocks) which, in the 40-plus years you have ahead of you, have a good chance of growing in value faster than the dollar is eroding (and faster than rental property is depreciating). The two-family house idea is a good back-up, but don't put all your eggs into this one basket.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

We recently put our house up for sale (we're retiring to Florida) after living in the same neighborhood, and among the same friends, for nearly 30 years. The first people who looked at our house were completely impossible — really klutzes with a couple of brats that would curl your hair. They met our price without any argument, but we can't inflict these people on our friends. Our real estate man says we can't refuse to sell, since they met our price. —(Mrs. T.A.S., Allentown, Pa.)

ANSWER: Poppyrot. You don't have to accept the proposition. Raise your price, or change your mind.

Campbell welcomes your letters and comments but can answer only representative questions of general interest. Write him in care of the I,P-T.

Prices cut on ocean residences

All but eight of the 86 residences at the Versailles condominium, which overlooks the Pacific Ocean at 2601 E. Ocean Blvd. remain to be sold.

In an attempt to sell out the remaining residences the builder-developer Cardinali Enterprises, has reduced the price ranges for the one-two-three bedroom homes from $43,900 to $85,900 and $37,900 to $79,900.

The Versailles offers spacious living rooms, ocean-view verandas, all-electric kitchens with indirect ceiling lighting, walk-in closets and subterranean parking. The full security complex includes swimming pool, jacuzzi, patio deck and large recreation area.

Coast Equities, a Long Beach real estate marketing firm, is exclusive sales agent for the eight-story building.

TWO-STORY, THREE-BEDROOM IN COURTSIDE'S PLAN C

Courtside offering recreation

Courtside, a private $2.6 million community of just 42 single family homes, in Orange, offers a wide array of recreational facilities usually found only in much larger developments.

Residents of the intimate project will have a championship tennis court, swimming pool, therapeutic spa and cabana for their exclusive use, according to Michael T. Murray, marketing manager for First Management Corp., the developer.

"Landscaped greenbelts also run through the community," he said.

Located on Meats Avenue, just east of the Newport Freeway, Courtside offers spacious three and four-bedroom homes, priced from $58,900.

One of the community's most appealing features, in addition to the recreational facilities, is the land plan.

"COURTSIDE is completely self-contained. There are no through streets, which keeps traffic to a minimum and enhances both security and safety," said Craig Page, project manager.

Designed by architect Hai C. Tan, Courtside homes have stucco exterior walls trimmed with wood, heavy shake roofs and large two-car garages.

The two-story, three bedroom house (Plan C) has a formally tiled entry, a magnificent fireplace which soars two stories in height and a first-floor master bedroom suite with adjoining private patio. Both the kitchen and family room have generous outdoor views.

Upstairs, other members of the family have complete privacy in the second and third bedrooms.

The four-bedroom two-story Plan D has a parquet floor entry overlooking a sunken living and dining room. The family room adjoins the kitchen and a serving bar connects the kitchen with the patio area. The downstairs master suite has its own private bath with dual vanities.

Three additional sleeping rooms are located on the second floor, along with a railed lookout deck that is ideal for sunning.

Standard features of the Courtside homes include plush nylon carpeting, gas forced air heating systems, wood-burning fireplaces, cultured marble vanities and cast iron tubs in master baths and double-door entrys.

Kitchens in all homes have built-in pilotless continuous cleaning double ovens, gas cooktops, dishwashers, disposale, ceramic tile countertops, vinyl asbestos flooring and cabinets with decorator finishes.

First Management Corp. also is developing Fullerton Creek, a community of attached single family homes in Fullerton.

The models and sales and information center are open daily except Friday from 10 a.m. to dusk. To reach the project, exit the Newport Freeway at Katella AVenue, go west on Katella to Tustin Avenue, north (right) on Tustin to Meats Avenue. Go east (right) on Meats to Courtside.

2-story townhome in debut

Priced at $65,900, the 1,580-square-foot two-story townhomes are sold complete with carpeting and draperies.

"These unusual two-story townhomes appear almost to be single-family homes because they are designed with a double garage with off-street driveway, private entry gardens, patios and fenced rear yards," said Joseph W. Smith, director of sales and marketing for Avco Community Developers, who are developing the 8,000-acre Laguna Niguel community between the San Diego Freeway and Pacific Coast Highway in Orange County.

Buyers of townhomes in Sea Terrace, which has bridge access to beaches, will receive season memberships in the exclusive Monarch Bay Club with its private beach, clubhouse and sports facilities.

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA, SUNDAY, MAY 30, 1976 L/S-1

'Search deep for treasure'

MAPS ARE important to Willard Bascom of Long Beach, who is an oceanographer, archaeologist, ecologist, author and inventor among other activities.

Story and photos
By DICK EMERY
Staff Writer

From a balcony on Floor 18 of the Pacific Holiday Apartments at 1900 E. Ocean Boulevard you look down on the Cherry Avenue sand beach. Only ripples, no breakers just now, mark the Pacific's edge. On the dry sand two boys sift for lost coins.

One boy grabs something from the window-screen sieve. He holds it up for his partner to see. Even so high above him you hear his shout.

"A nickel!"

Treasure!

Little or big, found treasure thrills the finder.

A treasure hunter of world fame, out for bigger treasure and finding it and casually telling how and where, lives there in that 18th floor apartment.

It is home base between his travels as archaeologist, oceanographer, naval military adviser, miner, engineer, ecologist, movie-maker, artist and author.

WILLARD BASCOM at 60 looks like a college track coach whose team has been having a good season.

His approach to the really big treasures waiting for finders goes like this:

(A) Treasures of many kinds have been carried on ships since pre-history. Shipwrecks have been many. The sea bottom under ancient ship routes has more sunken wrecks per square mile than any other part of the ocean floor.

(B) Where the lost ships sank in shallow seas, reachable by divers, most valuables have been picked over. Big treasures lie deeper, even miles deep.

(C) At rare locations on the sea floor there are deeps where lack of oxygen preserves wood and cloth and metal, century after century, and those places under shipping lanes are best bets for searching.

(D) Yes, the bottom under even two miles of sea water, darker than midnight in a coal mine, with pressures inconceivable to surface-living man, can be searched, and treasure down there can be dusted off and lifted to the surface. It takes ultra-sophisticated methods and devices — Bascom's methods and Bascom's devices. They work and he has proved it.

Questions: Treasures? What kind of treasures?

"Gold. Rubies and emeralds, jewels for a queen. A kingdom's treasury, stolen — and lost at sea. Artifacts, priceless! Sculptures! Marble, bronze, the lost loot of pirates and navies!"

WHERE DO we start?

"Along oldest sea-lanes of the Mediterranean, notorious for storms and rocks and shipwrecks. Places where the lanes narrow over deeps, as in the Sea of Marmara, which links the Mediterranean and the Black Sea."

Step by step he wrote out the instructions in his 226-page "Deep Water, Ancient Ships" (Doubleday, 1976), a book which makes the hunt seem simple and the treasure within grasp — until you hit page 201.

Page 201 stuns you with the news that a little old expedition to find and hoist the treasure will cost you $341,000.

If page 201 chills your treasure-hunting fever, perhaps you should become a fellow armchair treasure-hunter while the dozens of big spenders among the IPT's readership hurry forward, each with $341,000 in hand. At least, this latest Bascom book deals with the stuff of California's gold rush, the Hornblower sagas, Jules Verne, the voyaging of Ulysses and the Trojan wars.

About half-way through, "Deep Water, Ancient Ships" gets technical. From sidelines, armchair treasure-hunters may watch, in awe, as an engineer sitting in the search-ship uses side-looking radar, underwater TV and electronic fingers to lift a 300-pound marble statue from mud two miles down.

SCULPTURE of boy's head is a replica of the Marathon Boy, so named for location where fisherman's nets found it in Mediterranean Sea. This replica is a gift to the Bascoms from a Greek friend. The original is in bronze.

IN HIS APARTMENT, sipping black coffee poured by his wife Rhoda (about the book's deication to her as "friend and fellow adventurer" Rhoda Bascom said, "I was the cook!") the man of many talents waved off references to page 201 and the $341,000 cost of an expedition.

"Just one major find could repay that sum three times over. There are archaeological treasures waiting down there, sculptures, tablets, keys to lost languages, links to man's pre-history. The values of such treasures are enormous; they are marketplace values."

The Bascoms moved into their apartment eight years ago expecting to stay only a few months.

"We love it," Mrs. Bascom said. "We don't want to leave it, ever. Just beyond our windows we have the beach and the ocean."

The place is full of books and magazines and curios. On walls hang batiks and paintings. Near the balcony door stands an amphora holding a flowerpot from which trails philodendron. Ancient seashells and man-made trinkets prop a group of books which at close look turn out to be Kipling first editions bound in faded red leather.

Bascom's first book — he has four now — "Great Sea Poetry" in 1969, carries 26 excerpts from Kipling and one each from 10 other writers. His second book was "Waves and Beaches" and his third, "Hole in the Bottom of the Sea."

Another book in mind? Yes, on travels to the American continents "over thousands and thousands of years. There is proof, you know."

COMMENTS in the Bascom manner range free-swinging, like his youth in the Colorado mines. They hit sciences and seafaring, sewage-disposal worries of Athens (he was leaving two days later for talks in Athens about a 10-mile undersea pipeline), Kipling's lore of the sea, and dumbness of Navy big-ship building.

One subject, however, was closed, he said.

"Ask my attorney about that," he said.

(Later, by phone, attorney George E. Wise of Long Beach replied that an

TIME TO TAKE STOCK

Wall Street has promise for women brokers

By LINDA ZINK
Staff Writer

A woman who has made it in the traditionally all-male domain of stocks and bonds sales believes brokerage firms have been remiss by not seeking out more women to enter the industry.

Julia Montgomery Walsh, vice chairman of the board of Ferris and Co., says women have a natural knack for sales. They have been deterred from sales jobs, she says, because of the insecurities of the business. And stocks and bonds sales, she admits, may be the most insecure of all.

"Women, by and large, are not entrepreneurs. We're conditioned to look for the secure position and we aren't usually psychologically prepared for the ups and downs of the brokerage industry.

"Yet, the role the stock broker plays is a natural role for women. It's an advisory-consultant type role — the kind of role that women are conditioned to play."

AN ATTRACTIVE, dynamic woman in her early 50s, Mrs. Walsh entered the brokerage business "as a lark" in 1955 and has been "one of the top two or three producers" in her firm's Washington, D.C., office since she began pursuing the job seriously after the death of her husband in 1958. Despite her personal success, she has resisted the temptation to become one of the women who say "If I did it, they can do it too" and she is continually interested in the progress of other women.

"The brokerage business is insecure," she repeated, "but it doesn't have to be that insecure. If a company finds a good woman it can build in some securities, at least for the first few years.

"I don't think brokerage firms have really thought about what they can do to attract more women. But I think they're missing a bet if they don't."

Mrs. Walsh is also concerned with the kind of business training women receive and currently serves as chairman of the advisory committee to the women in management program at Simmons College in Boston. She explained that the all-female masters' degree program, which places heavy emphasis on the behavioral sciences, is designed to help women overcome their earlier conditioning and learn to function in the "system."

"Men start working prepared to structure their lives around their jobs but too often women don't know how to do this. I've found that women tend to need more help in planning how to get from here to there. They need to learn how to deal with the discrimination they encounter, how to develop support systems in a business or professional situation.

"It's difficult for a woman to take advantage of equal opportunity if she doesn't know what opportunity is," Mrs. Walsh added.

A 1945 GRADUATE of coeducational Kent State University in Ohio, Mrs. Walsh said she has come to believe that single sex education may be the best course for ambitious women. She pointed to studies that indicate that the most successful women are those who attended all-women schools.

"At first I dismissed the studies — after all, I'd gone to a coed school where I'd been student body president. Then it struck me that I'd been in college during the war and there weren't many men around...it was almost like an all-women school. I think that may be one reason there are proportionately more career-minded women my age and older — or they're much younger women in their 20s. Those in the middle — those who went to college in the 50s and early 60s — didn't have the same opportunity to prove themselves."

Mrs. Walsh added that she thinks the type of sensitivity training offered in the Simmons program may become a standard part of business school curriculums at coed universities as well as single sex schools.

Among other things, she said, the special training for women helps raise women's expectations.

"I've found that women don't have very high expectations," said Mrs. Walsh, who is the first woman exchange official on the American Stock Exchange. "There's a tendency to compare themselves to how they're doing with other women, not with others in their industry.

"I did this for a while myself. I was making what to me was a lot of money and I'd become rather self-complacent. Then I realized there were men out there making a lot more money. And I decided that if they could do it, so could I."

MRS. WALSH BUILT her business out of educational programs in the community — "in the beginning I didn't have any wealthy contacts" — and for the first 10 years most of her clients were women. By 1970, two-thirds of her clients were men. Now the pendulum has swung back again and women make up the bulk of her non-institutional clients.

"Women in Washington tend to be very aware and as a result are seeking professional financial advice. My firm has a good reputation for hiring and promoting women — the best in the industry, I think. And women, aware women, are putting their money with firms that are giving women an equal break."

Mrs. Walsh added that there are still too many women — even successful women — who are totally helpless when it comes to money. She said she is appalled by how many women don't have their financial affairs in order but noted that the situation seems to be improving and is likely to improve more as marital patterns change.

"This is a hopeful sign — that women are taking their financial matters into their own hands. I think the world would be a better place if more women took care of their financial dealings."

Mrs. Walsh terms the brokerage business a great field for women — "you can't be discriminated against when you're working on a commission" — and said it's one of the few fields where age is an advantage. She says that she was unusual in that she succeeded in the business so young — "my firm has had very little luck with younger women brokers" — but she admits she probably couldn't have done it without the help she got.

"After my husband died my mother-in-law and I went into a partnership. She took care of my four young children for a percentage of my commissions. The arrangement worked out great. I was making more money than I ever had, my mother-in-law was making more money than she'd ever made and the children were well taken care of. I guess I was probably the only woman in captivity who had a wife."

Glad you asked that!

Q: Ken Murray used to be my favorite vaudeville comedian. What's he doing these days? — Adele Marx, Long Beach, Ca.

A: Ken is editing down highlights of his personal film library of over 150 of Hollywood's greatest stars in preparation for a Christmas release for showbiz buffs. The inventive comic played every major nightclub in the country and produced and starred in the "Blackouts," a constantly changing variety revue that ran for 3,844 performances.

As a one-time star of Earl Carroll's Vanities on Broadway (in the Roaring '20s), he's just completed an affectionate and passionately penned first-rate portrait of his old boss titled "The Body Merchant," in which he reveals certain quaint customs of the controversial but clever showman.

Earl Carroll picked his girls by parading them in a dimly lit theater on a fully lighted stage, lined up in rows of 20, while he would sit in the front row and bark out marching exercise commands — attired in his silk shirt, flowing scarf, brightly colored artist's smock and, underneath it all, silk underwear.

At auditions, Carroll would insist (his biographer insists) that his beauties have undulating hips as well as gorgeous bodies and strikingly beautiful faces. A far cry from the time when he was a Bible salesman in China.

Murray also recalls the famous "Girl Bathing in Champagne" caper which landed Carroll in the federal Atlanta pen. But his 1924 edition of the Vanities was such a sexation (luscious showdolls wearing nothing but big fans made of peacock feathers) the producer was arrested and charged with indecent exposure. He fought the case in court without a lawyer — and was acquitted.

As a reader of the galleys said: "Carroll was way ahead of history...displaying stark nakedness on the Broadway stage beginning in the 1920s — during the Age of Innocence!"

Q: Settle a bet. I remember Joey Bishop when he was working in a New York nightclub and getting belly laughs with his hilarious takeoff of a Chinese waiter. My father says it was Buddy Hackett. Do I win the Chinese dinner? — William Barnett, Jr., Jersey City.

A: No. It was Hackett who had that racket. He introduced that character using only a rubberband over his eyes to give him an Oriental look. His pal Joey, on the other hand, ran away from home at age 16 and took a job as a singing waiter in a Broadway first-floor Chinese restaurant. After he was up to here with sipping won ton soup, chomping chow mein and biting on side orders of roast pork, Bishop returned to the warmth of his Brooklyn parent's home and permitted his mother's cooking to fatten him up.

Q: Why do Lee Majors and Lindsay Wagner hate each other? — Mary Ross, Coral Gables, Fla.

A: Explains the Bionic Woman: "We had fun doing the first two episodes of 'The Six Million Dollar Man' in which I played Majors' childhood sweetheart who becomes bionic herself. All of a sudden this pussycat turned into a tiger, hating me." Lee, on the other hand, counters by referring to her hit show as "The Bionic Rip-Off." Why? Because, they say, her contract is in excess of half a million dollars — higher than his.

Q: We found Margaux Hemingway very believable in the movie, "Lipstick." Especially in that frightening rape scene. Is she really the granddaughter of Ernest Hemingway? — Mildred Lahre, Valley Stream, N.Y.

A: "Yes," she told us. "But I remember him mostly from when dad Hemingway's oldest son, Jack, by his first marriage and I lived briefly at his house in Cuba where he bounced me around on his knee. I never realized what a world-famous person he was until I was grown up and visited New York to model and sign a million-dollar contract to promote an exclusive new Faberge fragrance."

Margaux was disappointed at the way the movie critics smudged her "Lipstick." But discounted photographer Francesco Scavullo's comment in a national magazine that he "made her sit in a swamp full of weeds and bugs, completely topless, without her complaining." "Scavullo's wonderful," she said. "But actually what I did was stand in a cold, slimy mudpit covered to my armpits."

Q: The first of those Howard Hughes wills set me to wondering. Was Hughes ever married to a Mormon? — Sally D., Columbus, Ohio.

A: That's what movie actress Terry Moore claimed, when he was still alive — that she'd wed Hughes in 1939 aboard his yacht, the Hilda, in a ceremony performed by the ship's captain off San Diego. The marriage didn't become public, Terry recently explained, because the "groom" supposedly had the happening stricken from the ship's log. Unless and until her claim can be substantiated, it will likely be considered just hearsay.

MODEL Margaux Hemingway as rape victim in movie "Lipstick," with rapist played by actor Chris Sarandon — critics not impressed with her film debut.

FORMER vaudeville comedian Ken Murray — reminisces about former boss Earl Carroll.

ACTRESS Terry Moore — no record of supposed shipboard marriage.

COMEDIAN Buddy Hackett — Chinese routine was his.

Film festival reels under Hollywood glamor

CANNES — The 30th Cannes Film Festival opened with festive fireworks staged by MGM, bringing back the excitement and glamor of Hollywood's Golden Era.

The party started before the MGM plane ever left the ground, when a flotilla of stars heard some joker paging Irving Thalberg in the first-class lounge at New York's Kennedy Airport. "It's probably Louis B. Mayer seeing how we're doing," laughed Fred Astaire, who celebrated his 77th birthday on the transatlantic flight. If so, L.B. would be happy to know his kids are doing just fine.

There really is some truth to the magic of movie stars. After an all-night flight from New York, with a pre-dawn change of planes in Paris, during which Johnny Weismuller kept the passengers awake with Tarzan yells, the MGM flotilla arrived in Nice looking ready for Technicolor closeups, while the rest of us looked like warmed over cat food.

Giants like Fred Astaire, Gene Kelly, Cary Grant, Cyd Charisse, Kathryn Grayson, Donald O'Connor, Marge Champion and Tarzan himself summed their old MGM training and spent the first three days of the Cannes Festival showing how it was done in the good old days. They posed for mobs of photographers, endured an interminable barrage of interviews in languages they never heard of and never stopped smiling.

They weren't just selling or promoting the opening night film, "That's Entertainment Part 2" (called, naturellement, "Hollywood, Hollywood" by the French); they were selling a ticket to a glorious tradition of colorful, dazzling MGM musicals to which their lives had contributed much of the foundation.

No temperaments. No star complexes. They were like kids on a college trip. Chaperoned and guided to and fro by a squad of MGM press agents, the stars gave the stuffy Cannes Festival a shot of vitamins it hasn't had in years.

THEY EVEN BROUGHT their own chef, Patrick Terrail, the French-born Beverly Hills restaurateur who arranges the kind of dinners and lunches you only read about in Gael Greene's four-star roundups.

At the exclusive dinner at L'Oasis the night before the premiere, the MGM stars were joined by their French comrades, Leslie Caron and Georges Guetary (who helped brighten "An American in Paris"), for a 10-course dinner that would put Chasen's out of business.

Fred Astaire finally revealed why he revolutionized movie fashions by using colorful neckties for belts in his dance numbers: "I was so skinny they were the only thing that would hold my pants up!" Johnny Weismuller did another famous Tarzan yell and confessed: "I'm from Austrian descent, you know — that yell started out as an alpine yodel and just sort of went berserk!"

Gene Kelly kept toasting Fred Astaire. Fred kept toasting his beautiful daughter Ava, who came over from her home in Ireland to help him celebrate. And Marge Champion got the recipe for scallops. Cary Grant, the picture of sartorial splendor, got so carried away he tripped and fell into a swimming pool, then staged the whole faux-pas all over again, dripping wet, for the paparazzi.

THE OPENING NIGHT gala, traditionally shunned by most journalists, was worth gold if you could beg or buy a ticket. A riot broke out in the streets, where the striking hotel workers were picketing, but the police showed up in record numbers to clobber the protesting bellboys and get a look at Cyd Charisse at the same time. (Violence and MGM musicals could only co-habit in a place like Cannes.)

It seemed just like home to New Yorkers, who left the apartment building strike back home to find their hotels on strike in Cannes.

The odd thing about previous years, as I've written before, is the way you push, shove and fight your way into the screenings to find yourself sitting next to the maid who made up your bed that morning. This year, you push, shove and fight your way in to find yourself sitting next to the maid who did not make up your bed that morning.

Raquel Welch arrived in the middle of the strike and carried her own bags. Leslie Caron, who made up her own room like everyone else, shrugged: "This is nothing in France. You should have grown up in Paris under the Nazis! I've had plenty of training."

After the opening night standing ovations died down, the stars hosted a lavish American-style banquet at the gambling casino where the Europeans were dazzled by steaks, corn on the cob, baked potatoes and cheesecake, flown to Cannes from Hollywood and served by a battalion of choreographed waiters who carried in the steaming bounty on silver trays raised high above their heads like "Hello Dolly," singing American standards like "California Here I Come" with each new course.

Then the lights went out, and the entire casino turned into a Cinemascope musical with sumptuous fireworks lighting the sky. The French have never seen anything like it and, frankly, neither have I. "It's just like the old opening nights," sighed Kathryn Grayson. The champagne flowed till dawn.

By the third day, the bloom was beginning to fade from the rose. The MGM stars still looked fresh, but the press was worn out from so much excitement. "They woke me up at 9," moaned Cyd Charisse, "and I remember hearing Johnny do his last Tarzan yell at 5!"

At one last glorious lunch at the famous Moulin Des Mougins, next door to the villa of Pablo Picasso, Donald O'Connor poked at a truffle big as a hamburger and asked: "Is this a mud pie?" Fred Astaire said, "The question the French asked most was the same one the folks back home always ask: Which of my dancing partners was my favorite? I really mean it when I say I loved them all.

"I certainly never feuded with Ginger or anyone else. Betty Hutton was the only one who made me blush, though — I couldn't repeat what she said in front of ladies."

Hutton was asked to come, but she didn't make the trip. She now lives in a tiny one-room flat in Culver City surrounded by scrapbooks, wondering what happened to the $9 million she went through in her Hollywood heyday. An MGM spokesman also intimated that Esther Williams didn't come because of her weight problem, and both Jane Powell and Vera-Ellen were hurt because they had been left out of "That's Entertainment Part 2."

The ones who did come, had a ball, reminding everyone what movie legends are made of and giving the Cannes Film Festival the kind of star-studded excitement from which it will never recover, much less duplicate. The stars boarded another plane for the film's premier in London, leaving behind Cary Grant, who chartered a yacht that ran out of gas, and ended up hitchhiking to Monte Carlo.

MEANWHILE, BACK in the projection rooms of Cannes, there was business as usual. After the MGM pizazz, it was hard to work up much enthusiasm for the tiresome parade of movies about Chilean revolution, Nigerian race riots and Algerian nomads. Tennessee Williams is the president of the jury, on which Charlotte Rampling is the sole female juror.

In the next two weeks, they will see new films by Luchino Visconti, Eric Rohmer, Roman Polanski, Joseph Losey, Bernardo Bertolucci, Ingmar Bergman, Alfred Hitchcock. From what I've seen so far, there isn't much to write home about.

As usual, most of the American entries show the U.S. as a blood-splattered hole of terror and violence inhabited by monsters and bullies. "Taxi Driver" won't do much more than fan the anti-American hostilities that already exist here, and the new Dennis Hopper movie "Tracks," which was unveiled in a storm of protest and controversy, opened the critic's week sidebar with an ironic footnote.

Written and directed by Henry Jaglom, a 28-year-old teenybopper whose career began when he contributed part of the financing for "Easy Rider," this interesting failure about a psychotic Vietnam veteran escorting the dead body of an army buddy to his hometown on a cross-country Amtrak begins well enough, with the bizarre soldier (Dennis Hopper) playing tapes of Dinah Shore and Frank Sinatra records in his lonely compartment between futile attempts to communicate with his fellow passengers.

Tensions build as the rhythm of the train accelerates, until the soldier mixes fact and fantasy, and the viewer is lost in the juxtaposition. It all ends up with Hopper lowering himself into the grave, which becomes a Vietnam trench, and the rest of America becomes the enemy he must fight.

At the press conference, Jaglom disgraced himself by defending the violence at the end as a necessary retaliation against "American Innocence," declaring himself an enemy of nostalgia, romance, patriotism, tradition, Mom's apple pie and Fred Astaire. There is no corpse. The soldier is the corpse he came home to bury. It might have been just as well to bury the film itself.

The naivete of young filmmakers like Jaglom is that even if America was a perfect conduit for equality, even if everyone paid equally for the sins of Vietnam, even if everyone grew potatoes and got paid an equal wage like Communist China, the first thing the people would do is invent another Fred Astaire.

"Tracks" is interesting because it does raise questions about the effect the American Dream has had on the innocent soldiers who bought that dream, but it fails because its childish anger drowns out any possibility of logic.

Youthful protest films are now as much a part of our own tradition as MGM musicals, though 100 times less entertaining.

ADVICE TO THE TAXLORN

Discuss CPA fees in advance

DEAR MR. SMITH: My problem concerns the small company I started five years ago, after leaving an executive position with a conglomerate.

The two CPA firms I have used, both with excellent reputations, seemed expensive and yet unable to see to it that income tax returns be filed that would not bring audits and additional assessments by IRS. In both audits, the IRS people were helpful and cooperative — no complaint there.

I am very pleased with my present CPAs but don't they have a responsibility to defend my company (in a tax audit) without cost to us, and shouldn't they pay any additional tax themselves? They charge $100 per hour on IRS audits. — G.I.

Our income tax system provides for an annual self-assessment by means of forms prescribed by the government. Each individual's chosen activities and attitudes (in addition to his economic income) determine how much tax he pays. There is no one correct way to prepare a tax return. If you are willing to forego every possible advantage of tax planning, legal ambiguities, stumbling constables, options and relief provisions, then IRS will probably never bother you. But you may pay considerably more tax than a less conservative taxpayer with identical situations, and pay it sooner. You make that choice not only at the year-end but also in what you do each day.

When you first engage a CPA, why not discuss services, fees and other details, and include as much as possible in a letter or memo of understanding. Then you know!

DEAR MR. SMITH: Is there any deduction granted for the supplemental care of a retarded daughter who is in a private facility? We pay about $300 per month. My husband says no, since she is not living with us. We have been paying this amount since 1969. Our income is $12,000 a year. We are both retired. — M.G.

IRS ruled that the total cost of maintaining a mentally retarded child in a specially selected home, or in a special school which is capable of alleviating the condition, may be deducted by you as medical expense (assuming you pay more than 50 per cent of your daughter's living expenses). The ruling (Revenue Ruling 69-499) was issued at the end of 1969. If the facility meets the concepts for medical care as expressed in that ruling, you may wish to file for refunds for years 1973, 1974 and 1975 on IRS form 1040X.

DEAR MR. SMITH: Between July 1, 1936, and June 30, 1937, I worked as admitting physician for a hospital in New York City and was paid $125 per month. No social security payments were made on my behalf, although I was a salaried employee, and, I believe Jan. 1, 1937, marked the inception of social security. At the present time I am shy a few quarters of coverage to qualify for social security benefits, and could use the two quarters I think I am entitled to for 1937. The local HEW office tells me it is too late to do anything about it, but I question the accuracy of this statement. I would appreciate your advising me whether or not I have any position in the matter, and how to go about getting the credit for the two quarters. — A.L.

There is hardly a word in the original social security law that hasn't been changed. Originally governmental and other nonprofit activities were not covered. But the general purpose of 40 years of amendments has been to liberalize, not restrict, the law's benefits. For this reason, we find that HEW personnel, in most cases, are extremely fair. It would help no end, if people would request a statement of earnings every three years at least until fully insured with 40 quarters of earnings. Nevertheless, if all else fails, you may get help if you write to your senator or congressman and ask him to have your application carefully reviewed.

Hostesses gamble on parties with French flair

A BIT OF THE French Riveria came to Long Beach when Law Wives staged a Monte Carlo night at the Belmont Shore Lions Club.

Party was a fund raising for the group's scholarships and court tour project. Court tours are provided for school aged youngsters with donations of money and volunteer hours by the Law Wives.

Monte Carlo-style gaming tables were heaped high with phoney money but the "Guess How Many Beans In a Crock" contest was just as popular.

Cheirgambler Jan Kight told me that Linda Bennett and husband Bill actually counted 9,440 varicolored beans into the see-through jar.

Eline Fudge made the closest guess. She and husband, Jack will be dining at Chez Cary as a reward AND she got to keep the beans and crock.

Bob and Judy Kilpatrick won a painting by Jan Kight as a door prize. They left before their name was drawn and someone offered to deliver it to them. Jan plans to go by their house this week and make sure it is prominently displayed. (More on Jan's paintings later.)

Mason Kight served as emcee awarding such prizes as a silver tray and a four place setting of Wedgewood china donated by Norma Wisot and husband, Judge Max.

I would tell you who the lucky winners were but Mason can't remember.

He did recall that former Long Beach attorney (now of Riverside) Leland Thompson continued his winning streak (I told you last week that he won the Loyal Pulley Golf Tournament). Leland won a uniperm and permanent eyelashes donated by Continental Hair Fashions.

Pre-party parties were hosted by Pete and Grace Utecht, Ned and Barbara Gaylord and April Griffin.

April was sans husband, Tom, because he attended the Big Wilson-Poly class reunion at the Edgewater Hyatt that same evening.

Immediate Past President Virginia Eagleson also came solo. Husband, Judge Dave, was busy with legal stuff. New President Barbara Gebb, with husband, Sheldon, welcomed more than 200 members and guests.

carolyn mcdowell

SPEAKING OF French.

Which I don't.

Had I been invited to the elegant dinner party co-hosted by John and Kathy Gross in the Huntington Seacliff home of John and Karen Hart, I probably would have had to hire an interpreter.

Novel invitations were hand delivered shortly before midnight at the homes of the invitees.

Ron and Diane Colbert answer the ring of the doorbell and discovered a bottle of chilled champagne in appropriate container tagged with an invitation written entirely in French.

Jerry and Nancy Tanaka, Tom and Judy Wright, Dale and Bobbie Dickie and the Colberts were able to translate their like invitations and all were treated to a five course gourmet spread worthy of Julia Child's best.

French menus served as place cards on the table centered with fresh lemons, lemon leaves and daisies in silver bowls.

WHILE WE ARE ON the International Scene.

Interiors International, new design studio in Our Town, had its Grand Opening which was attended by more than 1, 000 guests.

Co-owner Rick Harris (with his mom, June and dad, Jack,) preceeded the Grand Opening with s Spectacular Spill.

Now I know why people aren't supposed to walk under ladders. If Rick is standing on the top of a tall one, it will surely shatter into a zillion pieces and he might fall on you. As it was, he fell on the floor and outside of bruises, contusions and having to buy a new ladder, everything is fine.

Party featured a look at the works of local artists displayed throughout the studio.

I told you I would get to Jan Kight's paintings. She is one of the artists represented along with Betty Anne Stewart Kirkpatrick, Genevie Overman, Lois Venne, Joan Saunders, Bob Nicholson, Georgia Caldwell Freeman and Linda Honn.

Also Mary Buchanan, Melissa Andrews, Elna McGrew and John Spaulding.

Ralph and Shirley Reece were among dropper-inners. With Shirley's luggage in the car. Ralph was taking Shirley, daughter Terry and Shirley's mom to the airport to catch a plane for Tahiti.

Among others were Sen. George Deukmejian and Gloria, the Jules Bradys, Frank and Betty Sunofsky, Dwight and Charlotte Bennett, Dr. Irving and Cherna Moskowitz, Bill and Mary Klingensmith, Bev Kennedy, Bobbie Thornton, Walter and Ginny Drew and Dr. Cam and Audrey Paschall.

MEMBERS OF Junior Programs of Long Beach freewayed to the Music Center for annual meeting of JP's of California.

Judy Edson, president, beamed with pride as she reported to the assembly that the Long Beach group had its most successful season since it was founded in 1957.

Junior Programs are responsible for bringing live theater to the children of Our Town at minimal cost to them. For the past several years, the group has sponsored six different shows at Lakewood High School each season.

Women are asking

'Any diet ideas keyed to summertime menus?'

By REBA and BONNIE CHURCHILL

Like to play the shape-saver game? The idea is to key warm weather menus to calorie-counting. The game rules begin with salads — one surefire way to stay slim or become slimmer.

The scoreboard includes fresh vegetables — low-in-calories celery, carrots, and iceberg lettuce. One salad is dubbed a "tossed sandwich," since it has most of the conventional sandwich ingredients, except bread. Mix chopped lettuce, egg, celery, cheese cubes and chicken and beef strips. Add lemon juice or low-cal dressing.

According to the author of "The Shape Savers," "Eating slowly and chewing thoroughly gives the body time to go through the normal digestion process. When we eat quickly, the food is consumed before the body can make the usual adjustment, therefore we can feel hungry and unsatisfied again too soon, and we have the tendency to keep eating far more than we should."

If you're a brown-bagger or carry a lunch box, you can still have streamlined benefits. Carol Carr keeps her slim figure with a "balanced" menu. Protein-enriched, or natural grain bread, egg-cheese salad, and lettuce provide a nutritious munch for lunch.

If you're at home, or even at a restaurant, you can cut calories by ordering a beef or fish patty (not on a bun), but on a raft of lettuce. The juice from the meat will serve as a dressing for the lettuce, and the meat and salad course are combined.

P. S. Like to lose a pound a day? Compare your measurements with a movie star or model? Check the famous 4 day diet, on which the average, healthy adult can lose 2 to 4 pounds. Send 50 cents, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Reba and Bonnie Churchill, "4-Day Diet for Figure Trimmers," Independent Press Telegram, P. O. Box 46-181, Hollywood, Ca. 90046.

Dear Mother Earth:

by LYNN and JOEL RAPP

As you know, we love to get letters from you about your successes with plants along with your questions about failures or problems with others. Here's one of the "success" letters, so, as usual, we'll share it with you. It's from Mrs. B.M. in California, and says:

DEAR MOTHER EARTH:

I'd like to tell you about our rosebush out in the patio. We bought our home through probate — it was vacant for two years before we moved in. No one had been in the place, let alone cared for the patio. The ground was hard and overgrown with weeds, but I found this gnarled old rosebush and we decided to move it to a different area to make room for a concrete patio. The roots were so old and dry, they crumbled.

After being replanted and fed and watered the old bush blossomed. It was incredible — no one could believe it. Everytime we cut one of its rich, dark roses, it is truly inspirational — a lesson in the will to live. I thought you'd enjoy hearing about it! — Mrs. B.M.

DEAR MRS. B.M.:

Ordinarily, we would have preferred to know exactly how much you had to do with the Return of the Rose. Such as how and where did you plant it? How often did you water, what and how much did you feed? But your letter was indeed so inspirational that we were inspired to print it despite its lack of some facts we still would like to know. Perhaps you might write us again and pass along your secrets to our readers. In the meantime, pin the next rose on yourself, and happy growing!

action filed by Bascom in July, 1975, claiming violation by the Federal government of trade secrets and patents, is pending in the Federal Court of Claims in Washington, D.C.

(In the IPT library a clip from Jan. 28, 1976, referred to the action as a $100 million suit alleging use of Bascom-patented techniques by the CIA spy-ship Glomar Explorer in raising part of a Russian sub from Pacific depths. The Department of Justice had denied misdoing and asked dismissal and judgment for costs.)

Within view from the Bascom apartment, if you look southwesterly over Long Beach Harbor, the derrick-steepled Glomar Explorer loafs near that other mystery, the fortress-clad Spruce Goose. No comment there from Bascom, who, returning from the balcony, taps an ornament perched on a chin-high little shelf inside the door. It stands only six inches tall, with Bascom's name on a gold plate and below, a formal crest.

Flashing a typical grin, Bascom says:

"I sat at a hundred meetings and they gave me that. That's the President's seal."

BACK TO THE COFFEE and random comments:

OF SHIPS AND SHIPWRECK: "More than one out of 10 of all ships that ever sailed sank eventually to the bottom in depths below reach of divers. Some 30,000 went down before the Christian Era. The biggest ship that ever sailed disappeared six weeks ago off the Philippines. A big Greek tanker built recently in France sank 30 minutes out on her first voyage."

OF BUMBLERS: "Most people who find things (on the sea floor) remove all trace and nobody can find the location again. One treasure hunter pulled up two old iron cannons from a wreck he had found after great trouble. Nobody ever could find the ship! When you find the hulk, you're just in the right area; you don't want the dumb cannon — you want the ship's treasure, maybe 10 or 20 or 30 feet under the mud!"

OF BOYHOOD AND KING TUT: "I was born in New York in 1916. When I was 6 my mother used to take me to the New York Museum of Art. We would go to the Egyptian Halls. And every Sunday the newspaper rotogravure sections were full of King Tut's tomb. I've been a nut on the ancient world ever since.

"I live in the ancient world!

"I wanted to grow up and be an archaeologist, which is not a practical way to make a living.

"In order to be a good classical archaeologist you must have much better knowledge of ancient languages and classical history than I have. The guys who have that, don't have the special information that I have in engineering and oceanography.

"ARCHAEOLOGY CALLS for intelligence, energy and hard work. The deeper you get into it, the more interesting it becomes. That's basically true of everything."

OF THE ACADEMIC WORLD: "I am an engineer without a degree. I don't have a diploma — not even from high school.

"I don't fit neatly into any of their schemes.

"I do a great deal of lecturing, at Long Beach State and San Diego State, on ecology, archaeology and marine work of various kinds.

"I am a consultant on ecology for Israel and the Greeks. I am director of the Coastal Water Research Project, studying ecology of Southern California waters. We measure pesticides in water to a level of hundredths of parts per trillion. I am a research engineer for the National Academy of Science and a member of the Naval Research Advisory Committee."

OF TUNNELS AND MINES: "I quit high school in New York for a job in a tunnel-digging crew. I wanted to know more about mining, so I came out to Colorado, got a job as a hard-rock miner to work my way through the Colorado School of Mines. I crossed the faculty and quit without a degree. I've lectured there since. I was a research engineer for the University of California and for Scripps Institute of Oceanography. Then Washington, 14 years; then to Long Beach."

ON "MIKE" THE H BOMB: "I was project engineer in charge of measuring waves from 'Mike,' the first H bomb, at Kwajalein Atoll in 1952, on the ship Horizon, a University of California research vessel."

ON SEA DRILLING: "Nobody thought it could be done. From a ship in deep water we drilled through two miles of the earth's crust. That was the Mohole Project of 15 years ago, for the National Academy of Science. It looked so easy that the government took the project over and poured millions into it and never finished it."

ON DIAMONDS: "Under contract to the diamond monopoly in South Africa we dredged the continent's shorelines for diamond gravel. We found plenty of diamonds!"

ON WAVES AND BEACHES: "My book on the relation of waves to beaches is required reading at the Naval Academy — ours and also Russia's!"

ON THE PANAMA CANAL: "Our being there, world conditions being as they are, is an anacronism. Let Panama have the canal! The biggest ships can't or won't use it anyhow. The Navy wouldn't risk a big ship in the canal under war threat; to sink one there would close the canal. Let Panama run it, in the marketplace — charge what traffic will bear. If they put prices too high, ships will go around and Panama loses the money."

ON NAVY GIANTS: "I suppose I know 40 admirals. Three out of four agree with me that building giant carriers now is stupid. What our navy needs now is small, fast ships, well armed.

"Politicians back big-ship building to provide lots of employment for their home districts. It got started long ago and no one knows how to stop it."

ON FISH SCALES: "Sardines suddenly vanished here, a few years ago. Pollution and overfishing got blamed. Well, fish scales from annual layers of sediment cored from the bottom of Santa Barbara Channel show sardines arriving in numbers, staying a few years and suddenly leaving, every 40 years or so, back for centuries. We don't know why — but it couldn't have been industrial pollution or overfishing.

"IN THE CHANNEL there is a basin where there is no oxygen. This place is rare. The record in the sediments really ought to be searched out. The rules (about drilling now in the Santa Barbara Channel) are so stupid; it's hard to do anything.

"The Sea Probe (the Alcoa Sea Probe, the search and salvage vessel he proposed and helped to design) would be the perfect ship to do it. The National Science Foundation could do it.

"We spend millions on the dumbest kind of research. The Navy spends three billion bucks a year on research, testing and engineering. Yet, here's practical research and we don't do it.

"There are all kinds of treasures on the sea bottom. One of the greatest must be information about the earth we live on. Like the gold and jewels and artifacts buried in the mud, it waits for us to find it and bring it up."

RHODA AND WILLARD Bascom show amphora they use as a plant container in their Long Beach apartment. It was found off the coast of Turkey and is aged 2500 to 3000 years. It's on loan to Bascoms and was discovered cuddled among others on the sea floor, where the fish found it home. —Staff photos by DICK EMERY

THE FOSSIL of a bug is a fossil of a trilobite, an extinct marine arthropod from Paleozoic age. It was found on deep sea bottom during one of Bascom's digging expeditions.

THE FORMULA

Keep wood at its best

Wood is a beautiful material. It has a feeling of warmth that other materials don't have. A well-kept wood floor enhances the beauty of any home. But it must be properly cared for to be at its best. One of the major problems is discoloration. Dirt and stains can become ground-in, causing unsightly darkening. When this happens, bleaching is called for. However, advance preparation is essential.

Accumulations of wax, oil and dirt must be removed. The best and most economical way I have found to do this is to use ordinary washing soda and very hot water. About a cup of soda to a gallon of water seems about right. Scrub the floor thoroughly and rinse with clear water. You're now ready to apply the bleach. Here's the formula.

You'll need one-half pound of SODIUM PERBORATE (available at a drugstore) and COLD WATER. Mix sufficient water into the sodium perborate to make a paste of a brushable consistency. Spread paste on floor taking one section at a time, and allow to stand and "work" for about 30 minutes. Remove with clear water. Repeat this procedure as often as necessary to bring surface to degree of lightness you desire. Because both materials you will use can be irritating to the skin, rubber gloves are suggested. Store the excess formula in glass or plastic container.

Monumental art is a tribute to life

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

As the final event of its current season, Newport Harbor Art Museum has produced a stunning exhibit.

More than 3,000 persons already have seen the heroic sculptures by Northern California artist Robert Cremean and the number will steadily rise through the closing date, June 20.

First of the sculptures to be completed, in 1972, is "Homage to Paul Apostle," actually a work consisting of four marbles, standing about six feet high, conceived as one entity. The artist describes it as "four seated half torsos, a self portrait which spans and attempts to understand certain changes that have occurred over the last 12 years." With this work are 11 original drawings.

It is this same personal vision that is inherent in the monumental "Vatican Corridor; a Non-Specific Autobiography." Created as a tribute to life, this epic work, says the artist, deals with "the concept that one man equals all men."

arts

To see it is not only to understand why it took two years to finish, but also to marvel that it could be completed in that time. The 20 figures, eight feet high, are of laminated sugar pine in rosewood stands. They occupy a space 13 feet tall, 13 feet wide and 40 feet long.

Aligned 10 on each side, the figures form a series of arches through which the viewer can walk. Shapes and forms interact with each other, creating an ambience of peace and tranquility. Negative and positive space meld. One forgets that the laminated sugar pine is a medium that must be handled as delicately as though it were spun glass. The artist uses the term "non-specific autobiography" to define this sculpture as being both personal and introspective, relating to the change each person undergoes in the process of maturing.

CREMEAN is one of the few contemporary artists who works alone on such a massive scale. He uses only two chisels and a mallet — no power tools. Some 7,000 hours went into the creation of "The Vatican Corridor." Not exactly a commercial, rush job.

A special selection of 29 lithographs made from the original sketches and philosophical writings of the artist also are on view. The original drawings have been published in book form by Manuscript Press, Tomales, California, in an edition of 200 signed and numbered.

A native of Ohio, Cremean lives in Marin County. He earned his M.F.A. from Cranbrook Academy of Arts in Michigan and is the recipient of a Fulbright Scholarship, a Huntington Hartford Foundation Fellowship and a Tamarind Workshop Fellowship. His one-man exhibits are seen worldwide and his work is in major museums and private collections in this country and abroad.

The Newport Harbor Art Museum, 2211 W. Balboa Blvd., Newport Beach, will be dark from June 20 until Sept. 9 when it will open for the fall season.

THE EDO PERIOD in Japan, 1615-1868 A.D., was a time of blossoming of the arts. Forty examples from this era will go on view Tuesday at Los Angeles County Museum of Art, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., to remain through Sept. 26.

Highlight of the show will be four huge screens: "Plum Trees" and "Landscape" by Watanabe Shiko, "Pleasuring on the Sumida River" by Hishikawa Moronobu and "Winter Scenes" by Maruyama Okyo.

Important scroll paintings by Matsumura Goshun, Soga Shohaku, Nakabayashi Chikuto and Totoki Baigai also will be shown. Executed in ink and brilliant colors, these works depict landscapes, birds, flowers and scenes of urban life.

Colorful enameled porcelains, subtly shaped stonewares, sword guards, lacquered inros and boxes, embroidered textiles and tie-dyed robes will complete the exhibit.

The show may be seen Tuesdays through Fridays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturdays and Sundays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission is free.

THE REAL REASON that Leonardo da Vinci, Ben Franklin and Tom Edison became inventors was that they were, purely and simply, fascinated tinkerers.

At least, this is the belief of Gerald Richer, young, enthusiastic director of the Summer Science Workshop at California State Museum of Science and Industry, Exposition Park, Los Angeles. He has designed a program of classes to help kids learn to enjoy science.

And so, for the 15th consecutive summer, the workshop throws out the textbooks, and opens its doors for registration in 26 classes for preschool through senior high school students, and in special classes for teachers and parents.

Workshops will be conducted in one and two week sessions from June 28 through Aug. 20.

What keeps the kids coming summer after summer? Maybe it's the lure of courses with names like Creepy Crawly Critters; Stones, Bones and Dinosaurs; and Sorcerer's Apprentice. Maybe it's the chance to make and launch their own rockets. Whatever the formula, it has worked since 1962 with 40,000 students completing courses.

Kindergarteners and students through the fourth grade can attend one-week classes for $17. Those in grades 3 through 12 can enroll for 2 weeks for a fee of $28. Some classes also charge a modest lab fee.

SPEAKING of young people, let's congratulate winners in the annual All District Senior High School Art Competition in Long Beach Unified School District. The competition was under auspices of Gibraltar Savings. Vickie Civello of Lakewood High received the three-dimensional Sweepstakes Award and a first prize for a ring and buckle. Diana Chin, Polytechnic High, won a Sweepstakes Award and a first prize in the two-dimensional category with her watercolor, "Study in Red."

Sweepstakes awards were $75, first prizes $35, second places $20 and third, $10.

Other first place winners were Antonio Edles, Kim Kniss, Gerald White, Cindy Valenta, Veronica Wells and Ellen Steinberg. A total of $670 in prizes was awarded to 24 students.

JAPANESE JAR of porcelain is from Old Kutani Kiln of the Edo Period, 1615-1868 A.D. This object is one of many in 'Art of Edo' exhibit which opens Tuesday at Los Angeles County Museum.

FUTURE scientist (?) shrieks with joy as he gets acquainted with one of the animals to be studied in Summer Science Workshop at California State Museum of Science and Industry.

Alliance elects new board

At the 15th annual meeting of the Long Beach Art Museum Alliance, Peter Ridder was elected president. Other new officers are Mrs. Antoine Venne, Dr. Richard Simms, Mrs. Clifford Kernochan, Mrs. Ellsworth Beam, Mrs. Leo Vander Lans and Mrs. Palmer Wentworth. Mrs. Wentworth, outgoing president, will serve as parliamentarian.

New directors are Mmes. Marie Wendell, Norman Gunnerson, Timothy Cameron, Michael Johns; Messrs. Eric Laddey, John Fialko and Anthony Fallon.

Also on the board, representing Friends of the Museum, are Mrs. James Morford and, from the Film/Video Council, Dr. Ron Selvester. Both are new presidents of their organizations.

THE MEETING, a gala affair sponsored jointly by the Friends and the Alliance, marked the silver anniversary of the city's purchase of the building at 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., for an Art Center in 1951. Further, it symbolized the cooperation of groups which now work together under the new Alliance umbrella organization.

Although his leg is still in a cast because of an injury which occurred during his recent visit to New York, museum director Jan Adlmann was there to greet members and guests. A video tape, commissioned by the Alliance to tell the museum story to interested groups, was shown. It was made by David Ross, deputy director of video for the museum.

SPENCER S. WHITTED
Elegant champagne brunch each Sunday

MANY TRAVELERS who stop today at the Edgewater Hyatt House, 6400 E. Pacific Coast Highway, will make a pleasant discovery. They'll find an enticing champagne buffet brunch displayed in the hotel's plush Hugo's dining room.

The brunch also will attract many guests from Long Beach and nearby cities. They dine there nearly every Sunday because they know from experience that Hugo's brunch is one of the most imaginative and generous in this area. Many drop in after church, after a round of golf or perhaps after going for a ride on their boat, moored at the nearby Long Beach marina.

Hugo's brunch is served from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. It is $4.50 for adults, $3.50 for children under 12. It is a beautiful array of the freshest hot or cold dishes, including a glass of champagne, assorted chilled fruit juices, sliced fresh fruit, assorted cold meats, including ham breast of turkey; many colorful salads and such hot dishes as roast beef, eggs Benedict, scrambled eggs, sausage, bacon, chicken, stuffed crepes, hashbrown potatoes, rice pilaf, other hot entrees, muffins, rolls and choice of beverage. Guests sit at tables covered with linen cloths and can return to the buffet display as often as they wish. They also enjoy table service by well-trained waiters and bus boys.

The Hyatt House's brunch is created through the teamwork of the hotel's top executives including general manager Norm Howard, food and beverage manager Spencer S. Whitted, executive chef Antonio Jacobo and restaurants' manager Frank Jimenez. Antonio is a master chef who was formerly on the staff of the large Hyatt Regency Hotel in Los Angeles.

Spencer is the newest member of the local Hyatt's executive staff. He is a graduate of the school of hotel administration at Cornell University and was formerly divisional manager for four Orange County restaurants operated by Specialty Restaurants of Long Beach. He was also formerly an executive with the Velvet Turtle restaurant chain.

The Long Beach Hyatt is a large facility with many banquet and party rooms, dancing in the Sabre entertainment lounge, a 24-hour coffee shop and 200 hotel rooms. Hugo's restaurant, which serves dinner nightly including Sundays, is a deluxe operation with impressive table settings and many epicurean touches. The dinners include Hugo's garden salad, a cone of tart sherbet to refresh the taste buds between courses, fresh vegetables, mixed brown rice or baked potato, fresh fruits and afterdinner cordials or hot plum wine.

The entrees, $5.50 to $9.95, include sea delicacies, roast duckling, prime rib, veal scallopine, beef Stroganoff and the choicest steaks.

THE WORD IS "GO!" For many active Long Beach families, the Memorial Day weekend is a time to go fishing and picnicking, hiking or biking, boating and water-skiing.

They burn up energy right and left. Soon they grow ravenous. They gotta eat — right now! — so they can build up more energy. That's when the Colonel comes to their rescue.

Throughout the Long Beach-Lakewood-Bellflower area, families will stock up today and Monday on great quantities of Colonel Sanders' fresh, hot chicken. They'll buy it by the bucket or barrel at the 10 Kentucky Fried takeout shops owned by Ray Weidemann. Those are award-winning shops, highly praised and honored by the parent corporation for the fresh quality of their chicken and the spic-and-span condition of their kitchens.

The 10 Weidemann shops will operate extra hours this weekend. They will be open today from 11:30 a.m. on. Normally they open Monday at 4 p.m., but tomorrow they will open at 11:30 to accommodate holiday shoppers. If you plan a huge picnic with dozens of guests, it is suggested that you place your order as early as possible, perhaps a day in advance.

Keith Nuttall, top supervisor for the 10 shops, and his well-trained staff, will offer a variety of different-sized takeout packages. Among them are the bucket, $6.79, including 15 pieces of tender, juicy chicken, a pint of gravy and five buttery rolls, and the Thrifty Banquet, $5.19, nine pieces of chicken and many other items. The biggest order is the barrel, $9.29, including 21 pieces of chicken. Among the smaller orders are "corn and cluck," $1.19, including two pieces of chicken, corn cobbet, mashed potatoes, gravy and roll, and the chicken and French fries dinner, $1.69, including three pieces of chicken and other items.

Also featured for takeout are 79-cent containers of macaroni salad, potato salad, fruit salad and coleslaw as well as $1.79 pies. The fresh pies — topped with genuine whipped cream — are chocolate, coconut cream and lemon.

The 10 shops are located at 129 E. Pacific Coast Highway, 10003 E. Alondra Blvd., 5530 E. Atherton St., 3430 E. Artesia Blvd., 4917 Bellflower Blvd., 6081 Atlantic Ave., 3352 Los Coyotes Diagonal, 11545 E. Carson St. , 1601 W. Willow St. and 1601 E. Seventh St. They feature the crisp-style of chicken as well as the regular kind. Each is prepared with 11 different herbs and spices.

Imager detects cancer

PHO-CON Multiplane-Imager, a unique nuclear medicine instrument now in operation at Long Beach Community Hospital, is capable of producing 12 internal pictures of the body all in a single scan.

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

A whole-body scanning instrument that will improve cancer detection has been acquired by Long Beach Community Hospital.

The new device, an advanced radionuclear instrument, is now in operation, it was announced by Dr. William H. Olson, chairman of the hospital's department of nuclear medicine.

Known as the PhoCon Multiplane-Imager, the device takes 12 internal pictures of the body instead of one. And it's all done in a single scan without increasing radiation.

Each image focuses on a different plane of the subject, thus determining depth and detecting tumors often not seen by conventional X rays or nuclear medicine procedures.

health

The instrument at Community Hospital will be the first of its kind to be put into clinical use in the Long Beach area, according to a manufacturer's spokesman.

Dr. Olson says that whole body imaging is considered by many to be "The procedure of choice following a diagnosis of cancer of the lymph gland, breast, lung or other organs." Reason: A nuclear scan can reveal if a malignancy has spread to other areas of the body.

"If we can determine that a patient has localized cancer that has not spread, we probably would remove the diseased organ," Dr. Olson says. "However, if the cancer has been transmitted to other parts of the body, we generally would use other methods such as chemotherapy, radiation therapy or a combination."

DR. VINOD SINGHI, a specialist in nuclear medicine, put it this way:

"We expect it may prove best to use the PhoCon for the initial screening of most cancer patients because it can effectively scan the whole body in slightly more than an hour, approximately half the time of conventional scans."

CHAIRMAN of nuclear medicine department at Long Beach Community Hospital, William H. Olson, M.D., adjusts table controller on new PhoCon Multiplane-Imager.

Abnormalities show up as a greater-than-normal concentration of dots on a film transparency and are easily detected by a physician trained in interpreting this type of picture.

Dr. Olson notes that the new instrument complements computerized axial tomography (CAT), a procedure that recently has revolutionized the field of radiology. The capabilities of the two techniques are different.

"The PhoCon imager used radioactive isotopes which are injected into the patient to visualize the soft tissue, individual organs and the skeletal structure of the body," Dr. Olson says. "In CAT scanning, X rays from an external source penetrate the body and are recorded on film."

Another physician, Dr. Ernest W. Fordham, chaiman of nuclear medicine at Presbyterian St. Luke's Hospital in Chicago, who tested a prototype of the instrument, says, "The PhoCon is particularly helpful for problem cases."

IN A FORMAL STUDY of brain scanning, nearly 15 per cent of patients required more than conventional scans, he says. In these case, multiplane imaging with radioactive materials practically doubled diagnostic accuracy. Similar results were obtained in a study conducted by Dr. Leslie R. Bennett, professor of radiology at UCLA.

Although the PhoCon's major use will be in cancer detection, it is also useful in detecting acute injury to heart muscles, bone abnormalities other than cancer, inflammatory processes in the chest or abdomen, various types of liver disease and other noncancerous diseases.

The PhoCon was invented by H.O. Anger, Ph.D., who also devised the widely known Anger Scintillation Camera which bears his name. One medical observer has cited the PhoCon scanner as "undoubtedly the most ingenious imaging device yet developed in the field of nuclear medicine."

Acquisition of the PhoCon is one in a series of cancer detection and treatment programs developed over the past four years by Community Hospital at a cost of more than $2 million.

Long Beach Community Hospital has been named the charity recipient of the annual Dick Whittinghill Golf Tournament to be held July 31. Most of the proceeds of this tournament will be used to pay for PhoCon equipment.

The hospital's 850 employes and members of the Long Beach Community Hospital Foundation will be active in fund-raising efforts, hospital officials announced.

IN-SIGHTS

Mom takes a job

dr. walt menninger

DEAR DR. MENNINGER:

I am a hard-working, middle-aged man who has done a pretty good job of providing for my wife and three children for 20 years. My wife has been a good mother to the kids. She has been a den mother in Cub Scouts and has worked hard in the PTA. But now she wants to go to work! For pay!

We can use the extra income. The kids are soon to start college; and much as I have tried, I haven't been able to set aside much toward those expenses.

But I am uncomfortable with my wife going to work. I feel that I should be able to provide fully for her, and she shouldn't have to work. It's as though I'm less of a man if she has to work. And perhaps I'm just a male chauvinist, but I think she should be home for the kids' sake, too. I would appreciate your thoughts.

Sincerely H.W.

Dear H.W.:

Your feelings are not unique and should not be passed off simply as male chauvinism. You are responding to the traditional American family image of a bread-winning husband and a dutiful wife and mother who looks after home and the children.

Of course, the image is changing, and many factors have contributed to the change. It started during World War II, when many women joined the work force to take on jobs the men left behind; in addition, some needed to supplement the meager military pay allotments.

In recent years, the pressures of inflation have contributed to wives going to work. For many young couples just starting out, that has been the only way to pay for the major purchases of a car, furniture and a house as they establish a new family. For other families, it is a way to improve the standard of living. And college costs, like those about to face you, H.W., have prompted a good number of women to supplement the family income.

ANOTHER MAJOR impetus these days is the thrust for equal rights and the wish of many women to assert themselves. Many have worked diligently for years without pay, not only in raising a family and keeping house, but in putting in a tremendous amount of time in volunteer activities in the community. Now these women are feeling a new sense of self-worth and want to be paid accordingly.

Your wife is also at a significant point in life where she is completing one "career" — raising her children — and searching for another. She is no different from the man who joins the service in his late teens and spends 20 years in the military, only to retire and embark on a new career.

Of course, there are adjustments to be anticipated if she does go to work. There are adjustments in the household responsibilities. Before she starts, you should both discuss the division of labor for the usual household tasks and explore changes in who is responsible for what. Unless there is some sharing of the load, there are bound to be problems.

Equally important are the adjustments in feelings, like your feelings that you have failed her, or your feelings about sharing household jobs. You shouldn't feel you have failed her, for it may well be that by working, she is able to satisfy some needs which you could never do for her, no matter how wonderful a husband you might me.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Knuckle joints replaceable

A substitute knuckle for persons severely crippled with arthritis has been developed by Dr. Robert J. Schultz, director of orthopedic surgery at the Hospital of Albert Einstein College of Medicine.

The replacement device permits the patient to be able again to grip and to pinch objects together. The hand's stability and mobility are increased.

ben zinser

To date, Dr. Schultz has replaced 150 knuckle joints. If all four joints are replaced, the operation takes about two hours.

A report on the prosthesis appears in the Journal of the American Medical Association. A summary is given in the Journal of the American Osteopathic Association.

Fungal disease

Sporotrichosis is now the most frequent fungal disease seen in Latin America, researchers report.

The disorder is an infectious ailment characterized by the formation of nodules, ulcers and abscresses, usually confined to skin and superficial lymph channels.

The number of cases is increasing daily, investigators have reported to a meeting of the International Society of Tropical Dermatology.

Doctors say there are no treatment problems with the disease.

Details appear in Dermatology News, a medical newspaper.

Lower blood pressure

A drug called atenolol, taken once a day in tablet form, can effectively lower blood pressure in persons with mild or moderate hypertension.

Two British physicians say atenolol in once-daily doses can control blood pressure for at least 24 hours.

The drug is also known in England by the name Tenormin.

The simplicity of the treatment (once a day) plus a lack of side effects should make this drug valuable in the long-term treatment of high blood pressure, the doctors say.

The report is in British Medical Journal.

Curbing fear

A dentist reports he is using "conscious sedation" to make dental visits more pleasant for the patient.

Dr. Bob Swepston, a practicing dentist from Texas, uses the gas nitrous oxide as a "vapor tranquilizer whose main purpose is to eliminate fear and apprehension."

He says the patient is fully conscious during the treatment and experiences no aftereffects.

Dr. Swepston has given more than 100 seminars on the use of nitrous oxide in curbing fear.

AT WIT'S END

Keeping up with family news

I found a letter to my sister the other day that I had forgotten to mail.

It just needed a little updating to send. After "The baby is . . . " I crossed out "toilet trained" and wrote in "graduating from high school this month."

And in the P.S. where I had written, "I found my first gray hair today," I ran a line through gray and substituted "black."

The rest of the letter was still current. "I am on a diet as my skin does not fit me anymore. The children are rotten and I am slipping away from reality. I am going to paint the bathroom and write to the rest of the family next week."

The trouble with me is I don't like to write letters unless I have something exciting to report. I am intimidated by letter writers whose correspondence electrifies you.

I have one group of friends who only write me once a year — from a cruise ship. They know it's going to make me spit up with jealousy and they write cute little messages that begin, "Luv: Thinking of you as we island-hop," and end with, "Must dash. A Robert Redford lookalike has been chasing me all over the ship."

OTHER PEN PALS I can live without are the people whose children are over-achievers. Their letters are filled with news of "Robbie" who just won a "Being" scholarship to Harvard. (He's so exceptional, all he has to do is sit there and breathe for four years.) There's also nine-year-old Rachel who is competing in the Baton Olympics, makes all her own clothes, just sold her first story to Reader's Digest, and is going to spend her entire summer reading the Bible. And don't forget little Kenneth who gets up during the night to change his own Pampers. (Does you-know-who still have a plastic liner in his football uniform?)

The letter-writers who really bug me, though, are the ones with the stationery whose paper matches the envelopes. Sure it's easy to write a letter when you have all the equipment, but for me, it's a real hassle finding clean paper, a pencil, and a stamp.

IT HAS BEEN four days since I sent my sister the letter and when I didn't hear from her this morning, I lifted the phone, called, and said, "What's the matter? Is your arm broken?"

"I just got your letter," she said. "I'll answer it this afternoon."

"Well, hurry up. I have another three-cent stamp that's burning a hole in my pocket!"

DEAR ABBY

Putting advice to use brings her happiness

abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: Around this time last year I wrote to you telling you that I was a very unhappy 12-year-old adopted, diabetic girl whose parents and teachers were always on my back. You wrote back with lots of suggestions and told me to try to see things their way.

I didn't believe a word you wrote, and I got into big trouble at school. It got harder and harder for me to live with myself anymore, so I went to talk to my best friend's mother, and she helped me see that everything you wrote to me was 100 per cent true. Then I read your letter over and over again, and after a while it sunk in.

I changed myself just in time to save my reputation and get back with all my friends, and, Abby, your letter was the cause of it all. Thank you! I couldn't have done it without you. Now I'm a better person and can talk to my parents, which I couldn't do last year.

Abby, please put this in your column because I'm sure a lot of teen-agers don't realize that you write personal answers to those who send stamped, addressed envelopes.

All my love — M.L. IN BARSTOW, CA.

DEAR M.: I am pleased to know that my letter helped you to get it all together, but you deserve more credit than I do. I only offered suggestions. YOU followed through. God bless you, honey.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently moved into a furnished apartment. We have no children, but we have two small dogs that we love very much.

At first when we went out, we left the dogs alone in the apartment, and they ripped up everything they could get their little paws on. They simply ruined the furniture and rugs!

After we saw the damage our dogs had done, we took to locking them up in the bathroom, but, Abby, this upsets them so much, it just breaks my heart. I can't blame them. I know I wouldn't want to be locked in a tiny bathroom for five hours, would you?

Is there any other solution? We don't have anyone who can watch the dogs when we go out. Please suggest something. — LOVES MY DOGS

DEAR LOVES: If you can't train your dogs to refrain from tearing up their surroundings when left alone, rather than submit them to cruel and unusual confinement, take them with you or find them another home. Dogs have rights, too.

DEAR ABBY: I am a secretary to a very fine family man. About once a week, my boss invites me to have lunch with him downtown. I find it very enjoyable, but I understand there has been some talk about it around the office. In fact, I hear that his wife has been asking questions about me.

I wish you'd tell me just what two people could do between noon and 1 p.m. in a crowded restaurant. — MS. UNDERSTOOD

DEAR MS.: They could make plans to meet after 5, where it's not so crowded.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Lends recipe for cookies

After studying his extensive knowledge of figures, we asked him if he could figure his own income tax. He hesitated, then replied, "Well, I probably could — but I don't. I'm far too busy to find the time."

Virg Sewell, today's chef of the week, devotes his professional hours to serving as vice president, regional loan manager, Fidelity Federal Savings & Loan Association, Long Beach.

Born in Fairview, Kan., a town of 1,300 population, Sewell came to Long Beach in 1937. He graduated from Long Beach City College and Woodbury College, Los Angeles, before receiving his certificate in real estate from Long Beach Community College.

mildred flanery

Sewell continued his education through UCLA Extension courses in real estate and real estate appraisal before graduating from the American Savings and Loan Institute, and Mortgage Banking at Stanford University.

SEWELL'S FIRST POST was as vice president, manager, WestWinds Realty. Since then, he has served as manager, Real Estate Loan Department, Bank of California, Newport Beach, and as sales supervisor-senior account manager, Business Development Department, Title Insurance and Trust Co., Los Angeles. He has carried the title of vice president of the Belmont Savings & Loan Association; the DeBek Homes, and Bear State Construction Company of California. He has taught Mortgage Lending at Long Beach City College.

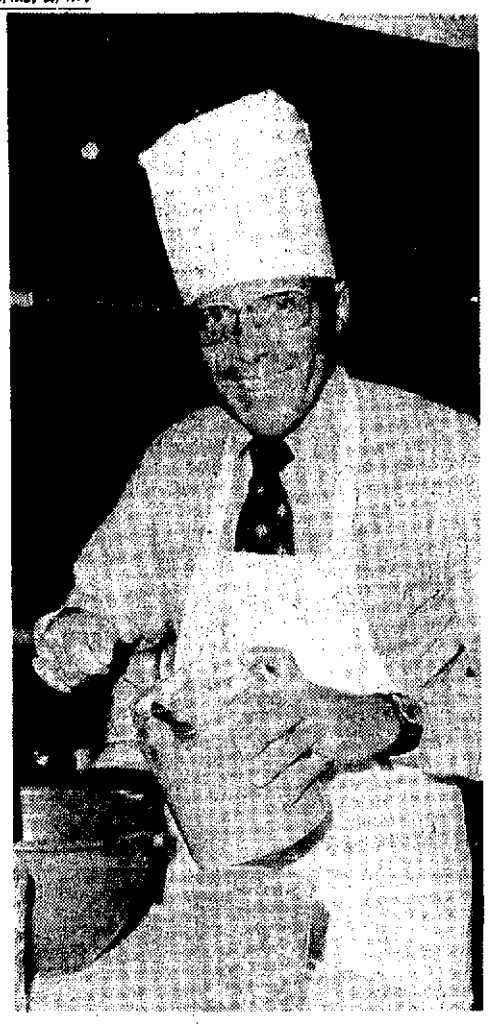

A member of the Mortgage Bankers Association, and the Apartment Association of California, he is active in the Toastmaster's Club, and is also a member of the National Pilot's Association.

HIS WIFE, BOBBIE, is a real estate appraiser with the Bank of America. He says, "She's a real gem! One of the few women real estate appraisers in California." They have one son, 21-year-old Christopher (better known as Chris) a student at Long Beach City College.

Sewell says, my hobbies are "Being with my wife and son; flying; bicycling and real estate." He's also interested in music, ably manning a saxophone, clarinet and flute.

Bobbie says, "Virg is extremely thoughtful, and shares all home responsibilities with me. As for his cooking, he adds a little bit of this, and a little bit of that, without ever a thought of measuring."

Regarding his recipe, our 'chef' says, "Since so many people are cholesterol conscious, I would like to share a recipe that I particularly like, and one that is very satisfying while not violating any diet no-no's."

VIRG SEWELL

Here's his recipe for No Cholesterol Cookies.

NO CHOLESTEROL COOKIES

- ¾ cup wheat germ
- ½ cup chopped raisins
- ½ cup chopped walnuts
- 3 tablespoons water
- 4 tablespoons molasses
- 3 tablespoons oil
- ¾ cup flour
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon cloves
- 1 egg white
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix wheat germ, raisins and walnuts. Stir in the flour, baking powder and salt. In a separate bowl, blend together the water, molasses, oil, egg white, vanilla and spices. Beat into the raisin-nut mixture. Divide into 25 cookies. Place on a baking sheet and flatten each with a fork. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for 8 to 10 minutes.

FLEA MARKET FINDS

Takes the cake

Q. "Our latest find is a silverplated cake basket marked 'Toronto Silver Plate Company'." — Mr. and Mrs. J. L., Lafayette, Ind.

A. Silverplated cake baskets were gracing tabletops and sideboards around the turn-of-the-century. Jewelry company catalogues listed many elegant versions priced at between $8 and $12 each. Your find originated at the Toronto Silver Plate Company of Toronto, Canada, a firm active between the late 1880s and 1920. They manufactured various sterling silver and silverplated articles. Most wares were marked with the firm's name or initials. Their silverplated cake baskets rate as tasty acquisitions. Value guide: cake basket, silverplated, circa 1890, $50.

Q. "Can you list some affordable old 78 RPM records for this budget-minded scavenger?" — Joe, Houston, Tex.

A. Here is a partial listing of old 78 RPM records you should be able to find spinning about yard sales and flea markets in the $2 price range: Decca, Dick Hymes, "That's For Me" "It Might As Well Be Spring"; Decca, Helen Forrest, "Guess I'll Hang My Tears Out To Dry" "Don't Ever Change"; Columbia, Frank Sinatra, "Cradle Song" "Nancy"; RCA Victor, Perry Como, "When You're Smiling" "My Melancholy Baby"; Majestic, Morton Downey, "Blue Skies" "All By Myself"; Mercury, Frankie Laine, "I've Only Myself To Blame" "But Beautiful."

Q. "Have you any data on Edward Howard, the watchmaker?" — Henry, Fond du Lac, Wis.

A. Other watchmakers referred to Mr. Howard as the "man of the hour," thanks to his pioneering the machine-made precision watch in America during the 19th century. He established his original factory at Roxbury, Mass., in 1842. Between 1850 and 1857 he formed a partnership with A.L. Dennison. When this partnership was dissolved, Howard continued operating the Boston Watch Company. The Howard Watch & Clock was organized in 1861, and was renamed the E. Howard Clock & Watch Company in 1881. Highly regarded Howard precision watches are proving to be timely investments. Value guide: E. Howard, open face, Keystone Howard case, 21 jewel, $115.

Q. "Can you assist me in appraising my ever-growing collection of antique typewriters?" — Mary, Burlington, N.C.

SILVERPLATE cake baskets win collectors' favor.

A. Hope these representative prices on antique typewriters spell out MONEY for you. Collector interest centers on examples made prior to World War I. Value guide: Blickensderfer No. 7, $100; Corona, No. 3, $35; Fox, $40; Hammond, with original wooden case, $160; Oliver, No. 5, $25; Remington Standard No. 7, $50; Smith Premier, No. 2, $55; Underwood, No. 5, $35; Wellington, No. 2, original case, $70.

Appraise your antiques with the aid of Dan D'Imperio's book and value guide "The ABC's of Victorian Antiques", Dodd, Mead & Co., $9.95. An autographed copy may be ordered from the Star-Telegram Syndicate, Inc., P.O. Box, 681, Weatherford, TX 76086. Please include check or money order.

The workshop

There's never been a better year to discover the joys of historic America. And what better way than cruising on your own easy-to-build 22 foot, twin-hull deck boat. It boasts over 10 square feet of open deck space enclosed by a railing, and over 40 cubic feet of storage space beneath the twin hulls and the galley.

You can build it from marine plywood with no special tools or hardware required. And after you've built the simple box hulls, and interlocking deck pieces, the whole thing can be taken apart for easy transportation or storage.

We used a 15 h.p. motor to power our boat. Start off simple if you wish, and later add carpeting and a canopy. You can start a fun-filled future of fishing, swimming, picnicking, and just cruisin' down the river on lazy afternoons.

To order the easy-to-follow plan, Family Deck Boat (No. 578), send $4 (includes first class postage and handling) by check, cash or money order to Steve Ellingson, Independent Press Telegram, Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys, Ca. 91409.

ira corn

Aces on bridge

Dear Mr. Corn: I recently moved from Texas to the Northeast and find my bidding philosophies are not accepted by the "in" group. Is it just the group I've joined or is this a common situation?

Out of Step,
Jamaica, N.Y.

Answer: The situation is a common one and applies to several geographic regions. In general, Texas players tend to play a "loose" style and bid freely, where players in the N.Y. area lean to a more disciplined style.

Here's a quote from the ACBL Bulletin published daily at the national tournaments:

Overheard in a team game after an expert went for a big number: "I thought you'd had that famous Texas operation where they cut out the word 'pass'!" And a kibitzer asked, "You mean a pass-ectomy?"

Dear Mr. Corn: We were playing a hand and one player had one fewer card than the others. What should we have done?

Big Mixup,
Whitakers, N.C.

Answer: It depends upon the circumstances. A search is made and if the missing card was played to a previous trick in error, that player plays the remainder of his hand with fewer cards than the others and does not play to the final trick.

If the missing card is found elsewhere than in a previous trick, that card must be restored to the deficient hand and may become a penalty card, and failure to have played it may constitute a revoke.

Complicated and harsh? Maybe. But it would never happen if all players make sure they have 13 cards to start with.

Dear Mr. Corn: My partner opened one heart and I held this hand. What should I have bid after RHO's pass?

5/30-A

♥ A J 8 7 4 2
♦ K Q J 10 7 4 3

Jammed Up,
Springfield, Mass.

Answer: There is no "correct" bid and one must decide to go quickly or slowly. If you go slowly, the opponents may find a good sacrifice (or make!); if you go quickly, you may bid too much or too little.

On average days, I would bid six hearts. On extremely lucky ones, I would try seven.

Dear Mr. Corn: My opponents played in two hearts and went down one. Declarer had 100 honors. It doesn't make sense to me that she should have scored a net plus of 50 points after she had gone down. Any comments?

Bonus Babies,
Oswego, N.Y.

Answer: In rubber bridge, honors are scored by any player lucky enough to hold them and the award is not tied to the success or failure of the contract.

On the opposite side of the coin, one might ask, "What if a defender had 100 honors and declarer made the contract? Why should the defender score honors?"

Change of scene in gay Paree

By HERB SHANNON
I.P-T Travel Editor

PARIS, France — Every 15 years or so, I used to have someone snap my picture strolling on the Champs Elysees, the proudest promenade of this effervescent city of two million dedicated pedestrians. Sort of a bouevardier's Before and After, or sentimental Then and Now collector's item.

This time, after careful scrutiny of the Etoile scene as reflected in the plate glass of the U.S. Bicentennial display half a block from the Arc de Triomphe, I decided to forego the traditional photo. Too many signs of wear and tear.

On me, not the monument. A lot of water has passed under the bridges of the Seine since that first visit two or three snapshots ago, but the masssive sculptured arch at the end of the tree-lined boulevards converging upon it is still the Star of Paris, a bright backdrop to the passing parade by day or blazing with floodlights at night.

The footloose throngs in the Champs Elysees are as familiar and eternal as the flame winking from the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at the base of the Arch of Triumph. Itinerant troubadors, street artists with portfolio at the ready, young lovers on the move in close emmbrace, native and visiting sightseers provide the best free show in town.

Front row seats for this enchanting performance are available at nominal charge under the awnings and parasols of sidewalk cafes. The tip is included in the price of a snack or glass of wine or beer. The only hustle is in the service by traybearing waiters.

Across the broad boulevard, two world-famous establishments attract distinctly separate clienteles with more substantial provender. Fouquet's Restaurant posts a warning at the door in the form of a menu and price list. Barely a block away, Le Drug Store dispenses le hamburger Americain with French fries, ketchup, mustard and relish. The pharmacy department provides instant after-dinner remedies.

UNLIKE MY foreground reflection in the Champs Elysees windows, most changes in the Parisian panorama are for the better. New high-rise hotels and civic structures are discreetly distributed around the city to preserve the skyline and a continuity of character in the various districts. The Metro subway system still runs on rubber tires, but the tuurnstiles are now efficiently automated.

The most startling change comes on arrival at the ultra-modern Charles de Gaulle Airport, the new arrival point for non-stop Air France polar flights from Los Angeles. The introduction is appropriate for the dawn of the supersonic age. Needle-nosed Concorde aircraft nestle side by side with their subsonic sister ships around the satellite terminals. Moving walkways whisk pasengers underground to the multi-level main terminal building.

In the immense hollow core of the circular structure, the moving sidewalks criss-cross from level to level in transparent tubes, allowing arriving and departing passengers to view each other as they pass effortlessly through the conveyor belt maze. The end of this short trip into the future deposits passengers and baggage at the door where buses and taxis await.

SOME TOURIST welcoming customs also have changed from former years. The last time I saw a Paris taxi driver smile, I knew I had made a serious mistake in the payment or tip. In his favor. In those days, cabbies were prone to slap the meter flag down before the vehicle stopped, and then rattle off the fare in a dialect known only in some remote province.

They don't do that any more. The flag stays up, the meter reading is visible, extra charges for luggage are dutifully explained and all of the drivers I dealt with this trip acknowledged the tip with a courteous "Merci."

Remembering the earlier experience, I took the airport bus into town with two friends. We transferred to a taxi for the short ride to a hotel. The total cost was 90 francs, about $20 or $6.50 each. Checking this against a straight taxi ride to the airport on departure, I discovered the convenience added nothing to the bill. It can be even less if traffic on the express motorway is light.

THERE IS one regrettable change on the Champs Elysees. In the name of traffic management in the vicinity of the Etoile, a tunnel now diverts vehicles under the circular crossroads. Entrances to the tunnel on either side of the boulevard have wiped out the outdoor kiosk comfort stations which used to be located at convenient intervals.

This venerable institution for men only has been replaced with coeducational facilities in the basements of the sidewalk bistros. They are separate and I suppose equal in status, leading from a common foyer supervised by an attendant. The one I patronized had an automatic sprinkler system activated by an electronic beam monitoring the equipment.

But some customs never die. I noticed that the distaff facility was equipped with a door clearly labeled "Dames." There was no door on the gents. And the attendant collecting coins on a plate in the outer office was a young lady.

Vive le tradition!

Friendly Paris budget booklet

A new 48-page brochure entitled "Friendly and Inexpensive Paris, 1976" is available without charge from the French Government Tourist Office. It lists more than 100 hotels with rates from $22-$25 a day, and well over 600 inexpensive restaurants in the $3.50-$5.50 price range.

The handy pocket-sized booklet is ideal for visitors to carry with them as a help to finding quick snack services for use between sightseeing as well as budget menu spots and restaurants with local quarter atmosphere.

It is particularly useful in finding inexpensive hotels in the Paris district of the visitor's choice. There is also a handy subway map in the centerfold.

The French Government Tourist Office's brochure has a good deal of practical information compactly included in the first nine pages, such as a list of department stores and shops selected for their reasonable prices as well as practical information regarding public transport in the Paris region.

Also included is information about post office services, currency exchange offices, the location of open-air markets, antique shops and flea markets, and "how-tos" for duty-free shopping and sales tax reimbursements.

To obtain a copy of "Friendly and Inexpensive Paris, 1976," write the French Government Tourist Office, 610 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10020.

Tailored English tours

The Cotswolds, England

Spring came at last and all England is in bloom. We're driving today past fields of bouncy white lambs with The Remarkable Mrs. Hoade.

Mrs. Hoade runs a tailored, made-to-your-measure guide service. It includes a car. Mrs. Hoade drive and, knowing what you want, she'll have you there in no time.

A Beverly Hills decorator wants a special Victorian wire garden furniture — you just can't find it anymore. Mrs. Hoade looked at the snapshots I showed her. Drove down hedgerow lanes to a walled farmhouse.

In the barn there was a wonderful old gentleman, designing and making this ornamental wire work. May be the only person in the country still doing it.

MRS. HOADE is a proper English lady. She has a crofter's cottage on the wild north coast of Scotland.

She fishes. Plays golf and tennis. Adores England, the Royal Family, flowers and animals.

I found Mrs. Hoade knows the history and the local ghosts. When shops open and when banks close.

She detests freeways. We travel on flowery country lanes, impassable for tour buses. And you lunch in villages that have one pub with seats for eight people.

stan delaplane

The word gets around and Mrs. Hoade gets letters. A Dutch woman wants to tour Britain's cheese producing areas. A Japanese wants to see the Colchester oyster beds. These can be handled by staff assistants.

Mrs. Hoade handles the ones that make her Remarkable.

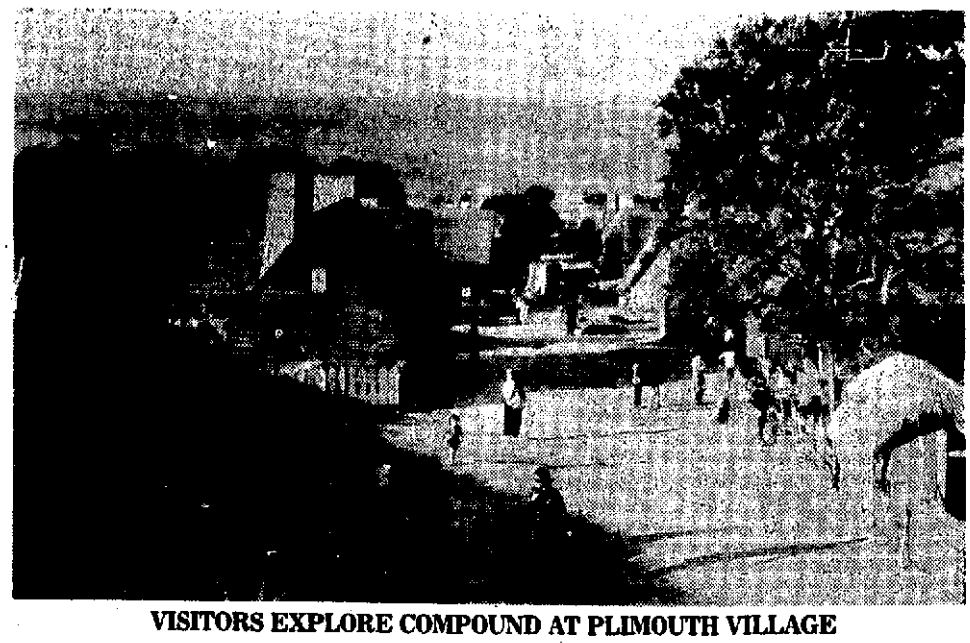

THIS JUNE she will get 10 people into Windsor Castle to see 2 new Knights of the Garter installed. There are only 26 Knights. (If you're in line, you have to wait for one to die.)

The whole Royal Family attends. Great trooping of the Household Brigades. Military bands. Bagpipes.

Getting into this is like front row seats on the opening night of the biggest hit of the year. Remarkable woman, Judy Hoade.

Write her at Grosvenor Guide Service, 13 a. Harriet Walk, London, S.W.1. If you don't know WHAT you want to do, she's got an interesting list. Maybe lunch at Hampton Court Palace in a "Grace and Favor Apartment"? (Don't know what that is, but it sounds graceful and favorable.)

Cost of this smooth service is $75 a day. If you have four people, it's still only $75.

VISITORS EXPLORE COMPOUND AT PLIMOUTH VILLAGE

Colonial scene renewed

In spite of a false start under the name of Plimouth, the Massachusetts city of Plymouth eventually flowered as the first permanent European settlement north of Virginia. And as a birthplace of American traditions.

American Airlines, which offers frequent daily service to Boston, where rental cars, buses, or tours are available to Plymouth, reports that the old days can be relived at the 100-acre Plimouth Plantation. Located south of town, the plantation comes complete with costumed guides and period buildings.

For other yesteryear reminders, visit the Plymouth National Wax Museum and the historic graves at Burial Hill and Cole's Hill. Also tour some of the old homes, with artifacts dating back to the 17th and 18th centuries. These include Sparrow House, Spooner House, Harlow Old-Fort House and Jabez Howland House.

Of course, the original Plymouth Rock should not be missed. It is housed beneath a granite portico. Also see the Mayflower II, a full-scale replica of the original colonizing ship.

Visitors to Plymouth during the Thanksgiving season get a special treat. Local residents dressed in Pilgrim attire re-enact the first Thanksgiving.

S.S. Universe now official name

Orient Overseas Line has officially renamed the S.S. Universe Campus as the S.S. Universe, effective with the liner's July 6 cruise to Mexico.

From 1971 to 1975, the ship had sailed as a floating college under auspices of Chapman College, Orange. In late 1975 the liner was returned to Orient Overseas and refurbished as an all-first-class cruise ship.

Currently, the S.S. Universe sails on a series of year-round cruises to the Mexican Riviera from Los Angeles.

MONTGOMERY WARD TRAVEL

This Summer in the Mediterranean

Two Week Air/Sea Cruise Vacations from $1398*

Including Round Trip Jet Air

The Mediterranean summer. From Piraeus' Naval Week in June through the late summer opera season in Venice, it's an unending parade of pageantry and color. It's the only time to see Greek Tragedy classically performed in the ancient amphitheatre that witnessed its debut 2,000 years ago — or the critically-acclaimed Venice Shakespeare Festival.

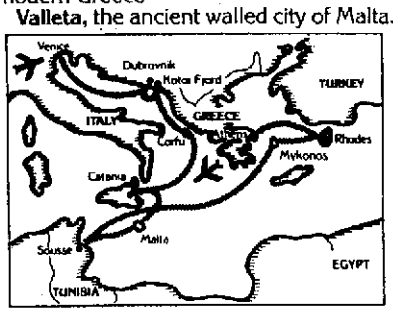

Sail the Seas of Ulysses aboard the world's newest cruise ship and enjoy all the Mediterranean has to offer.

The greatest ports of call:

Venice (where the GOLDEN ODYSSEY, in the Grand Canal, is just minutes from St. Marks Square)

Athens — with plenty of time to explore the Parthenon and modern Greece

Valleta, the ancient walled city of Malta.

Catania, port city of sunny Sicily, gateway to the Roman village of Taormina.

Greek Islands of Rhodes, Mykonos, Corfu

Sousse (Discover the mysteries of North Africa!)

Kotor Fjord — its spectacular beauty rivals any in Norway.

Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia's "Pearl of the Adriatic"

JUST SAY "CHARGE IT!"

Where does Pan Am go in Latin America?

As you can see by the map, there's practically no place Pan Am can't take you to.

Either direct. Or through one of our frequent and convenient connections.

The key to our service from Los Angeles is our daily Flight #515.

It goes direct to Guatemala, and depending on the day of the week, on to Panama, Caracas, or Rio. (Look at the map again and see how many places you can connect to from these cities.)

Besides the fact we can take you to all those places, it might be interesting also to note how we take you to all those places.

To Rio, we have the only 747. To Central America, we have the only daily 747. To Rio, São Paulo, Buenos Aires, Montevideo, we go five times a week. And to Caracas, three times a week.

For more information or to book a flight (or to get on one of Pan Am's low-cost tours), just call your travel agent.

IMAX movie screen dwarfs six-foot man, as shown in scale model of Philadelphia's Living History Center theater.

Big Bicentennial show

Philadelphia, known as the site of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, now is the home of the world's largest movie screen in honor of that event.

Part of an $11.5 million addition to Philadelphia's historic and cultural attractions, the 6,300-square foot screen is mounted on a seven-story frame in the city's new Living History Center.

The gigantic screen was built to show a special Bicentennial film in the IMAX process, which uses the widest motion picture film available with individual frames the size of postcards to surround the viewer with the image.

The film showing throughout 1976 is the 48-minute "American Years," a special production directed by Academy Award winner Francis Thompson.

Dig this, tourists

travel

By BOB HEATON
Ridder News Service

GREENSBURG, Kan. — Back in 1887, a small army of men with shovels began digging a hole here. The Santa Fe Railroad was coming through town. Back then, trains needed water.

So the railroad and the city of Greensburg cooperated and the small army dug.

And dug and dug and dug and dug.

Two years later, the hole was 109 feet deep. It was 32 feet in diameter and had walls of native stone, brought in by wagon from a quarry 13 miles south.

It was the largest hand-dug well in the world. It still is.

The railroad never did make it to Greensburg. But the city had all the water it needed for more than 50 years.

Greensburg discontinued using the well for a municipal water supply in the 1930s, but the big well still has about 20 feet of water.

TODAY, the well is open as a tourist attraction. It is visited by 50,000 people a year. About 10,000 walk to the bottom, to the water's edge.

Greensburg is on U.S. 54 in Kiowa County, 109 miles west of Wichita.

With the well visit behind them, visitors to Greensburg may call at "Burketown," a frontier village owned, operated and built by George Burke and his two sons.

Burke is a collector.

"It really doesn't matter what, "according to one son, Larry. "So long as it is old."

Burke's most visible collection is vehicles.

Ninety are housed in his transportation museum. Most are horse-drawn vehicles from the era of well-digging. Fifteen are old automobiles.

He also has a restaurant in Burketown. A native of Greensburg, Burke's mother ran a restaurant there "for as long as anyone can remember now," Larry said.

Other facets of Burke's collection are housed in other buildings in static displays. There is a hardware store, a blacksmith shop and a livery stable display.

WHEN Burke acquired a miniature steam engine, train and track, he gave rides to children who visited Burketown.

With a train, it only seemed right to have a depot, so he bought the depot at Wilmore, Kan., and had it moved to Burketown, where he restored it and set up a display of antique railroad gear inside.

Greensburg also has the world's largest pallasite meteorite. It weighs 1,000 pounds and was discovered in 1950 on the Ellis Peck farm near the city. The Chamber of Commerce bought it from the owner for $1 per pound.

It is on display at the chamber building by the big well. The same farm near Greensburg previously turned up a 750-pound meteorite.

More than 7,000 pounds of meteorites have been dug up in a two-mile square area.

Your last chance to be part of a first.

The Mississippi Queen

1976 will be remembered as the maiden year of the luxurious new steamboat, the Mississippi Queen. If you're a part of America's only new riverboat to be built in 50 years, you'll never forget the experience. Particularly if you've chosen one of the special Inaugural cruises scheduled when the Fall colors are at their peak. Or a unique Old South cruise highlighting antebellum homes, plantations and Civil War battlefields.

Riverboat Days

Start your adventure at St. Louis, Cincinnati or New Orleans. Then wind your way along the mighty Mississippi and beautiful Ohio. Romance and history await you around every bend as the old river towns pass by. Natchez, Vicksburg, Memphis, Cairo, Hannibal, Louisville, Paducah — all the old ports of call are calling you in '76. And for a refreshing change of pace, you might enjoy the Queen's swimming pool, sauna, or exercise room.

Festive Nights

Lie back and relax in 20th Century comfort as a forgotten America flows past your air-conditioned stateroom. Take in a movie in the Mississippi Queen's theatre. Unwind in one of three cocktail lounges. Or let your hair down for a rollicking evening of banjo pickin', live Dixieland jazz, and a good old-fashioned sing-along. The food? Pure Americana, served up southern style with special riverboat touches.

A Week or Weekend

Spend it aboard America's luxurious new riverboat, the Mississippi Queen. Or the First Lady of the Mississippi, her legendary sistership, the Delta Queen. (Imagine lazy summer days on Huck Finn's river aboard this famous old sternwheeler!)

PENNY-WISE TRAVELER

Follow George's example

WASHINGTON, D.C. — George Washington slept here, and this summer it's expected that more than 4.5 million visitors will want to follow his example.

Obviously, the city's unparalleled collection of monuments makes it a nice place to visit. The question is, with so much company anticipated, do you have to know someone to stay here?

jane morse

The answer is that it certainly helps. But don't worry; the right people are easy to get to.

As it turns out, a funny thing happened on the way to the Bicentennial. Some of the program planners finally took notice of a bad old American habit.

There are, it seems, an unhealthy number of loose-living citizens who like to declare independence from advance travel planning. They even dare to show up at different places at the heart of high season without so much as a single night's lodging arranged.

IN WASHINGTON the authorities wrestled with the nasty problem of how to handle them and opted for something almost revolutionary: help instead of hindrances. The result is the Washington Area Bicentennial Housing Information Service.

Tucked away in the National Visitors Center at Union Station, a band of specialists attached to telephones now supplies free current-day loding information. Callers who need rooms are told which of the area's 182 hotels and motels have space for that night and the numbers to call.

What this means is that the Big Birthday has indirectly given Washington visitors a new freedom. No longer must they stand over a hot pay phone and listen to 75 straight turndowns from bored room clerks holding a full house. One call points you in the right direction.

Each morning the city's housing bureau "speed-calls" the entire hotel-motel list via automatic equipment to find out what's available. Callers can ask what's open in a given area or price range. They can also get the word on private homes, dormitories and campgrounds.

What's more, they can get it seven days a week from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. possibly later if business booms.

Whether the Bicentennial will cause the projected boom is still a big question. So far, the Convention and Visitors Bureau reports, there has been some space available every night, even during the peak month of April.

OFFICIALS ARE, however, wary of forecasting for summer. They're guessing that there may be spot shortages of accommodations at different times and price ranges but foresee "no real problems."

People not employed in the tourist promotion business like to point out that anyone who arrives without a reservation and is fussy about facilities or location IS likely to have problems. So is a family of four that doesn't have at least $25 per night for accommodations.

The Greater Washington area extends about an hour's drive beyond the city limits, and only 63 hotels and motels fall into the $25-and-under category for double rooms. By no means do all have swimming pools or color TV.

For all these reasons, a small spender with big ideas clearly does need to plan ahead. The Bicentennial Housing Service can still help.

It will mail out a free accommodations list with prices to anyone who calls or writes. Address is Room 322, Union Station, Washington, D.C. 20034.

Western expands service

Western Airlines will begin nonstop service between Los Angeles and Miami on Aug. 1 with two DC-10 roundtrips per day.

In addition, the Western schedule pattern also will provide one-stop service between Seattle-Tacoma and Miami in both directions, through-plane, one-stop service eastbound from Honolulu to Miami and connecting service at Los Angeles.

Eastbound flights will leave Los Angeles at 8:45 a.m. and 10:20 p.m., arriving in Miami at 4:30 p.m. and 6:05 a.m. respectively. The morning departure from Los Angeles will originate in Honolulu at 11:20 p.m. and arrive in Los Angeles at 7:25 a.m.

The night flight will depart Seattle-Tacoma at 6:55 p.m.

TRAVEL TOPICS

BY HOWARD JONES

Lake Tahoe and the surrounding region is one of California and Nevada's most beautiful tourist attractions. Most Southern Californians have yet to visit it and enjoy its spectacular beauty.

A recent visit there (my first in over 10 years) indicated that, while there has been some increase in hotels, motels, and guest attractions, it is still generally undisturbed with miles of beautiful wooded shoreline, spectacular bays and great recreation attractions such as golf, tennis, riding, boating and hiking.

Excellent air service is now available by two California carriers PSA and Air California and for those seeking the Las Vegas or Reno type of excitement plenty of that is available as well.

We've got some great "package plans" including air and hotel arrangements. For a mini-vacation or a summer of fun Tahoe has much to offer. Drop in soon and let us tell you about it.

The British Barbara Walters

Channel 2's new news format is making news

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Dinah Shore vs. John Chancellor, Harry Reasoner and Barbara Walters?

Walter Cronkite vs. Paul Moyer, Jerry Dunphy and Christine Lund?

Yes, that's the way it'll be when the recently announced programming changes on KNXT (Channel 2) go into effect.

Starting June 28, the CBS owned-and-operated television station in Los Angeles will drop its 6-to-7-p.m. local newscast (while retaining its 5-to-6 news program); will move the "CBS Evening News With Walter Cronkite" from 7 to 6 p.m., and will shift the "Dinah!" talk show from the afternoon to the 6:30-to-8 p.m. slot.

This means that Dinah will be competing against the national newscasts of NBC (Chancellor) and ABC (Reasoner and, starting Sept. 20, Miss Walters) from 7 to 7:30 p.m. in the Los Angeles-Long Beach area.

And that Cronkite, instead of being up against the national newscasts of the other two networks, will be competing here against the local newscasts of KNBC (Moyer) and KABC (Dunphy and Miss Lund) from 6 to 6:30 each weekday evening.

It means, too, that we'll be getting a national newscast that is only two hours old instead of three. As of now, the Cronkite, Chancellor and Reasoner programs all air three hours later here than they do in the East.

WHAT WILL KNXT's cutting in half of its early evening local newscast mean in the way of personnel cutbacks? And, in particular, what's in store for anchorpersons Joseph Benti, Sandy Hill and Patrick Emory?

BOB SCHAEFER

CHRIS DESMOND

Pat has been anchoring the 5-to-6 news, with Joe and Sandy coanchoring the 6-to-7 program. One or more of them is likely to lose out as an early evening anchorperson under Channel 2's new format. All three must be having some anxious moments these days waiting to learn their fate.

When KNXT gets around to announcing who's going to stay and who, if any, is going to leave, it will be big news to many TV viewers. For television newscasters are more than just reporters of the news; they are celebrities — TV stars — themselves, with many devoted fans. Barbara Walters is just one example of a newscaster-star. To the many viewers who bring Sandy Hill, Pat Emory and Joe Benti into their homes regularly, these newscasters, too, are stars — and they seem like friends.

And it hurts to see one of your favorites go down the tube.

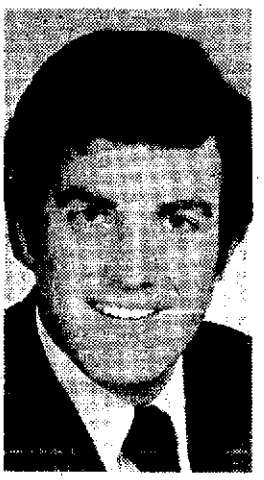

"ALL KINDS of rumors have been going around to the effect that we've already decided who will anchor our program," said Bob Schaefer, KNXT's director of news, "but that's not correct. We're still weighing it — no decision has been made yet.

"We haven't decided if we'll cut back one, two or three of the anchorpersons — or keep all three. If a decision had been made, we'd let them know now to end the rumors."

What about reports that Emory appears to be the safest?

"Wrong," replied Schaefer. "I know it's being said because we worked together in St. Louis, but there's no truth to it."

The news director admitted there's little likelihood of having triple anchors from 5 to 6, but said "we could break them up." Emory now does the 11-to-11:30-p.m. news as well as the 5-to-6 program.

PATRICK EMORY, SANDY HILL, JOSEPH BENTI . . . three's a crowd?

"There's not much security for newscasters, is there?" I asked.

"Or for news directors," Schaefer replied, with a laugh. "But anyone going in knows this. Along with the good pay, you have to accept this."

He is KNXT's third news director in less than a year and a half.

HE WAS ASKED if he has the responsibility for all hiring and firing in the news department.

Replied Schaefer: "We have a dialogue on hiring and firing, especially when it involves anyone as important as an anchorperson. No one likes to be the sole executioner. If so, something's wrong with him."

Schaefer was named director of news by Chris Desmond just a day or two after Desmond succeeded Russ Barry as vice president and general manager of KNXT early last March. He had been news director of KMOX-TV, the CBS-owned station in St. Louis, for more than five years, and Desmond had been general manager there since August 1975.

Since Desmond took over at KNXT, there have been a number of changes in the executive ranks, and some of the other newcomers have been brought in from the St. Louis station. The new regime has been dubbed "the Missouri Mafia" by some staff members.

I interviewed Schaefer for an hour in his office and, afterwards, talked briefly with Desmond in his quarters. Both seem convinced that an hour of local news in the early evening is enough for a TV station to offer.

WALTER CRONKITE

DINAH SHORE

Desmond scoffed at reports that the reason for the news cutback is to save money, and said he intends to spend just about as much on the one-hour program as is being spent for two hours.

"I'M ASHAMED of some of the things we have to put on to fill two hours," Schaefer told me. "We're not equipped to do two hours of news.

"I want an hour of news — professional news. We're interested in getting a quality product on the air. You should never equate quantity and quality. Is Cronkite any less good because he has just 30 minutes?

"The Wall Street Journal doesn't have the space of most newspapers, but it certainly does a good job."

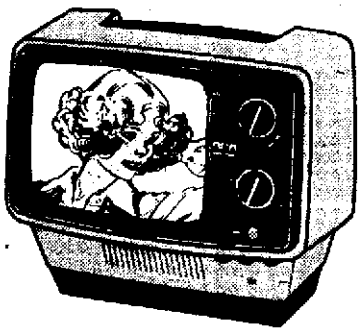

In answer to a question, Schaefer said there are 105 persons in the KNXT news department, counting camera crews.

"If I'm news director here, there won't be a major cutback," he told me. "I've heard rumors that 60 persons will be cut — why, that's ludicrous. I've also heard — and I can't say for sure that this is correct — that only 10 persons were added when the station went from one hour to two hours of news."

KNXT was the first Los Angeles station to expand from a half-hour to an hour newscast, in the early 1960s, and "The Big

'Ball Four' heads Tele Vues

'Ball Four' heads for the tube as comedy series

By GARY DEEB
Chicago Tribune

In one of the more promising moves in preparation for the 1976 fall television season, CBS has decided to make a weekly comedy series out of one of the funniest and most humanistic books ever written about sports.

"Ball Four," the 1970 baseball classic by ex-New York Yankee pitcher Jim Bouton, will become a Wednesday night TV program this September.

And Bouton, who became personna non grata in some baseball quarters because of the tattletale nature of his book, will play the starring role — that of a relief hurler named Jim Barton.

"NO, DON'T say I'm the star," Bouton told me in a phone conversation the other night. "Just say I'm gonna be the lead. There are a few professional actors in the cast who'll probably steal the thunder away from me. But that's OK — as long as it's good."

The adaptation of his book into a TV series brings Bouton to the fourth stage of a most amazing career.

A star pitcher in the early '60s for the Yanks, Bouton lost his fastball and became a fringe big leaguer by the close of the decade. At the tail-end of his playing days, he began jotting notes and making tapes in locker rooms, bullpens, and airports.

THE RESULT was "Ball Four," a controversial best-seller that cast a whimsical eye on baseball. The book was funny and it was true. It upset a lot of players who didn't appreciate their superstar bubbles being burst.

"I didn't write that stuff to put guys down," Bouton says. "I wrote it because I thought it was funny as hell. There's a certain kind of jock humor that I've always liked."

"Ball Four" led to Bouton's next lucrative pastime — a TV sportscasting gig in New York where he currently handles the 11 p.m. report for WCBS-TV.

"But I'm quitting that job," he says, "because I'll have to devote full time to the TV show."

BOUTON created the TV version of "Ball Four" in collaboration with Vic Ziegel, a New York Post sportswriter, and Marvin Kitman, TV critic for the Long Island newspaper Newsday. All three also will write scripts for the series.

Ziegel just resigned his newspaper job. And Kitman, according to Bouton, "probably is on his way to Hollywood to purchase a kidney-shaped swimming pool."

The show will find Bouton and his jock buddies toiling for a fictional club called the Washington Americans. One of the supporting characters, a

England's Barbara works for lot less

LONDON (AP) — The hottest TV property here is a comely, 30-year-old woman who can speak English like the Queen and maul Muhammad Ali in an interview — and would like to earn one-thirtieth of the $1-million-a-year America's Barbara Walters reportedly is getting from ABC.

Angela Rippon is her name. Every night she gazes a little myopically out of the tube at 8.5 million viewers as the first female anchor — called "news reader" here — of the British Broadcasting Corp.'s most popular news program.

She also takes her turn with the BBC's three male news readers on less prestigious news programs from midmorning until signoff at 11:30 p.m.

Although Angela Rippon just won Britain's "Newscaster of the Year" award, her working conditions are a bit different from those of Barbara Walters, a star of NBC's "Today" show for 13 years.

SHE DOESN'T rate a limousine or even a private office. She shares a cubicle with the BBC's three male headline-spinners, does her own hair, and gets along without that necessity of American TV correspondents, the agent who negotiates the new contracts.

Despite the dutiful attentions of the British press, which went into paroxysms when one of her earrings fell off during a broadcast (she didn't miss a syllable), there is little showbiz glamour about her.

Miss Rippon comes from the cigar-store Indian school of BBC newscasting. Unlike the suspiciously mobile eyebrows of American anchormen, Miss Rippon's are fixed in a manner that gives her the air of a gazelle reproving a hunter.

And her tone reminds many viewers of their fourth grade math teacher.

WHILE NOT complaining about her peaches-and-cream complexion, or the distribution of her 119 pounds, a London newspaper recently urged Angela to shed her matronly, high-necked wardrobe and slip into something more representative of the land that gave the world Carnaby Street.

ANGELA RIPPON

Next day she received 1,000 letters that in effect said: "Stay as sweet as you are."

The BBC considers it vulgar to talk about money, but indications are that $30,000 a year would make her contact lenses pop out.

During a recent interview, Miss Rippon laughed heartily at the thought of the cool millions Miss Walters soon will earn at ABC. She wished her well, but doubted if all the BBC announcers together even earn Walter Cronkite's paltry stipend, which is believed to be between $300,000 and $400,000 a year.

"But then, you must remember," she added, "we pay our dustmen (garbage collectors) even less."

MISS RIPPON isn't tempted by the big money on the other side of the Atlantic, having strong opinions about commercials — which pay for the American networks' news shows — compromising a journalist's credibility.

"People have to believe what I say, and if some of what I say is for sale it leaves everything else open to questions of bias," she explained.

At the BBC, there are no sponsors to worry about. The money comes from the annual fee each owner of a radio or TV set pays the government.

"Nobody ever offered to make me a star," Miss Rippon said, alluding to the book — which she hasn't read — by American newswoman Sally Quinn, called "We're going to Make You a Star."

The book concerned Miss Quinns trials and trevails at CBS, where she lasted only six months as co-anchor of the "CBS Morning News" before quitting to rejoin the Washington Post.

ANGELA only wants to be called a pro, and she's earned it. She got her start as a reporter, then as a news reader on a regional station.

Her weekly grind usually includes about three 15-hour days, followed by three days off, during which she pops into her sports car and drives 250 miles to the wild country of Dartmoor in southwest England to join her businessman husband, Christopher Dare.

They still talk at the BBC about the way her cultured consonants cooled the talkative Muhammad Ali. He wanted to expand on the fate of his next victim in the boxing ring, but she kept hammering away about the time Ken Norton broke his jaw.

BBC veterans said they'd never seen the Louisville Lip so buttoned.

The INFINITY WAVE TRANSMISSION LINE COLUMN incorporates two woofer drivers, one a "sub-woofer", the other an "upper-woofer." Uniquely, both woofers act together through the active transmission line to yield high efficiency in the low frequencies with exceptional dynamics. The UPPER MIDRANGE section employs two tweeters in a front and rear configuration — a direct radiating tweeter and a transient tweeter. The TWEETER section uses a WAVE TRANSMISSION LINE TWEETER — probably Infinity's most stunning achievement. It's not a cone or piston drive and not an electrostatic. This "Walsh-tweeter" emits 360° coherent radiation and has a frequency response past 30k Hz. Sure we've got great deals on receivers, turntables, and tape decks, too! But you don't have to buy anything else to take advantage of this super deal on these INFINITY COLUMNS. Buy a pair, buy two pair!

Hate commercials? You can always gripe

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press

Watching television may not cost money but, as everyone knows, there is a price to be paid: sitting through commercials.

Yet, for all the griping people do about commercials, they don't seem to pass much of it along to those in a position to bring about changes.

CBS says that at the network level it receives an average of no more than 75 letters a month complaining about commercials. ABC says it gets 20 at the most.

Consumer groups, network officials, advertisers and advertising agencies, asked what recourse the individual TV viewer had to objectionable television commercials, generally agreed that a letter often is worth the effort — especially if a lot of other people are complaining about the same subject.

"I THINK the most effective thing is writing a letter to the guy that paid the bill — the sponsor," said Jack McQueen, director of broadcasting in Los Angeles for the Foote, Cone & Belding advertising agency.

"We're in business," said Ernie Filice, national commercial coordinator for McDonald's restaurant chain, "and you're only as good as your customers. If they're unhappy, if they are turned off by what you're doing, you might as well hang it up."

Individual TV stations are equally sensitive to criticism because they are licensed by the federal government to serve the public, and licenses can be revoked.

Filice said McDonald's once used a foreign car in a television commercial, got a batch of angry letters and now specifies that only American-made products are to be used in its messages.

CBS EXECUTIVE Jack Hinton said Alka Seltzer cut short the run of a commercial showing Salvadore Dali painting an upset stomach on a woman in a body stocking because of viewer complaints. And Shake 'n' Bake withdrew a spot from the network after TV watchers in the South wrote in about the phony southern accent one of the characters was using.

A media activist group based in the Boston area, Action for Children's Television, persuaded the Federal Communications Commission to reduce the number of minutes devoted to commercials on Saturday morning children's shows.

The organization also convinced a station not to use fireworks commercials on a children's show.

If you feel there are too many commercials during a program or that they are too loud, write the station you're watching and, if it's a network show, the network in question.

A copy also should go to the Federal Communications Commission, which is charged with regulating the broadcast industry.

If you believe a particular commercial contains false or misleading information, write the Federal Trade Commission in Washington or the National Advertising Division or the Council of Better Business Bureaus in New York City.

WHERE TO SEND YOUR COMPLAINTS

Here is a list of agencies to which you can write to complain about — or praise — television commercials:

ABC Television, 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019.

CBS Television, 51 West 52nd St., New York, N.Y. 10019.

NBC Television, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10020.

Federal Communications Commission, 1919 M St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20590.

National Advertising Division, an advertising watchdog set up by the Council of Better Business Bureaus, 845 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.

National Citizens Committee for Broadcasting, a media activist group, 1346 Connecticut Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Action for Children's Television, another media activist group, 46 Austin St., Newtonville, Mass. 02160.

The addresses of manufacturers sponsoring commercials are available in the Standard Directory of Advertisers, published yearly by the National Register Publishing Co. and available in most big libraries.

Your local TV stations and governmental consumer agencies set up by your city or state.

Channel 2's news in news

News" was the ratings leader until the early 1970s. In the spring of 1974, the three network stations in L.A. expanded their early evening local news programs to two hours.

Over a period of years, the once-dominant Channel 2 news has declined in popularity to the point that it now trails the local news shows on Channels 4 and 7.

NOT ONLY that, but Newsroom 2 has been attracting fewer viewers from 5 to 7 p.m. than some of the syndicated rerun series on independent stations.

Thus, the new 5-to-8-p.m. format will be put into effect to combat the popularity of such shows as "The Partridge Family," "Adam-12," "Bewitched" and "I Love Lucy," as well as to compete against the news programs on the other two network stations.

Desmond pointed out that studies of the local market show that viewers prefer watching entertainment shows to news from 6:30 to 8 p.m. He said a higher percentage of the 5-to-6-p.m. viewers watch news than do viewers from 6 to 7, and that even a larger share of the audience watches news from 11 to 11:30 p.m.

Schaefer, also, noted that the independent stations show a "dramatic increase" in viewers from 6 to 8.

He said Channel 2 is aiming both for higher ratings and "better demographics." In other words, it wants more viewers and, in particular, it wants more women in the 18-to-49 age group, who are the biggest shoppers.

Miss Shore's nationally syndicated "Dinah!" talk show is counted on to appeal to the women's audience.

IF SANDY HILL, Patrick Emory and Joseph Benti are wondering what's going to happen to them under the new setup, two Channel 2 on-camera personalities already are assured of having roles on the revised 5-to-6 newscast.

Bill Stout, veteran reporter and former anchorman, will do a new feature "Perspective," and Jim Hill will be the sportscaster on the program, it has been announced.

Hill, a 1968 graduate of Texas A&I and a former pro football player, joined KNXT last February as weekend sportscaster after experience as a TV sports reporter in Green Bay, Wis., and San Diego.

Hill already has replaced the veteran Tom Kelly, who was dropped, on the 5 p.m. news.

With "Perspective," Stout will continue his role as an investigative reporter and also will offer news analysis.

In making the announcement about Stout's role, Desmond said he "will ferret out stories of human interest which pit the little guy against the massive bureaucracy of government. He will dig deep for pieces on wasted government spending or fraudulent consumer practices.

"He will expose hypocrites and applaud heroes. He will know this community inside and out. He will be its conscience."

Schaefer told me "Perspective" will "put controversies into light."

Added the news director: "I don't know anyone doing it in this market. In fact, I haven't seen too much investigative reporting. We need imaginative, bold, innovative reporting. Every reporter should be an investigative reporter.

BILL STOUT

"'Perspective' has to have some bite to it — it will have to rankle people. Otherwise, it will just be bland.

"At the same time, it will have to be fair and accurate."

SCHAEFER is a native of St. Louis and a 1958 graduate of the University of Missouri. His studies were interrupted for two years as he served a stint in the Army. He claims he "flunked out" of journalism school — "I was the only person ever to take News 101 three times" — and changed his major to English literature.

After graduation, he journeyed to Wilmington, Calif., and tried to get in the Merchant Marine, but failed, he told me. Then, after working at a Santa Monica parking lot for a couple of months, he went to New Orleans to visit his sister. While there, he spotted a small ad in the paper for a reporter in Lafayette, Ind., answered the ad and launched his career in journalism.

After a short stay in Lafayette, he worked for United Press International in Dallas, Baton Rouge, La., and New Orleans. Then, in 1966, he began his TV career as an on-camera investigative reporter for WDSU-TV in New Orleans. After about a year, he became assistant news director there, and, in September 1970, he went to KMOX-TV in St. Louis as news director.

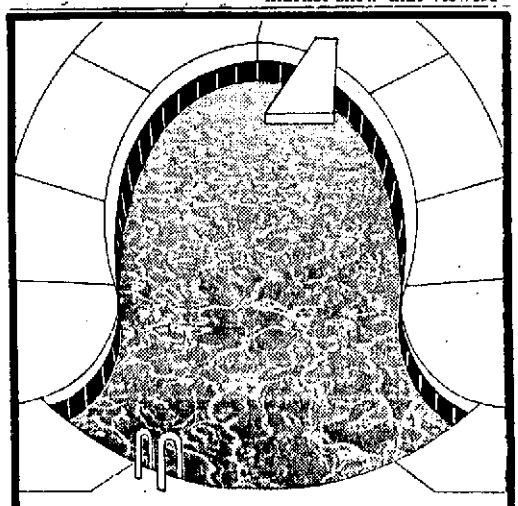

He is married and has two children, and is waiting for his family to join him as soon as school is out in St. Louis.

Schaefer's rise has been rapid, and he says he doesn't worry too much about the insecurities in his line of work.

"I love a challenge," he said, "and I'm confident we'll become No. 1. The hardest thing is to keep your interest from lagging after achieving a goal."

In St. Louis, his station's news ratings zoomed 10 points to take over first place. It might be more difficult in L.A., but at least his interest won't lag for awhile.

beefy catcher named Rhino, is played by ex-pro footballer Ben Davidson.

"THE APPEAL will be very similar to 'M-A-S-H," Bouton explains. "That's because baseball humor is a lot like Army humor. You've got a bunch of men under a lot of pressure, living in close proximity. It leads to tension and hilarity and all kinds of craziness.

"Athletes don't mince words. I mean, a guy with an acne problem is called 'Pizza Face.' There's a certain kind of roughness to it that's honest and funny."

Bouton feels most movies about baseball go awry because they're written by folks who aren't athletically oriented.

"They also cast it all wrong," he says. "You end up with a bunch of actors and models dressed up in baseball suits — people like Cary Grant and William Bendix and Tony Perkins. When it comes time for one of those guys to swing a bat, it's all over."

"Ball Four" will enjoy an enviable time slot — at 8:30 p.m. Wednesdays, right before "All in the Family," which is being moved to a new night.

ROBERT MacNEIL anchors "The Robert MacNeil Report," a Public Broadcasting Service program of news commentary and analysis, which airs Monday through Friday at 7:30 p.m. on Ch. 28.

SPECIAL

CARMEN: THE DREAM AND THE DESTINY (50), 6:00 p.m. — Interweaves the tragic story of "carmen" by composer Georges Bizet with the rehearsals and preparation for the production of his work at the Hamburg State Opera House.

THE D.A. (28), 9:00 p.m. — Presents live debate featuring the six candidates for L.A. District Attorney. Program will be presented in press conference format with candidates questioned by panel of three political journalists.

FREE PRESS/FAIR TRIAL (4), 10:00 p.m. — "Is the First Amendment Unconstitutional?" An extensive examination of the apparent conflict between two Constitutional guarantees — a defendant's right of a fair trial and the journalist's right to freely report information about those criminal proceedings. Edwin Newman reports.

BILLY GRAHAM — TAIPEI & HONG KONG (9), 10:00 p.m.

FRED SANFORD (Redd Foxx) is angered by Lamont's change to African dress and customs in "Lamont Goes African," on NBC's "The Best of Sanford and Son," Wednesday at 9 p.m. Then, two nights later, it's Fred who seems ridiculous to Lamont; he's trying out to the senior Olympics on "Sanford and Son," at 9 p.m. Friday. Both repeat shows are on Ch. 4.

The BIBLE Says

J. T. Smith

MIRACLES HAVE CEASED #6

Of course, we are still in possession of the people in our congregation who need healing and also in possession of the $5000.00 that we offered for such a miracle being performed. In this article we want to answer an objection that is offered by our friends who believe in miraculous divine healing today.

We are often charged with being like the Pharisees of old whom Jesus told there would be no sign given them . . . or like the people in Corinth who were condemned for seeking a sign. I deny that we are in this category. Here's why.

1. God made His confirming miracle available for all unbelievers (Acts 19:11-12). Signs were given to convince the unbeliever. They were never refused to an honest searcher of truth.
2. Today the dodge is for those who put the modern miracle workers to the test that we are like the Pharisees. However as we have already stated, this is not true.
   a. John 6:31—They wanted to fill their bellies. This is not our aim.
   b. Matthew, John—They had seen many signs. We have seen none.
   c. Luke 23:8-12—Some wanted to see miracles only for "kicks." We want to see them, if real, for a godly purpose.
   d. Matthew 12:22-37—The Jews said Jesus worked by the power of the Devil. We know it was by the Holy Spirit.
   e. Therefore, we are not like the Pharisees. This is only a dodge.

Modern miracle workers deny the plain Bible statement that miracles have ceased. "Charity never faileth: but whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away. For we know in part, and we prophesy in part. But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away" (1 Cor. 13:8-10). Next week, we shall discuss these passages in detail.

TV MOVIE TIPS

TODAY

"The Grass Is Greener," 3 & 7 p.m., Ch. 9 (1961). Cary Grant, Deborah Kerr, Robert Mitchum. An American millionaire invades the private part of an earl's mansion and falls in love with the lady of the house.

"The Mind of Mister Soames," 8 p.m., Ch. 11 (1970). Terence Stamp, Robert Vaughn, Nigel Davenport. Based on the novel by Charles Eric Maine, story of a man emerging from a life-long state of suspended animation with the mind of an infant, and his struggles to adapt himself to life in the adult jungle.

"Arabesque," 11:40 p.m., Ch. 2 (1966). Gregory Peck, Sophia Loren, Kieron Moore. An American exchange professor is kidnapped by a Middle East prime minister and aided in his escape by the mistress of an oil magnate whom the prime minister fears.

MONDAY

"Along Came Spider," 3:30 p.m., Ch. 7 (1969). Suzanne Pleshette, Ed Nelson, Andrew Prine. Feeling that her husband's death was one of foul play, his wife traps an innocent man into a murder charge, and a bizarre twist of fate sets off a frightening chain of events.

"Horror of Dracula," 8 p.m., Ch. 5 (1958). Peter Cushing, Christopher Lee, Michael Gough. Every night for 600 years, Dracula rises from his coffin to seek the blood he needs to keep himself alive.

"Bachelor in Paradise," 8 p.m., Ch. 9, (1959). Bob Hope, Lana Turner, Janis Paige. Daffy doings in the suburbs as bachelor Hope explores life in a modern housing development.

"Goodbye, Mr. Chips," 11:30 p.m., Ch. 2 (1969). Peter O'Toole, Petula Clark, Sir Michael Redgrave. Tender and moving story tells of a schoolmaster whose life and outlook are changed by love.

"Ask Any Girl," 8 p.m., Ch. 9 (1959). David Niven, Shirley MacLaine, Rod Taylor. Girl arrives in New York looking for a career and a husband and after many situations, wins both.

WEDNESDAY

"Dr. Terror's House of Horrors," 8 p.m., Ch. 5 (1965). Peter Cushing, Christopher Lee. Five men sharing a British railway compartment are joined by a mysterious doctor, who reads their future in his card.

"The Last Hunt," 8 p.m., Ch. 9 (1956). Robert Taylor, Stewart Granger. 1883: Conflict between two hunting partners, one a rancher whose herd was destroyed by a buffalo stampede, and the other a sadistic killer.

THURSDAY

"The Miracle Worker," 3:30 p.m., Ch. 7 (1962). Anne Bancroft, Patty Duke, Victor Jory, Inga Swenson. Inspiring story of how a dedicated young Irish girl brought light into the dark, cold world of Helen Keller, a deaf, mute and blind child.

"The V.I.P.'s," 8 p.m., Ch. 9 (1963). Elizabeth Taylor, Richard Burton, Louis Jourdan. Cross section of V.I.P.'s who wait overnight in a posh London Airport's lounge for a fog delayed flight to N.Y.C.

"Geronimo," 9 p.m., Ch. 4 (1962). Chuck Connors, Kamala Devi, Ross Martin. Chuck Connors stars as the Apache leader who waged a personal and protracted war against the U.S. Government when corrupt officials reneged on treaty provisions.

FRIDAY

"Gaily, Gaily," 9 p.m., Ch. 7 (1969). Beau Bridges, Melina Mercouri, Brian Keith, George Kennedy. Crooked politicians, crookeder reformers and goodhearted ladies of the evening educate a simple country boy to the wicked ways of the city in 1910 Chicago.

"The Culpepper Cattle Company," 9 p.m., Ch. 2 (1972). Gary Grimes, Billy Bush, Luke Askew. Gary Grimes stars as a youngster whose confrontation with cattle rustlers and killers turns into a fight for his life.

SATURDAY

"Sodom & Gomorrah," 8 p.m., Ch. 9 (1963). Stewart Granger, Rossana Podesta, Pier Angeli. The brother of the queen of the twin cities of sin is nursed back to health by Lot's daughter and saved with the Hebrews when the cities are destroyed.

"Hey, I'm Alive," 8:30 p.m., Ch. 7 (1975). Edward Asner, Sally Struthers, Milton Selzer. Story of the fight for survival of two people following the crash of their light airplane in the frozen Yukon.

"The Nelson Affair," 9 p.m., Ch. 4 (1973). Peter Finch, Glenda Jackson star as a couple whose love defied the propriety of English nobility.

"Come September," 11:30 p.m., Ch. 2 (1961). Rock Hudson, Gina Lollobrigida, Sandra Dee, Bobby Darin, Walter Slezak. Wealthy American arrives at his Italian villa two months earlier than usual and discovers his caretaker uses the villa as a hotel for 11 months of the year.

CLARENCE KELLEY

J. EDGAR HOOVER

Q. How does Clarence Kelley, current head of the FBI, compare to J. Edgar Hoover? I realize comparisons are frequently invidious and based on opinion. Even so, I would like to know.—D. L., Media, Pa.

A. Sanford J. Ungar, author of "FBI," one of the most thoroughly researched books on the bureau and also one of the most objective, says that Hoover was "prejudiced and narrow-minded, overtly biased against black people." Hoover once promised that so long as he was head of the FBI, it would never have a black agent. He was also, according to Ungar, "intolerant of women in any but subservient positions." Hoover also conspired to break the law by countenancing burglaries, break-ins, and mail intercepts of organizations and people with whose politics he disagreed. Although Clarence Kelley worked under Hoover, he is of a different breed. Kelley is more honest, open, tolerant, understanding and democratic. To him has fallen the Herculean job of restructuring the morale, image and organization of the FBI. Under Hoover, the FBI was an authoritarian agency beyond the control of the Congress and in whose ranks men rose by virtue of sycophancy rather than merit. "FBI," by Sanford J. Ungar, is published by Atlantic Press-Little Brown.

Q. Is Chris Evert, the tennis star, suffering from a broken heart because Jimmy Connors dumped her for Marjorie Wallace?—P. T. Owens, North Las Vegas, Nev.

A. Last year Chris Evert won $323,977 in tennis tournament prize money. At 21 she held 16 major championships, had won 56 consecutive matches, was well-liked and widely respected. She is still 21, and while she may have lost Jimmy Connors as a sweetheart, such a loss may eventually prove a blessing. Connors is playing the field. No one woman deserves what he has to offer in charm, manners and intellect.

Q. Was the late Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery of World War II fame a practicing homosexual?—T. E. E., Berkeley, Cal.

A. There is no evidence that Montgomery was a practicing homosexual. He had an unhappy childhood, feuded with his mother, and when his wife passed away after 10 years of marriage, displayed relatively little need for other women. He was rude, brusque, cocky, domineering, emotionally immature, incapable of giving love. Montgomery felt that his mother had denied him love, and as he grew into manhood he never learned how to bestow it upon others. He was, however, friendly and sympathetic to junior officers, and this behavior stimulated rumors concerning his sex life. One of the most revealing and controversial books on Montgomery is "The Field Marshal," by Alun Chalfont.

Q. People say that the richest man in the South is a man named Claude Canada. Can you tell anything about him, or if there even is such a man?—Mary Lerner, New Orleans, La.

A. Claude Canada, 57, of Kimper, Ky., is owner of the Canada Coal Co. in Pike County. He is worth about $250 million, owns eight Rolls-Royces, a $2-million home, pays his employees a minimum of $50 a day, provides each of his foremen with a company Cadillac for personal use. He is one of the new so-called "Coal Multimillionaires."

PENNY AND CLAUDE CANADA

Q. How old are Gregory Peck and Bette Davis? I know they share birthdays.—Lena Harris Gould, Hickory, N.C.

A. Gregory Peck and Bette Davis are respectively 60 and 68. Peck was born April 5, 1916; Davis, April 5, 1908.

Q. I recall a Jimmy Carter who was a country and western singer. Is this the same Jimmy Carter who wants to be President of the U.S.?—Carol Trombly, Wyoming, Minn.

A. It is not. The Jimmy Carter who wants to become President is non-guitar-playing. He is in the peanut-farming business. He is also a good old country boy.

HUMPHREY BOGART AND THIRD WIFE, MAYO METHOT

Q. Is it true that the late Humphrey Bogart used to slap his wives around just so that he could get in a tough-guy mood?—Louise Richardson, Raleigh, N.C.

A. Bogart and his third wife, Mayo Methot, when alcoholically stimulated, would haul off at each other. After Bogie married Lauren Bacall in 1945, however, and she gave birth to two children, Stephen and Leslie, Bogart nipped less and softened his lifestyle.

Q. I wonder if you can tell me what happened to Sam Bowers, who used to be the Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan in Mississippi?—T.P., Laurel, Miss.

A. Samuel Bowers and six others were convicted by an all-white jury in 1967 of depriving citizens of their constitutional rights in the shooting to death in 1964 of three civil rights workers, Michael Schwerner, 23; James Chaney, 21, and Andrew Goodman, 20. Bowers was sentenced to a 10-year term in the federal penitentiary. This past March, after serving six years, Bowers was released from McNeil Island federal penitentiary in Washington. He was granted time off for good behavior and placed on probation.

Q. Bill Wyman, guitarist for the Rolling Stones, has been living with a Swedish chick for years. What's her name, where do they live, and is Wyman really 45?—Ann W., Darby, Pa.

A. Bill Wyman, 38, is a British tax exile, recently built a $750,000 home near Vence, in the South of France, where he lives with Swedish girlfriend Astrid Lundstrom.

Keeping Up...With Youth

by Pamela Swift

THE LOOK: BACK TO THE '50'S

Old-Time Elegance

The Teddy Boy cult of the jiving 1950's is the rave all over again in London. Each week thousands of rock 'n' rollers show up at various dance halls wearing the type clothes their big brothers wore 20 years ago. The kids have fallen in love with what they call "the Teds look."

Read and Write

The Veterans Administration has a new booklet, "Home Buying Veteran," which explains all areas of concern to prospective home buyers.

If you're a veteran of World War II, the Korean war, or have service after Jan. 31, 1955, your GI loan rights are available until you use them, with no deadlines.

For a free copy of "Home Buying Veteran," write Consumer Information Center, Dept. 8, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Deaf Generation

If they keep listening to rock music, many such enthusiasts by age 70 will be more interested in hearing aids than music.

Rock music with a noise level which exceeds 104 decibels can lead to hearing loss.

This is why Julius Bloom of New York City's Carnegie Hall has forbidden any rock concert above that decibel level. Under this restriction, such groups as Led Zeppelin, Slade, Grand Funk Railroad, Rolling Stones, and Black Sabbath cannot make it at Carnegie.

The noise level in an average discotheque is the equivalent of a thunderstorm, and the noise generated by a live rock group is twice as loud. According to a study conducted by the Association of German Engineers, such music can lead to "permanent hearing defects or deafness."

Noise is measured by decibels and becomes detrimental to health when it crosses the 90-decibel range. Led Zeppelin in concert reportedly plays in the 123-decibel range and the Slade rock group in the 127-decibel range.

Female Dentists

There are 59 accredited dental schools in this country. Currently, 1861 women are enrolled in them. These women comprise 9% of the 20,767 pre-doctoral students in dental schools. This is more than twice the number two years ago.

In the past five years the number of women entering dental schools has increased more than sevenfold.

Exclusive of living costs, a first-year dental student spends somewhere between $4200 and $4600 on tuition, instruments, supplies, textbooks, and other fees.

Tuition costs for resident and non-resident dental students have jumped 68% and 62% respectively since 1970.

Protest Spreads

The protest songs of Joan Baez, Bob Dylan, and other American artists are getting young people in Czechoslovakia into serious trouble. A few weeks ago, 18 of them were arrested and charged with "rowdiness and disturbing the peace."

Those arrested were young writers, artists, students and members of pop groups singing for freedom, a dangerous theme in a Communist country.

In addition to the 18 who were arrested and threatened with three-year jail sentences, dozens of others have been interrogated in Prague, where house searches have resulted in the confiscation of Baez, Dylan, and other American recordings.

Traffic Victims

Children in Western Europe suffer a higher rate of traffic fatalities than those in the United States.

An average of 364 of every 100,000 children under age 15 in West Germany, for example, die annually in traffic accidents. In Great Britain the figure is 362 per 100,000.

Other countries whose traffic kills more than 200 children per 100,000 each year include Belgium (292), Austria (281), Switzerland (233), The Netherlands (216), and Denmark (212).

In the U.S. 160 children per 100,000 die on our streets and highways. And the statistics are even better in France (156), Italy (110), and Hungary (75).

GROWING FAST IN HIGH SCHOOL AND COLLEGE: SOCCER

Soccer Boom

At the secondary school and college levels, soccer is becoming one of the fastest-growing team sports in athletic programs.

"Economics and safety have played key roles in soccer's popularity," says Bob Anderson, editor and publisher of Soccer World. "Many school boards have cut athletic budgets and added soccer, because it can be played without a lot of fancy, expensive equipment.

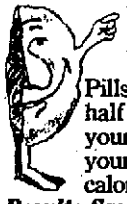

"Moreover," he adds, "soccer is safer than football. And one doesn't have to be a 210-pound strongman to play the game. Parents are enthusiastic about the sport because they know their kids are having a good time without getting killed."

Soccer is in its infancy in the U.S. but growing fast.

Introducing Squoze™

Pillsbury's new family drink mix with half the sugar.

Half the sugar makes sense for the whole family.

Pillsbury knew that a drink mix with just half the sugar would make a lot of sense for your entire family. Because while reducing your family's sugar intake, it would reduce calories, too. So we squoze sugar in half. Result: Squoze, with only half the sugar and half the calories of most pre-sweetened drink mixes.

Half the sugar means a lower price.

New Squoze has a much lower everyday price per quart than any other leading pre-sweetened drink mix. Because when we squoze out half the sugar, we squoze down the price.

Half the sugar means a smaller 10 quart can.

Sugar adds to bulk. So when we squoze out half the sugar, we squoze our can to about half the size of other 10 quart cans. It's easier to handle, easier to store and easier to keep more flavors on hand.

Half the sugar makes a great tasting all-family drink.

Grown-ups, teenagers, even kids will love new Squoze from Pillsbury. Because we squoze out half the sugar and came up with six delicious flavors: Lemonade, Cherry, Orange, Lemon-Lime, Grape and Punch. Take 20¢ off and introduce your family to the great taste of Squoze.

New York has been plastered with thousands of these posters heralding Moon's rally on June 1.

Here is the self-ordained Reverend Moon as he spoke behind a bullet-proof screen in New York's Madison Square Garden at a previous rally. He preached love while thousands of his followers were in the streets collecting money.

Sun Myung Moon: Prophet for Profit

by L. H. Whittemore

NEW YORK, N.Y.

Next Tuesday night in Yankee Stadium a pudgy, round-faced, 56-year-old evangelist from South Korea will launch his greatest effort to date to convince Americans that he has been chosen to lead us all to salvation.

The preacher is the self-ordained Rev. Sun Myung Moon who, since coming to this country, has added thousands of young Americans to his global army of followers, amassed a fortune that includes at least $50 million in property, publicly embraced a President of the United States—and been accused of brainwashing, misleading and virtually enslaving his converts. Moon's Yankee Stadium rally kicks off a national tour he calls the "Bicentennial God Bless America Festival."

To his followers, who are often called "Moon Children" or "Moonies," the persuasive Moon is "the third Adam, the next Jesus Christ, and the true parent of mankind"—a new Messiah who will, in the not too distant future, rule the world.

To many concerned American parents, however, he is a false prophet who has lured their children into his "Unification Church" by appealing to their idealistic instincts and then cut them off from their families and set them to work peddling, recruiting and raising money for him and his worldwide organization.

One Moonie who managed to escape from the movement is Ford Greene, 23-year-old godson of Sen. James Buckley (R.-Cons., N.Y.). Like thousands of others, Greene was hooked by attending a weekend workshop that was never outwardly identified as being part of the Moon organization, which has set up several front groups bearing names like the Collegiate Association for the Research of Principles and the Creative Community Project. Most are run by Moon followers brought from other countries to do recruiting here.

'Love-bombed'

Says Greene: "Anyone who goes for the weekend introductory program gets 'love-bombed.' That means all the Moonies are super-friendly. They say how glad they are to see you. Everyone laughs and sings and has a good time. I tell you, it's quite a trip.

"They tell you the Messiah is now here on Earth, and they hint very strongly that it's Moon. After listening to hours of lectures and never having a chance to think things over for yourself, you're ready to believe."

According to Jean Merritt, a psychiatric social worker in Lincoln, Mass., those who join up with Moon "are usually idealistic young men and women who are having difficulty deciding what to do with their lives." The cult offers an attractive alternative to the outside world, she says. But at the same time their "ego functioning is manipulated" by the group until they are "mentally imprisoned."

What is it that Moon followers are supposed to believe? Although Moon calls himself a Christian, he holds that Christ failed in his mission on Earth. In Korea, Moon was dismissed as a Presbyterian in 1948. Since then he has evolved his own religious concepts, including the assertion that "America has been chosen as the nation to receive the Messiah for ultimate world salvation in our century."

Moon, who delivers his public exhortations in Korean with an interpreter translating his words into English, asserts that God works through nations, as does Satan. America, being "God's nation," must be prepared to do battle for the Lord against the Soviet Union, Communist China and North Korea. The only way to win such a global confrontation, he indicates, is to join the Unification Church before it's too late —both God and Moon are losing their patience.

"Kings and queens and heads of state will someday bow at my feet," Moon has told his followers. "I will conquer and subjugate the world."

The Korean link

There is a link between Moon and the South Korean government. President Chung Hee Park not only gives Moon his open support but sends thousands of civil servants to an anti-Communist school run by the Unification sect. Moon's chief associate is Col. Bo Hi Pak, who was a military attaché for the South Korean government in Washington, D.C., from 1961 to 1964. Pak has also been associated with the Korean CIA.

Whatever Moon's beliefs and principles may be, there's no doubt that he has been able to turn them into hard cash. Although he claims to have between 2 and 3 million followers in 100 countries, principally Japan and South Korea, it's the United States that has really turned out to be a money machine for him.

"In 1975," reports Neil Salonen, 31, president of the American branch of the Unification Church, "we received nearly $12 million in cash at our national headquarters in New York City. But the total collected all over the country was much larger."

Moon and his movement have purchased $10 million worth of property in Tarrytown, N.Y., near the Hudson River, not to mention real estate in more than 100 cities and in every state. Minimum total value is put at $50 million. To acquire his 22-acre Belvedere estate in Tarrytown, Moon plunked down $850,000 in cash. He also paid $625,000 for a mansion in nearby Irvington, N.Y., where he lives with his fourth wife and their eight children. The cult also owns a 254-acre estate and seminary in Barrytown, N.Y., about 50 miles north of Tarrytown, which is said to be worth $1.5 million. The seminary is unofficial world headquarters for the Unification Church, whose spiritual home remains in Seoul, the South Korean capital. Moon also is the proprietor of two seagoing yachts and a Manhattan town house. His wealth has helped create a high-powered propaganda machine that would turn a Presidential candidate green with envy.

A numbing regimen

According to those who have managed to break loose from the cult, it has also created near prison-like conditions for the true believers.

Moonies live in homes rented or purchased by the Unification Church. According to Salonen, there are at least six "training" or "residential" centers in each state, some with just a few members and others with up to 100. Members are ordered to refrain from alcohol and sex. Men and women are separated in the living quarters and even close friendships are discouraged.

Former members of the cult insist that they never got more than five hours of sleep a night. Moonies, they report, are kept busy with a regimen of exercise, group discussion, lectures, songs and prayers, games like tag and, of course, long stretches of recruiting and peddling in the outside world. Beneath an exterior of cheerfulness, they are often tired, hungry and even numb, performing their tasks with only the thought that they are "saving the world for God and Moon" to keep them going.

The typical Moonie

The typical Moon disciple in the U.S. is a man or a woman, average age 23, from a white, upper-middle-class family. Many are college students disenchanted with American life. Most are carried away by the initial workshop experience, and then find that they're being put through increasingly lengthy training sessions.

"We'd get letters every week or so," says Mrs. George Swope of Port Chester, N.Y., referring to the time when her 19-year-old daughter suddenly dropped out of college after one of the cult's weekends. "She wrote how 'happy' she was but that she couldn't come home. And she never did come home either, until we got her out."

Her daughter, Winnie, left after six months, but only after being "rescued" by Ted Patrick, 45, the best-known practitioner of "deprogramming"—a rigorous technique of talking it out. Patrick is nicknamed "Black Lightning" by the Moon followers, both for the color of his skin and for his swift appearance in their lives. He claims to have "rescued" more than 1000 members of various cults, all of which, he says, use some sort of "brainwashing."

In a recent book called Let Our Children Go, Patrick accuses the Unification group of "brainwashing" methods like those used in the Korean war, "when many of our prisoners were subjected to intensive political indoctrination."

Virtually all former Moonies say that they were "programmed" to think and behave in a certain manner. "My daughter said that she and others would be willing to do anything for Moon," says Mrs. Swope, "because he really represents God to those in the cult."

"They completely ripped off my mind and my free will," says Denise Peskin, 21, of Plainview, N.Y. "I was a robot for Moon. My mind was empty. It was just a reflector of everything they told me."

'Eyes out of focus'

Denise says that she worked in San Francisco selling flowers and recruiting new members on the streets. "We were told to say anything to get money," she reports. "I pushed flowers for 'youth educational guidance' and did very well. I also got 50 recruits."

One of Moon's most ardent foes, Rabbi Maurice Davis of White Plains, N.Y., says he and a group of 900 concerned families have helped at least 95 Moonies out of the cult. "At first," he says, "the kids have their eyes out of focus, with plastic smiles on their faces. There's a total lack of genuine emotion. One boy saw me and actually shriveled into a corner in stark terror. He said the cult had told him I was the Devil. I kept talking to him, trying to get him to think for himself again. He said, 'Moon is fighting for my soul and so are you. How do I know where the truth is?' I told him, 'Moon wants you to stay in his organization. I want you out in the world, free.' When he finally snapped out of it, he broke into tears and said, 'Just tell me one thing—where have I been?' It was frightening."

Meanwhile, thousands of Moonies work unbelievably long hours soliciting funds and peddling candy, peanuts, flowers and the like, on street corners and in parking lots. Former members say they lost all track of time and that they collected no less than $100 a day.

Since April, 1973, Moon has had a permanent residency visa from U.S. immigration, even though questions have been raised about his past. He has been accused of holding sex orgies as part of his rites. A spokesman for him in Seoul says: "It is true that Teacher Moon was tried on morals charges, but he was eventually acquitted."

'God loves Nixon'

In 1973, during the Watergate crisis, Moon launched a huge campaign in support of President Nixon. He marshaled 1000 Moonies into rallies and marches with signs proclaiming "God Loves Nixon." At a White House meeting, the pudgy cult leader embraced the then President.

One of the few public responses to Moon by a prominent politician has come from Sen. Mark Hatfield (R., Oreg.), who said in 1974, "The appeal to nationalism of any country, as if somehow God has favorites among his creatures, is very, very dangerous, particularly when you mix that with the cultic adulation and devotion of his followers and the implicit, if not the explicit, statement that he [Moon] is the new Christ."

Hatfield's warning is echoed even more strongly by ex-Moonies who charge that Moon is really seeking world political power and is assembling an army of young zealots ready to die for him.

PARADE interviewed a former high-ranking member of Moon's cult in the United States who had been in charge of its "political arm" called the Freedom Leadership Foundation. Alan Tate Wood, 29, now a psychology student at Rutgers University in New Jersey, said that he left Moon's group "because it's not a church, but a fascist political movement. His group is the most powerful analogue to the Hitler youth that we have at this time."

The parents act

Last February, more than 300 parents of Moon disciples from 30 states converged on Washington for a meeting arranged by Sen. Robert Dole (R., Kan.). They met with representatives of the Internal Revenue Service, the Labor Department, the Postal Service, immigration authorities and others in hopes of persuading federal officials to investigate the Unification cult.

So far, however, there has been little action by the government. An IRS spokesman, Leon Levine, told PARADE that investigation of Moon's group as a tax-exempt organization poses a touchy, perhaps crucial problem: "The law says that churches are tax-exempt. The question is, when does a group qualify as a religion? It's not easy to answer."

Meanwhile, the Rev. Sun Myung Moon goes right on holding meetings, making converts, acquiring property and preparing for his own version of Armageddon.

Sens. James Buckley and Robert Dole listen while distraught parents whose children have joined Moon's Unification Church ask for a federal investigation of the cult.

If you are a smoker:

There are many reasons to smoke Now.

If you're a smoker who has been thinking about 'tar' and nicotine, these are the reasons to smoke Now.

Reason: Now has the lowest 'tar' and nicotine levels available to you in a cigarette, king-size or longer: 2 mg. 'tar,' 2 mg. nicotine.

Reason: Now also gives you real smoking satisfaction. Mild and pleasant flavor. It comes in both filter and menthol.

Reason: Now draws free and easy for a cigarette so low in 'tar' and nicotine.

Reason: Only Now has the specially designed filter which makes all this possible.

Compare 'tar' numbers. You'll see that 2 mg. is the lowest of all king-size cigarettes.

THE HEIMLICH MANEUVER: TWO WAYS TO SAVE YOURSELF IF YOU CHOKE ON FOOD.

THE HEIMLICH MANEUVER—SOLO If a person is alone and starts to choke on food, how can he or she dislodge the food?

Dr. Henry Heimlich of Cincinnati, developer of the Heimlich bear-hug maneuver which PARADE first brought to public attention in September, 1974, suggests the following:

Make a fist with one hand. Place it thumbside against your abdomen, slightly above the navel but below the rib cage. With your other hand, press the fist in and up in sharp, thrusting moves.

Another method is to drape yourself across the back of a chair or press your abdomen against a porch rail or any similar object so that the air is forced out of your lungs and up the throat to shake loose the piece of food which is lodged there.

Dr. Heimlich reports that he knows of 16 persons--the youngest 10, the oldest 85--who have saved themselves from choking to death by the above two methods.

AGE IN THE SENATE Has the U.S. Senate become a haven for old-timers?

John L. McClellan (D., Ark.) is 80. John Sparkman (D., Ala.) is 76. James Eastland (D., Miss.) is 71. John Stennis (D., Miss.) is 74. Clifford Case (R., N.J.) is 72. Jacob Javits (R., N.Y.) is 72. Stuart Symington (D., Mo.) is 75. Roman Hruska (R., Nebr.) is 71. Michael Mansfield (D., Mont.) is 73. Carl Curtis (R., Nebr.) is 71. Hugh Scott (R., Pa.) is 75.

Many of these men plan to retire. The average age of a Senator at present is 56.8; the average age on taking office is 45.

CHAMPAGNE'S UPS AND DOWNS The French are drinking champagne as if there were no tomorrow, but the bubbly-bubbly is not doing too well in other countries.

Statistics released by the French Champagne Trade Association reveal the biggest export losses suffered last year were to Great Britain and Italy.

For 200 years, Great Britain has been France's best customer abroad. Last year it slipped to third place, behind Belgium and Italy. Two years ago, before the recession really hit, the British downed more than 10 million bottles of champagne. Last year they consumed little more than 3 million.

The U.S.A. is France's fourth-largest customer for champagne, taking 2.8 million bottles last year, just ahead of West Germany, in fifth place with 2.2 million.

Of the 122 million bottles France produced in 1975, the French consumed 94 million.

Nigeria, one of Africa's leading oil producers, has become the fastest-growing market abroad for French champagne. In 1974 the Nigerians ordered 260,000 bottles. Last year they quadrupled consumption.

POSTAL SERVICE SCORES ONE The U.S. Postal Service has made an amazing discovery--that the National Rifle Association, which is dead set against gun control, is a lobbying outfit. It is not primarily a nonprofit organization that is mostly educational, scientific or philanthropic.

Were it such an organization, it would be entitled to preferential second- and third-class postal rates.

In 1974, Darwin Sharp, director of mail classification for the Postal Service, ruled and was upheld this year by Administrative Judge William Duvall that the National Rifle Association did not qualify for preferential treatment on the basis of educational activity.

Last year the NRA, an organization which is 105 years old and boasts 950,000 dues-paying members ($10 a year), mailed out 12 million letters at cut-rate postage, which in effect amounts to a taxpayers' subsidy of the gun lobby.

From now on, instead of paying 1.8 cents for each two-ounce letter, the National Rifle Association will have to pay 7.9 cents.

"It will cost us," says one NRA spokesman, "an additional one million bucks in postage."

However one feels about gun control, it's about time the Postal Service accurately applied its mail classification system. The people in this country who object to what the NRA stands for should not subsidize its lobbying.

LEONID BREZHNEV

NIKOLAI PODGORNY

PACEMAKERS FOR SOVIET LEADERS

This past April, Charles F. Cuddihy Jr., a vice president of Medtronic, a corporation based in Minneapolis, suggested to a reporter the likelihood that Soviet leaders Brezhnev and Podgorny were each wearing a Medtronic heart pacemaker.

As soon as the news broke in The New York Times, Medtronic officials were queried by other newsmen as to how the company could be sure about Brezhnev and Podgorny.

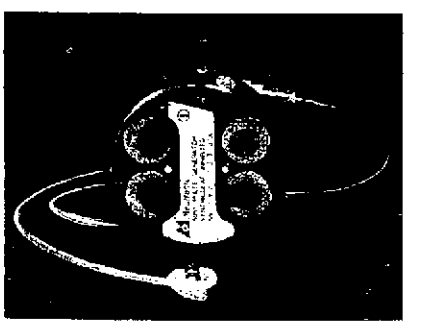

Medtronic issued a statement explaining that since 1960 it had sold thousands of pacemakers and had kept follow-up records on patients. But this procedure was impossible on sales to the Soviets since an agent was used for the transaction. Medtronic therefore could not determine the identity of the Soviet recipients.

It has long been held that Brezhnev was equipped with a heart pacemaker several years ago. France Soir was the first to break the news, which the Soviets have never denied, but Podgorny's wearing of a heart pacemaker has yet to be confirmed.

Medtronic, Inc., introduced a heart pacemaker in 1958. Today approximately 300,000 people have a miniature pacemaker, half the size of a pack of cigarettes, implanted under the skin near their shoulders or their abdomens. Alfred Hitchcock, Curt Jurgens, Henry Fonda...the list of pacemaker-wearers is a lengthy one.

The most popular of the pacemakers, powered by mercury-zinc batteries, cost about $1,300 each and must be renewed every four or five years. The latest nuclear models, powered by plutonium-238 batteries, last at least 10 years. They sell for $5000.

If Brezhnev and Podgorny wear heart pacemakers, it's an even-money bet that they carry within them the nuclear models or soon will.

A MEDTRONIC HEART PACEMAKER

How Candice Walker got Slender and stayed Slender.

Candice Walker's thick, auburn hair falls softly to her shoulders. Her eyes are sky blue. She has the cheekbones of a model. She has the figure of a model—almost. Yet Candice once weighed 220 pounds and rarely went outside her house.

Today, Candice, who's 5'7" tall, weighs 137 pounds. Her waist measures 26," not 39"; her hips are 37," not 48." Instead of a matronly 40" bustline, she's a trim 34B.

Candice did it with Slender® diet food and sensible portions of solid foods. It took 14 months. But Candice is a realist. She'd spent half her life putting it on.

"I tried lots of diets before Slender but I couldn't stay on them. I tried pills but they made me climb the walls. I screamed at everybody I was so nervous.

"You see my downfall was that I loved things like ice cream and milk shakes...so when I finally found Slender it was like a thick, creamy shake to me. I prefer Slender powder because you can shake it up. I put in the milk and a couple of ice cubes and shake it until it becomes thick and foamy. Then I sip it with a straw. I varied my Slender diet with solid foods. Sometimes I'd have nothing but Slender for 3 or 4 days. Then I'd start off with a light breakfast, Slender for lunch, and a salad and lean meat for dinner. After a week or so, I'd go back to Slender again for 3 or 4 meals a day. Yet I never think of Slender as a diet; it's more of a newfound way of eating for my newfound life. My friends see me in the store and say—'Gee, you've REALLY lost the weight,' and they look in my shopping cart and say, 'I see you buy Slender.' I say, 'Yes, it's my favorite pal. I have it in the kitchen at all times. I put it in my purse, I take it to work with me.'

"Today I wear a size 11 or even a 9 in some clothes," says Candice, "and I used to take a size 34½. I look great in my clothes and I know it. When I'm walking down the street, men look at me. I'll admit it—it makes me feel great! I feel like a woman again!

"I'm not rich. I'm not famous. But I want to make some kind of mark in this world that says I've been here. I could be an entertainer, a country rock singer, even a face model. If I can lose 83 pounds I can do anything!"

Candice knows the hardest part is keeping it off. "Oh sure, every now and then I consume large quantities of sweets for 2 or 3 days. Then I get out my Slender and say, ok, pal, let's get together and take off those two or three pounds. That's the trick...never gain more than 5 pounds back or you're done. And I've only varied from 135 to 137 in three years. So I'm proud of myself for keeping it off.

"Slender's worked for me, and I say anybody can do it."

Candice Walker is a real Slender success story. And it all started the day she decided to pick up Slender at her market—and stayed with it. You can do the same. Just get Slender, and get started.

Ask your doctor before starting any program of weight reduction.

Kissinger and Reagan With Their Nancys

Secretary of State Kissinger and ex-California Gov. Ronald Reagan with their supportive wives in California. Both women are attractive, well-educated, well-bred and complement their husbands. Nancy Kissinger is 41, Nancy Reagan is 53.

Kissinger Strikes Back

by Lloyd Shearer

PALM SPRINGS, CAL.

Given the proper set of circumstances, basically time and format, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger does not "exclude the possibility" of debating Ronald Reagan on foreign affairs.

Reagan, former Governor of California, has made Henry Kissinger the leading issue in his race for the Republican Presidential nomination. And because of that the Secretary of State has taken umbrage. He is therefore willing to debate Reagan, he told PARADE in a recent poolside conversation here, "providing I have the time and some reasonable ground rules can be set out."

What the Secretary of State envisions is a question-and-answer format, similar to "Meet the Press" or other TV programs in which three or four knowledgeable journalists ask questions of the two guests. What Kissinger wants to avoid is a "stand-up debate" in which he and Reagan simply make speeches and refutations.

The secretary expects that any confrontation between him and Reagan would merit national coverage by the TV networks. He realizes, of course, that Reagan is the most professional and experienced political performer on TV today. Reagan understands the medium perfectly. Does he understand foreign policy as well?

Reagan has argued that Kissinger has cozied up to the Soviets, that Kissinger is reconciled to accepting the Soviet Union as the world's No. 1 superpower with the U.S. playing No. 2. He has accused Helmut Sonnenfeldt, Kissinger's expert on East-West affairs, of playing into Soviet hands by espousing a doctrine which in effect betrays the Eastern satellite nations. Reagan has said flatly that he would not retain Kissinger in his Cabinet. And he has, in his campaign speeches, charged the Ford Administration with opening a credibility gap by not telling the American people of the Ford-Kissinger intention to negotiate "the giveaway of the [Panama] Canal."

Reagan's TV speech

On March 31 this year, in a nationwide TV address, Reagan declared: "The Canal Zone is not a colonial possession. It is not a long-term lease. It is sovereign U.S. territory every bit the same as Alaska and all the states that were carved from the Louisiana Purchase. We should end those negotiations and tell the general [Torrijos]: 'We bought it, we paid for it, we built it, and we intend to keep it.' "

It has long been known that James Schlesinger, former Secretary of Defense, has been advising Reagan on U.S.-Soviet defense postures, providing Reagan with accurate information and analysis.

Who has been advising Reagan on the Panama Canal and Panamanian history is another matter. Supposedly Reagan's adviser is Phillip Harman, 55, a California businessman self-described as an "anti-Communist fanatic" who claims he is the "grandson-in-law of the founder of the Republic of Panama."

Harman is associated with Arnulfo Arias, 74, who was overthrown three times as President of Panama and would like a fourth incumbency.

Kissinger does not particularly mind Reagan's calling for his removal as much as he minds Reagan's conversion of the very "delicate Panama negotiations" into a political football.

"If Reagan keeps inciting hawkish audiences with his demagoguery," Kissinger asserts, "he is not being particularly helpful to this country. We have a touchy situation in Panama, and no one should be trigger-happy unless he relishes a military involvement or a guerrilla war. One should be sure of his facts before he uses the Panama Canal for political campaign rhetoric."

Ronald Reagan is not a scholarly man, but he is surely a fair and honorable one. And he must certainly know that the U.S. relationship with Panama is one of the shabbiest, most shameful, unfair episodes in our history.

When he declaims, "We should tell Panama's tinhorn dictator just what he can do with his demands for sovereignty over the canal. We bought it, we paid for it, and they can't have it," he is plainly inviting war; he is stimulating the antagonism of all Latin America; he is advocating the continuity of flagrant unfairness, or he is acting irresponsibly with jingoism designed to advance his political objectives.

Offer to French

The truth is that in 1902 the U.S. began to negotiate for a canal across the Isthmus of Panama, then owned by Colombia. President Teddy Roosevelt offered the French Panama Canal Co. $40 million for its rights and property, providing Colombia would cede a strip of canal land for a U.S. payment of $10 million.

When Colombia asked for an additional $15 million, the French company, encouraged by the U.S., promptly promoted a revolution, led by Philippe Jean Bunau-Varilla. He took over Panama while Roosevelt ordered the U.S. Navy to prevent Colombia from sending troops to Panama. Later, Roosevelt proudly declared: "I took Panama."

On Nov. 3, 1903, Panama proclaimed its independence. On Nov. 6, the U.S. recognized Panama. On Nov. 18, a treaty between the U.S. and Panama was signed by Secretary of State Hay and Bunau-Varilla, giving the U.S. the right to build an Isthmian canal.

Under the treaty we paid $10 million to Panama, not for territory—as we paid for the purchase of Louisiana and Alaska—but for treaty rights. We paid $10 million for a 10-mile-wide strip of land, plus $250,000 a year, increased to $430,000 in 1936 and $1.9 million in 1955.

Help to J. P. Morgan

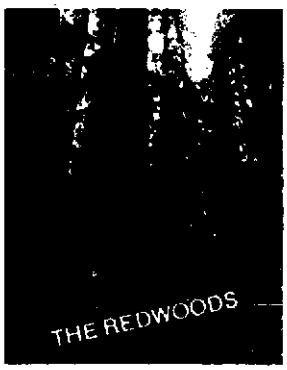

It was the most obvious of U.S. imperialist adventures and recognized as such throughout the world.

In financial circles it was also known that one of Teddy Roosevelt's contributory motives in helping Panama secede from Colombia was to prevent the banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. from losing $40 million.

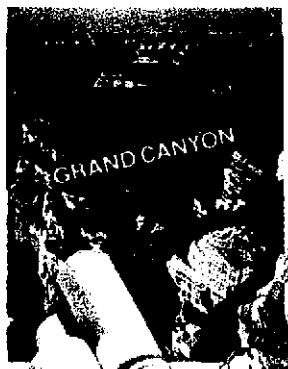

"Had President Theodore Roosevelt negotiated his treaty with Colombia," an editorial in the Christian Science Monitor recently pointed out, "the French Panama Canal Co. charter would have lapsed and its stock would have been worthless. Roosevelt, by choosing to get his canal through instant revolution rather than slower negotiation, saved the $40 million for J. P. Morgan

"Yawl" come. With sails billowing and ensigns fluttering, a proud armada of square-rigged windjammers from 30 countries will parade up New York's Hudson River in Operation Sail, a seagoing bicentennial event on July 4. Some 225 classic sailing vessels, including stately brigs, brigantines, barques, and schooners, will be saluted by modern men-of-war from the U.S. and 33 foreign nations.

Other bicentennial celebrations recommended by the new Mobil Travel Guide: a dance festival and "colonial" sound-and-light show in Philadelphia and an encampment of real covered wagons in nearby Valley Forge State Park. There'll be Italian lawn bowling, and Greek bouzouki music at ethnic festivals in Baltimore, and tin lizzies at a Sistersville, W. Va., antique auto show. You can watch a muzzle-loading firearms contest in Logansport, Ind., or squint through the smoke of a mock 18th-century battle in Dearborn, Mich.

"I'M GIVING A LITTLE BICENTENNIAL DINNER PARTY. I'D LIKE A BOTTLE OF RED WINE, A BOTTLE OF WHITE WINE, AND A BOTTLE OF BLUE NUN."

Energy savings. They can be substantial in summer. Surprisingly, though, fewer than one in ten buyers bother to inquire how much electricity their new appliances use, says a recent Roper Report. Yet, the hourly operating cost of comparable-size air conditioners, for example, can vary as much as 65%. More air-conditioning savings come from keeping shades pulled down. Even a standard light-colored, opaque roller shade admits roughly half the heat of an unshaded window, according to an Illinois Institute of Technology study.

From Stewart Udall, Secretary of the Interior under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson and now a private environmental consultant: "The scapegoating of the oil industry—saying that if it would just straighten up and fly right, the problem would go away—appalls me. Two years after the Arab embargo, two-thirds of the American people still do not believe there is a serious long-term energy crisis." And getting worse every year, we might add. Because of inadequate encouragement of new energy production in the U.S., America now leans on foreign countries for more than two-fifths of the oil it uses.

Reagan charges Ford and Kissinger with "giving away" the Panama Canal to a "tinhorn dictator," Gen. Omar Torrijos, shown above surrounded by his officers. By raising this charge, Reagan forces Ford to delay negotiating an agreement with Torrijos and makes a guerrilla war against the U.S. almost inevitable.

& Co. That was the value of the stock of the old company whose charter was about to expire."

The French Panama Canal Co. had previously contributed $60,000 to the Republican party. In those days foreign contributions to U.S. political parties were more than welcome. No doubt Roosevelt was influenced by the French largesse.

Understandably, constantly expanding Panamanian nationalism has caused anti-U.S. riots in the Canal Zone. This is why Kissinger, more than a year ago, assigned veteran troubleshooter Ellsworth Bunker to help negotiate a new treaty with Panama—a treaty in which both nations would share operation and defense of the canal. In 1970 canal profits totaled $175 million. Panama received only $1.9 million, a little more than 1 percent on its major resource.

What does Reagan suggest we do in Panama?

Kissinger says: "Reagan has plenty of complaints but no alternatives." Destructive criticism without constructive alternatives is what irks the secretary.

Kissinger recognizes the Reagan technique of firing up his audiences by calling for Kissinger's removal from office. Yet he recognizes, too, that Reagan studiously refrains from saying anything too bellicose which might equate the former actor with the let's-bomb-them-back-to-the-Stone-Age mentality of Gen. Curtis Lemay, Barry Goldwater or George Wallace. In his political campaign speeches, Reagan punches hard then deftly retreats, an excellent technique.

This is not to say that Ronald Reagan has no cause to call Kissinger to account for his conduct of foreign policy. Kissinger is vulnerable on many counts.

George Ball, Under Secretary of State in the Kennedy and Johnson Administrations, charges that Henry K's personal brand of diplomacy has reduced U.S. ambassadors to briefcase-carriers, set back diplomacy 300 years, and immobilized the entire U.S. foreign policy apparatus.

Other Kissinger detractors accuse him of fouling up the Turkey-Cyprus war, the U.S. intervention in Cambodia, the India-Pakistan war, and criticize his step-by-step peace brokerage in the Middle East. They fault him for losing Angola to the Communists, Chile to the military, and for his general lack of openness and candor.

No one denies Ronald Reagan the right to make Henry Kissinger his main campaign issue. Perhaps Kissinger deserves it, or Reagan can find no other issue of such responsiveness and reward.

In fairness, however, Reagan should be willing to meet the Secretary of State side-by-side or face-to-face and in a question-and-answer session, explain to the nation how he would approach and possibly solve or implement the solution of our foreign policy problems.

Kissinger, if he has the time, is willing to appear with Reagan and submit to a battery of inquiring reporters. The next move is Reagan's.

If the former Governor of California says yes, it should make for a fascinating program.

Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker has been working more than a year to effect a fair and workable treaty with Panama.

If You Have Feminine Itching...

A doctor-tested medication can now bring you prompt temporary relief.

Many women think they are "alone" in suffering from external feminine itching. But this is an extremely common condition among both married and unmarried women.

Now, however, there is a creme medication, called Vagisil,® which is specifically formulated to help stop external feminine itching almost instantly.

Vagisil leaves a cooling, protective film to help check bacteria, soothe irritated membranes and so speed natural healing.

Doctor-tested, Vagisil Creme Medication needs no prescription. Greaseless and non-staining, it's also delicately scented. Available in feminine hygiene sections everywhere. Or if you would like a sample, just send 25¢ to Vagisil, Box 328PX, White Plains, New York 10604.

ORDERING BY MAIL? BE SURE TO:

1. Include your own name, address and Zip Code
2. Use proper address and Zip Code of the advertiser
3. Send correct amount of money
4. Then if you haven't received your order write:

New Help for the Allergic

by Lawrence Galton

Sneezing, runny nose and watery eyes are signs of hay fever caused by wind-borne pollen: Scientists are learning more about this and other allergies and are working on a pill to stop allergies before they start.

With more than 31 million American victims, allergy ailments rank as the No. 1 cause of chronic discomfort. Each year, they're responsible for children missing 9 million days of school and adults 9½ million days of work.

Now, medical developments promise better relief for many and, in some cases, relief not possible before.

HAY FEVER. While ragweed pollen is the major offender, other wind-pollinated grasses, trees and weeds also bring on attacks for which victims spend hundreds of millions of dollars a year on antihistamines, decongestants, other medications and injections.

Is there another way?

A four-months-a-year, 20-year victim, Dr. Donald J. Dalessio, a neurologist at the Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation, La Jolla, Cal., surveyed all treatments and arrived at his own.

Each morning on awakening during his hay fever season, he applies a tiny amount of a potent cortisone-like cream—either flumethasone, 0.03%, or fluocinonide, 0.05%—with his fifth finger to the mucous membrane lining of his nose, then snuffs vigorously to inhale the cream farther into nasal passages. At night he repeats the process and adds a six-milligram bedtime dose of an antihistamine, Polaramine, as a special aid during the night when pollen counts rise and the drug's sedative effects are not unwelcome.

The results: gratifying—an occasional sneeze, sometimes a bit of tickling, but almost complete elimination of paroxysmal sneezing and great reduction of nasal discharge.

In reporting to doctors, Dr. Dalessio emphasizes there has been no large-scale, scientifically controlled study; his personal treatment just works for him; it may work for others.

Asthma drug for hay fever

Meanwhile, Mayo Clinic investigators have another hopeful finding. Cromolyn sodium, a new drug for preventing asthma attacks, might do the same for hay fever. Mayo investigators chose 26 sufferers for a trial. Half inhaled cromolyn powder three times a day; the others inhaled inert powder. No question about it—especially in the most highly allergic—cromolyn led to a substantial reduction in severity of symptoms.

FOOD ALLERGIES. Many people thought to be "neurotic" may, in fact, be suffering from food allergy, according to a report early this year by Dr. Frederic Speer of the Speer Allergy Clinic, Shawnee Mission, Kan., in the American Family Physician, the publication of the American Academy of Family Physicians.

Food allergies can produce such varied symptoms as constipation, diarrhea, diffuse abdominal pain, nasal and bronchial congestion, headache, foul breath, eczema, sweating, tension and fatigue.

Dr. Speer reports that by far the chief offenders are: cow's milk, chocolate, cola, corn, eggs, the pea family (chiefly peanut, which is not a nut), citrus fruits, tomatoes, wheat and other small grains, cinnamon and artificial food colors.

The only treatment for food allergy is avoidance of offending foods. To find out what they are, Dr. Speer recommends "elimination and challenge." If two or more foods are suspect, they are removed from the diet for three weeks. Then, one is returned to the diet; later, at two-day intervals, the others are reintroduced. If only one food is suspect, it is similarly removed for three weeks.

If symptoms improve with a suspected food out of the diet then reappear when the food is added again, the blame is clear.

ASPIRIN SENSITIVITY. Valuable though it is, aspirin is not well tolerated by almost 1 percent of the population. But if you're allergic to other things, your chances are increased.

In a recent study, 1.4 percent of those with allergic rhinitis, or nasal congestion, also proved to be sensitive to aspirin. And the rate was still higher —3.8 percent—among asthmatics.

Curiously, in asthmatics, the predominant reaction to aspirin is bronchial spasm, such as occurs in an asthma attack. But in rhinitis sufferers, it's hives. In the general population not otherwise allergic, the symptoms of aspirin intolerance are about equally divided between bronchial spasm and hives.

For the aspirin-sensitive, trouble can be avoided by use of an aspirin substitute such as acetaminophen.

THE CULPRITS IN CLOTHES. A growing number of persons recently have been found to suffer itching and rash caused by formaldehyde used in crease-resistant fabrics.

After analyzing 112 samples, Dr. William F. Schorr of the Marshfield (Wis.) Clinic has found that fabrics with the highest concentrations of free formaldehyde are 100% rayon, 100% cotton, 65% dacron-35% cotton, and 50% polyester-50% cotton. Those with the least: 100% polyester knit and 100% orlon acrylic.

Rash from rubber elastic in undergarments is not uncommon. But physicians at the Medical College of Virginia, Richmond, recently were puzzled by a series of patients with similar rash but without sensitivity to the elastic. The solution was the discovery that laundry bleach action on elastic produces a chemical that may cause allergy. The cure is simple: Wear underwear without elastic or wash without bleach.

SOME STRANGE SENSITIVITIES. When someone breaks out with hives—not because of allergy to foods, inhalants or chemicals—what can the problem be? Cold hypersensitivity is a possibility.

At the National Jewish Hospital and Research Center, Denver, investigators have found that ice cream may cause lips to swell and hives to develop. Likewise, hands puff up and hives appear when a cold object is gripped, or a swimmer in cold water may develop hives or lose consciousness.

The cold investigators report good results in treatment with an antihistamine compound, cyproheptadine.

Why do some people sensitive to poison ivy, poison oak or poison sumac break out in a rash, even a whole body rash, when they haven't been exposed to any of the poison plants?

Physicians at the Hitchcock Clinic, Hanover, N.H., finally found the problem: raw cashew nuts. When roasted, cashews may produce no reaction, but raw they contain a shell oil that is similar to the oleoresin that produces the rash from poison plants.

Nerves or allergy?

When a child develops a barking, dry cough and no physical cause can be found, must it be psychogenic, or "nervous"? It may be allergic in nature.

An example: A 10-year-old girl who coughed every 15 to 30 seconds wasn't helped by medication and coughed more when tense or excited (making it seem especially likely that the coughing was "nervous").

When, however, tests showed sensitivity to molds and house dust, allergy treatment eliminated the cough.

ON THE HORIZON. If current promising work continues to yield results, allergy sufferers may have something almost ideal to look forward to.

At the University of California School of Medicine, San Diego, Dr. Robert N. Hamburger and a medical team have identified and produced a fragment of protein, pentapeptide, that may occupy the site on body cells that allergens, or allergy-causing materials, use.

The pentapeptide, arriving there first, can usurp the sites so that when allergens come, they have no place to lodge and may thus be swept away by normal body-cleansing processes.

More testing is needed, but in early trials the compound has worked without undesirable side effects. If tests continue to be rewarding, this protein particle could be the way toward an easy anti-allergy treatment—a pill to stop allergies before they start.

The United States of America Bicentennial Gold Piece

(Illustrated 1½ times actual size.)

NOW EVERY AMERICAN has the opportunity to possess an historic Gold Piece. It has been more than 40 years since Americans have been able to acquire a gold piece for just $20. Containing lasting values and issued during the year of our nations 200th Anniversary, it will be much-sought after by future generations who will not have this opportunity.

This important gold piece is being struck and issued by the Columbia Mint in .500 fine gold. Each piece will measure 18 mm in diameter and will weigh 2.31 grams. The face of the gold piece portrays the proud American Eagle poised ready for flight into the future. The other side honors our first president, George Washington.

LIMITED EDITION— RARE PROOF FINISH

The gold pieces are being issued in a strictly controlled limited edition with the final minting taking place on July 4, 1976—two hundred years to the day of the birth of our nation. After that day no further pieces will be struck. The special dies used for the minting of these gold pieces will be retired and presented to The Smithsonian Institution for permanent safe-keeping along with a record of each purchasers name.

Each gold piece, struck with a flawless Proof finish, will be accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity—forever attesting to its rarity and limited edition status.

A GOLD PIECE OF HEIRLOOM VALUE

To possess this important gold piece for just $20. during our nation's bicentennial is an opportunity unequaled in our time. The United States of America Bicentennial Gold Piece is certain to be among the most prized and treasured possessions of those families which act in time to acquire it. A possession to be passed on to future generations with pride.

ACT NOW

This historic collector's gold piece is being issued in a single, strictly limited edition with a restriction of two gold pieces per family. The total number of pieces issued will be permanently limited to the number of orders accepted and received postmarked by July 4, 1976 with the final day of shipment taking place within 30 days of that date. Due to the inflationary pressure on the price of gold, the Mint reserves the right to withdraw this offer before July 4, 1976, should it become necessary. To be sure of receiving your gold piece—send your order now to The Columbia Mint, 1709 New York Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

my favorite jokes

by ed bluestone

EDITOR'S NOTE: You might say that life for Ed Bluestone has a strong casual component. He says: "I was adopted. My father got me from this place that gives kids to anyone who belongs to a union. And my mother, she had one weird sense of humor. When I lost my baby teeth, she said: 'That's it! Soup the rest of your life!'"

There were times, though, when Ed was growing up that his parents enjoyed making real sacrifices for his sake. "My parents were always overprotective. I mean, for my benefit they joined a swim club without a pool. It had 600 deck chairs around a fire hydrant."

Bluestone has entertained at Catch a Rising Star and The Improvisation in New York, and on TV's Griffin, Douglas, and Carson shows.

Here then is Ed Bluestone:

I can never con anyone. I saw this guy selling chestnuts the other day. I tried to get a free one. I told him I was reviewing him for Chestnut magazine. He points to a squirrel and says: "I'd like to help ya but the boss is watching."

I've cut back on a lot of things. Dog food's expensive. I started to feed my dog plant food. He got used to it. Spends his days looking for sunlight.

People are nuts. They adopt orphans. It's bad luck to have an orphan in your house. Look, he became an orphan once, he may do it again!

Actually I have no rapport with kids. I was in Florida last week. I sent my nephew two baby alligators. He threw them in a blender and tried to make Gatorade. One time I gave him an ant farm. He hired an anteater to manage it.

Saw my old girlfriend yesterday, Ronda the Cruel. It's strange—you haven't seen a girl in a year and she greets you with: "Make it short!" She broke up with me on the beach last year. I let her bury me up to my neck. Then she put a pail on my head and ran away.

Breakups are rough. What happens is I get depressed and start eating out alone. I go to restaurants we used to go to, try to relive everything for half the price. When you break up, you should just push the person out of your mind. I always dwell on it. I start picturing her with her new boyfriend doing the same things we used to do—eating with my parents. They liked the new guy better than me.

Women leave me for terrible reasons. My last girlfriend broke up with me so she could devote more time to helping her sister move. Another girl left me so she could study for a civil service test.

I had a pen pal in prison. He broke up with me. The guy's in solitary; he told me he didn't have time to write.

I had a great high school girlfriend, Esther Feiffer. Very quiet, passive girl. Quiet girls are great at certain things. Esther was a cheerleader for the golf team. She led the crowd going, "Sh, Sh."

I have a new girlfriend now, a nurse who's a kleptomaniac. She took 40 thermometers from the hospital. We use them to mix drinks.

She's filled my house with ridiculous things. She brought over a faulty cuckoo clock. Cuckoo comes out late and says, "I'm sorry, I fell asleep."

My sister's a Vassar graduate. Supersophisticate. Used to drive with her legs crossed.

"Frankly, you've got us stumped. Mind if we call in a general practitioner?"

Citizen's Band radio is turning out to be the biggest thing in personal communications since the telephone. If you haven't had CB installed in your car yet, the chances are that you will within the next year or two. Its contributions to safety, security and convenience while driving are too valuable to ignore.

CB, in case you haven't heard, enables you to communicate with other cars, with police, even with your home. Many trucks are equipped with CB so drivers can keep instantly abreast of road conditions and problems ahead. Now ordinary motorists are taking up CB, both for safety and fun.

A CB radio is easy to install and use with the help of a handy book called CB Radio: A Complete Guide. Written in clear, understandable language by Len Buckwalter, an expert in the field, it tells how CB radio can help you meet and avoid road emergencies.

It tells you where you can get CB equipment, what the buyer should look for, and how to install and operate your set. It tells you how to get your CB license form and contains a complete copy of the FCC rules and regulations you're required to know.

CB Radio: A Complete Guide has a glossary of CB operators' lingo you'll hear along the highway. There's even a special listing of truckers' terms, which should add to your enjoyment and understanding as you drive.

This book, fully illustrated and bargain-priced for PARADE readers at $1.50 plus 25¢ postage and handling, tells you everything you need to know about CB and can help you start operating your own set very quickly and at minimal cost. CB is the country's fastest-growing highway accessory. Let this helpful book put it into your life.

HUBERT HUMPHREY
After 1968 Nomination

'Longest day of my life'

Humphrey recalls his loss to Nixon

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Election Day, 1968. "The longest day of my life," recalls Hubert H. Humphrey.

It was the day he nearly won the presidency. A day to think about the people and issues that had helped his campaign and the ones that hadn't.

In his autobiography, "The Education of A Public Man," to be published next week, Humphrey wrote:

"It was a day when every minute lingered, when time was suspended, when suddenly there was nothing more to do after months on a treadmill, when fatigue finally overwhelmed me."

More than 73 million Americans voted that day, and Humphrey lost to Richard M. Nixon by about 510,000 votes.

Humphrey recalled some of the names that went through his mind while he waited for the election results and what his thoughts were:

"Jesse Unruh ... he proved so often that he can't be trusted ... Gene McCarthy could have helped. I thought we had an understanding, but he didn't deliver ...

"Clark Clifford would make a fine secretary of state ... I wonder how Ed Muskie is doing. What a job he's done. What a wonderful guy ... Henry Kissinger should be in the White House ...

"Ted Kennedy. He had so many reasons not to help, but he really gave ... Imagine a guy like Wallace getting so many votes. North. South. Everywhere. Such an ugly part of American politics."

And finally the results were in:

"To lose to Nixon. Ye Gods! No warmth, no strength, no emotion, no spirit. No heart."

Humphrey started for the hall where he would admit to the nation he had lost:

"This is the worst moment of my life. What a disappointment to have failed. We could have won it. We should have won it."

One name and one issue overshadowed all of Humphrey's recol-

France wins A-power plant job in S. Africa

By LARRY HEINZERLING

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South Africa announced Saturday it has selected a French consortium over a U.S.-led group for a controversial $1-billion project to build the nation's first nuclear-power station.

The French won the contract over a group of American, Swiss and Dutch firms that had faced strong domestic opposition to the scheme because of South Africa's race policies and also because Pretoria has not signed the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

Informed sources said government officials here were furious about the opposition, especially in the United States and the Netherlands. But there was no indication whether this played a role in the selection of the French group.

Officials said the U.S.-Swiss-Dutch group was rejected because of the failure of the Dutch government to provide necessary guarantees and assurances by May 21. The Electricity Supply Commission said it suspended negotiations last Monday with the consortium of General Electric, Brown Bovari of Switzerland and Rijn-Schelde-Verolme of Holland.

The officials said the contract for the construction of the two-unit power station, about 17 miles north of Cape Town, was awarded to the French consortium of Framatome, Alsthom and Spie Batignolles.

A third group bidding for the contract was Kraftwerk Union of West Germany in collaboration with Murray and Roberts of South Africa.

The U.S.-led group had been regarded as the front-runner for the contract until political controversy erupted over the project. GE had already applied to the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission for the licenses needed to ship plutonium for the plants to South Africa.

The project's opponents said the two proposed reactors would produce about 1,000 pounds of plutonium a year, enough for 100 atomic bombs the size of the one dropped on Nagasaki, Japan.

South Africa's nuclear capacity already is considered more advanced than that of India, which exploded its first nuclear device in 1974.

Some U.S. congressional opponents of the deal said it would undermine America's declared policy of support for black majorities in southern Africa.

U.S. stays off Boston busing case

By MARGARET GENTRY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi will stay out of the Boston school busing case for now but may ask the Supreme Court later to restrict the scope of court-ordered desegregation remedies, the Justice Department said Saturday.

Levi and Solicitor Gen. Robert H. Bork refused to explain their reasons for deciding against intervening in the Boston case.

Demos on campaign trail getting edgy, swap taunts

Associated Press

With presidential primaries slated Tuesday in South Dakota, Rhode Island and Montana, the Republicans spent the holiday weekend at home while most of the Democrats hit the campaign trail.

Republican Ronald Reagan was in California, while President Ford stayed in Washington.

Democrat Jimmy Carter spent Saturday in Georgia but planned to fly to Rhode Island today.

Other Democratic hopefuls continued campaigning — Sen. Frank Church of Idaho and Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. of California in Rhode Island, and Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona in South Dakota.

Meantime, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, refuting a weekend magazine article, said he would not participate in any debate with Reagan.

Parade, a Sunday supplement included in the Independent, Press-Telegram, quoted Kissinger as saying he would be willing to debate Reagan "providing I have the time and some reasonable ground rules can be set out."

Jimmy Carter and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. will campaign in Long Beach this week. Page A-17.

But Kissinger said Saturday that he would not participate "in any such debate."

Ford planned to relax in Washington and later at the presidential retreat in Camp David, Md., until Monday.

Although Reagan was at home, he was seeking votes. The California primary is slated for June 8.

Reagan took his presidential campaign to the dusty coastal foothills of central California Saturday and gave a brief speech on horseback.

Wearing cowboy boots, scruffy ranch clothes and a white hat, Reagan met 1,500 supporters at a calf-roping exhibition and political rally at a cattle ranch near Paso Robles.

Reagan repeated the familiar anti-government, anti-Washington themes of his campaign against Ford. And he again challenged Ford's claim that the President has turned the economy around and restored prosperity.

"I don't believe that Washington has the answers to our problem. I believe Washington is the problem," he said.

Neither Ford nor Reagan have campaigned in any of the three states with primaries on Tuesday. There are a total of 59 Republican and 56 Democratic national delegates at stake.

17 killed as shells fall on Beirut market

BEIRUT (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas accused right-wing Christian militiamen Saturday of killing 17 persons, including women and children, in a rocket and artillery barrage on a vegetable market.

A Palestinian spokesman called the one-hour bombardment, in which more than 100 Palestinian refugees were wounded, one of the ugliest incidents in Lebanon's 14-month civil war, and vowed revenge.

The target of the midday barrage, the spokesman said, was the vegetable market of the Sabra refugee camp on the southern fringe of Beirut.

"IT HAPPENED as housewives crowded the market at the rush buying hour," the spokesman said. "Ambulances from the main hospitals of the Moslem half of Beirut, including the American University of Beirut Hospital, were unable to cope with the emergency."

At least 40 rounds of French-made incendiary rockets and 155mm American-made howitzer cannon shells shattered the camp's market, the spokesman said.

Fighting also flared in mountain summer resorts overlooking the capital and in northern Leba-

Case against Hays said enough for grand jury

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal investigators have found enough evidence to consider asking Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, to testify before a grand jury about allegations that he put a woman on his congressional committee staff to be his mistress, a source close to the probe said Saturday.

Requiring an employe of Congress to provide sex as part of her job could be a violation of federal laws against misusing public funds.

"There is starting to be hard stuff here," the source said of efforts to evaluate a claim by Elizabeth Ray, 33, that Hays put her on his Administration Committee payroll to provide him with sex. Hays has admitted a "personal relationship" with Miss Ray but denied she received her $14,000-a-year salary just to be his mistress.

Meanwhile, Miss Ray's attorney said federal prosecutors have agreed to grant her immunity from prosecution "if she testifies truthfully" before the grand jury. The attorney, Albert Ahern, said Miss Ray was in seclusion and had not yet appeared before the panel.

The Justice Department has not decided yet whether to call Hays before the grand jury, the source said. But he added that generally "you would invite the guy, and he could give us his side if he wanted to." The source said Hays would be called only if he agreed to testify.

Hays' attorney, Judah Best, said the government has not asked Hays to testify, and he declined to speculate what Hays would do if invited.

Defense issues loom in debate

Tunney, Hayden name day

Associated Press

Sen. John Tunney and his Democratic rival, Tom Hayden, are sparring over national defense, and Republican challenger Robert Finch is critical of Tunney for missing a Senate vote on the B1 bomber.

Meantime, Hayden's and Tunney's campaign offices issued a joint statement Saturday evening that a debate between the two candidates will take place next Saturday.

Such a debate was agreed upon earlier this week after Hayden reportedly apologized to Tunney for a personal remark he and his actress-wife Jane Fonda had made about Tunney. Both sides, however, haggled for several days over whether Hayden's retraction pertained only to the personal remark or to the broader issue of Hayden's criticism of Tunney's record as a senator.

Hayden said his retraction was limited to a comment he made about Tunney at what he believed was an off-the-record meeting with supporters. He said he felt his criticism of Tunney's record was both accurate and justified, and that he intended to stand by it.

The Democratic senator fired the first shot on defense Friday, saying Hayden is making a "reckless and irresponsible" proposal to cut U.S. military forces in half.

A Hayden spokesman said Saturday Tunney was overstating Hayden's proposals, and criticized Tunney for supporting the B1 bomber, which Hayden opposes. And Finch questioned Tunney's support of the B1, noting that Tunney was absent this week when the Senate voted to put off a decision on the supersonic bomber until next February.

"If John Tunney had any skill he could have changed three votes in the Senate, plus his own vote, and saved the B1 decision from being put off until next year," said Finch, a former lieutenant governor and one of four GOP contenders in the June 8 primary. The other three are John Harmer, S.I. Hayakawa and Alphonzo Bell.

Finch said the issue is vital to California's economy, and accused Tunney of having an "infamous absentee record" in the Senate.

$500 reward offered in Compton holdup

Two men, one armed with a Luger-type pistol, forced their way into the cashier's office at Ralphs Market, 4410 E. Compton Blvd. in Compton, at 9:50 a.m. on May 1. They forced the store manager to turn over $5,000 in store receipts.

At this point, an armored car guard carrying $29,500 in cash for the store knocked at the door. He was admitted and robbed of the cash and his pistol. The holdup men escaped with a confederate waiting outside in a car.

The car was described as a 1964 to 1969 GMC sedan, black over yellow-orange, with damage to the rear bumper and trunk. Witnesses said the radiator was overheated and steaming. The suspects were described as black men in their early 20s, 6 feet tall, 160 to 170 pounds. One carried a large brown leather purse in which he placed the loot.

Secret Witness will pay $500 for information leading to the arrest and armed robbery conviction of the men.

Car thief 'just going for drive'

Combined News Services

"First of all, I'm a dummy."

That's how Paul Catalano, 45, explained how he managed to hand over a $24,000 vintage Rolls Royce to a thief.

Catalano, who lives in the Long Island community of Manhasset, left the car, complete with keys, at Stage Automobiles in Valley Stream, N.Y., telling the manager that "a guy named Jim Peterson will be along to test drive it."

Catalano had taken out a newspaper advertisement to sell the car. A man calling himself Jim Peterson telephoned Catalano and said he was interested in the Rolls. Peterson showed up to try the car—and was never seen again.

When Catalano told police what had happened, he said, "The detective thought I was absolutely crazy," he said.

Mrs. Catalano put it more mildly: "You have to know my husband."

Reunion outsider

As prisoners of war, the American and Australian soldiers and sailors toiled for months to build the famous bridge over the River Kwai. Then they watched it destroyed in seconds by a single American bomber.

The men from the Japanese POW camp, meeting in Belton, Texas, for their first reunion, may get a chance to meet the American bombardier who blew up the bridge.

"I don't know if I'll be welcome at their reunion in Houston or not ... after all, I was the one who destroyed their bridge," said Belton rancher Bill Henderson, who claims he was the bombardier who blew up the bridge over the River Kwai on April 3, 1945.

Homosexual reprieve

Ens. Vernon Berg III, the first Navy officer to publicly admit his homosexuality, says he has won an 11th-hour reprieve in his battle to remain in the service.

Berg, who was due for a "less than honorable" discharge at the end of May, said in Virginia Beach on Saturday that U.S. District Court Judge Howard Corcoran of the District of Columbia granted his plea for a stay of the discharge, pending a hearing on his case in the civilian courts.

A "less than honorable" discharge, in Navy parlance, means either a general or dishonorable discharge. Berg is fighting the Navy regulation barring homosexuals from the service, and he also wants to force a full review of the Navy's discharge procedures.

Going home

Baby Jennifer, isolated in a bacteria-free environment in Baltimore for the last nine months, is going home. Doctors think the 13-month-old infant can now survive in a germ-filled world.

Jennifer was born without any natural body defenses against disease. Three months ago doctors developed a gland transplant in an effort to save the child's life. The child's production of antibodies was stimulated artificially, but doctors warn that the new defense mechanism still may not be strong enough to resist all infections.

Jennifer was born without a thymus, a ductless gland near the neck which makes up part of the body's immune system. Most infants suffering from the condition, known as combined immune deficiency, succumb to infections.

Female cadets 'silly'

Gen. William Westmoreland said Saturday it was "silly" to permit women to enroll at the West Point military academy.

"It's depriving young men of the limited places that are there," the former chief of staff and West Point superintendent during Memorial Day services in Middletown, Ohio. "The purpose of West Point is to train combat officers, and women are not physically able to lead in combat.

"Maybe you could find one women in 10,000 who could lead in combat, but she would be a freak and we're not running the military academy for freaks," he said.

Honorary chieftain

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau has been made a chief of the Haida Indian nation and given the name Kithgoolana, meaning "He who speaks with the golden tongue." Trudeau received the name Friday while visiting the Queen Charlotte archipelago, home of the once powerful Haida tribe and the site of a Canadian armed forces base.

Actress honored

Actress Jean Stapleton received an honorary Doctorate of Humane Letters on Saturday from Monmouth College in West Long Branch, N.J.

Mrs. Stapleton — Edith Bunker in television's "All in the Family" — received the degree from college President Richard Stonesifer. "Today, unquestionably, was Edith Bunker's finest hour," Mrs. Stapleton said.

Eisenhower kin weds

Mary Jean Eisenhower, youngest of the four grandchildren of the late President Dwight Eisenhower, was married Saturday evening in New York to 2nd Lt. James Brewton Millard of the Army.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sheldon Doud Eisenhower of Valley Forge, Pa.

The bride's grandmother, Mamie Eisenhower of Gettysburg, Pa., was among the guests at the wedding, after which a reception was held in Mellon Hall of the Valley Forge Military academy.

Happy divorce

"I even bought a new suit," said Albert Rabas, 48, a farm equipment sales manager of Luxemburg, Wis., who was throwing a divorce party for himself Saturday at a ballroom. "I bought a new suit when I got married, so I bought a new suit for my divorce."

After Rabas was divorced Feb. 28 from Judy Rabas, his wife of 22 years, "I said, 'By golly, it's all over, and I'm kind of happy. I ought to throw a party.'"

Pat Brown sidelined in son's presidential bid

By JOSEPH LELYVELD
New York Times Service

"Governor Brown, please," said the secretary who was putting through the call. "Former Governor Brown is calling."

A moment passed and then she punched a button on her phone. "Governor Brown," she said, "Jerry will call you back in a few minutes."

While waiting for the call in his paneled law office in Beverly Hills, the original Edmund G. Brown talked about his son's presidential campaign with a parent's fretful love and the frustrations of a sidelined war horse.

Pat Brown learned about his son's decision to run only after it had been announced in the press. Later, when he offered to campaign in Maryland, he was politely but firmly rebuffed.

The decision was relayed not by his son but by his son's campaign manager, Mickey Kantor.

"He said they didn't think it would be necessary," the former governor said. "They wanted my daughter but they thought it would be overkill if I came in. Overkill, I couldn't figure that out. I guess it was just some sort of an excuse."

In the circle of the candidate's advisers, where Pat Brown is affectionately viewed as an anachronism, there had been a division over whether he would be an asset to the campaign. Finally, when a decision was made, it was not really a matter of calculation but the son's firm wish.

Pat Brown was hurt but not put off. If he couldn't be useful one way, he would be useful another. So he got on the phone to old campaign contributors and dictated letters to Democratic governors of his generation, not one of whom was still in office, asking them to use their influence for his son. And while the governor was out of state campaigning, the former governor filled in for him on speaking engagements in California.

He has stayed as close to the campaign as he could ever since and worried about every tactical decision, but that has not been very close and he has never been consulted. In the two months since his son announced, he says, he has spoken to him perhaps six times on the phone and seen him only at fund-raising dinners.

At a dinner in Beverly Hills Wednesday night, the former governor was seated next to Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles when his son was swept into the ballroom on a tide of television crews and photographers and seated, finally, next to the actress Candice Bergen. The candidate passed within inches of his father and the mayor but seemed to see neither of them.

To avoid the appearance of a snub, Pat Brown urgently maneuvered the mayor into the TV lights that were shining on his son, then stood aside, waiting his turn to say a few words. In that moment, he could have been mistaken for a contributor who wanted to be introduced.

The night before at a dinner in San Francisco, the sensitive nerve ends of the relationship were even more strained by a long speech that mentioned his father only at the end.

And when Gov. Brown was leaving the hall, his father had to remind him to say goodnight to his mother. "Laugh, I thought I'd die," the senior Brown then said to no one in particular in tones that were plainly exasperated.

But by the next afternoon, Pat Brown was boasting about his son's speech and the write-in votes he had accumulated in Oregon, which were not enough for the stunning victory Jerry Brown had sought there but were twice as much as his his father had imagined he might get.

At 71, the former governor is well-tanned from the golf course and as exuberant as most candidates the voters will see this year. That exuberance is not easily checked, but he understands how it is with sons and can even find the words a son might use to talk about a father. "You love him," he said, "but you don't want to overwhelm him."

If he were asked, Brown would advise his son to reach out now to his elders — men like George Meany, Sen. Edward Kennedy, Mayor Richard Daley and Sen. Hubert Humphrey — in hopes of eventually getting their endorsements.

But he is not sure what course his son will follow on his candidacy or on other matters such as California's Proposition 15, the hotly contested referendum that seeks to block the further development of nuclear power in California.

The senior Brown is co-chairman of the committee to defeat the referendum. There is even a 30-second Pat Brown spot on TV on behalf of the "No" vote.

The governor has yet to take a stand on Proposition 15. "He may just endorse it to counteract me," his father said. "He may just feel that I've identified him with the negative side."

The phone rang as the former governor rose to see his guest to the door. Once he lifted the receiver, an expression of happy relief came over his face. Cupping a hand over the mouthpiece, he whispered, "It's my son."

Physicians willing to allow Karen Anne Quinlan to die

NEW YORK — The parents of Karen Anne Quinlan have found physicians willing to treat the 22-year-old comatose woman as a "chronic-care patient" and to refrain from using extraordinary medical procedures to keep her alive, but have not found a medical facility that will accept the young woman as a patient.

Miss Quinlan, who has been in an irreversible coma for 13 months, is a patient at St. Clare's Hospital in Denville, N.J. Hospital officials and her attending physicians, Drs. Robert Morse and Arshad Javed, have indicated they will take whatever steps are necessary to keep her alive, even if it means reconnecting her to a mechanical respirator.

Miss Quinlan has been free for 10 days of the respirator that supported her breathing for more than a year. If she is transferred to the care of new doctors and a new medical facility, she would not be put back on a respirator in the event of a medical crisis and would be allowed to die.

Dr. Joseph Fennelly of Madison, N.J., said he was the spokesman for a team of seven physicians who were willing to care for Miss Quinlan as a "chronic-care patient." He said this means the physicians and family, in caring for Miss Quinlan, "would maintain the usual standards of nutrition and do all possible to alleviate pain and suffering."

The physician said that since Miss Quinlan had demonstrated she could breathe without a respirator, "the basic problem of extraordinary means has been settled."

The young woman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Quinlan, went to court last year when her attending physicians at the hospital refused to remove Miss Quinlan from the respirator, believing it was needed to keep her alive and that removing the machine would violate accepted medical practice.

The parents' request was turned down following a Superior Court hearing but granted by the State Supreme Court on appeal.

Moving day

Administrative officers and employes Saturday began moving into the new, $5.5-million seaside Long Beach headquarters of the 19-campus California State University and Colleges system. Ten vans and 42 men spent the day carrying in furniture, equipment and supplies. The L-shaped, three-story structure at 400 Golden Shore is scheduled to ready for use by Tuesday.

Most businesses to be closed for holiday

There will be no regular residential or business mail delivery on Monday, and most federal, state, county and city offices will be closed because of the Memorial Day holiday.

Banks, schools, libraries, post offices and other government offices as well as most private business offices will be closed.

The Independent, Press-Telegram will publish a combined edition, which will be delivered Monday morning.

The Postal Service said limited post office window service would be provided.

TV, cash stolen

Burglars who climbed through a window at the home of Joel Douty, 2284 Locust Ave., took a television, radio, stereo equipment and currency with a total value of $1,000.

'It can be real therapy'

Poets meet for a few words

By KRIS SHERMAN
Staff Writer

A few years ago, people found it hard to believe that Rosey Grier, 260-pound defensive lineman for the Los Angeles Rams, had taken up needlepoint for relaxation.

Nevertheless, he-men across the country tried it and found that the art was both relaxing and rewarding.

SO IT'S not surprising that out of that same sort of Rosey Grier needlepoint philosophy comes yet another means of relaxation and release — poetry.

All it takes is paper, pen and the desire to express one's self in words, according to Scholer Bangs, a member of the California Federation of Chaparral Poets.

About 400 of the group's members were meeting at the Grand Hotel in Anaheim this weekend for the organization's 37th-annual statewide Poetry Convention.

"WE'VE done studies that show that one out of four adults say they have written poetry, are writing poetry or are poetry aficionados," Bangs said. "That means that there are about five million poetry fans in California."

But why poetry?

Bangs said poetry can take many forms — the Japanese haiku, free verse, blank verse, ballad and sonnet, for instance — and any topic whether it be real or imagined.

"It can be real therapy for someone who wants to relax after a difficult day on the job," Bangs said. "Some people write for profit, some write because they feel they have something to say and some write for the sheer pleasure of writing," he added.

BUT whatever a poet's reasons for putting his thoughts on paper, poetry is no longer something that's done "in the closet," according to Bangs.

"We've come a long way from the days when poetry was considered an effeminate art," he added. "A lot of our members are industrialists, presidents of corporations, businessmen, athletes and actors. And a lot of them write very good poetry.

"I don't think people really realize how much poetry is used in everyday communications," he continued. "There's poetry in greeting cards, rock music — the Beatles did a lot to popularize to that form of verse — and even television commercials."

BANGS said the poetry federation, which has about 800 members, holds meetings where poets gather to share their works, conducts a legislative lobby in Sacramento and encourages schoolchildren to try their hands at poetry by sponsoring contests and displaying the works of elementary school youngsters at the annual convention.

He said the group, founded in 1941 at Glendale, drew the 'chaparral' portion of its name from "landscape chaparral that adds beauty of its own to the mountains."

"Similarly," he concluded, "our poetry adds a beauty all its own to the literature of California."

City planning not hurt by shakeup

All planning functions in Long Beach, including zoning matters, special permits, subdivision approvals and environmental reports, are operating on a normal schedule, Assistant City Planning Director Carl Mooers said Friday.

Mooers has been in charge of the Planning Department since May 21, when City Manager John Mansell fired Planning Director Ernest Mayer Jr. after Mayer was arrested on charges of accepting $50,000 in bribes.

Property owners, architects, builders or developers requiring actions of the Planning Department or the Planning Commission need expect no unusual delays, Mooers said.

There had been some reports that district attorney's investigators looking into Mayer's activities had seized Planning Department records and files, handicapping the department's work, but Mooers said this is not the case.

"The only material taken by the investigators involved Mr. Mayer, and in no way has restricted the normal operations of the department," he said.

Doctor panel to rate jail's medical care

A panel of eight or 10 doctors will be named next week to evaluate the medical care of prisoners in the Orange County Jail, where three persons died last year as a result of falls or seizures.

Sheriff Brad Gates said physicians provided by the Orange County Medical Association will do the work as volunteers since the county has no funds for the work.

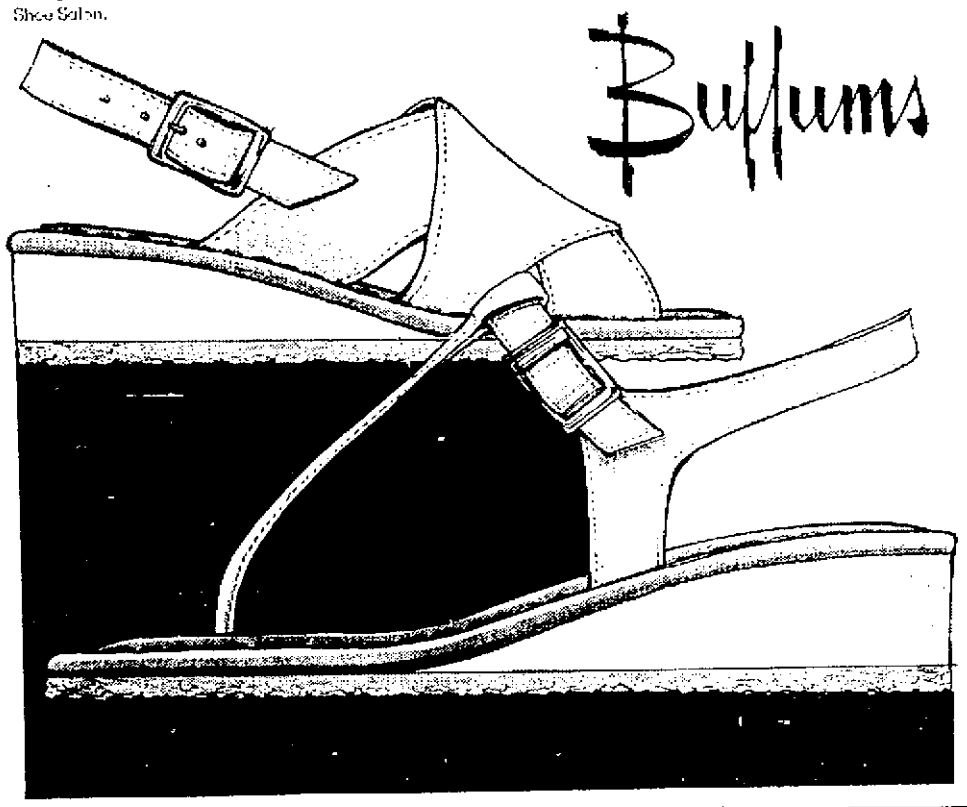

Everett Bannister, executive director of the association, said the request from the sheriff to make the evaluation was the first of its kind received by the medical association.

However, the American Medical Association makes such reviews for federal institutions, and the California Medical Association does the same for state penal facilities regularly, he said.

Woman lies helpless 6 days after stroke

MILPITAS (AP) — For seven days and six nights a 56-year-old widow who suffered a sudden, paralyzing stroke in her mobile home struggled vainly to cry for help or reach the telephone.

Leora Walker Reas lay virtually helpless inside her home until firemen pried open the door and found her Thursday night. They took her to Washington Hospital in Fremont, where she was reported in good condition Saturday.

"I never gave up hope. I have a lot of faith in the man upstairs," Mrs. Reas said from her hospital bed.

She said the ordeal began when she suffered the stroke a week ago Friday after walking into her living room, fresh from a shower. She collapsed, the left side of her body paralyzed from head to toe.

"It took me a day and a half to crawl to the kitchen," Mrs. Reas recalled. "I was hopeful I could get a drink of water, a shot of bourbon or some food—just something to survive."

She reached an open can of peaches, a basket of strawberries and a pan used to catch melting ice from the refrigerator. Everything else was beyond her grasp.

Her telephone rang and rang. It was tantalizingly close, but not close enough.

Finally on the seventh night help arrived. Her son, worried that she did not answer her phone, had called a neighbor, who went over and knocked on the door.

After hearing Mrs. Reas' muffled cries, the neighbor called the Fire Department.

"I knew you'd come before long," Mrs. Reas whispered to her rescuer, Fire Capt. Tim Jones.

"She didn't cry; she was calm," he said "It was if we stopped by for a planned visit."

New seat belt study set

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Highway Patrol, which recently received a study saying seat belts wouldn't help school bus safety, said Saturday another study would be made to see if seat belts would have saved lives in the May 21 Martinez bus crash.

The consultant making the study, Charles Ursell, is from the same firm, Southwest Research Institute, that presented the report on seat belts two months ago, said CHP Commissioner Glen Craig.

Twenty-eight high school choir members and a music teacher were killed in the Martinez crash when their bus smashed through a guard rail at a highway offramp, fell about 25 feet and landed on its roof.

The earlier study concluded that seat belts would be impractical and unnecessary on school buses and that their use would be difficult to enforce, Craig said.

He said the study suggested that any safety changes in buses "should be in the area of seat redesign to eliminate exposed metal tubing and add to padding."

But despite the report, Craig said, a new study may "give us additional insight into the wisdom of requiring belts on school buses."

Brown hit on busing view

Associated Press

Gov. Brown's reported statement during taping for a televison show Friday "that wideseale busing just ahead in Los Angeles doesn't make a lot of sense to me" was criticized in Los Angeles Saturday by Virna M. Canson, West Coast regional director of the NAACP.

Maid finds drugs; 5 arrested

Associated Press

A hotel maid's discovery of a shoe box allegedly filled with heroin and cocaine led to the arrest of five persons for investigation of illegal drugs, Los Angeles police said Saturday.

Authorities said 3½ ounces of drugs valued at $5,500 purportedly were in the box and another $55,340 in cash was confiscated during the arrests at the Los Angeles Hilton.

Booked for investigation of possession of drugs for sale were Michael Hampton, 30, Claudie Helton, 33, and Jacqueline Smith, 20, all of New York City, and David Stevens, 36, and Janis Smith, 22, both of Greenville, S.C.

Police said the maid was cleaning the 11th floor room Friday when she discovered the shoe box. Believing the occupants to have checked out, she took the box to the hotel claims counter where the drugs and several syringes were discovered.

Baja bandits threaten, rob U.S. campers

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A camping instructor said Saturday that he and eight other campers were robbed and terrorized by four bandits who burst into their Baja California campsite in the predawn hours armed with guns and machetes.

Bob Long said his group was robbed of about $1,200 in money and equipment and that two other smaller groups of campers at Punta Banda, about 20 miles south of Ensenada, also were victimized.

Long said the bandits threatened the campers, demanding money and other valuables. He said one bandit placed a machete at the throat of a pregnant woman but that neither she nor anyone else was injured.

Long, 37, of El Cajon, a camping teacher with the San Diego County Department of Education, said he had made more than 100 camping trips to Mexico without incident. He said he had reported the robbery to U.S. and Mexican authorities when the group returned to the border.

MILLS OK'S OWN LAW

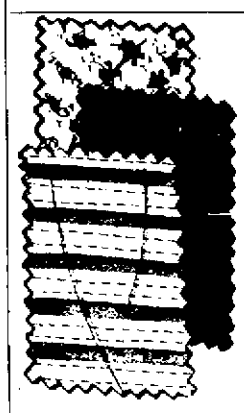

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Sen. James Mills got to sign one of his own bills into law this past week. The San Diego Democrat, as Senate president pro tem, became acting governor Friday with both Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. and Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally out of the state.

One of the four bills Mills signed late in the day was his own, a technical measure clarifying the state law on access for the handicapped to certain historic buildings.

Edgy Demos taunt each other on the holiday campaign trail

Carter now has 880 of the 1,505 delegates needed for nomination at the Democratic National Convention, and Udall is in second place with half a vote short of 300.

Ford leads te GOP race with 777 national delegates and Reagan has 613 with 1,130 needed for nomination.

Before heading for his home in Plains, former Georgia Gov. Carter attended a series of fundraisers in Ohio. He said he plans to spend about $100,000 on a media campaign for that state's June 8 primary.

In an appearance in Youngstown, Carter blasted Udall's animated television ads which depict the Georgian as two-faced and noncommittal on the issues, calling the ads "the first example" of direct personal attacks in the campaign.

Udall, in Cleveland, did not respond directly to Carter's criticism but said he did not believe the three radio spots to be used in the Ohio campaign were "out of bounds."

The Arizona congressman then took off for South Dakota, where he plans two days of campaigning in an effort to secure his first primary victory outside his home state.

At a Sioux Falls municipal airport news conference Saturday, Udall said Carter is planning some previously unscheduled campaigning in South Dakota on Monday and that "when he adds a day to his schedule, you know he's in trouble."

The congressman then flew to Brookings, where he repeated his charge that Carter is fuzzy on the issues.

Udall said he intends to emphasize in his South Dakota campaign his endorsement by Sens. James Abourezk and George McGovern.

Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, who has withdrawn from active campaigning, is also on the South Dakota ballot, along with antiabortion candidate Ellen McCormack, Gov. George Wallace of Alabama and an uncommitted slate believed to favor Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, who has said he is not seeking the nomination but would accept a draft.

Of Democrats Carter, Udall, Wallace, Jackson and Church listed on the Montana ballot, only Church has campaigned there. The senator has spent most weekends in his neighboring state.

Brown, buoyed by a record write-in vote that won him nine national convention delegates from Oregon last Tuesday, and Church exchanged criticisms on qualifications while campaigning in Rhode Island on Saturday.

The presidency "is not a glorified governorship," Church told a crowd in Cranston. "It's an office of very different dimensions...It's never been thought that 18 months in Sacramento was a sufficient preparation for the presidency of the United States."

The California governor responded to the senator at a Providence news conference later, saying: "I don't think that 20 years in Washington reading the Congressional Record necessarily qualifies a person for the top executive job in this country. The idea that because a man is 20 years in Washington you ought to send him back for another four years, I don't agree with.

"I think that the understanding and the experience that one gets as governor of particularly a state like New York or California — states that are larger than most of the countries of the world — is far more suited in terms of training for the presidency," he said.

Both Brown and Church scheduled full days of campaigning Saturday and today. Brown toured two areas of Providence on Saturday and drew about 200 listeners for a speech at a downtown shopping mall. Church addressed a crowd of about 150 senior citizens at an elderly housing project.

—In New York, pollster Louis Harris said he and others are having a difficult time determining Carter's strength because voters who express preferences for him during surveys before voting are apparently changing their minds before casting ballots.

Harris said 5 to 10 per cent of the people who said they would vote for Carter in their state primaries voted for other candidates or did not vote when election day came. And a reputable firm's poll for the Baltimore Sun predicted a narrow victory for Carter in the Maryland primary, which Brown won with a substantial 49-37 margin, Harris said.

—The Michigan Democratic Central Committee met Saturday and announced the official allocation of national delegates from the May 18 state primary gave Carter 69, Udall 58 and Wallace two. Four national delegates will attend the convention uncommitted.

Tunney, Hayden set day

A Tunney spokesman, Hadley Roff, said Tunney had just left Washington for California and had "no advance warning" that the B1 vote was upcoming. "The Senate is sometimes capricious," Roff said.

At campaign stops in San Francisco and Sacramento Friday, Tunney assailed defense proposals outlined in Hayden's campaign tome, "The Future Is Ours."

Tunney said he had analyzed the proposals and concluded they would cut the army by 38 per cent and the navy and air force by 51 per cent and eliminate nearly 2.6 million jobs.

Hayden's plans, Tunney said, would "dismantle our national defenses, disrupt important alliances and disrupt our economy."

But Hayden spokesman Sam Hurst said Hayden was only describing some defense cuts proposed by others, including Sens. George McGovern and William Proxmire and the Brookings Institution, and suggesting that Congress examine all defense programs meticulously.

Hayden believes "substantial cuts can be made" in defense spending but hasn't put a dollar figure on the cuts, Hurst said. He added, "We want the U.S. to be strong enough to defend itself, without exorbitant defense profits, hunting lodges, cost overruns, boondoggles like the B1 bomber, aid to dictators, and covert activities of the CIA."

Boy Scouts snub KKK

DAVIE, Fla. (AP) — Boy Scout officials, faced with the prospect of the Ku Klux Klan joining a scout-sponsored Memorial Day march Monday, are prepared. If the Klan marches, the scouts will take a walk.

"We'll be there and ready to march, but if they show up we'll pull our kids out," said scoutmaster Zeke Landis.

Hughes 'billions' dwindling day by day

By DONALD L. BARLETT and JAMES B. STEELE

Knight News Service

The celebrated will first made public following the death of Howard Hughes—and the only one of the many Hughes wills that have surfaced to which any credibility has been attached—is almost certainly a forgery.

As a consequence, the Hughes estate, which probably is worth much less than estimates previously published, seems certain to be all but gutted by federal estate taxes, legal fees and administrative expenses.

Indeed, it is possible that as little as $100 million to $200 million of the legendary Hughes "billions" may ever be distributed to relatives and heirs. The rest of the fortune either doesn't exist or is on its way to the federal government, whence it came, in the form of estate taxes.

First of a series

THOSE ARE some of the findings of a continuing investigation by The Philadelphia Inquirer into the Hughes business organization, and into the tangled series of complex legal actions filed in recent weeks by Hughes attorneys and relatives in state courts in California, Delaware, Nevada and Texas.

That investigation has established that:

—For every documents examiner brought forth who is ready to declare a Hughes will as "authentic" there is another examiner ready to label the same will as a "forgery."

—There are strong indications that memoranda already introduced in proceedings in several courts around the country as examples of Hughes' handwritten messages—and thus used for comparative purposes—actually represent the writing of two or more persons.

—The overall value of the Hughes estate—placed at between $1.5 and $2.5 billion by newspaper, magazine, television and radio reports—has been grossly exaggerated. In fact, it is probable the estate will fall short of the $1 billion mark.

— While the Hughes fortune will be far less than published reports have estimated—because the same secrecy that surrounded the industrialists's organization while he was alive continues after his death—it will be difficult, if not impossible, to determine whether the value of the estate has been further reduced by either mismanagement or diversion of assets.

—If there is no legitimate Hughes will, what is left of the Hughes millions, after payment of federal estate taxes and claims, will be distributed among a handful of his relatives with whom he had little contact, and some of whom he never even met.

—It is estimated that federal estate taxes, and interest payments on those taxes, will range upwards of a half-billion dollars, the actual figure depending upon the final valuation placed on the estate and the total amount of claims.

—Although legal hearings related to the Hughes estate can be expected to drag on for years—legal actions already are pending in four courts in four different states—there is one date that must be kept: The first installment of the federal estate tax bill—10 per cent of the total due—must be paid in July 1977.

—Depending upon the amount of cash and readily negotiable securities Hughes owned when he died, it is likely that some of the assets of his wholly-owned Summa Corp. will have to be sold to pay both the tax bill and the interest due on the tax next year. The total payments for the year could reach nearly $100 million.

WHILE HUGHES attorneys and relatives already are entangled in a morass of legal actions in four state courts—so that Howard Hughes continues in death as he did in life, in perpetual litigation—if there is in fact no will, the ultimate disposition will follow fairly clear legal guidelines and can, to some degree, be discerned in advance.

Here is what will happen:

—Upwards of 60 per cent of the estate will go to the Internal Revenue Service in the form of estate taxes, the percentage depending upon the amount of claims and other expenses. The tax payments may be spread over a maximum of 10 years, with an annual interest charge on the unpaid balance presently fixed at 7 per cent.

—Legal fees, administrative expenses and other claims will take anywhere from two or three per cent to more than 15 per cent of the estate, the amount depending largely on the outcome of several major lawsuits pending against Hughes and his companies.

—Depending upon which state probate laws ultimately are applied in the case, the balance of the estate will go, on paper, either to one relative or be distributed among 16 relatives.

—As the Inquirer disclosed two weeks ago, all Summa Corp. assets are presently held by a Delaware state court, sequestered in connection with a 15-year-old TWA-Hughes lawsuit that may drag on for years. Until that legal battle is resolved, Summa's assets cannot be given away, notwithstanding the actions of any probate court. IRS, though, could probably have the order set aside to free enough of the assets to pay taxes.

The federal estate tax payment, Washington tax law specialists say, could be the largest in the nation's history. And in that there is a financial irony for both Hughes and the American taxpayer. Over the past decade alone the Hughes empire received upwards of $6 billion in federal government contracts — contracts financed by the American taxpayer.

Although more than two dozen alleged Hughes wills have surfaced since the recluse died on April 5, only the will found in the Mormon Church headquarters has been submitted for probate to courts in both Las Vegas and Los Angeles.

Attorneys for Hughes' Summa Corp. and relatives of Hughes' father contend the will was not

NOAH DIETRICH
Awaiting New Report

Much of Hughes' fortune a myth?

written by Hughes. But Noah Dietrich, who was named executor in the purported will, maintains it is genuine.

Attorneys for the 87-year-old Dietrich, who for years was Hughes' chief business executive and financial adviser, say they are awaiting a report on the authenticity of the will by a Maryland questioned documents examiner, Michael P. Kradz.

Kradz, who says he has had 32 years of experience in police work, declined to say who hired him to examine the Hughes will. Although he has been identified in West Coast newspapers only as a handwriting expert retained by Dietrich's attorneys, Kradz indicated he had been retained by someone else.

"Let me put it to you this way," he said. "I was approached to look at this thing, okay? And I offered to do this, and look at it, as a friend of the court.

"I got permission from the court (in Las Vegas) and went out there and photographed it, the original, and naturally the people involved will get a report from me."

Kradz said his report will be completed on Tuesday.

Harold Rhoden, an attorney for Dietrich, said Kradz is not being paid by Dietrich for his services. "He (Kradz) was made available to me and I grabbed him," Rhoden said. "I want an expert. I want to know whether it's a forgery or not."

Neither Rhoden nor Kradz would identify the third party who asked Kradz to examine the will.

The three-page, handwritten will, dated March 19, 1968, directs a series of bequests, including the following:

Four-sixteenths of the estate to the Howard Hughes Medical Institute; 2/16 to four colleges, University of Texas, Rice, the University of Nevada and the University of California; 1/16 to the Mormon Church; 1/16 to establish a home for orphans and 1/16 to the Boy Scouts.

THE MOST interesting provision of the will was that 1/16 of the estate was to go to Melvin Dummar, a Mormon service station operator in Willard, Utah.

The 31-year-old Dummar has said that in January 1968—three months before the alleged will was signed—he was driving in the Nevada desert when he picked up a tall, skinny man wearing "baggy pants and tennis shoes" who was lying by the side of the road.

Dummar said he drove the stranger to Las Vegas, where he identified himself as Howard Hughes. (At the time, Hughes was thought to be living in seclusion in the Desert Inn.)

AS SOON AS what turned out to be the first in a long series of Hughes wills was made public on April 30, there were immediate efforts to label it authentic.

The Los Angeles Times quoted a long-time Hughes aide as saying there was "no question of the will's authenticity."

A questioned documents expert retained by the Mormon Church said there was "a very good chance" that Hughes did indeed write the will.

A handwriting authority in New York, described by a wire service as "a renowned autograph expert," said the Hughes' signature on the document "is indeed genuine."

Explaining why Hughes would appoint him executor—since the two had a falling out in the late 1950s and have been locked in continuing legal battles since the early 1960s—Dietrich observed: "He had so much respect for my integrity and abilities, it does not surprise me he named me as the administrator."

Nearly a month has gone by now and for every expert who first pronounced the will genuine, another expert has labeled it a forgery.

THE WILL has been challenged by attorneys representing relatives of Hughes' mother—the same lawyers also are counsel for the recluse's wholly owned Summa Corp—and by attorneys representing relatives of Hughes' father. Said one Hughes executive: "I think it's becoming apparent there are a lot of people who can write like Howard Hughes."

Even a handwriting expert retained by Dietrich's own attorney the last few weeks cast doubt on the authenticity of the will. Indeed, there seems to be little doubt now among some state and federal investigators that the will is a fraud.

To be sure, the will contains misspellings and language errors that are also to be found in some memoranda accepted by the courts as genuine Hughes products—"Fourth" spelled as "forth" and "revoke" spelled as "revolk," "divide" as "devide" and plural usages confused with possessive usages.

HOWEVER, there are also on record many handwritten memoranda introduced in court proceedings as examples of Hughes' handwriting that contain no grammatical or spelling errors.

The 261-word "will," by comparison, contains more than a dozen errors in spelling or usage—an average of better than one mistake every 20 words. It even misspells the name of Hughes' first cousin, William R. Lummis, as "Lommis."

At least one investigator thinks the various and sundry handwritten memoranda, long believed to have been all written by Hughes, actually were written by two different persons.

Another possibility is that Hughes was a man who slipped in and out of periods of lucidity and that he did indeed write all the memoranda and perhaps even the will. If this is the case, however, the investigator points out, there would then be a question as to the part of the will in which "Hughes" declares himself as "being of sound and disposing mind and memory" when the will was written.

Since Hughes' death on April 5, the two major unknown factors in coming up with a precise estimate of his fortune are these:

—The extent of his investment in bonds, certificates of deposit or similar holdings. Based on what is known of Hughes' past financial practices, it is presumed this figure would not be substantial.

—The extent of his investment in other companies in which the stock may be held by a nominee—a long-time Hughes business practice—making it impossible to determine from existing public records the exact nature of such investments.

For example, the Inquirer has learned that since the early 1970s Hughes maintained a multi-million dollar account at a leading Wall Street securities firm, which made investments for him.

With the exception of those two unknown areas, Hughes single largest investment is in hotels, gambling casinos and undeveloped land in Clark County, Nevada.

Dow falls in slow market

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Interest rate uncertainties — a recurring source of distress in recent weeks — occupied the stock market much of last week, cutting back prices and keeping the trading pace slow.

The worst of it occurred last Monday when the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials tumbled 19.22 points, the largest one-day drop since the average fell 20.88 points on May 6, 1975.

The price erosion, which by Thursday had taken the Dow Jones industrial average back down to its lowest closing since February, was unaccompanied by any perceptible buildup in trading volume that might have reflected selling pressure. It was, rather, a matter of a lack of buying demand, reflecting what some analysts perceived as a weakening in confidence.

Elements in the weakening in confidence, analysts suggested, included inflationary prospects, some dull earnings forecasts and the unknowns surrounding the presidential primary campaigns.

None of these questions were resolved at week's end, but Friday the equities markets turned around, registering what several specialists described as a technical recovery. This recovery, from what was described as "an oversold condition," was also helped by reports that the oil ministers of the 13 member nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, meeting in Indonesia, had not as yet reached a decision on an oil price increase.

The fact that there had been no quick move to raise oil prices offset, for the time being at least, the series of prime rate increases — to 7 per cent — announced Friday morning by a number of New York commercial banks.

Rising interest rates also were in evidence — for the sixth consecutive week in the credit markets.

For the week as a whole the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 15.25 points at 975.23. Volume was 84.25 million shares, compared with 91.85 million traded in the previous week.

Porpoise war steps up as ban deadline nears

WASHINGTON (AP) — A court-ordered ban on killing of porpoises by tuna fishermen goes into effect Monday, but a campaign is under way to overcome the ruling.

A May 11 decision by U.S. District Court Judge Charles Richey forbids the fishermen from continuing to kill porpoises. However, the tuna industry says it is preparing an appeal to the U.S. Circuit of Appeals. Meanwhile, the industry's supporters in Congress, alleging that consumers will suffer, are pressing a bill to nullify Richey's decision.

Environmental groups that brought the suit are fighting to let the decision stand.

President Ford entered the controversy on the side of the industry while campaigning last week in California. He went aboard a tuna boat in San Diego Harbor and said "the tuna industry will be destroyed if the full impact of Judge Richey's decision is carried out."

The controversy concerns a method of catching tuna that accounts for a major share of the nation's tuna. It also has accounted for hundreds of thousands of dead porpoises during the last 15 years.

Up to about 1960, tuna fish were taken with poles. Then it was discovered that some yellow-fin tuna swim under schools of porpoises. When the fishermen spot a school of porpoises, they put down their nets and haul in the tuna underneath.

The tuna industry, supported by the federal agency that regulates it and by some California congressmen, cites progress in reducing porpoise killings. The Commerce Department says porpoise killings from Jan. 1 to April 14 were 23,709, a 67 per cent reduction from the 74,352 killed in the same period last year.

Richey ruled that this progress is not enough. The Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972, passed because of earlier expressions of concern for the porpoises, required the department to take steps within two years to reduce porpoise killings "to insignificant levels approaching zero."

The judge, setting the ban for this Monday, said the department was "in violation of both the letter and spirit of the law."

Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-Calif., leader of the move in Congress to nullify the decision, said it will result in higher prices for tuna to consumers and "threatens to destroy the American tuna industry."

Environmentalists scoff at claims of economic damage to the tuna industry, citing statistics showing that most tuna is still caught by the pole method. "There is plenty of tuna that can be caught without harming porpoise stocks," said Toby Cooper of the Defenders of Wildlife.

State hails new low-pollution Volvo

Associated Press

The California Air Resources Board said in Los Angeles Saturday that Volvo has developed a nearly pollution-free car which will be sold in the state later this year.

Board Chairman Tom Quinn said the new Swedish import, which uses an American-made catalytic converter and a special fuel-injection system, is the "most significant breakthrough ever achieved" in the effort to reduce smog emissions from automobiles.

Quinn told a news conference that the new Volvo "in addition to being nearly smog-free, actually gets 10 per cent better mileage than current models."

He said a 1976 four-cylinder Volvo sedan with the new converter averaged 22 miles per gallon, while a regular 1976 Volvo averaged 20 miles per gallon and an "average car," which was not further defined, averaged 17.6 miles per gallon.

Quinn said the converter was the first to control all three kinds of automobile pollution: hydrocarbon, carbon monoxide and oxides of nitrogen. The conventional system is an oxidation catalyst which reduced only hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide, he said.

In addition, the engine has a fuel-injection system which includes a device that measures each dose of fuel for the engine. While the normal method is for fuel to be measured out into the air flow, the Volvo system varies the amount of air and fuel.

Quinn said he expected the catalyst would work with cars with conventional carburetors but it would require the metered fuel system.

Quinn said the new Volvo has completed lengthy tests required by the state Air Resources Board and the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

California's antismog rules, already the toughest in the nation, will be further stiffened next year. Quinn said most auto manufacturers have developed systems that meet the state's new requirements but that Volvo's exceeded the rules by a wide margin.

In Washington, the EPA had no comment on Quinn's statements but confirmed that Volvo mileage and emission figures released by Quinn were correct.

Quinn said, "We were astounded by the results, which show that within the next decade we can nearly eliminate the automobile as a major cause of smog."

The board estimated the cost of the catalytic converter at between $25 and $50 per car but said the price would go down with mass production. There was no cost placed on a special fuel injection system necessary to get th mileage-performance results reported.

Quinn said the new Volvo is 10 times cleaner than cars sold in most of the nation and seven times cleaner than cars currently sold in California, which has more stringent emission requirements. He said the new system was discovered inadvertently.

"Volvo was trying to develop an emissions system to meet California's stringent 1977 smog standards and at the same time improve fuel economy," he said. "Volvo had no idea that its new control system would result in a nearly pollution-free car."

Problem delays SST flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The takeoff of one of Air France's supersonic Concorde airliners was delayed Saturday when an afterburner apparently overheated, according to the Federal Aviation Administration.

A spokesman for Air France confirmed that the plane was delayed by a "minor technical problem," which he said was quickly repaired.

Jim Collins of Air France said the plane took off from Dulles International Airport for Paris at 1:58 p.m. with 60 passengers. It has a capacity of 80.

The plane had begun a takeoff run at 1:10 p.m., but when the afterburner problem appeared the plane was returned to the terminal for repairs and fuel.

A spokesman for the FAA said the plane had used 4,000 feet of the 11,500-foot runway when the takeoff was aborted. It was halted at the 7,500-foot mark and taxied back.

The malfunction was described as apparently an overheated afterburner by the FAA, but the spokesman said it wasn't certain if the afterburner itself had malfunctioned or only the warning light.

A-PLANTS GET SECURITY ALERT OVER HOLIDAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has issued a security alert for all 58 nuclear power plants across the nation for the Memorial Day weekend, a spokesman said Saturday.

One power company official said the NRC notification of an alert mentioned the fact an NRC agent lost his identification, and police warned in a separate communication that a midget submarine had been stolen.

Another official contacted in a spot check of nuclear plants said radical activity had prompted the alert.

Emigres from Israel assailed

Knight News Service

TEL AVIV—Prime Minister Yitshak Rabin Saturday denounced Jews who have joined the growing flow of emigres from Israel, calling them "deserters" and "weakling dropouts."

Rabin's slashing attack on emigres, who this year threaten for the first time to outnumber immigrants to Israel, sharply contrasted with a vigorous campaign by Israel's government and the Jewish Agency to convince hundreds of thousands of former Israelis to return to the country.

The prime minister's statements brewed counterfire from Israel's foremost newspaper, Ha'Aretz, which accused Rabin of sabotaging official efforts to coax back emigres.

Rabin issued his first attack in a nationwide interview, calling emigres "weakling dropouts." He renewed his attack in a speech to university students here, declaring, "I consider them deserters."

"I DON'T see any justification, come what may," Rabin said, "for anyone born in this country or living here to get up and say: 'I'm deserting the battlefield'."

Rabin's stand contradicted officials here who have been calling for a change of attitude about emigres. "We must not say emigrants are traitors," Menahem Sherman, absorption minister director-general, said recently. "They made a mistake to leave, but that doesn't mean we shouldn't help them to come back."

The newspaper Ha'aretz said: "While it is true that everyone who leaves Israel at this time is in effect weakening it, imposing an additional burden on those who remain, and strengthening its enemies, we do not want to sever our ties with these people or eliminate the prospect that some of them will return.

"The policy toward emigres by the government and the Jewish Agency is directed to this end, and the prime minister's epithet has had the effect of undermining that policy," Ha'aretz stated.

OFFICIALS said that about half the current effort by absorption agencies here was directed at attracting back emigres, offering them housing, loans and other inducements. The drive is seen aimed at compensating for declining immigration resulting from tightened Kremlin restrictions on Jews wanting to emigrate and the large percentage of Soviet emigres who switch to destinations other than Israel once receiving permission to leave Russia. Such dropouts totaled 60 per cent of those reaching Vienna supposedly en route to Israel in April.

Upwards of 20,000 people emigrated from Israel last year, and there are indications that the total may be higher this year. Many are veteran Israelis who complain of the country's quality of life, economic problems and other hardships.

The latest batch of emigres are 450 Soviet Jews who left Israel and are now stranded in Rome awaiting entry visas to the United States.

Ransom paid but girl still missing

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Belgian ambassador and his wife paid leftist kidnapers $640,000 in cash Saturday as ransom for their 16-year-old daughter, Nadine Chaval, police sources said.

There still was no word, however, that the victim had been released.

Nadine's mother, Mrs. Denise Mireille Chaval, told a morning news conference:

"We are waiting for communication from them, to hear the voice of Nadine. This is the code, we have to listen to Nadine's voice in order to turn the money over."

Ambassador Andre Chaval and his wife had raised the ransom by selling property and other valuables and with gifts of money from friends here and abroad.

TRADE MEETING STALEMATED

New York Times Service

NAIROBI, Kenya—A search for an 11th-hour compromise on the critical issues of commodities and debts continued on a round-the-clock basis as delegates to the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development met in dozens of informal contact groups.

As matters stood on the afternoon of the 26th day of the conference the positions of all of the poor and most of the rich nations had not moved much. Furthermore, in a collateral dialogue, one between the developing countries and the socialist nations of Eastern Europe on restructuring monetary and trade agreements, there has similarly been no narrowing of the gap.

But by far the greatest emphasis has been placed by the poor countries on their attempts to wrest concessions on debt relief and a coordinated price support system for commodities, which make up the lion's share of export earnings for the underdeveloped countries.

They had come here with concrete and specific proposals calling for the establishment of a common fund — an international clearing house that would through the acquisition of buffer stocks maintain price levels for key commodities. In addition they called for an international debt conference to establish guidelines for debt relief.

Suez Canal making a comeback

By ELIAS ANTAR

ISMAILIA, Egypt (AP) — A year after its reopening, the Suez Canal has yet to regain its old role as a major highway of international trade, but the graphs are beginning to point upward.

Egyptians regard the canal as visible evidence that they genuinely seek peace with Israel. The dozens of ships using the 103-mile waterway every day, and the rebirth of the cities along its banks, make it difficult, Egyptians say, to envisage the whole enterprise being jeopardized in another war.

Officials of the Suez Canal Authority report that after an initial period of "experimentation and testing," shippers now are showing more confidence that the canal is safe and likely to stay open.

"The monthly increases in traffic are a good sign that the canal is gaining importance as a link between East and West," said the chairman of the authority, Mashour Ahmed Mashour.

In the first month of renewed operation, an average of 11 ships a day went through the canal. The present average is 46 ships a day, and the canal may increase traffic from two to three convoys a day next month.

The canal was closed on June 5, 1967, on the first day of the six-day war which brought the Israelis to its eastern bank. President Anwar Sadat reopened it last June 5.

By then the Israelis had pulled back from the canal and under an agreement last September withdrew to the central Sinai Peninsula, out of artillery range of the waterway. Americans operate electronic monitoring stations to ensure that neither side launches an attack.

As another Egyptian bet on peace, the agreement gave Israel the right to send cargo through the canal on foreign ships for the first time in more than 20 years. Canal officials say there has been about one such passage a month since the canal reopened.

Despite all the reassurances, business in the canal picked up slowly. Canal authority figures show that in the 12 months since it reopened, traffic amounted to 234.2 million tons, in contrast to 548 million tons in 1966, its last full year of operation.

Initial reluctance to use the canal may have stemmed from the fact that engineers removed 42,000 live explosives from the bottom and 700,000 mines from its banks. Naval units from the United States, the Soviet Union, France, Britain and Egypt took part in a year-long clearing effort.

"You should judge the performance of the canal from January," Mashour said in an interview at canal authority headquarters here. Traffic is increasing now by 8.22 per cent a month.

The authority has embarked on a program that will widen and deepen the canal so that 150,000-ton tankers can go through loaded by early 1979.

Patient

I'm eligible for Medi-Cal benefits, but I haven't been able to find a doctor who will accept me as a patient. I broke my hip and knee a year ago, and I need a check-up, but all the doctors I've called say they don't treat Medi-Cal patients. How can I find out which doctors do? M.S., Wilmington.

The Long Beach Medical Association, which covers Long Beach, Lakewood and Wilmington, can refer you to physicians who will accept new Medi-Cal patients. You can call the association at 432-3971. A spokeswoman for the association told Action Line she didn't know of any local orthopedic specialist who would accept Medi-Cal patients, but she can supply you with the names of several general practitioners who will treat persons on state aid. "Very few specialists will treat Medi-Cal recipients unless the patient is referred by another doctor," she added.

Policeman

I heard an oration about the police on the Lawrence Welk show. It was a masterpiece and I'd like to know where I can purchase a copy of it. K.L., Long Beach.

A copy of "The Policeman" has been sent to you by Welk's production company, Teleklew, 100 Wilshire Blvd., Santa Monica, Calif. 90401. A spokeswoman for the firm said she didn't know who wrote the piece, which was recited on the Lawrence Welk show several years ago by one of the members of the band. That particular show is frequently rerun on television. The essay, which opens with "A policeman is a composite of what all men are . . . a mingling of saint and sinner," laments that "he is at once the most needed and the most unwanted . . . a strangely nameless creature who is 'sir' to his face and 'fuzz' behind his back." The essay warns that an officer "must know where all the sin is and not partake. A policeman must be a minister, a social worker, a diplomat, a tough guy and a gentleman."

Back to school

I didn't get past the ninth grade and I'd like to finish high school. I'm 36 years old. Can Action Line help me? R.J., Long Beach.

You can get your high school diploma through the Long Beach School for Adults-Evening High School, 845 Park Ave. After evaluating your education and employment background, the school will set the number of course credits you need to earn to get your diploma. An adult usually is given some credits for military or work experience, and you can earn course units by passing the General Education Development subject tests. It is impossible, however, in California, unlike some other states, to obtain a high school diploma simply by passing the GED tests. You can get a certificate of high school equivalency from the California Department of Education if you successfully pass the GED tests, but to get a diploma, you must complete classes in U.S. government and history plus any other courses required by the school district after evaluating your school records. The school for adults, which begins its summer session June 21, is open Mondays through Thursdays, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 10 p.m., and Fridays, 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. You can call 433-7446 for more information.

Action Line

REACTION

In reference to your item on "kitnaping." I don't condone the malicious killing of animals, owned by someone or not. I also don't believe in free range or share your pets, as the case may be. I think the law pertaining to dogs running loose should apply to cats, also. These pets become pests when they are let free to roam and foul the neighbors' yards rather than their owners'. I feel that any animal that is running loose should be trapped, and if owners of these animals cannot be located, the animals should be destroyed. Also, any owners of pets running loose should be fined. J.B., Cypress.

lections of that campaign: Lyndon B. Johnson and the Vietnam war.

During the four years Humphrey served as vice president under Johnson, American involvement in the war had escalated, and as antiwar sentiment grew, Humphrey came under pressure to repudiate Johnson's position on the war.

"I had a choice," wrote Humphrey. "Break with the president and be denounced as irresponsible. Or muddle through. Really no choice if I wanted to be president."

As for Johnson, Humphrey described his as "impossible on the war ...

"Wonder why Johnson shot me down when I said that troops would be withdrawn in 1969? I was right. I got the information from the White House. Ruined my credibility, made me look like a damn fool. It hurt. Never really recovered from that."

And then there were the frustrations of the vice presidency:

"Johnson did not like my being interviewed. He decreed that we would carry no press on my journeys around the United States ...

"The vice presidential life was colored by more than LBJ's temper. The temper of the times was no better. My visits to colleges and universities — about a hundred of them up to the time I became a candidate for the presidency — became more difficult as the war in Vietnam went on and protests began.

"Except for the President, I had been the administration's primary defender of the increasingly ugly and unpopular war. I may have been wrong, but I acted out of conviction and upon the information made available to me."

In recalling Johnson, Humphrey also wrote, "I had no single attitude toward Lyndon Johnson. He is not my 'fall guy' to be blamed for my mistakes or failures. I owe far too much to him. He made possible my being Senate majority whip and vice president of the United States. No one played a more important role in my receiving the nomination for the presidency ...

"When I am critical of Lyndon Johnson, it is in the context that I consider him an outstanding president, whose domestic achievements were formidable."

SAUDI ARABIA'S Zaki Yamani pauses to answer newsmen's questions Saturday as he departs from Bali, where the oil-producing nations announced there would be no increase, for the moment, in the price of oil. —AP Wirephoto

Saudi oil minister sees price stability

BALI, Indonesia (AP) — The oil minister of Saudi Arabia said Saturday he expects oil prices to remain unchanged for the rest of the year despite pressure by some oil exporters to boost prices earlier.

Sheik Zaki Ahmed Yamani acknowledged that some members of the world oil cartel want a special meeting to consider new prices before their next scheduled ministerial session in December. But he said: "I don't see why we should go to a special meeting."

ASKED WHETHER others might try to boost prices on their own, Yamani said: "I wish them good luck. No one can increase without Saudi Arabia."

He said Saudi Araba stood firm against an increase this year "because we feel it's in the interests of OPEC as well as in the world's economy which is about to recover."

Yamani spoke with reporters before leaving Bali after a meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries which decided Friday to leave oil prices unchanged. The current price of $11.51 per barrel of a standard grade oil was set last Oct. 1 when OPEC voted a 10 per cent increase.

AN OPEC communique said the oil nations, after considering an economic commission report, decided to instruct the commission to continue its work and report back to the next OPEC ministers' meeting.

The communique set the next meeting for Dec. 15 in Doha, Qatar, but OPEC Secretary General M.O. Feyide and other representatives said they would not rule out an earlier special meeting.

Those members of the 13-nation cartel seeking a price boost, notably Iran and Iraq, argued that oil prices should be raised to match rising costs of Western manufactured goods. They spoke of increases up to 15 per cent.

U.S. group loses power plant job in S. Africa

subcommittee, said last week black African leaders would view it as "a signal that the United States hasn't really changed its African policy at all and has no intention of doing so. I think this will only increase the potential for violence and bloodshed in southern Africa."

Three American environmental groups — the Sierra Club, the Natural Resources Defense Council and the Union of Concerned Scientists — filed a petition with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission asking that GE be denied licenses to export plutonium for the plants.

The U.S. State Department had no comment on the announcement. General Electric officials were unavailable.

The South African announcement said Framatome will supply the nuclear reactors and Alsthom the turbogenerators while Spie Batignolles will be responsible for engineering, South African officials said.

The power station will consist of two pressurized water reactors, each with an electrical output of 922 megawatts. The first unit is scheduled for commissioning in November 1982, the second a year later.

The officials said said financing will be provided by a consortium of French banks in the form of a buyer credit for 85 per cent of the overseas portion of the contract.

Three Dutch firms blamed the Dutch government Saturday for the loss of the contract. A statement from the firm of Rijn Schelde Verolme said the government did not act in time to fulfill its offer to cooperate in granting a credit guarantee. The statement also was issued in behalf of the two other Dutch firms involved, Bredero and Conprimo.

Earlier this week the issue caused a political storm in the Netherlands. Labor and leftists ministers in Premier Joop den Uyl's coalition government opposed participation on grounds it would indicate support of South Africa's policy of racial segregation. Christian Democrats argued the orders would create employment.

There was no official reaction in Paris.

France has maintained good relations with South Africa and has sold the Pretoria government arms. Neither France nor South Africa signed the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

U.S. shuns Boston case

But they said if the court agreed to review it, the department would file a brief as it does in virtually all desegregation cases before the high court.

In a department brief in the Boston case or any other school case, the department will take the position that busing or any other tool of desegregation should be restricted, Bork told reporters.

"The remedies should be tailored to the violation," Bork said.

He said the department position would encompass a wide range of desegregation methods, rather than busing alone.

Bork insisted that the decision to stay out of the Boston case now was made "on entirely legal grounds" and that political considerations played no part at all.

President Ford had been accused by some Democrats of raising the issue for political reasons before he faced a primary election in Kentucky and Tennessee, where busing had been a matter of controversy. He denied the allegation as he won those elections last Tuesday.

Ford issued a statement Saturday saying that he respected Levi's decision. But he directed the attorney general "to continue an active search for a busing case which would be suitable for judicial review of current case law on forced school busing."

Ford also pushed Levi "to develop legislative remedies to minimize forced school busing."

"I believe that ways can be found to minimize forced busing while also remaining true to the nation's ideals and our educational goals," the President said.

In Boston, civil rights leaders praised Levi's decision, while antibusing forces assailed it.

Boston Mayor Kevin White, who wants a Supreme Court review of the city's court-ordered desegregation plan, said, "I am surprised at the attorney general's decision, but it will not affect my own suit ..."

Asked if the latest development might touch off a new wave of violence in Boston, White said, "It shouldn't. There's no excuse for that."

But antibusing leader Louise Day Hicks said Levi's announcement might make the people of Boston "lose their heads."

"The decision of the attorney general is the result of political pressure," said Mrs. Hicks, Boston City Council president. "It's a victory for the high-pressured hypocrites who abound in Washington. President Gerald Ford is a fraud. This is an antiwhite decision."

Thomas I. Atkins, president of the Boston chapter of the NAACP, applauded Levi's decision. "The significance of the attorney general's statement is that he has resisted the effort by the President to manipulate and politicize the U.S. Supreme Court," he said.

The Senate's only black member, Edward W. Brooke, said Levi's decision was neither a victory nor a defeat for either side of the busing issue.

"The attorney general has acted in a judicious and statesmanlike manner, after carefully weighing the arguments of both sides of this extremely controversial matter," the Massachusetts Republican said.

Opponents of Boston busing, appealing a ruling by Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr., have said he went too far by trying to undo racial separation resulting from housing patterns, not the intentional segregation policies of the Boston School Committee.

17 reported killed in Beirut

non, police reported. More than 90 persons were killed and 200 wounded during 24 hours of fighting on all fronts of the sectarian conflict that has killed nearly 26,000 since April 1975, the spokesman said.

Police reported renegade Moslem forces from the nation's 18,000-man regular army overran the Christian garrison town of Andket, with a population of 5,000, near the Syrian border in northern Lebanon.

As a Syrian-sponsored cease-fire in the area collapsed, a police spokesman added, neighboring Qibyat, with a largely Christian population of 20,000, came under heavy rocket and artillery bombardment.

In other Lebanese developments:

—Leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt said in a radio interview broadcast in Paris that French intervention in the Lebanese struggle "should be limited to an invitation to the opposing sides to organize roundtable talks in France." He made the comment after France had offered to send troops to Lebanon to monitor a cease-fire.

—Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat visited Libya on Friday amid reports of a Libyan campaign to enlist Syria in a grouping of hardline anti-Israeli countries against Egypt. Libya has criticized Egypt as a traitor to the Arab cause since last September's troop withdrawal agreement with Israel.

Iraq and Algeria were also reported to be members of the group opposed to Egypt's "capitulationist schemes."

Carter stubborn, mother says

By MARIE W. RIDDER
Our National Bureau

PLAINS, Ga. — "So soft, so kind until you hit the steel." Mrs. Earl Carter, known in this tiny Georgia town as Miss Lillian, sat with her legs curled under her in a large armchair, talking about the Democratic front-runner, her son, Jimmy Carter.

"If we're in disagreement, I can tell when the curtain comes down. A vein stands out in his right temple. He has a sharp claws when he gets angry. He is adamant.

"He hardly ever says anything. I've seen him lose his temper maybe three times. He doesn't want to hurt anybody so he stays quiet but you can tell."

The energetic, 78-year-old mother of the former governor of Georgia prides herself on being frank. "I am," she says, "the most liberal woman in Georgia. Everyone knows I am an integrationist. I get tired of explaining. My feelings are so different from others around here. I don't have an intimate friend in this town except my children, so I know how people can treat you when they don't agree with you. I have always tried to be tolerant — even of people from Alabama."

Miss Lillian, a lady of the Deep South, invited blacks to her front door years ago, stood beside her son when he fought to integrate their church. At 67, she joined the Peace Corps to care for the desperately ill in India. She would be special anywhere. But now her shaded brick rambler "in town" and her wood A-frame on a quiet, pine-fringed pond a few miles away have become meccas for those who want to know more about her son.

"I used to say 'if he becomes president,' and he used to say, 'mother, you are so negative about me.' It would get his goat. But since Florida," the white-haired lady, trim in her turquoise blue pants suit pases, "I say 'when'."

Son's decision to run recalled

She still remembers, with a note of surprise in her voice, the moment she first heard Jimmy had decided to run for that awesome office.

"I was recuperating in the governor's mansion in Atlanta from a shoulder I had broken in Hawaii, sitting up in bed, reading, when Jimmy came in from tennis to visit with me. He was in blue jeans and a T-shirt, barefoot. I asked him what are you going to do after you have finished your term as governor?"

"I am going to run for president," he answered.

"President of what?" I said, thinking he was joking.

"President of the United States, and I am going to win. "I have this eerie feeling he was right. It's all been so gradual and still so rapid."

Miss Lillian talks of a little boy who was an avid reader, who plowed earnestly through "War and Peace" at 12, a teaser and a prankster who sometimes deserved his father's switching for being hard on his little sisters, a boy who loved to hunt and fish and comb the woods for arrowheads. She remembers a serious young man — inspired by postcards from a sailor uncle — who was determined to go to Annapolis.

More expected out of Jimmy

"We wanted him to have an education. We expected more out of Jimmy than a small town can offer. We didn't want him to end up as a filling station attendant. Our congressman came from Americus and we knew that if Jimmy had the qualifications he would get an appointment to the naval academy. It was a chance for the kind of education we couldn't afford to give him."

Jimmy pursued his appointment with a singlemindedness that has since become a trait recognized from New Hampshire to California. He was flat-footed so he rolled Coca-Cola bottles under his arches for "hours and hours." He was underweight so he gorged himself on final examination day with bananas.

His first ambition achieved with appointment to Annapolis, the young midshipman immediately looked ahead. "I always hoped Jimmy might make admiral. He wanted to become chief of Naval Operations. But I never did think Jimmy might be president," said his mother. "I still can't visualize Jimmy in the White House. I still think of the president as a far-away being, far from my touch or my knowing of him."

Sitting in the quiet green living room waiting for the Carters' youngest child, 8-year-old Amy, to return from school to her grandmother's brownies and chilled cocoa, a reporter wonders what about the campaign most distresses this forthright lady with steel blue eyes.

She answers with a laugh, the number of cousins that have suddenly appeared, the flattery that annoys even more than criticism and most seriously, the constant carping about Jimmy's christianity.

"If you live in Plains, the church is the only place we have to go except a beer joint. The old windows in that church are the only things of artistic merit in this town. All our lives gravitate to that big white building."

Miss Lillian doesn't like her son to say, "I will never tell a lie." She finds it unnecessary. "It's your deeds that count," she

Carter's mother talks about her son

states firmly. "But I don't tell Jimmy. I am all sweetness and light when he comes home. He needs this time here to be unruffled."

She was worried that Jimmy's gubernatorial experience had not sufficiently equipped him for dealing with foreign policy, but since his speech at the United Nations she is sure he will do fine.

"He has always applied himself to what ever needed doing with intelligence and discipline. When he came back to run the farms and peanut business he didn't just drift. He learned what to do to improve the crop and the marketing. He read every book on the subject and took agriculture classes. He said just last week, 'I hope I am never too old to want to learn something new.' "

Driving down the quiet roads, fragrant with honeysuckle, one wonders what brought a man, with a brilliant career ahead of him, back to this red clay country. "His priorities," say his mother. "Jimmy has a strong sense of duty. We needed him after his father died to help collect the $90,000 credit we had due from farmers over the county.

'He has always applied himself'

A man who as a boy had never liked working in the fields, always dreamed of leaving this country of pine and peanuts, came back to rescue his family's inheritance. "At first", says Miss Lillian, "He came to help out. Then he used that singlemindedness to improve our farms and build up the warehouse. His father left 3,000 acres so we weren't hurting, but Jimmy turned it all into a very good business that Billy runs now. It takes care of all of us."

Last year, the Carter enterprises were able to buy a peanut sheller that cost over $90,000, says Miss Lillian.

We pass the pleasant, painted, wood farmhouse where Jimmy lived as a boy. A towering pecan tree and a flowering magnolia remind Miss Lillian of planting the seedlings when her children were little. Then back to town past a main street that seems to have been borrowed from a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer back lot. Seven 19th Century buildings, neat store fronts, set sternly by the railroad track. At one end stands Hugh Carter's antique store. At the other, the Carter warehouse.

In the middle of the row, a large sign intrigues the visitor, "Carter's Worm Farm." "That belongs to Jimmy's first cousin, his oldest friend, Hugh," explains Miss Lillian.

Cousin combines worms, politics

It is a flourishing business, she reports, "started with crickets raised in a coffin but he switched to worms after a bit."

Hugh Carter's worms are shipped to bait shops all over the country. It is the largest worm farm in the country, harvesting 150 million worms a year. Hugh Carter calls his produce, "wiggly gold." Like Jimmy, Hugh is thorough. He has written seven books on growing worms. "Those worms," she adds, "have built him a fine, new house."

Hugh Carter, who succeeded his cousin Jimmy in the legislature, currently has a hectic time between shipping worms, selling mementos of Plains to a suddenly numerous clientele and rounding up delegates for his cousin on the telephone at the back of his store.

"It's a WATTS line," he explains but a far cry from the smoke-filled rooms traditionally used for delegate pressuring. He also keeps an eye on Carter For President headquarters, spitting distance away in the old depot, where volunteers are busy painting peanuts to sell as fund raising souvenirs.

The Carter family has dominated this town of 633 since Jimmy's great-great grandfather, Wiley, settled here 150 years ago. Jimmy's father was in the legislature. Hugh's father, 87-year old Alton, was mayor of Plains for 28 years.

"But," adds Miss Lillian, "Most people in this town are black and poor. They have a very hard life."

We drive past a sprawling red brick school that Jimmy as a chairman of the school board failed to consolidate with a larger one in Americus. "He wanted," says Miss Lillian, "to have more books, more courses just a teenie bit wider view of the world for the children, but people here didn't see it that way."

We stop by a brick house with a steep pitched roof and big windows. "Jimmy's," his mother says. Looking up the tree-lined driveway filled with cars she adds dryly, "Secret Service."

It's been 18 months since Jimmy and his wife, Rosalyn, started campaigning. Miss Lillian has been delighted to have Amy but has left the Siamese cat to the Secret Service.

"First thing they do when they get back is pick up Amy," says Miss Lillian." Jimmy has given up a lot of the things he used to love like tennis and fishing, doesn't have time anymore."

A frisbee lies on the grass waiting for that odd spare moment when the presidential candidate will take a few minutes to play with his little girl. The Carters, however, always take a walk together in the woods behind the house. "It's their favorite part of the weekend," says Miss Lillian. "They spend a lot of Sunday in church. Jimmy still teaches his Sunday school class."

Rosalyn has been away as much as her husband. "She is not a homebody," says her mother-in-law. "She feels restless when she isn't out on the road campaigning for Jimmy. She always liked to travel anyway."

A paragraph in Jimmy Carter's biography comes to mind. Rosalyn Carter did not want to come back to live in her hometown. She told her young husband that she was afraid of being dominated by both her mother and her mother-in-law.

Miss Lillian describes her own family as close. Jimmy, his sisters, Gloria Spann and Ruth Stapleton, and his brother, Billy. There is currently, however some tension between go-go Gloria Spann and her brother.

Gloria, her husband and some "other partners" have launched an unusual real estate business. They are selling land next to her brober's farm for $5 a square inch. Since it is her land it is legitimately a part of the Carter peanut farm.

"It's a memento from Plains," she explains. The purchaser receives a large parchment, gold-embossed title of ownership and the pleasure of knowing he owns land next to Jimmy Carter's. "I thought it would cheer up the campaign. Everything has got ton so serious," says his

Carter and Brown schedule L.B. meetings

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Democratic presidential candidates Jimmy Carter, former governor of Georgia, and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California will make campaign appearances in Long Beach this week.

Carter will meet with senior citizens Tuesday noon in Bixby Park, Cherry Avenue at First Street.

Brown will speak Thursday at a special noon luncheon meeting of the Third Friday Forum at the Golden Sails Inn.

Cora Cocks, of Long Beach, chairperson of the California Commission on Aging, will introduce Carter at the public rally in the park. It will be Carter's only preprimary appearance in the greater Long Beach area.

The Brown luncheon is open to the public but tickets must be purchased in advance; none will be sold at the door. The price is $5 for Third Friday Forum members and $6 for nonmembers.

Arrangements for picking up tickets may be made with Chuck Greenberg at 435-5631, Helen Potepan at 425-3637 or JoHana Blado at 428-1130.

Brown's appearance is billed as one of only two major Southern California luncheon addresses he has scheduled before the June 8 primary. There will be a no-host cocktail period starting at 11:30 a.m.

Voter info

Election Extra, a publication by the League of Women Voters of the Long Beach area, is available at the league office, 1001 E. Fourth St, for 25 cents a copy or $15 per 100 copies.

The paper contains pros and cons on ballot measures and candidate questionnaires for the June 8 primary election.

The office will be open 10 a.m. to noon on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays; 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Wednesdays and 9 to 11 a.m. on Saturdays until the election.

Long Beach Area Citizens Involved announced its 12-page tabloid of election information is available free of charge by phoning 431-5915 or writing to 6317 Eliot St., Long Beach, Ca 90803.

It contains a reprint of the League of Women Voters candidate questionnaire and the LBACI executive board recommendations on ballot propositions.

Lakewood Demos

Aris Anagnos, president of the Southern California chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, will speak at the 8 p.m. Wednesday meeting of the Lakewood Democratic Club at State Mutual Savings, 5101 Lakewood Blvd., Lakewood.

Unruh to speak

California Treasurer Jess Unruh will speak at the Friday noon luncheon meeting of the Democratic Women's Study Club in the Lafayette Hotel.

Unruh served in the Assembly for 16 years and was its speaker for 7½ years, a record tenure in that post.

Luncheon reservations may be made by calling 438-0300.

laughing motorcycle-riding sister.

But her brother, Jimmy, a man quick with figures, is horrified that a scheme that could well make its backers a fortune is using his fame for what he has termed a "cheap commercial gimmick." Gloria, reluctant to be interviewed but quick to receive a purchaser says, "I love my life here on the farm, which is lucky as I don't think I will be asked up to Washington."

Miss Lillian says it all happened "at a bad time," just after Jimmy talked about 'ethnic purity'. He has worked so hard on the campaign, been so meticulous about each step that his sense of humor is some strained."

How will her son react if he should lose? "He is flexible like a rubber ball. I have absolute faith in Jimmy. God has given him courage and wisdom and he has always been lucky. I don't pray for him to be president. I pray for him to have the courage to say and to do what he feels is right."

Wife restless not campaigning

As the afternoon sun is reflected on the pond, Miss Lillian talks about the big bass she catches, about her attachment to her patients in the clinic in India.

She would rather be here than anywhere—except possibly Ebbets Field. An ardent Dodger fan, she and her husband made an annual voyage north to cheer the Brooklyn team. She remembers her excitement that first day that Jackie Robinson played major league baseball. "I cheered 'til I was hoarse.

"I was always so tired at the end of the week from cheering all afternoon and seeing the shows at night." She says she wonders aloud how Jimmy keeps going, day after day, night after night. She recalls his last visit home when he looked so tired.

"Mother," he said, "don't you ever feel sorry for me. I am doing exactly what I want to do. I love every minute of it."

Board denies drug agents let on campus

Associated Press

The Los Angeles city school board did not approve the use of undercover narcotics officers on high school campuses that led to the arrest of 33 students, the board president said.

Dr. Robert Doctor said in a statement that the "undercover method of surveillance and arrest leaves a great deal to be desired."

The statement, released Friday, followed the disclosure that four undercover police narcotics agents had maintained surveillance at four schools during a 14-week period.

Police claimed the undercover officers bought about $6,000 worth of drugs from 41 students during the period.

SS Catalina named landmark

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

THE WATERFRONT

The 52-year-old, 2,200-passenger SS Catalina, which this waterfront observer contends has carried more seagoing passengers than any other ship in history, has been declared Landmark No. 894 by the State Historical Resources Commission.

Why?

Because it is believed to be the only ship in California under U.S. registry with a triple expansion reciprocating steam engine (TERSE).

Not only has the ship been declared a state landmark, it has been nominated to be put in the National Registry of Historic Places.

Capt. Thomas Wolfe, chief of the Coast Guard's Marine Inspection Office, explained how a TERSE works. Steam under high pressure is piped into a cylinder where it expands and pushes a connecting rod linked to a drive shaft, which turns the ship's propeller.

The steam is then fed into a second cylinder with enough pressure to drive a second connecting rod, which also is linked to the propeller shaft. From there, it is fed into a third cylinder, also connected to the drive/propeller shaft.

The connecting rods go up and down, a motion called reciprocating. Hence the identification of a triple expansion reciprocating steam engine.

THE ENGINE is unique in that, unlike an automobile or truck engine in which most of the major moving parts are inside the engine, the Catalina's con rods (slippers) and crank shaft are exposed. It is hoped the operators can make some arrangement for passengers sailing on the Catalina to view the engine when it is running.

Stanleigh Megargee, director of public affairs for M.G.R.S, operators of the "Big White Steamer," has scheduled a dedication ceremony for 6 p.m. Saturday. The Harbor Department has agreed to decorate the Catalina Terminal and use its mailing list to send out invitations for the ceremonies.

Megargee said among those who have indicated they would attend the dedication ceremonies are State Sen. James Wedworth, Assemblyman Vincent Thomas and the president of the Los Angeles City Council, John S. Gibson, whose district includes the harbor area.

During last week's commission meeting, Megargee promised to appear before the commission Wednesday to detail the company's alleged revitalized financial condition.

ASKED IF the financially plagued company (which reportedly owes nearly $1 million to various creditors, including $450,000 to the Farmers and Merchants Bank, $145,000 to the Pension Fund of the Marine Cooks and Stewards Union, and a sum to the city of Avalon) was going to operate the cross-channel cruise ship this season, Megargee said it was planned to put the ship back into operation between San Pedro and Avalon on Catalina Island by the latter part of June. Traditionally the ship begins trips to and from the island around Memorial Day.

Looming on the horizon are other problems for the steamer's operators. The operators of three 700-passenger, three-deck cruise ships, Long Beach/Catalina Cruises, have pending before the State Public Utilities Commission an application to operate their boats from the same terminal in San Pedro as does the Catalina.

Owners and operators of the Catalina are trying to arrange new sources of financing, including a federal grant of between $200,000 and $300,000 from the Economic Development Administration. The grant, if approved, would enable the company's 70-plus employes to buy into the company. However, that plan, too, is fraught with problems.

For example, if the employes (members of seven different maritime unions) become part owners of the company, what position do they take during future management-labor negotiations?

What's the siren?

The following emergency calls were answered by the Long Beach Police and Fire departments during the 20-hour period ending at 8 p.m. Saturday:

12:01 a.m., noninjury traffic accident, Artesia Street at Susanna Road; 12:50, first aid, Queen Mary; 1:30, injury traffic accident, Seventh Street at Studebaker Road; 2:19, injury traffic accident, 15th Street at Molino Avenue; 2:24, man down, 10th Street at Linden Avenue; 5:52, noninjury traffic accident, 170 W. Bort St.; 6:39, man down, 3707 Lewis Court; 8:55, injury traffic accident, Long Beach Freeway at Willow Street; 8:56, first aid, Pacific Coast Highway at Long Beach Freeway; 9:25, noninjury traffic accident, 600 E. Broadway; 10:12, noninjury traffic accident, 536 E. 25th St.; 10:27, first aid, 436 W. Fourth St.; 1:25 p.m., noninjury traffic accident, Market Street at Olive Avenue; 2:03, first aid, Harvey Way at Bellflower Boulevard; 2:58, man down, Long Beach Airport; 3:37, man down, 214 E. New gas bill called costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise natural gas deregulation bill headed for Senate action could send gas prices to consumers soaring by as much as $17.5 billion over the next three years, a new congressional study said Saturday.

The study by the Library of Congress is the first formal estimate of what the measure would cost. The bill, which has broad backing in the Senate, was designed to break a months-long impasse over natural gas deregulation. It would maintain some price limits and phase out others.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: Presages a year of deepening intuition. Material prosperity increases, and with it, a trend to spend more cash. Make an effort to ensure a tenable base of operations, and set up a long-term program. Take initiative in relationships, declare your feelings in deeds as well as words. Today's natives seek logical solutions, have nimble minds that notice and employ tiny details.

Aries (March 21-April 19): A yen to travel is strong. Start early, or be content with nearby, unfamiliar spots. Insight into the workings of another mind provides food for thought.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Keep trips short with definite objectives: people to see, messages to convey. Friends want to help; let them try even if their aid is inconvenient.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You have access to obscure information; better facts and figures. Take advantage of opportunities. Health care is important; don't overdo foolish things.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Enterprises progress as you quietly ask a serious question. In due time you get a dependable answer. Share leisure hours with others of like tastes.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Escape from the crowd and recuperate. Recap progress to date. You learn something of no apparent value now which contributes to your prosperity later.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Distant events mean more to your future than appears on the surface. Be willing to listen to someone with technical knowledge. Pull budget strings tighter.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Group or material prospects are on the upswing. Even if holidaying, you will have to think about career and future negotiations. Make some plans.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Agreement in principle among close associates, family, forms the basis for the future. Relax, meet everyone halfway or better for a round of fun.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Today is a lesson in tolerance. Nothing is quite in order yet not far enough out of line to justify complaints. Travel light, don't get sidetracked.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Through no fault of yours, things creep at a snail's pace. By waiting for the last detail to be perfected, you miss out someplace. See what goes on elsewhere.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): In the event you don't have to work, put in a few strokes on ventures you find beneficial. Leave repairs to people who make a regular job of it.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Creativity stretches to reach public attention. Whatever is involved, bring along extras. Catering to family's emotional needs comes naturally.

Summary of Secret Witness rewards, cases

The Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program has resulted in the arrest of 66 criminal suspects and fugitives from justice since the program was inaugurated on June 10, 1972, with rewards totaling $45,000 paid or committed on conviction of suspects waiting trial. Additional reward money available for informants is specified in the case list below, one of the selected and varying summaries of Secret Witness cases printed in the Independent and Press-Telegram each Sunday and Thursday.

Cases are dropped from the summaries from time to time, but rewards will remain in effect for these until such cases have been closed by police or until notification in print that reward offers have been withdrawn.

Rewards also will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any other major criminal cases, whether covered in these summaries or not, and for the apprehension of fugitives from justice. These rewards will vary in amount depending on the seriousness of the offense.

To ensure eligibility for Secret Witness rewards, informants are required to channel all information DIRECTLY through Secret Witness — that is, to notify Secret Witness FIRST — either by calling the special Secret Witness telephone number or by writing in care of the Secret Witness post office box.

Today's summaries follow:

— A $500 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and assault-robbery conviction of the man and woman holdup team who shot and wounded Joseph H. O'Connor, 35-year-old Torrance area market owner, during the attempted holdup next door of the National Environmental Corp. food stamp headquarters, 22848 S. Western Ave., at 1:15 p.m. on April 1, 1976.

— A $1,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and manslaughter conviction of the hit-run driver who struck and killed Alexander Burdelas, 53, of Norwalk, at the intersection of San Antonio Drive and Firestone Boulevard in Norwalk at 1 p.m. Sept. 27, 1975. The hit-run car was described as a 1964 light-colored Pontiac with chrome rims.

— A $500 reward is offered for the arrest and armed robbery conviction of the gunman who forced his way into the home of Long Beach antique dealer and jewel collector Bernard Kaplan and took $80,000 worth of jewelry on the night of Dec. 30, 1975. Kaplan has pledged an additional $1,000 for arrest and conviction, and still another $1,000 for the recovery of the loss still outstanding, or any percentage of this amount for a like percentage recovered.

— A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest of fugitive Charles Mack, 23, wanted in connection with a series of apartment house armed robberies throughout the Southland since last February, with bodily injury suffered in two of the robberies and the rape of a woman manager in another. Mack is a black man 5 feet 9 inches tall, 150 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes. In the event he is convicted on armed robbery charges, the Secret Witness providing information leading to his capture will be eligible for an additional $500 reward.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the slayer of James Hamilton Macgenn, 50-year-old employe of King's Imperial Restaurant in Lynwood at 1004 Atlantic Ave, stabbed to death in the restaurant parking lot as he was leaving work at 3:30 a.m. on June 1, 1975.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the slayers of George W. Harrison, 50-year-old chef at Peppy's Steak House in San Pedro, found stabbed to death in his home on S. Pacific Avenue in San Pedro at 7 p.m. on Aug. 22, 1975.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 42-year-old Donna Rae Goodell, found beaten to death in her home at 12230 Briarwood St. in Stanton on April 21, 1975.

— Rewards totaling $2,500 — including $2,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness and $500 pledged by Knights of Columbus Council 3449 — will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the slayer of Steven Robert Snedeker, 18-year-old clerk shot to death during a robbery at the H & O Liquor Store, 6069 Cherry Ave., on the night of Jan. 27, 1975.

— A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Mrs. Evelyn Sarah Cunningham, 56, found beaten and stabbed to death on the kitchen floor of her home at 3701 Linden Ave. on March 20, 1975.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Mrs. Evelyn Sarah Cunningham, 56, found beaten and stabbed to death on the kitchen floor of her home at 3701 Linden Ave. on March 20, 1975.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Mrs. Evelyn Sarah Cunningham, 56, found beaten and stabbed to death on the kitchen floor of her home at 3701 Linden Ave. on March 20, 1975.

SECRET WITNESS

How to become a 'Witness'

Secret Witness seeks information from the public leading to the capture of fugitives and the arrest and conviction of criminals.

For this purpose a guaranteed fund of $100,000 has been established by the Independent, Press-Telegram to be used for rewards of varying amounts.

Identities of informants will be kept secret.

You will be paid a reward if the information you give Secret Witness results in the arrest and conviction of a criminal or the capture of a fugitive in cases publicized in this column. Rewards also will be paid for information given to Secret Witness resulting in arrests and convictions, or the capture of fugitives, in cases not published in Secret Witness.

To contact Secret Witness, telephone 436-2526 from 8 a.m. to midnight on weekdays, or from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Do NOT give us your name. Or write to: Secret Witness, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90844.

Police beaten during melee

A Downey man, shot during a melee between two officers and about 10 residents of a Downey apartment building, was in serious condition Saturday in a county hospital prison ward.

Downey police said Armando Kraft Garcia, 26, of 4240 Elm Vista Drive, was in stable condition with a groin wound caused by a bullet that severed an artery in his leg. He was booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer.

Similarly booked were Raul Kraft Garcia, also 26, and Silvia Kraft Garcia, 24, both also of 4240 Elm Vista Drive. They were identified as Garcia's brother and sister.

Officers Steven Guthrie and Robert McDonough, who were knocked to the ground and kicked and beaten during the Friday night donnybrook, were treated for cuts and bruises of the face and head and released.

Police said the fight began about 11:20 p.m. after Guthrie and McDonough followed a car with Armando and Raul behind the Kraft Garcia apartment complex to talk to them about a possible traffic violation.

The two suspects became belligerent, police said, and during the discussion the two officers were allegedly attacked by about 10 persons from the apartment complex.

A radio call brought help from other units, and Armando Kraft Garcia was shot by officer Al Brannon, who was the first to arrive. Police said the man was shot after he used a flashlight and his feet during an attack on officers.

Leaders in Crisis: Buchanan

Battle over San Juan Island

By SID MOODY
Associated Press Writer

Once upon a time, a greedy Canadian hog did its damnedest to make James Buchanan a wartime president.

The upwelling of secession in the South seemed by far the darkest war cloud in the United States in 1859. But that June, on the far-off island of San Juan in Puget Sound, a pig broke down a fence and began rooting in Lyman A. Cutler's potato field. Angered, Cutler shot the animal. Almost as quickly as you could say "pigs is pigs," American and British soldiers were staring down their gun barrels at each other.

Buchanan

That such a chain of events could occur was because its weakest link was the month it took for news

Twelfth of a series

of pigs, or anything else, to reach from Washington Territory to Washington, D.C. Add in a freewheeling general operating on his own initiative far from headquarters — a recurring phenomenon in American history from Andrew Jackson in Florida to Douglas MacArthur in Korea — and the hog fat was in the fire.

THE problem was who owned San Juan Island, the United States or British Canada. Ironically, Buchanan had seemingly settled the matter in 1846 as President Polk's secretary of state, by negotiating the Canadian boundary along the 49th parallel. Left undecided, however, was the extension of the line through the myriad islands of Puget Sound to the Pacific.

The Hudson's Bay Company, a power in the Northwest, decided for itself that San Juan Island was British and opened a fishing station there in 1852. British sheep, pigs and farmers followed. So did Cutler and a handful of other American settlers. And eventually, a tax collector from Washington Territory who defiantly raised an American flag atop his tent and squatted for a year demanding the Hudson's Bay farm pay taxes on its livestock.

The British insisted San Juan was their territory, and the Americans were trespassers. In 1855 the sheriff of Whatcom County in Washington landed with eight men and two Indians armed with pistols and herded off a flock of sheep to be sold in lieu of taxes. Gov. James Douglas of the Colony of Vancouver Island (later British Columbia) was enraged.

EFFORTS to resolve the dispute were stalemated until the pig and Gen. William S. Harney arrived on the scene. Lyman Cutler had told the upset Hudson's Bay Co. he would pay for the pig—$3. The company said the pig was a prize boar worth $100. An armed vessel of the company was sent over from Vancouver, and tempers escalated, among them Gen. Harney's.

Harney was a man who knew his own mind and enjoyed outrunning his men in foot races and would take on any Indians as well who thought they could beat him — which they usually couldn't.

During the Mexican War, Harney had refused to surrender his command on order from the crusty American commander, Maj. Gen. Winfield Scott, and was found guilty at a court-martial for disobedience and insubordination. He had been in other hot water for excessive independence, so when, as new commander of the Oregon Territory, he received a petition from Americans on San Juan for military protection, his reaction was not unpredictable.

On July 18, 1859, he ordered Capt. George E. Pickett, who later led the famous Confederate charge at Gettysburg, to move a company of men to the island. The soldiers were to safeguard the Americans from Indians, Britain and the Hudson's Bay Co.

THE following day, Harney thought to advise Scott of his order but sent the dispatch to New York instead of Washington. It took six weeks to arrive.

The British at Vancouver fumed at the "clandestine landing" of Pickett's men, who arrived "like thieves in the night." They sent over a 31-gun steam frigate with orders to land a force equal to the American (which exceeded the number of U.S. settlers on the island). His admiral, however, being absent, the warship's captain decided to merely anchor offshore without landing. Both sides put ashore magistrates, however, and the American found Cutler guilty of willful damage and fined him heavily. Tempers cooled briefly.

Gov. Douglas took a hard line towards the American garrison, but when the missing admiral, Robert L. Baynes, showed up, he also refused to land Marines. Instead he would keep warships in the area to protect British interests and await word from the Admiralty, twice as distant as Washington.

Harney's explanation of what he had done reached Buchanan Sept. 3. Lord knew what had happened in the interim. Buchanan quickly had Harney notified that he "had not anticipated that so decided a step (as occupation) would have been resorted to without instruction." Harney was reminded the watery boundary was still in dispute "between two friendly nations."

British and American troops continued to occupy the island until 1872, when Emperor William I of Germany, at the request of both parties, arbitrated the dispute and awarded San Juan to the United States.

A wife has to appreciate a husband who does not complain when she comes home late after running around all day and, in fact, has a hot, home-cooked meal waiting on the table.

"It was like coming home from a hard day's work and sitting down to a nice dinner," says Francie Larrieu, whose activity was more athletic than social.

"I'm not giving up anything. My lifestyle hasn't changed . . . other than living with Francie." — Mark Lutz.

She is America's foremost woman distance runner. Four months ago she ran down the aisle with Mark Lutz, a world-class sprinter—an inbred marriage, of sorts, between athletes of the Pacific Coast Club that coach Tom Jennings fantasizes may someday produce a super strain of runners with both endurance and speed.

BUT MARK and Francie are less interested in assuring the perpetuity of Jennings' PCC than they are in their common goal: the Olympic Games in Montreal. All other considerations have been pushed into the background.

"It's lucky for him and it's lucky for me that we're both athletes," says Francie, "because we understand each other. We understand the feelings . . . what we're looking for."

They share an apartment in east Long Beach, near the campus of Long Beach State where they recently completed a light semester of studies. Neither works, but with their heavy training schedules time seems as pressing as the relentless ticking of a stopwatch.

"We share responsibilities around here," Francie says. "If the dishes need to be done and I'm not around, Mark does them. Or if I'm too tired, he knows. There's not anything set up. It's just the way it happens.

"There are a lot of times when Mark's hungry and I'm not ready to cook yet. For instance, I had a really rough week last week and was really tired. I was still feeling it yesterday and I just conked out and took a nap for about three hours, so I didn't do my running until about 6 o'clock.

"Mark had already been out running and he was getting ready to eat, so while I was out running he fixed dinner—pork chops and rice, a recipe his mother gave him."

MARK, 24, AND Francie, 23, find the attention focused on their young marriage to be an additional strain—the little married couple running off together to the Olympics, tip-toeing through the Tartan.

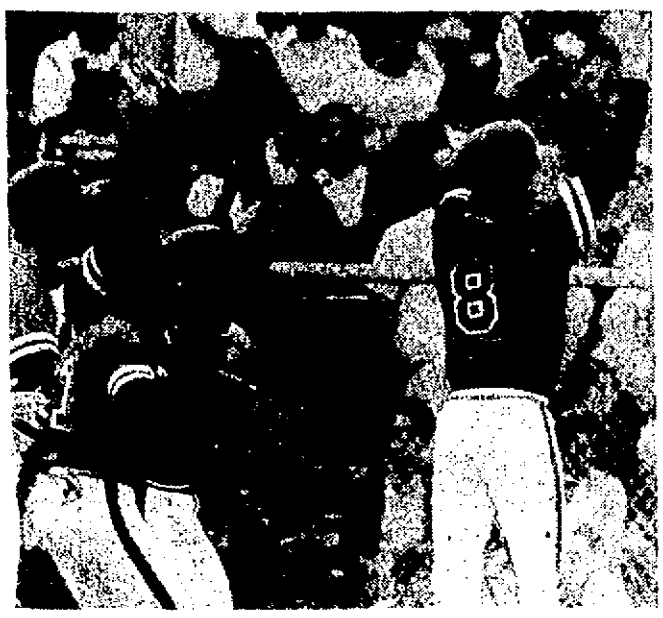

"Olympic years are always busier," says Francie, who ran eighth in the semifinals of the women's 1,500 meters at Munich in '72. "But especially since we're a newlywed couple there have been a lot of people coming around wanting to do interviews.

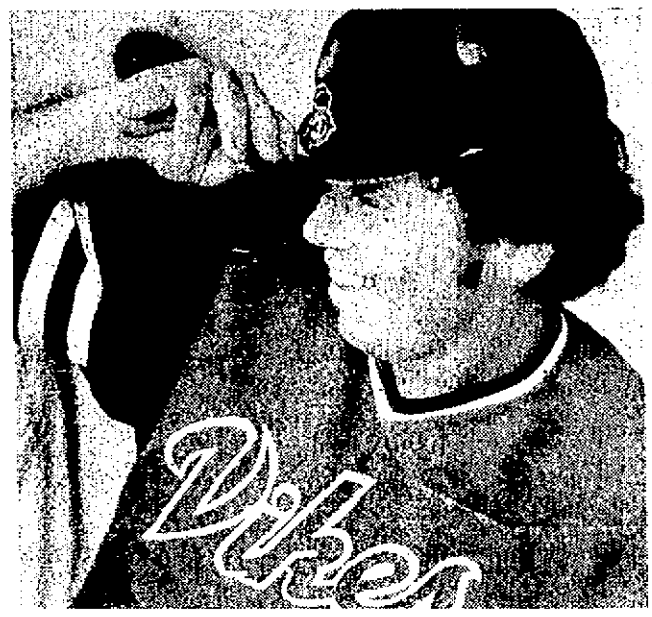

"It's lucky for him and it's lucky for me that we're both athletes, because we understand each other. We understand the feelings." — Francie Larrieu.

LBCC blanks Harbor for state baseball title

By PAUL McLEOD
Staff Writer

Long Beach City College athletic director Rollie Eilerts couldn't have received a better birthday present than the one he got Saturday afternoon at Harbor College before nearly 700 patrons.

The 50-year old Eilerts, in his second year as athletic director, watched Long Beach make the best of three hits and play flawless defense to defeat Harbor College, 5-0, for the California junior college baseball title.

It marked the third state title garnered by the Vikings this season. LBCC, which participates in 13 men's sports, also won one national and two regional championships during the year.

Eilerts was quick to turn the attention toward the Vikings and first-year coach Bob Myers, who picked up the pieces of a floundering baseball program and guided it into the No. 1 position in the state with a 34-9-1 record.

"I'm really proud of these guys," said Eilerts. "This is like frosting on the cake. If there's a way to feel better than great, that's how I feel."

This was Myers' day, too, but, overcome by tears, he groped for comments.

Indy winner? Aggie tabs A.J.

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Staff Writer

If J.C. Agajanian's record 29 consecutive years as a car owner at the Indianapolis 500 qualify him as a prophet, A.J. Foyt will be the winner of today's gruelling brickpile grind.

Even though he has an unprecedented three cars in the race, J.C. dispenses with provincialism and tabs Foyt because of the Texan's experience and dependability.

Aggie's forecast of the top 10 finishers, by telephone from Indianapolis, is as follows:

1. A.J. FOYT. "Mostly because of his experience and the fact that he has unlimited funds to go with it. He builds his own engines and he's always dependable. He's a shoo-in, if he has no bad racing luck. If his Coyote doesn't have any problems, A.J. should win."

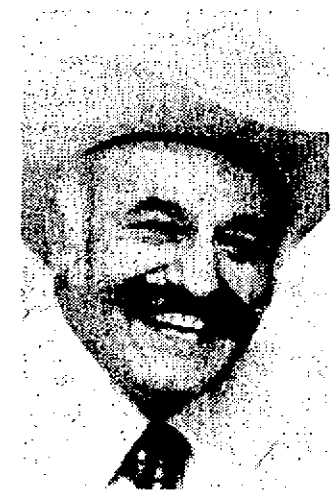

2. JOHNNY RUTHERFORD. "He knocked around a long time in my sprint car races at Ascot, and because of his penchant for accidents the guys called him 'Wreckaford' instead of Rutherford. He won at Indy two years ago and that really helped him. He's completely confident now. Johnny doesn't take many chances these days and relies on skill."

3-4. AL and BOBBY UNSER. "I can't separate these two guys. I only know that they're both helluva good drivers and they'd almost rather beat one another than anyone else. Al has a new Cosworth engine and a new chassis. He was the top qualifier at my Phoenix race in March and can handle the new car very well. Bobby is the defending champion and always runs a top race."

5. JOHN MARTIN. "John's my man. I like him because he's very knowledgeable. He knows cars and how to pace them....and how to fix them, too. I'm also prejudiced toward his car this year, too."

6-7. GORDON JOHNCOCK and WALLY DALLENBACH. "They're on the Simmast team and also tough to separate. They're both seasoned drivers and have fine cars, but, mainly, they've got a great mechanic, George Bignotti."

8. MARIO ANDRETTI. "He's with the Penske team now and that's a big plus for Mario. He's got a real car this year. You have to have a decent car in this race and that hasn't always been the case for Mario. He would have been a world champion 10-times over if he always had a good car. He had the best qualifying speed this year, too. Does that tell you something?"

J.C. AGAJANIAN
The proud owner

9. TOM SNEVA. "He's also with the Penske team, and you never sell guys on that team short."

10. VERN SCHUPPAN. "This Australian's a rookie, but he was around Formula 5,000 cars a long time and knows what it's all about. He looked good in his rookie test and during qualifying. He can ride the Indy track. He has a well-designed car, Dan Gurney's Eagle-Offy, and Bobby Unser won the race last year with the same type engine. He should be the top rookie this year."

Marshall bombed again

Reds shade Dodgers; vault into first place

"I didn't throw a pitch I didn't want to throw. It seems almost like they were reading my mind. It was just a good job of hitting." — Mike Marshall.

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

CINCINNATI—The Relentless Reds—successors to The Big Red Machine—are just beginning to roll.

At least that's what their manager, Sparky Anderson, says.

But please don't tell Mike Marshall. He's already seen plenty.

In dispatching the Dodgers Saturday for the second day in a row, Cincinnati put together one of its patented come-from-behind performances, battering Iron Mike for two singles and a triple in the bottom of the ninth inning to emerge with a 6-5 victory.

The Dodgers not only have dropped four of their last five games, they've also dropped out of first place in the National League West, by five percentage points. To hear Sparky tell it, the worst is yet to come.

"We're close to putting things together," he said Saturday. "We're almost ready to start moving."

Close to putting things together? Start moving?

If this is just the start, ouch!

After battering the Dodgers, 9-0, Friday night, the Reds teased and taunted their foes for eight innings Saturday, getting at least one runner aboard every round. By the time the ninth arrived it was like Ali against Richard Dunn.

Young Rick Rhoden took a 5-3 lead into the ninth, but few among the Riverfront Stadium faithful of 40,112 had departed. They knew. Last year the Reds roared from behind 51 times.

Dave Concepcion opened with a single and immediately manager Walter Alston summoned Marshall, his ace reliever. The fact that Marshall was nailed for four runs on five hits in two innings Friday night had no bearing on his decision, he said ("That didn't count." Marshall was to say later in a strange bit of logic).

Marshall was in trouble right off the bat when Cesar Geronimo singled and pinch hitter Ed Armbrister advanced the runners with a perfectly-placed bunt.

Pete Rose sent a bouncer toward first that was the second out, but it produced a run and the Reds were within one, at 5-4, with the tying run now at third.

Ken Griffey then hit Marshall's next pitch against the rightfield wall for a triple, and now the winning run was at third.

Little Joe Morgan, who drove in three runs Friday evening, drove a single through the middle and the Reds had won.

"Yes, it's tougher losing a game like that than getting your brains beat out, like Friday night," reasoned Alston, finding no solace in either defeat.

Asked about Marshall, Alston said, "I thought his stuff was good, but they knocked the (bleep) out of him."

Said Marshall, "You have to give them credit. Sometimes they're better than you are. I didn't throw a pitch I didn't want to

'Generation gap' L.B. golf finale

BY DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

A 56-year-old carpenter who doesn't make many mistakes and a 20-year-old collegian who is just now living up to his potential are the surprise finalists today in the 52nd Long Beach City Match Play Golf Championships at El Dorado.

Chuck Wallace, from Long Beach State University, was the giant-killer Saturday, knocking off defending champion Tony Campregher, 1 up, in a classic match which featured nine birdies, five by the winner, and under-par scores by both.

Ed McBratney, representing the Geritol set, put away the other favorite, 21-year-old Roger Fagan of Torrance, 2-1, with steady if unspectacular golf which included two long-distance birdie putts.

The pair will play 36 holes today, starting at 8:30 a.m. McBratney was a finalist on the same course nine years ago, losing to Steve Cook.

No man over the age of 27 has won this tournament in the last eight years.

Wallace, a product of the Long Beach public courses, was a teenage sensation of sorts, first qualifying for this tournament at age 14, but he had never been able to win more than two matches.

"It's nice for an old man to be in there with the tigers," said McBratney, who reached the afternoon semis against Fagan by beating Gary Ballantyne, 4-3, in his morning match.

McBratney was 2-over-par in both matches. He was outdriven by 20 to 30 yards every hole by Fagan but was superior with his approach shots and his putting. He had no three-putts in his 32 holes.

"I've played well most of the year," said Wallace, who had to labor 19 holes in the morning to outlast another youngster, Randy Pallis. Wallace 3-putted to lose the 18th, then won with a par when Pallis couldn't execute a punch shot from under a tree and hit it into the water on the first extra hole.

Angels' sweep comes gift-wrapped

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

This one came gift-wrapped plain and simple.

About the only thing the Kansas City Royals didn't do in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader Saturday was tie a ribbon on it.

But maybe they didn't have to because they handed it over personally.

Given two incredible ninth inning breaks—breaks that have not been coming their way with an degree of regularity—the Angels came up with three runs and stunned the Royals, 3-2.

More breaks were in the offing in the nightcap—like five unearned runs—and the Angels, errupting for a season-high six runs in the eighth inning, snapped a 1-1 tie and went on to trounce the Royals, 7-2, completing a sweep.

It was the first Angel sweep of a doubleheader at Anaheim Stadium since way back when—June 24, 1970—when they took two from Chicago. A Cushion Night crowd of 28,415 was on hand to enjoy it.

Muted on three hits for the first eight innings by sore-shouldered Steve Busby and Steve Mingori and without a run to show for their previous 18 innings, the Angels took avantage of some astounding magnaminity on the part of Kansas City to claim the opener.

For openers, Bobby Bonds led off the ninth with a broken bat single to second base. It was a single only because the Royals' Frank White tried to play the bat instead of the ball.

Two outs later, Mingori, claiming his previous dealings with Bill Melton, the next Angel hitter, were anything but successful, left the game and was replaced by Mark Littell.

Littell walked Melton. This brought the struggling Ron Jackson and his .172 average to the plate.

Jackson responded by hitting a fly to deep right—long but exdeedingly catchable. But Al Cowens, the Royals outfielder, didn't play it that way. He raced to his right in plenty of time to glove the ball but stumbled en route.

Then he lost his footing completely and crumpled face first in the grass. The ball arched over his head and rolled to the wall for a two-run triple.

The shaken Littell then served up a game-winning single to Andy Etchebarren. Naturally, Etchebarren was 0-for-15 at the time.

"Sure it was a give," acknowledged Williams, whose eyesight is as good as anyone else's. "But I'm not going to throw it back. . .I've given too many away.

"They gave us four outs in the inning. . .a second baseman who played a bat instead of the ball and an outfielder who fell down."

"It's about time the breaks started going our way," said Jackson, who, with one swing of his bat, matched his RBI total for 25 previous games. "We needed something like that."

Jackson is one of 11 Angels hitting .215 or less. Only four have figures in excess of that subterranean mark.

"Hell, I think everybody on this ball club is a better hitter than his average shows," remarked Williams.

The dramatic turnaround in the ninth made a winner of Sid Monge, 2-1, who went the route, yielding nine hits.

Busby, making his first appearance since May 14 because of a recurring shoulder problem, went five innings and blaanked the Angels on three hits.

But he didn't look like the Busby who owns a 10-2 career advantage over the Angels. He wasn't fast and he wasn't particularly accurate with his control.

"I feel sorry for him," said Williams. "He looks like he's ailing."

Gary Ross, not exactly overpowered by robust support this year, won his second game in the nightcap when the Angels, utilizing a pair of Kansas City errors, helped themselves to a six-run eighth and thereby dropped the Royals into a flatfooted tie with Texas atop the A.L. West.

The key plays were Bruce Bochet's run-scoring singled that sent across the go-ahead run, Fred Patek's wild throw home with the bases loaded and Dave Chalk's two-run bases-loaded single which turned into three runs when KC leftfielder Tom Poquette overran the ball.

"We made mistakes tonight," said Williams, "and over all I wasn't pleased with the way we played. But I'm thankful to win a pair."

If Williams was unhappy, think how Royals' manager Whitey Herzogg must have felt.

Downright depressed probably would describe it.

Giant-killing ends for Edles

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Unheralded Bill Scanlon of Trinity and Tim Garcia of New Mexico continued to mow down giants in the NCAA tennis tournament by advancing to the semifinals with victories over seeded players Saturday.

Scanlon, ace of the San Antonio, Tex., school, upset Stanford's Pat DuPre 5-7, 6-3, 6-4. Garcia, the only New Mexico player in the tournament, shocked No. 8 seed Joao Soares of Pepperdine 6-2, 1-6, 6-2.

The giant-killing act of SMU's Joe Edles came to an end, though. The Poly High graduate lost to UCLA's Peter Fleming 6-2, 7-5.

The team title race was turned into a battle between Pacific-8 rivals, USC and UCLA when Stanford's final entry—the doubles team of Dupre and Bill Maze-were beaten by Brigham Young's Mike Nissley and Bruce Kleege 7-6, 6-4.

USC and Stanford are tied with 20 points and UCLA follows with 18, but the Trojans and Bruins each have one singles player and one doubles team in the semifinals.

The USC doubles team of Manson and Chris Lewis topped Houston's Ross Walker and Dan Vaneltincic, 6-3, 3-6, 7-6, the Trojans taking the tie-breaker by a 5-1 score.

SINGLES
Fleming, UCLA, d. Edles, Southern Methodist, 6-4, 6-3; Manson, USC, d. Tygan, UCLA, 6-2, 7-5; Garcia, New Mexico, d. Soares, Pepperdine, 6-2, 1-6, 6-2; Scanlon, Trinity, d. DuPre, Stanford, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4.

DOUBLES
Kleege-Nissley, BYU, d. DuPre-Maze, Stanford, 7-6, 6-4; Fleming-Tygan, UCLA, d. McNeil-Meyers, San Jose St., 7-5, 6-3; Manson-Lewis, USC, d. Walker-Valentincic, Houston, 6-3, 3-6, 7-6; Eagleton-Hartings, Miami, d. Beanett-Whitehead, BYU, 6-3, 5-7, 6-1.

Babashoff heads swim qualifiers

Olympic gold medalist Shirley Babashoff heads a list of five women and two men whose times Friday night at the Western Olympic Development swimming meet at Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool earned them spots in the U.S. Olympic Trials.

Miss Babashoff, of Mission Viejo, won the 400-meter freestyle in 4:21.3 to easily surpass the qualifying standard.

The top three finishers in the 100 butterfly—Debbie Loob, Cynthia Butner and Alice Browne—also bettered the standard in their event, as did Melissa Beloit in the 100 backstroke.

Casey Converse and Brian Goodell, 1-2 in the 400 free, also advanced.

Competition continues today and Monday.

Saturday's results:

MEN
100 fly—Brian Faber (Buena ST) 57.72, T. Townsend (SAC) 57.83, Steve Roberts (East L.A. JC) 58.57.

Bell (18-7¼) sets mark; Stones, Larrieu triumph

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Earl Bell of Arkansas State University shattered the world pole vault record Saturday night with an 18-7¼ vault at the U.S. Track and Field Federation championships in Wichita.

Bell's vault was a full inch better than the 1975 record set by Dave Roberts of the Florida Track Club and far above Bell's own meet record of 17-8 set here a year ago.

Bell cleared the bar on his first try after Terry Porter of Tyler, Tex., Junior College failed to make the height.

Bell, whose best vault this year was 18-3½, rolled out of the cushion and pranced around the field as a crowd of more than 8,900 jumped to its feet and cheered the new world mark.

The meet produced numerous meet records in addition to Bell's world mark in the pole vault.

World high jump record holder Dwight Stones of Long Beach State won his event with a leap of 7-3, falling more than three inches short of his world mark. Stones won on fewest misses over Tom Woods, Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach, who also cleared 7-3.

John Craft, Chicago Track Club, set a meet record of 54-½ in the triple jump. He bettered his previous record of 54-1½ set in 1971.

Jim Bolding, Pacific Coast Club, captured the men's 400-meter intermediate hurdles with a time of 49.10, only one second off his American record.

Bolding almost was eliminated from the race on a false start, but his appeal to the officials was allowed. He and the others in the race claimed the start was caused by crowd noise.

Frank Shorter, Olympic medal winner, won the 5,000-meter run covering the distance in 13:42.01.

In the men's mile relay, the Pacific Coast Club shaded its 1975 meet record of 3:05.14 with a 3:05.12.

In the women's events, Francie Larrieu of the PCC, who won the 800-meter run Friday night, easily captured the 1500-meter run with a time of 4:16.06. Francie's time was far off her American mark of 4:10.4.

Debbie Esser, Iowa State, broke her own meet mark in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles, covering the distance in 57.94. Her mark set last year was 1:00.19.

The Prairie View A&M 440-yard relay team set a meet mark of 44.99. The old mark of 45.9 was held by Texas Womens University.

Prairie View also set a meet standard in the women's mile relay with a time of 3:36.67. The old mark held by Prairie View was 3:47.

In the men's team scoring, Pacific Coast Club retained its championship with 84 points, edging the University of Kansas which had 79. Chicago Track club finished third with 67.

The 20-year-old Bell from Jonesboro said he "felt extra fast tonight. I was too much horizontal, but I guess it was enough."

Bell, who shattered the world mark on his first try after the bar was moved up from 18-1, was delighted with the warm evening and the track.

"Everything was perfect. This runway is super," he said. "It's just like the one at home that I practice on."

He said he knew he had a good jump when he lifted off, and he felt he didn't make any mistakes.

"There really was not any feeling. You only feel the mistakes when they happen. All I could feel this time was the arch. When you jump over 18 feet, every mistake is magnified," Bell remarked.

LBCC CHAMPS—

"My feelings—I just can't think of anything," he said immediately following the game and a bear hug from Eilerts. "I'm sorry. I'm mute."

The men of the moment for the Vikings were pitcher Ken Price and shortstop Vern Followell. Price, a righthanded freshman with a 1.54 Metropolitan Conference earned run average, allowed only three hits. Followell delivered the big hit of the day—an inside-the-park grand slam with two out in the fifth inning.

Long Beach's fifth run came on another inside-the-park homer with two out—a solo shot to right field by Dan Gausepohl in the seventh. Gausepohl collected the only other LBCC hit—a single in the third.

Harbor pitcher Lefty Olguin absorbed the loss. The 6-1, 230-pound righthander entered the game with a 1.57 ERA and a 3-0 record. He struck out six and walked four. The San Pedro graduate allowed only one earned run.

"I really didn't think he (Price) could handle our lineup," said Harbor coach Jim O'Brien referring to his team's .292 over-all batting average. "I thought we'd really go after him. But he threw strikes and his defense made the plays.

"We had all the confidence in the world," explained Myers after recovering from congratulatory shock. "I'm not popping off. I felt coming into this weekend that our good pitching could shut down their good hitting."

That's exactly how things turned out.

On Friday the righthanded Harris went nine strong innings and set down the Seahawks, 4-1. Saturday, Price did the same on 136 pitches, with Harris backing Price in the bullpen during the late innings.

"I expected good pitching, but I didn't think they'd only score one run during the series. But we showed good defense, as we have all year," concluded Myers.

(Harbor scored 53 runs during the five-game Southern California playoffs last week. Long Beach did not make an error during the tournament).

Olguin and Price locked horns in a pitching duel in the early innings. Olquin struck out four through four innings, allowing only a single to Gausepohl and hitting Todd Hewitt with a pitch. Both occurred in the fourth.

Price threw strikes and let his infield do the work. Harbor's first ball out of the infield came in the fifth on a fly ball to rightfield by Don Thomas. The Seahawks hit just six balls out of the infield all day—two for safeties. Price served up 16 ground-ball outs and seven infield popups.

Back-to-back errors by second baseman Mike Griffin set the stage for Followell's blast in the fifth. With two out Griffin muffed successive grounders from Brad Liebeck and Gausepohl. Olguin served up his third walk of the game to Todd Hewitt and Followell stepped in.

In a defensive move, O'Brien signaled his outfield to move in. Followell countered with a line drive to center that cleared drawn-in Mark Toma and rolled 458 feet to the soccer net in left center.

Gausephol's drive to right in the seventh also rolled to the fence of the massive Harbor field, 470 feet from the plate.

Van Blom gains final in single sculls trials

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — John Van Blom of the Long Beach Rowing Association, a former Olympian, regained his 1968 form and moved into today's finals of the U.S. Olympic men's single sculls rowing trials on Lake Carnegie.

Van Blom was a third place finisher in the second semifinal heat, though he and Pete Cortez of the Vesper B.C. of Philadelphia were in a virtual dead heat.

Jim Dietz and Ken Foote led the qualifiers with semifinal victories. Dietz posted the fastest time of the regatta with a 7:11.5 clocking over the 2,000-meter course. Foote was timed in 7:11.6.

First semifinal: Jim Dietz, New York Athletic Club, 7:11.5; Dr. Larry Klecatsky, New York A.C., 7:14.4; Chris Allsopp, Oyster Bay, N.Y., Rowing Association, 7:17.6; Jim Castellan, Fairmount B.A., Philadelphia, 7:19; Neil Halleen, Wisconsin, 7:26.5; Jim Radlavsky, Undine Boat Club, Philadelphia, 7:32. (First three qualify for finals).

Second semifinal: Ken Foote, Narragansett B.A., Providence, R.I., 7:11.6; Pete Cortez, Vesper B.C., Philadelphia, 7:11.2; John Van Blom, Long Beach R.A., 7:14.5; Eric Meyers, Potomac B.C., Washington, 7:20.2; Bill Belden, Undine B.C., 7:21.6; Guy Iverson, Vesper B.C., 7:22.7. (First three qualify for finals).

Sound and fury, hotdogs and beer

Indy 500: A slice of Americana

By BRUCE LOWITT

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — For Johnny Rutherford, it's a chance to prove that he was cheated a year ago. For Bobby Unser, it's a chance to prove that he wasn't.

Last year, the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race became the Indianapolis 435, marked down for one day only by a sudden thunderstorm that turned the sleek racers into helpless hydroplaning hunks of metal which fishtailed their way along Indy's banked 2.5-mile oval.

Rutherford was running first in the 1975 Memorial Day classic when he decided to pull into the pits for a little shot of gasoline. When he pulled back out, he was second to Unser—and he was left there shortly thereafter when the rains came.

Rutherford insisted, not without some justification, that he could have won that race (making it two victories in a row here) if the track hadn't been reduced to a wading pool. And Unser agreed that luck as well as skill had brought him his second Indy victory and the accompanying $214,031 in total prize money.

Rutherford, who settled for the $97,886 runnerup purse, set out with a vengeance to prove he deserves to be No. 1 this year. He qualified his McLaren Drake-Offenhauser on the pole position with a speed of 188.957 miles an hour while Unser had to settle for the 12th position, outside the fourth row, in the 33-car field, qualifying his Eagle Drake-Offy at 187.520 mph.

THE MAMMOTH spectacle, which annually attracts hundreds of thousands of race fans and revelers to this sprawling monument to speed is, of course, anything but a two-man race. There are 31 other drivers, some new to this sort of madness and some grizzled veterans, out to dethrone Unser.

There's Mario Andretti, the 1969 Indy winner but a hardluck driver here the past few years, knocked out of action early by mechanical problems or minor wrecks.

His qualifying speed of 189.414 mph was the fastest of any entry, but because it came on the second weekend of qualifying, he was relegated to the inside of the seventh row, 19th in the field. Competing in European Grand Prix races prevented him from first-weekend qualifying and knocked him back in the pack.

There's Al Unser, like his brother, Bobby, a two-time winner (1970-71) but a distant also ran since finishing second in 1972. He's starting on the inside of the second row.

There's Gordon Johncock, starting next to Rutherford in the first row. He was the winner of the rain-shortened 1973 race, the last disastrous Indy. It was a year in which Art Pollard was killed in practice, in which Salt Walther was critically burned in a multi-car crash that aborted the race on one day, in which Swede Savage was killed in a flaming crash during the race and a crewman was killed by a truck racing to Savage's rescue.

THERE'S TOM SNEVA, whom many race fans figured would never live through last year's race, when his car hit the wall and exploded. Amazingly, he was only slightly burned in the wreck and is back as the outside starter in the front row.

There's ol' A.J. Foyt, who's been trying since 1967 to become Indy's first four-time winner. He's in good position to get it this year, starting in the middle of the second row between Al Unser and Pancho Carter, who has finished seventh and fourth in his two previous starts.

And there's the favorite of all of life's losers, Lloyd Ruby. He's been trying—and failing—every year since 1960 to win this thing.

There are names like Billy Vukovich and Gary Bettenhausen, names which exhume the ghosts of racers past. Each one's father was a racer here and each one died in flaming wrecks.

There are names like Carter and Johnny Parsons, whose fathers also raced here but who survived to retire and still prowl around this old brickyard each race day, reliving old memories.

There are names like Vern Schuppan, Billy Scott, Al Loquasto and Spike Gelhausen, rookies in this race. Schuppan was the best of them in qualifying, slipping into the middle of the sixth row.

Noticeably absent from the field is Janet Guthrie, who smashed down Indy's sexual barriers simply by becoming the first woman ever to make an official run on this ancient track.

She did it a few weeks ago, passing her driving test with flying colors, a step that enabled her to qualify for this 60th annual Indy 500. But in qualification runs, her car let her down.

Foyt, in a gallant display of chivalry, loaned Janet his backup car, just to see what she was capable of doing with a truly sound machine. What she did was register better than 181 mph, a speed which most certainly would have made her the first woman ever to start an Indy 500.

But since Foyt's car was only loaned to her for that "Let's see what she's made of" run and not for qualifying—and since her own machine was woefully inadequate—she failed to make the field. Instead, her performance earned her an invitation to compete in today's World 600 in Charlotte, N.C.

ABOVE ALL, though, are the fans—the swarming mass of humanity which sandwiches itself into the more than 250,000 seats. And they're only a part of the crowd.

There are another hundred thousand or so who pour into the infield, seeing little—if any—of the race.

It's a chunk of Americana unmatched by any other event on earth. It's been described as everything from a death watch to a religious experience, from the best way to watch a true test of man and machine to the wildest way to scarf down a bunch of fried chicken and a couple of six packs—and maybe to hustle up a sunburn.

For the optimists, there are memories of great, close races, of winners and losers decided by scant seconds, by strategy and, occasionally, by pure luck.

For the pessimists, there are memories of the hellish crashes that took the lives of human beings—drivers, mechanics, spectators.

And for the bottom-liners who measure success in terms of wealth, there is the more than $1 million in prize money for grabs in the three hours or so of shrieking machines and people which, once evey year, turn this old brickyard into a frenzy of sound and fury signifying ... well, they've never really figured that out.

Jan Opperman: A hot car —and a hot line to Jesus

BY WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS—It will be Jan Opperman's hands on the steering wheel but a higher authority at the navigator's controls when car No. 8, "The Spirit of Truth," goes after auto racing's highest prize Sunday in the Indianapolis 500.

"I got to believe I am in this race because two people had a pipeline to God," the 37-year-old converted hippie, junkie and Devil-worshipper said Saturday.

"I don't say I'm going to win—I wouldn't dare tempt the Lord with a prophesy like that—but I have to believe that what has happened to me is of divine origin. The Lord works in peculiar ways."

Jan Opperman's blue eyes shine with what he calls a "new-found faith." A copper cross dangles at his chest. Pinned to the front of his sloppy cowboy hat is a white dove carrying a smaller symbol of the crucifix. In Gasoline Alley, workmen were busy painting the words "The Spirit of Truth" on the fuel-guzzling monster that he will guide today against A.J. Foyt, Johnny Rutherford, Al Unser, and the rest of the world's best drivers.

Last weekend, Opperman's hopes of qualifing appeared hopeless. On Saturday, next to the last day of the trials, he was "on the bubble"—in other words on the verge of being bumped.

"I was very downcast and ashamed of myself," he explained. "I was acting like a child who had lost his candy. I called my wife, Mary Lou, back home in Nebraska. She told me not to worry, that she would check with Grandma Sellmer.

"Now Grandma Sellmer, I know, is a great woman. She has a hot line to God. She has been dialing Him for 30 years. She prayed and then told Mary Lou not to worry. I would be in the race.

"Now you can't always be sure of one prophecy. But two prophecies, you have to believe. I asked Mary Lou to call Dale Brooks. He is a minister, he is wired to God, too.

"Later, Mary Lou called back and asked me, 'How's your faith?' 'Shaky,' I told her. 'Start praising God,' she said. 'Everything is going to be all right'."

Opperman said with three men having a chance to bump him, he was certain that rain or tragedy would derail all of them. "They were nice guys and I dreaded to think of something bad happening to them, but because of the prophecies, I knew it would," he said.

EARLY SUNDAY, Tom Bigelow qualified with 181.9 mph. Opperman was bumped.

JAN OPPERMAN
A pipeline to God

"I was confused and disillusioned, I didn't think it possible for those prophecies not to come true," he said. "I was hanging around the track Sunday, the last day, when Dick Routh called me over and said, 'I like the way your head is on. I want you to give my car a try.' It was a minute to six o'clock—the deadline—when I took the car out and made those four scary laps around the track."

Opperman qualified with 181.7 mph. The prophecies held true. Opperman's faith was restored.

He is the evangelist of the grease pits, constantly giving testimony of a life that fell to the dregs but picked itself up through conversion to a higher ideal.

Opperman was born in Los Angeles, son of a truck driver. He played football in high school, started racing motor bikes as a teenager, shifted to midget cars and to bigger racers in 1969.

"I was a squirrely kid," he explained. "I got tied up with the hippie freaks. They weren't bad kids. Most of them were intelligent, sympathetic people disillusioned with the world.

"We let our hair grow long. I went the route, mainly with the oral stuff-acid, LSD, cocaine. But never heroin or the hard stuff. I don't have a needle prick in my arm."

Opperman's travels took him into Idaho, Montana, the Bay Area around San Francisco and finally to Beaver Crossing in Nebraska.

"Our group was invaded by liars, deceivers, and drifters. We fought all the time, punching each other's light out. I became disappointed with society. I started experimenting with spiritualism—even devil worship.

"IT WASN'T until 1969 when I moved my wife and four children to Montana—away out in the boondocks—that my life changed. This neighbor came up to our house and said, 'Our place is always open. Anything you need, you can come and get it.'

"He showed me what true Christianity is. Pretty soon we started holding services at our houses. It started small and got big. We organized a group which we call USCRY, Us Converted Racers for Youth. We've got a rock band. We want to go all over the country with our message.

"I am broke. I am racing to raise money for our tour. I have to believe everything is going to work out all right. Maybe I will finish in the first ten."

Aggie's pick: A.J. will score 4th Indy 500 win

AGGIE ORIGINALLY tabbed Bobby Olivero of Lakewood as his 10th choice and to be the top rookie. After Olivero made the qualifying field, though, he was bumped on the final day.

"Bobby was to be my big surprise," sighed J.C. "His first time in a championship race was at Phoenix and he qualified 10th. He was the top rookie in that race. He beat a lot of big names. In three of four of my '75 races that he entered, he won; also my first one this year at Ascot.

"He was real hot here (Indianapolis), but he got a lousy break. He qualified when the weather was at its worst. It was cold, wet and windy, and Bobby lost two to three miles-per-hour in speed. He was so certain he could do better that he searched frantically for a backup car, but none was available.

"I wish for his sake that he had done like Andretti and qualified on the final weekend when the weather was great. But who can predict things like that?"

AGGIE IS ON a cloud because he and his partner, Grant King, Indiana car builder and mechanic, have qualified the three cars for today's race. In addition to Martin and Sheldon Kinser in Dragon-Offys, the pair has Bob Harkey in a Kingfish-Offy.

"The is the first time that anybody has qualified three cars," enthused J.C. "Grant took a basic Eagle chassis and made some modifications, and Harkey got his ride. The car is the 1975 machine in which Kinser finished 12th last year."

The fact that Harkey and Kinser are side-by-side in the 10th row of the 11-row field doesn't dim Aggie's enthusiasm. Neither does the fact that Kinser's 181.114 mph is the slowest qualifying speed in the field.

"They got in—that's the main thing," insisted the 62-year-old former San Pedran, who took over this year as sole operator of Ascot Park in Gardena. "And you never, never can tell what might happen in an auto race."

HAVING THREE cars in the Indy 500 has its problems, though.

"It's rewarding, but it's tough on Grant and me," said J.C. "We have to have 33 people just to service the three race cars....you know, three signalmen on the wall, three scorers, three holding the fuel vent valve. It goes on and on.

HANK ROLLINGWORTH

"Kinser's car, in fact all three cars, are capable of going faster. We barely got the two new cars—the Dragons of Martin and Kinser—done in time, and I feel pretty good about how well they worked right out of the box.

"Everybody is an arm's-length ahead of us in testing and development."

Aggie gives a lot of credit to Foyt for helping him and King get Kinser's problem car in the field.

"A.J. came to us and offered to help. He took the car to his garage, locked all the doors, took all four corners off the machine and set it up just like his car. He opened our eyes on some stuff.

"He talked to Sheldon and helped us find the extra five miles-an-hour in him and the car. People think Foyt's tough and crusty, but inside he's a real softy."

NOT CONTENT with having a record three cars in the Indianapolis 500, J.C. regrets that he doen't have four machines in the Brickpile grind.

"We could have had four, we could have," insisted Agajanian. "John Martin contends that his own car, the one that he never could get sponsored and which has been running extremely well, could have been our fourth entrant.

"Hell, if I hadn't been so concerned over our first two cars at the beginning, I might have given Martin's car some more thought. Wouldn't that have been something to have four cars at Indianapolis?"

Aggie is the first to admit that his new relationship with King has been a most productive one.

"We've got a car builder-mechanic, a driver-mechanic in Martin, and an owner-mechanic in me," he chuckled. "Well, I know when to turn up the boost in a car, anyway."

EVERYTHING is turning up roses for the happy Agajanian these days. Another factor of this Indianapolis 500 that makes him beam is that 10 of his "boys" are in the big race.

"It's old home week with 10 Ascot grads in the field," said J.C., who promoted races at Ascot for decades, and now is its owner.

The 10 Ascot graduates are Al and Bobby Unser, Rutherford, Gary Bettenhausen, Johnny Parsons, Billy Scott, Mike Mosley, Billy Vukovich, Roger McCluskey and Jan Opperman, the last man in the last row of the "500".

Maybe Aggie feels that he has 13 cars in today's field now instead of a "mere" three.

Hughes stops Texas with three-hit gem

BLOOMINGTON (AP) — Minnesota's Jim Hughes stopped Texas on three hits Saturday and snapped a personal six-game losing streak with a 5-1 victory over the Rangers.

Hughes, 1-5, lost his bid for a no-hitter with two out in the seventh when Minnesota right fielder Dan Ford misjudged Tom Grieve's fly ball and it sailed over his head for a double.

The 24-year-old Minnesota righthander lost his final outing last year and dropped five consecutive games this season. He lost his shutout on Jeff Burroughs' run-scoring double play grounder in the ninth.

Hughes, who was 16-14 last year as a rookie, fanned six and walked three.

Steve Braun singled in Rod Carew in the first inning and the Twins added a pair of runs in each of the seventh and eighth innings. Minnesota's two-run seventh finished Texas starter Steve Hargan, 1-2.

Yanks bombed by Tigers, 4-1

DETROIT (AP) — Dave Roberts fired a three-hitter and Jason Thompson and John Wockenfuss slammed home runs as the Detroit Tigers beat the New York Yankees, 4-1, Saturday.

Roberts (4-3) gave up only an infield single to Willie Randolph in the third inning, a bunt single to Mickey Rivers in the sixth and a double by Rivers in the ninth. The Yankees broke through for their only run in the ninth on Thurman Munson's RBI grounder.

Willie Horton, back in the Detroit lineup after being out for a few games with an injured heel, staked Roberts to a 1-0 lead in the opening inning with a 420-foot sacrifice fly.

Rookie Thompson slugged his homer in the sixth after a walk to Horton and a forceout. Then Wockenfuss opened the seventh with his home run off Dock Ellis, 4-3.

Horton's sacrifice followed singles by Tom Veryzer and Rusty Staub. Thompson homer, his second, snapped an 0-12 hitting slump.

All in the family

The brothers Niekro: Joe defeats Phil

ATLANTA (AP) — Houston pitcher Joe Niekro smashed a home run off his brother Phil as the Astros edged the Atlanta Braves 4-3 Saturday night.

It wasn't known whether it was the first time a major leaguer had homered off his brother, but it was the first home run of Joe Niekro's career.

The solo blast over the leftfield fence in the seventh inning gave Houston a 2-2 tie and the Astros broke on top 4-2 in the eighth.

Cesar Cedeno started the rally with a walk and scored on a double by Jose Cruz. Ken Boswell got his third single of the game, scoring Cruz.

Atlanta cut into the margin in its half of the eighth when Jim Wynn smashed his fifth home run of the season.

The victory for Joe Niekro, 3-5, gave him a 3-2 edge in head-to-head competition with his brother. Phil's record fell to 3-4.

It was the first meeting as starting pitchers for the Niekro brothers in almost seven years. The last time they met the Braves won 9-4 during their September stretch drive to the divisional title in 1969. Phil was angry about it because San Diego had held Joe out of the rotation for two days so he would face his brother.

Allen's HR caps Phils' explosion

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dick Allen's two-run homer capped a four-run seventh inning while Larry Christenson and Gene Garber combined on a seven-hitter as Philadelphia defeated Montreal, 6-1, Saturday.

The victory increased the Philadelphia's National League East lead to 6½ games over Pittsburgh.

The Phillies, 20-4 this month, got shutout pitching from Christenson (6-1) until the 22-year old righthander strained his right thigh after doubling home what proved to be the winning run in the bottom of the fifth. Garber worked the final four innings.

Cleveland rallies on grand slam

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Duane Kuiper slapped a two-run bloop single and Rick Manning blasted a bases-loaded homer in a six-run 10th inning, propelling the Cleveland Indians to a 6-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday.

Kuiper's single came off Jerry Augustine, who replace Brewer starter Jim Colborn with two out and the bases loaded in the 10th, and enabled Jackie Brown, 5-1, to win what had been a torrid pitchers' duel.

Colborn walked Boog Powell to start the 10th and pinch runner Doug Howard took second as George Hendrick grounded out. Colborn fanned Charlie Spikes for the second out but Alan Ashby was walked intentionally and an infield single by pinch-hitter John Lowenstein off Colborn's glove filled the bases.

Augustine, a left-hander, replaced Colborn and served the bloop single to Kuiper, a lefthanded batter, on a 3-2 count.

Red Sox stymied by Orioles, 7-2

BOSTON (AP) — Reggie Jackson and Mark Belanger collected three singles apiece and Cy Young Award-winner Jim Palmer notched his sixth victory as Baltimore downed Boston, 7-2, Saturday night.

Ken Singleton had a pair of singles and a sacrifice fly, driving in two runs while helping the Orioles to their fourth victory in five meetings this year with Boston's defending American League champs.

Palmer, 6-5 after failing three previous times since May 13 for victory No. 6, allowed seven hits, including Rico Petrocelli's third home run.

The Orioles scored two runs in each of the fourth, fifth and seventh innings in maintaining their supremecy over the Red Sox and climbing to with 2½ games of the New York Yankees in the American League East.

Jackson led off the fourth with a single and took second on an infield hit by Singleton. Tony Muser flied out but Paul Blair and Doug DeCinces followed with consecutive doubles for two runs.

Boston starter Luis Tiant (6-3) was tagged for two more runs in the fifth before calling it a night. A single by Belanger, a walk, a single by Jackson and a sacrifice fly by Singleton did the damage.

The Orioles added two insurance runs in the seventh on a walk, singles by Jackson and Singleton and a wild pitch.

Freisleben hurls 2nd blank; Padres triumph

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Righthander Dave Freisleben pitched his second sucessive shutout since being called up from the minor leagues to spark the San Diego Padres to a 4-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants Saturday night.

Freisleben, who shut out the Dodgers 2-0 Monday, blanked the Giants on 10 hits to improve his record to 2-0 since joining the Padres from their Hawaii farm club of the Pacific Coast League.

Doug Rader, Dave Winfield and Willie McCovey paced San Diego's nine-hit attack with two hits each as the Padres claimed their fourth victory in five games against the Giants this season.

The Padres took control of the game in the seventh inning when they scored three runs off Giants' reliever Randy Moffitt, a rally ignited by Rader's leadoff double and a single by Jerry Turner.

The Giants repeatedly threatened against Freisleben, managing nine hits through the first eight innings but stranding 10 runners for lack of a timely hit.

Monday's HR paces Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Rick Monday's tie-breaking three-run homer with two out in the seventh inning lifted the Chicago Cubs to a 4-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday and stretched their winning streak to three games.

After two were out in the seventh, Mick Kelleher and pinch hitter Champ Summers singled before Monday unloaded his ninth home run of the season into the left field bleachers off loser Bruce Kison, 3-4.

The Cubs scored their first run in the first inning on a single by Jose Cardenal and a double by Bill Madlock, who has doubled in each of the last five games.

The Pirates tied it in the second on a pair of walks and a run-scoring single by Frank Taveras before winner Bill Bonham, 3-2, and Kison settled down to a pitching duel which was shattered by Monday's first home run since May 16.

Oscar Zamora worked the final two innings for Chicago to earn his first save of the season.

DODGERS LOSE—

throw. It seems almost like they were reading my mind. It was just a good job of hitting."

Earlier, Bill Russell's two-run single in the second tied the game and Russell later scored on Dave Lopes' sacrifice fly to give the Dodgers a lead they held until the ninth. Steve Garvey slugged his second homer in the third and Bill Buckner tripled home a fifth run in the fourth.

Tony Perez started the Reds back with a mammoth home run in the eighth inning, a shot that cleared the wall in straightaway center.

"I was glad when he (Rhoden) knocked Tony down," said Sparky, recalling when Perez was sprawled in the dirt in the third. "He never forgets and I knew—I knew—he was going to get even."

Perez didn't forget, nor did the Reds forget how to hit Mike Marshall.

DODGER DOPE: Dusty Baker, demoted to the No. 6 spot in the lineup, is 2-for-20 in five games on the current trip . . . Dave Concepcion's third-inning error was his 13th. Last year, when he won the Gold Glove, the Reds' shortstop committed only 16 all season . . . George Foster, the N.L. RBI leader, now has driven home at least one run in his last eight games (the record is 11) and has knocked in 15 in his last five games . . . Griffey has scored 11 runs in the last 12 games . . . A year ago today the Dodgers were in first place, by 2 12 games . . . Pitching today's doubleheader will be Tommy John (2-3) and Burt Hooton (4-3) for the Dodgers, Gary Nolan (3-3) and Santo Alcala (4-0) for the Reds . . . Both games will be televised by Channel 11 beginning at 10:15 a.m.

How they scored

REDS FIRST
With one out, Griffey walked and stole second. Morgan doubled to center, scoring Griffey. Perez popped out. Foster tripled to right, scoring Morgan. Bench grounded out. Two runs, two hits, one left.

DODGERS SECOND
Ferguson singled to short. Baker walked. Yeager was hit by a pitch, loading the bases. Russell singled to center, scoring Ferguson and Baker. Rhoden sacrificed. Lopes hit a sacrifice fly, scoring Yeager. Buckner grounded out. Three runs, two hits, one left.

DODGERS THIRD

DODGERS FOURTH
Russell singled to center. Rhoden sacrificed. Lopes grounded out. Buckner tripled to left, scoring Russell. Garvey flied out. One run, two hits, one left.

REDS EIGHTH
With one out, Perez homered to center, his fourth. Foster flied out. Bench struck out. One run, one hit.

REDS NINTH
Concepcion singled to left. Marshall replaced Rhoden. Geronimo singled. Armbrister batted for Eastwick and sacrificed the runners to second and third. Rose grounded out, Concepcion scoring. Griffey tripled to right, scoring Geronimo. Morgan singled to center, scoring Griffey. Three runs, four hits, one left.

U.S. travels to USSR for volleyball

The U.S. national men's volleyball team, headed by Gerald Gregory, Mike Cram, Fred Sturm and Mike Cote, leaves Monday for Russia to compete in an eight-team international tournament in Moscow.

The American squad is bracketed with Poland, Hungary and Russia's No. 2 national team while Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Cuba and the USSR's No. 1 team comprise the second pool.

Coached by Carl McGown of Long Beach, other members on the U.S. team are Dave Olbright, John Zajec, Ted Dodd, Marc Waldie, Reede Reynolds, Chris Marlowe, Paul Sunderland and Denny Cline.

Following the Mowcow tournament which begins Thursday, the Yanks will play a series of matches in Dusseldorf against the West Germany's national team.

Shua debuts with 2-0 win

Frank Followell, Jim Estes and John White combined on a one-hitter as Shua opened the American Legion season with a 2-0 victory over the Retail Clerks Saturday.

The only hit the trio surrendered came in the first inning when Followell allowed a one-out double.

Rick Martin provide all the scoring the Shua needed when he brought Brian English home with a single in the fourth inning.

Blue blanks Chisox on five-hitter

OAKLAND (AP) — Lefthander Vida Blue pitched a five-hitter as the Oakland A's defeated the Chicago White Sox 2-0 Saturday for their fifth victory in six games.

Blue (5-5) struck out four and walked one.

The A's scored in the second inning on a walk to Sal Bando and a double by Phil Garner. They got their other run in the sixth on a single by Bill North, a stolen base, a sacrifice by Bert Campaneris and a single by Don Baylor.

Losing pitcher Terry Forster gave up only six hits. The A's had runners on base in every inning except the eighth.

Titans, Wash. St. in Far West finals

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Fullerton State's John Alvarez and Jack Ramirez both slammed two-run doubles in the fifth inning to lead the Titans into today's finals of the NCAA Far West regional baseball tournament with an 11-3 romp over Pepperdine Saturday.

The Titans scored eight runs in the fifth on nine hits. Titan catcher Andy Passillas also doubled in the fifth to drive in a run.

Eric Mustad scattered seven hits to pick up the victory, going the distance.

Dow Cowgill did all the damage for the Waves as he doubled and scored in the fifth, then hit a two-run homer off Mustad in the seventh.

Fullerton will face Washington State in the tourney finals. WSU defeated the Titans 5-1 in an earlier game Saturday.

In that game, Fullerton jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the first inning, but Cougar pitcher Bob Sherwood blanked the Titans for the rest of the contest, allowing seven hits.

Cards sink Mets on Reggie's blast

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Smith smashed a leadoff home run off New York reliever Ken Sanders in the 10th inning to give St. Louis a 3-2 victory over the New York Mets Saturday night.

Smith, who entered the game batting .189, hit Sanders' second pitch of the game over the rightfield fence for his eighth homer of the season.

Smith's blast provided Cardinal relief ace Al Hrabosky with his second victory in six decisions.

The Cards tied it 2-2 in the eighth. Bake McBride singled off Met starter Mickey Lolich and two outs later, Mike Anderson singled for his third hit of the game.

Lolich was replaced by Met relief ace Skip Lockwood, who walked pinch-hitter Ron Fairly to load the bases. Pinch-hitter Lou Brock then singled to tie the game but center fielder Del Unser's perfect throw to the plate nailed Anderson to end the threat.

The Mets had taken a 2-1 lead in the fifth when Unser doubled, took third on a groundout and scored on rookie Roy Staiger's single to center.

Rich Hollypark turf stakes continue

Easy win by Cascapedia

The $55,600 Will Rogers Handicap today and the $200,000 Hollywood Invitational Turf Handicap Monday complete what is perhaps the most outstanding three-day span of thoroughbred racing ever presented in the history of Hollywood Park.

B.J. Ridder's three-year-old filly Cascapedia got Hollypark's Memorial Day weekend stakes tripleheader off to a start Saturday, capturing the $44,750 Honeymoon Handicap by 2½-lengths over Go March.

An Act, the often brilliant, sometimes disappointing but always heavily-backed three-year-old colt, puts his reputation on the line today in the Will Rogers.

Millionairess Dahlia and her three talented stablemates, Caucasus, King Pellinore and Top Command, are among a prestigious field of 12 marathoners in Monday's climax, the richest grass event in American racing.

CASCAPEDIA, A DAUGHTER of Chieftain and carrying the familiar pink and green colors of newspaper publisher Ridder, had little difficulty besting nine rivals in the mile and 1/16 turf Honeymoon before a crowd of 35,628, who also was Rudy Campas escape injury in a first-race spill and leading jockey Sandy Hawley score four times.

Bill Shoemaker, boosting his career totals to 7,057 wins and 672 stakes victories, handled Cascapedia, who raced as an entry with Ridder's Dream Of Spring.

As a 4-5 favorite, the entry returned $3.60, $2.80 and $3.20. Dream Of Spring, after getting off poorly, closed well to finish third, three-quarters of a length behind the runnerup Go March.

The Honeymoon, worth $26,759 to the winner, was the fourth victory in six career starts for Cascapedia, one of the few horses in Ridder's stable which he did not breed in California.

"I saw her listed for sale in a magazine ad and after having a vet check her out in Virginia I bought her and another filly at the same time from Raymond Guest," said Ridder.

Jerry Lambert, currently sidelined with a broken foot, had been Cascapedia's regular rider and Shoemaker handled her for the first time.

Shoe kept her in an excellent spot all the way, just behind pacesetting Now Pending. He moved her past the leader coming to the head of the stretch and from there it was merely a question of what the winning margin would be.

"Maybe it's the way she always runs, but she never took hold of the bit at any time," said Shoemaker. "I was clucking to her all the way so she could keep her position."

AN ACT, OWNED BY a parternship headed by Katz, Brun and Roberts, makes his first start on Hollypark's lakeside turf layout, shoulders high weight of 126 pounds and breaks from outside post position nine when he faces eight other sophomores in today's Will Rogers.

Thus, despite his well-deserved reputation as one of the West's finest Derby-aged runners, An Act will have to be at his best to be successful against an excellent group of second-year performers racing a mile and 1/16.

Marco Castaneda, who replaced Laffit Pincay as An Act's regular pilot, will reprise today, seeking the winner's share of $33,100.

Opposing An Act, in post position order, will be: Today N Tomorrow (Darrel McHargue), Sure Fire (Fernando Toro), L'Hereux (Don Pierce), Five Up Player (Frank Olivares), Classy Surgeon (Ismael Valenzuela), Delta Junction (Hawley), Madera Sun (Pincay) and Bynoderm (Shoemaker).

An Act began his career last winter at Santa Anita, taking his first three starts, including the Santa Catalina Stakes, in spectacular fashion. But installed as the 1-2 favorite in the $150,000 California Derby at Golden Gate, he inexplicably wound up fourth.

Then the Ron McAnally-trained colt rebounded with a wire-to-wire triumph in the $157,700 Santa Anita Derby before expiring at the top of the stretch in the $240,250 Hollywood Derby.

In his most recent outing, An Act cam back to perform superbly in the El Dorado Handicap, defeating Crystal Water by a nose in 1:34⅗, the fastest time for a mile this meeting.

So which An Act will show up today?

MONDAY'S TURF INVITATIONAL, with no entry or starter fees, will be worth $120,000 to the victor, with secondary awards of $40,000, $24,000, $12,000 and $4,000.

The field, in post position order: Landscaper (Darrel Montoya, 116), Dahlia (Shoemaker, 117), Announcer (Jean Cruguet, 117), King Pellinore (Howard Grant, 121), Avatar (Pincay 122), Top Command (Jacinto Vasquez, 117), One On The Aisle (Hawley, 121), Toonerville (Gene St. Leon, 120), Winds Of Thought (Octavia Vergara, 118), Caucasus (Castaneda, 119), Pass The Glass (Toro, 121) and Top Crowd (Don Pierce, 118).

All of the 12 entrants have won a major stakes race during their careers.

Dahlia will be the only distaffer in the field, but the six-year-old Vaguely Noble mare has earned almost all of her $1,392,943 bankroll while running against males.

She has won major events in England, Ireland, France, Canada and the U.S., and earned champion grass horse honors in America in 1974. She currently ranks as the richest active thoroughbred and only three horses—Kelso, Round Table annd Buckpasser—have earned more.

BIG WEEKEND AT RACETRACKS

Associated Press

If it's horse racing you want, tracks around the country will provide more than enough this big Memorial Day weekend.

Highlighting the sport will be attractive holdiday features at Belmont Park, Garden State and Hollywood Park.

At Belmont, Forego gets down to serious business in a bid for a third successive Horse of the Year title and at Garden State, trainer Laz Barrera shoots at the Jersey Derby with two three-year-olds as his stable star, Bold Forbes, awaits the June 5 Belmont Stakes.

Forego will make 1976 stakes debut, and only his second start of the year, when he opposes eight other handicap runners, including Foolish Pleasure and Master Derby, in the main track mile, $100,000-added Metropolitan Handicap.

Barrera will send out the entry of Life's Hope, Louis Wolfson's Illinois Derby winner, and Enrigue Ubarri's El Portugues against nine other three-year-olds in the 1⅛-mile, $100,000-added Jersey Derby.

FOREGO, THE HUGE six-year-old gelding owned by Martha Gerry, also will be trying to break a jinx in the Met. He finished second under 134 pounds in the race in 1974 and then was third under 136 last year. The $1 million winner, who was sidelined by injury last September and got back to races with a win in a seven-furlong allowance test May 20, will carry 130 pounds Monday, two more than Foolish Pleasure and four more than Master Derby.

Life's Hope, although he was sixth in the Preakness, is considered the toughest half of Barrera's entry for the Jersey Derby. His stiffest competition should come from Dan Lasater's Wardlaw, second to Life's Hope in the Illinois Derby and first in the Hawthorne Derby in his last outing; Entrement's Cojak, sixth in the Kentucky Derby and fourth in the Preakness, and Balmak Stable's On the Sly, a probable for the Belmont Stakes. Each Jersey Derby starter carries 122 pounds.

IN OTHER MONDAY STAKES, Our First Delight, 120, and Spirit Lake, 116, head 11 fillies and mares for the $50,000-added Yerba Buena Handicap over 1⅜-mile on the grass at Golden Gate Fields; Beyond Reasoning, 121, and Rattlemark, 116, are among 14 sprinters set for the six-furlong, $30,000-added Florence R Handicap at Arlington Park, and Christopher R., 130, spots six rivals from nine to 20 pounds for the six-furlong, $25,000-added Terrapin Handicap at Pimlico.

Also, Honky Star, 120, will meet 11 other fillies and mares in trying to win Delaware Park's six-furlong, $25,000 Endie Handicap for the second consecutive year.

EARLY COTTON raced unhurried while settling early, moved up on the backstretch, responded to outrace SUNNIEST DAY through midstretch and won in full stride. The latter took up when blocked in traffic midway, found room on the rail to slip through and offer his bid at the three six furlong, battled the winner but tired late. OUR PAGAN had no early speed then made up ground and hung.
No scratches.

Kaweah Bar, Adair click

One of the most popular combinations ever in quarter horse racing history, Kaweah Bar and Robert Adair, teamed for an $18.20 upset Saturday night at Los Alamitos as the former world champion horse began his final summer of competition with a speedy victory.

The 10-year-old gelded palomino, who must retire following the 1976 season according to California regulations, greeted the return of his favorite rider Adair with a head decision in the fifth race over 3-2 favorite Five Chics.

The triumph, accomplished in a swift 17.77 seconds, was the 38th of Kaweah Bar's brilliant career.

Sweet swingers

Ed McBratney (above) carved out a 2-1 victory over Roger Fagan Saturday in semifinals of the Long Beach City Match Play championship and will face Chuck Wallace (below) in today's 36-hole final at El Dorado. Wallace disposed of Tony Campregher, 1-up, in the other semifinal.

GENERATION GAP—

The Wallace-Campregher match was one of the finest ever played in this championship. Wallace finished a 2-under-par 70, Campregher at 71. Tony never led but never quit, canning birdie putts on the 16th and 17th holes after going dormie at 15.

The first three holes were halved in par. Both birdied the par-5 fourth, Wallace missing a 14-foot eagle try and Campregher coming through the trees and eventually wedging to within a foot of the cup.

Campregher continued to scramble for pars on the next two holes and then both men bogied the seventh. Wallace finally broke the stalemate with a 14-foot birdie on the par-5 eighth, the same hole where he sunk a 50-foot sand wedge for an eagle in his match against Pallis.

It was Wallace's turn to save par on the ninth, wedging from behind a trap, and then they halved again on the par-5 10th with birdies, both chipping up and sinking three-foot putts.

Campregher got even on 11, saving par from behind a trap with a nifty pitch as Wallace's 7-iron approach clipped a tree. He had a 12-footer for par and just missed. After that, however, he flawless with his putter.

Wallace chipped poorly on the 12th but ran in a 12-footer and won the hole to go 1 up again when Campregher hit long, put his approach 10 feet past the cup and missed coming back.

The 402-yard 13th hole is a tough one and both players birdied it. Campregher did it the hard way, knocking in a 14-footer, and Wallace had only a 2½-footer after lipping out an iron from 150 yards.

Wallace came right back with a 15-foot birdie on the 14th, only to push his drive right in the trees on the 15th. But this proved to be the pivotal hole. Ironically, it was played the worst by both men.

Campregher was short in two, pitched long and three-putted from 12 feet for a double bogey. Wallace flew the trees but came up short, chipped to within 10 feet and got it down in two.

Now dormie, Campregher made a surge, like the champion golfer he is. He watched Wallace make some bad shots but can a 15-footer for par, then rolled in a five-foot birdie to stay alive.

On the par-5 17th, Campregher hooked his first two shots, layed up a nifty approach and made an eight-foot birdie after Wallace two-putted for par from the fringe.

But Campregher didn't have a great shot left in his bag. He was on the green on the par-3 hole but 45 feet from the cup. Wallace was dead center, 20 feet away. Campregher rammed his putt nine feet past and Wallace was a scant eight inches away.

He knew he was beaten, but Campregher rolled in his putt nonetheless. The way Wallace had been putting, there was no way he was going to miss from such a short distance, however.

The McBratney-Fagan match unfolded in much the same manner, except they were making more pars than birdies. Only one hole was exchanged in the first nine, that when McBratney canned a 35-footer for a bird on the fifth.

Putting proved to be Fagan's undoing. Normally that is an asset for him, but he never made a birdie all day. When he three-putted for a bogey on the 16th, he went two down and failed to take advantage of McBratney's tree problems on the 17th by dumping an easy approach in the bunker. Both bogeyed the hole.

Fagan finally won a hole, the 13th, when McBratney missed his second shot and couldn't save par from eight feet. They halved the 14th, then the winner picked a propituous time for another long-distance birdie on the 15th. He rolled his putt in from 30 feet.

McBratney parred the next two holes to finish it off.

Last week McBratney knocked off Mike Bellmar and although he plays with poise and confidence, he had made a starting time at Skylinks today "just in case."

But he will be at El Dorado instead to see if a tough, old senior can stop the stranglehold of young golfers is this prestigious event.

RICH ROBERTS—

"It gets to the point where . . . well, first of all, there is an invasion of privacy and, second, it tends to cut into your time—very precious time, when it comes to training. Sometimes it gets on your nerves."

The attention comes, of course, because Mark and Francie are something more than a normal young married couple.

Francie asks the rhetorical question, "What is normal? I think I feel perfectly comfortable and normal. We're not normal in the sense that Mark doesn't get up in the morning and go to work, and we don't come home at the same time. Other than that, I think we're normal, if that's what normal is."

SHE CONSIDERS the comment a moment, then concedes that the lives of other young marrieds, "compared to our lifestyle, our travels, might be a little dull.

Mark says, "I think it'll be a shock to me when I quit running, because that's what I look forward to doing now . . . going away on the weekends, going to see other friends—track friends—and competing."

Most of their friends are track friends.

"Everybody that we know is in track or athletics somewhere," Francie says.

If they have one thing in common with most newlyweds, it is that they are usually broke. Their apartment is partially furnished with knick-knacks they have won. A '66 Volkswagen is parked in the street. A '66 Chevy is in the garage.

"We don't drive it," Mark shrugs. "There's no insurance on it."

"Mark has a scholarship and I had a savings account," Francie says. "I've had various jobs. Usually over Christmas time I'll work in a department store. I worked for a year in the office of a dry cleaning establishment. I worked in a pizza parlor once."

UNTIL COMMENCING serious training, Mark clerked 50 hours a week in a liquor store. They get by.

"Between his parents and mine," Francie says, "we're just hanging on. Both of our parents back us more than I can say. They've done so much for us."

The parents — Francie's in Sunnyvale in northern California, Mark's in Rochester, Minn. — do not despair of their offspring living as they do.

"They look at it the way we do," says Francie, "that this is the one time in our lives we can do this."

While Mark was running for the University of Kansas his father, an employe of IBM, attended so many meets wearing his Big Eight cap and stopwatch that "the other coaches thought he was a coach.

"My parents have followed me all over the country since I've been running. They'll be at the Olympic Trials in Eugene (June 19-27), for sure."

MARK AND FRANCIE agree that their marriage hasn't placed a burden on their careers or complicated their lives.

"This is how I've lived my whole life," Mark says. "I think I may feel a little more secure, because for the last six years I've just kind of been living out of a suitcase. But my lifestyle hasn't changed . . . other than living with Francie."

They met on a 1973 AAU track tour of Europe and began dating when they returned to Long Beach that fall. They were wed Jan. 24 in a San Francisco hotel.

"The day after the (indoor) meet," Francie says. "We selected the date according to the track schedule."

They picked San Francisco because most of Francie's relatives live in the area, and most of their friends—track friends—were around for the meet that weekend. Francie has difficulty recalling the name of the hotel.

"The Royal Inn," Mark says.

"The Royal Inn," Francie says, "that was it."

It didn't upset their performances the night before.

"We both won," Francie says.

PERHAPS IT was an omen. Francie is expected to qualify for the Olympics, but Mark, with best times of 10.2 for 100 meters, 20.4 for 200 and 46.5 for 400, would rate as something of a longshot.

What if only one should qualify?

"We haven't really talked about it," says Francie, looking at Mark.

"I don't know," Mark says. "I haven't thought about it."

Francie says, "If one of us doesn't make it, we'd probably both go because his parents are going. If they have a camper . . . well, we can just stay with them."

It doesn't seem to bother Mark that Francie still carries her maiden name, Larrieu.

"I'm a Lutz in everything but track," she says. "The reason I kept it is I didn't want to confuse everybody. Now I'm the one that's being confused because everybody's calling me Larrieu-Lutz, even though I enter as Larrieu. So next year I'm just going to switch to Lutz and forget it.

"I like being married. Hey, we're happy. They can say we're going to live happily ever after, but who knows? We just live day by day and take things as we can."

Maltbie tip-toes to lead

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Roger Maltbie had bogeyed three in a row. He'd seen his once-commanding five-shot lead dwindle to two strokes. He'd tip-toed barefoot through weeds and water to a minor miracle of a par on the 18th hole.

"Any time you get to thinking you're a better player than it is a golf course, it's gonna jump up and grab you," he said.

"All you can do is keep plugging away at it and hope you get out alive."

With that in mind, Maltbie placed little faith in his two-stroke lead going into today's final round of the new, $200,000 Memorial Golf Tournament.

"It is such a humbling course I might go out there and shoot 87," he said. "I don't expect it, but it could happen.

"I'll just hang on to one end of the golf club and swing it and see what happens," said the chipper young man after his varied escapades that included one whistle-producing barefoot jaunt into a weed-choked creek.

Maltbie, a 25-year-old tour sophomore, survived the menacing monster that is Muirfield despite his intimate acquaintance with the woods and water, traps and trees that characterize the 7,072 yards of Ohio countryside that Jack Nicklaus designed and constructed into the Muirfield Village Golf Club.

The mustachioed Maltbie, a two-time winner as the 1975 rookie of the year, broke into a high-stepping victory dance after his par on the final hole that put him through three rounds with a 212 total, four-under-par on what has proved to be the most difficult course the pros encountered all year.

Don Bies managed a one-under-par 71 that left him second at 214.

Burfeindt leads by 1

BALTIMORE (AP) — Betty Burfeindt, the third-leading money winner of 1976 who has not scored a tournament victory in three years, shot a par 73 under miserable playing conditions and took the third-round lead Saturday in the Ladies Professional Golf Association Championship.

The 30-year-old Miss Burfeindt said she was lucky with her par round because of the high winds and rain, which caused her to lose the club out of her hands on one swing.

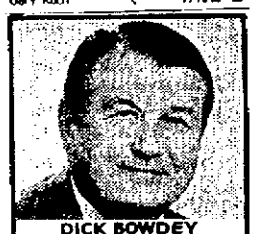

Going into today's final round and a chance for the $8,000 first prize, she had a 54-hole total of 216, three-under-par and one stroke ahead of Judy Rankin, the leading money winner on the tour who has won three tournaments this season.

Laura Baugh, the first-day leader, faded to 223 by carding a 78.

Miss Burfeindt started the day one stroke off the pace, while Mrs. Rankin had started the round five strokes behind.

A four-way tie for third place included Jan Stephenson, a two-time winner this year, Carole Jo Skala, Sharon Miller and Chako Higuchi of Japan at 218.

What Happened to Long Beach Fans?

The 1938 Poly vs. Wilson football game, in the pre-freeway era had over 22,000 loyal, local fans driving to the Rose Bowl to witness the event . . . what interest! Now we have a similar situation, two local teams, will battle it out to determine the CIF baseball Champion! Lakewood High, Perennial champs vs. Jordan High in the CIF Championship game. How many leagues can boast of having two teams in the CIF Baseball Championship? Need I say more . . . I hope to see you Long Beach fans Wed. 7 p.m. at Anaheim stadium.

Selected by teammates

LBCC women honored

By ELAINE RISINGER
Staff Writer

Too often an athletic program is assessed only by the win-loss ratio. In reality, sports participation involves much more than that. That's why each semester Long Beach City College honors two members of each women's and coed team for individual accomplishments in skill development.

Selections are made by team members, not the coaches, and the ground rules designate that no player can receive the same award twice.

Gail Harris was chosen as the outstanding competitor of the gymnastics squad, coached by Peggy Stoll. A sophomore in her second year on the team, Gail was the number one or two all around gymnast all year. She was also one of the top two all around performers in the league along with Gaye Wilson, who won this award last year.

Tabbed by her teammates as the most improved competitor was Susie Raap, a freshman. Performing only on the balance beam and in floor exercise, Susie started the year on the Class II squad and "made her way rapidly not only into Class I but to the top of that class in her speciality, the balance beam," her coach said.

Susie, who took first place in this event during league finals with 8.0 points, co-holds the school record on the beam with Gaye Wilson at 8.15.

Kim Doyle, who played three positions, was selected most valuable softball player. Starting as a catcher and left fielder, Kim ended the year as pitcher.

Coach Donna Prindle described Kim as a "very talented and versatile softball player." In 58⅓ innings, Kim had a .276 ERA and 21 strikeouts.

Kim's .428 batting average was one of the highest on the team. Batting successfully in 12 games, Kim's 23 hits included four doubles, one triple and one home run for 13 RBIs.

One of the quickest fielders in the league, centerfielder Dawn Wiley, was honored as most inspirational team member. She led the squad with four stolen bases, and in one of the most exciting games of the season provided the seventh-inning hit that gave LBCC a victory over Chaffey College.

A FRESHMAN from Jordan High School, Janis Cook, who has also swam with the Lakewood Synchronettes, received outstanding honors from her fellow swimmers. Janis participated in the 50 and 100 breastroke and 100 and 200 individual medley.

Chosen as the other outstanding swimmer was June graduate Becky Thomas. A versatile swimmer who can fill in wherever needed, according to coach Gunning, Becky placed regularly in her specialities, the 50 and 100 backstroke, 50 butterfly and 100 individual medley.

MARILYN PRUETT came to LBCC from Millikan High School, to continue her outstanding play on the tennis courts. A freshman, Marilyn had a perfect 10-0 record during the season as the No.1 singles player. "She was an inspiration to the other girls on the team, and we expect to see more great things from her next year," coach Sally Monsoor said.

Carole Cooper was picked as the most improved tennis player. "Carole joined the team with little tennis experience, and in a short period of time has shown great improvement in skill and playing ability," coach Monsoor commented.

Tracy Laurin, on the double A volleyball team, and Irish Ryan, on the single As, were selected as outstanding competitors. Coach Merri Machado praised Tracy for "outstanding achievement and effort" and Irish for "constant, consistent improvement with many great plays during the season."

DENNIS PROWANT and Reba Edmond received awards for their contributions to the coed badminton team. Gillis Brown is coach of the Viking squad.

The two skippers who will be competing in the Women's National Sailing Championships have been chosen for the coed sailing trophies. Coach Jerry Miller noted that Cathy Black was the low point sailor at the Women's National Eliminations held recently at Newport Beach. Jo Ann Ellerman followed Cathy in the event. Jo Ann also was seventh in the dinghy championships during the spring semester.

Cathy, Jo Ann and their crew members Lorna Ramos and Andrea Zahn left Saturday with their coach for Boston, where they will be sailing Tech Dinghys and Lark sloops in the Women's Collegiate National Championships this week.

WOMEN IN SPORTS

The four LBCC women plus four San Diego State women, second place finishers in the Newport Beach elimination, will be representing the Pacific Coash Intercollegiate Yacht Racing Assn.

The round robin tournament is sponsored by MIT, and the young women will be practice racing today and Monday with the series set for Tuesday and Wednesday.

Although the boats and sailing area will be new to the LBCC athletes, coach Miller feels his entries stand a good chance in the competition.

IT WAS A difficult and disappointing SCCCIAC softball tournament for the Cerritos College team coached by Nancy Kelly. The Falcons, who entered the annual event as the Southern League champions with a perfect 10-0 record, played their first game in Van Nuys in a temperature of 107 degrees during a first stage smog alert.

Although the team rolled by its first opponent, East Los Angeles College, 8-0, the squad was "drained" for their second game which was scheduled a few hours later.

"We were tired," said Nancy. "And wouldn't you know that our second game went 13 innings."

Playing in the evening on a poorly lighted field, a Falcon player lost the ball following a hit into right field allowing Los Angeles Valley to score the winning run.

Back the next day, Cerritos needed three wins to get back into the finals. The Falcons downed El Camino, 6-0, and then had to take to the field 20 minutes later to face Fullerton College, which edged Cerritos, 4-3.

"The tournament really needs some restructuring next year," said Nancy. "We outhit and really outclassed everyone we played, but fatigue set in, and we started making mistakes we hadn't made all year."

Nancy's top pitcher, Barbara Reinalds, hurled 30 innings, in four games in less than 48 hours. She limited 106 batters to only four hits, struck out 17 and gave up only two earned runs.

"I was really proud of our team" said Nancy, "But I felt sorry for them having to play under those conditions."

People Talk

DR. TRUDY CLARK of Bellflower High School is light years younger than Mr. Chips and prom queen beautiful, but she's much like Chips in her caring for students.

Bellflower senior Ronda Moxon thinks Trudy Clark is a "very special lady," and you'll agree after reading what Ronda wrote to me:

"Dear Mr. Anderson: Please help me express my thanks to a very special lady. I'm referring to my friend and counselor at Bellflower High School, Dr. Trudy Clark.

"She has given me much needed encouragement when I was discouraged. Having had a bad experience, I wanted to quit school, give up and be nobody. Dr. Clark put her foot down (in a friendly way), talked with me and helped my parents show me how much fun and importance school really is.

"In her eight years at B.H.S., as a counselor, she has helped many kids with problems. On June 17, I graduate from Bellflower High. I'm leaving with a satisfaction and an outlook that is far better than the one I started with.

"I am happy knowing that this coming September my sister will have the privilege of knowing Dr. Trudy Clark.

"To Dr. Clark, I say, 'Thank you for all your help and encouragement. Because of my parents and you, I will have a good life.' "

Dr. Clark has several degrees, many prizes and academic distinction. But I don't think any of her honors are more cherished than the gratitude expressed to her by Ronda Moxon, the senior who has it all together for now and the future.

TRUDY CLARK doesn't look it, but she's been involved in counseling for 25 years. She's worked with students at all levels: pre-school, elementary, junior high, high school, community college, adult education. Like her heart and her mind, her door is always open.

In her tribute to Dr. Clark, Ronda Moxon described her as "my friend and counselor." At Bellflower High, the terms "friend" and "counselor" are interchangeable, which may explain why Dr. Clark has been so successful with youngsters.

On graduation day, Trudy Clark will look down the rows of seniors and see hundreds of young people she has known since they were in the ninth grade. She'll see friends she has helped with a word, an idea, a pat on the back, a figurative kick in the pants.

The solution of personal, behavorial and attendance problems is just a part of Trudy Clark's school day. She advises the kids how to "shop" for colleges and scholarships, how to seek employment, how to identify their own worth as people and build on that knowledge.

There are some defeats. A child she has just begun to reach may move out of the district or change gears all of a sudden and decide to settle for less than he or she is capable of achieving. School counseling is like life itself—you win some, you lose some.

Dr. Clark and her fellow counselors deal with the total child, the child as an individual with special needs. There is no one formula or approach that can be be applied en masse.

THE SOCIAL pressures on students are heavier than many adults realize. The kids' parents expect maturity of judgment to go hand in hand with maturity of body. And that's asking a lot of a teenager.

Potential employers expect youngsters to be well trained. The armed services expect the youngsters coming to them to be well disciplined.

There's nothing wrong with such expectations, but a youngster may well feel hard pressed to deliver on all of them to perfection. In many cases, society expects better performance from youngsters than it does from adults. It's the old "Don't do as I do, do as I say" syndrome at work.

Dr. Clark gives parents generally good marks. "Once parents are apprised of a problem their child is having they rally around. They're more helpful and understanding than the kids ever dreamed."

The sheer weight of being young, pressured and searching can crush a youngster who has no one with whom to share the burden, go to or confide in.

When there is no one to turn to, when the load becomes intolerable, the consequence may be a school dropout or a behavior rebellion.

The students at Bellflower know where to turn when they're troubled, confused, questing for answers and down on themselves. Like Ronda Moxon, they turn to Dr. Trudy Clark, a "very special lady" who cares and understands.

Began with A-bomb, say backers

Proposition 15 idea conceived years ago

By MIKE JELF
Staff Writer

The originators of Proposition 15, the nuclear power measure which faces California voters June 8, say it is the result of months of volunteer effort by groups which for years have been concerned with the consequences of radioactive products.

The initiative proposes stringent safety tests for atomic plants. If these tests can't be met, the measure proposes a ban on future plant construction and limitations of operation of existing plants.

"We got into this really through our concern with the weapons problem," said Dorothy Jones of Another Mother for Peace. "We've been active in the whole nuclear field for many years."

Her group was one of several—including the conservationist Sierra Club —which laid the groundwork for the June 8 vote.

"It was a group action right from the start," she said. "There is no (single) who."

ANALYSIS

The proposition came into being through a "checkered history of fits and starts," attorney Dave Pesonen of Yes on 15 said.

Pesonen, one of the lawyers who helped draft the measure, said the first attempt to put an initiative on nuclear safety on the ballot came in late fall of 1973.

Earlier, nuclear controls proponents tried to go the legislative route. However Assemblyman Charles Warren, D-Los Angeles, told them it was hopeless to get such a measure through the Legislature, Pesonen said.

Following Warren's warning, members of the pro-15 organizations spent more than six months drafting the measure on their own. "It's a hell of a lot of work," Pesonen said.

The main issues that concerned them were the problems of waste disposal, emergency reactor-core cooling-system reliability and the federal limitation on liability in case of a reactor accident, he said.

The initiative's framers decided to seek safety regulation through state law because they thought hearings conducted by the then-Atomic Energy Commission on plant licensing were rigged in favor of the plants.

Petition circulators, mostly volunteers, took to the streets in mid-November of 1974, trying to gather the required 490,000 signatures.

Richard Spohn, then of the Citizens' Action Group, said about $50,000 was spent on gathering the signatures.

Gathering the signatures "is a bear," he said.

About 25 to 30 full-time signature gatherers worked from eight to 12 hours a day, he said, while roughly 125 at a time worked part time. Several hundred persons worked at signature gathering overall, he said.

Except for one director who was paid $1,200 a month, full-time signature gatherers "lived really cheap," sleeping in sleeping bags and working when they could, Pesonen added.

Though opponents of 15 are outspending proponents by a wide margin, Spohn thinks the initiative has a good chance of passing.

The basic issues raised by the proposition are policy questions and "are not technical issues," he said.

JOE MAHER TAKES IT EASY WHILE HIS EARTHWORMS GROW

Doctors open can of worms by telling Joe to find a hobby

By DICK EMERY

The docs told Joe Maher to take it easy.

"Get a nice, quiet hobby," they said.

After all, within snapping distance of man's promised threescore and ten years, Joseph F. Maher had earned a bit of rest and silence. That was seven years ago.

So he started looking around for a hobby neither noisy nor calisthenic, nor even spectacular.

He finally decided to cultivate earthworms.

"Ideal!" he said, a day or two ago, hardly moving from his comfortable, cushioned chair in the shade of a banana tree behind his cottage near 14th Street and Pine Avenue in Long Beach.

His feet were resting on a wheelbarrow in which stood a rumpled paper sack full of apples past their prime.

"The worms LOVE apples," he explained.

"They eat all kinds of organic trash. Meat scraps they adore. You should see how they polish a steak bone!"

QUIETLY, in their many wooden lug-boxes, thousands and thousands of splendid young earthworms were eating apples, ignoring rotten spots and other imperfections.

"What a lovely hobby!" Maher said.

"My pets never talk back. They do not bark, or whine, or scratch the door to get in or out. They have no working parts to short-circuit, like toy trains. They aren't panicked by cats, as canaries are, and when they're hungry, they don't moo like cows or scream like parrots. No, they just quietly wait."

The doctors gave Maher their prescription after pretty well working him over with surgery and pills. They told him he was in terrible shape and should get his affairs in order. He told them he had no intention whatever of failing to greet the sunrise on Jan. 1, 2000. On that morning, he will have seen three centuries.

"THE DOCTORS gave me the bad word back in 1968," he said. "It took me a while to settle down and get this hobby going.

"Do you know that the earthworm is man's best friend? That without earthworms, farms would be useless? That the earthworm. . ."

Maher chuckled. He admitted that as pets, earthworms lack one essential.

"They won't come when you call them."

"THE DOCTORS who prescribed a quiet hobby for Maher had studied his record.

Between boyhood in New York and his present loafing, he led a lively and usually noisy life as a deckhand on a square-rigger, a U.S. Cavalry troop cook on the Mexican border in World War I, a Texas mule skinner, an oil driller, a hearse driver (that was quiet until the last few minutes, when the two-horse team ran away), a dragline operator on a canal project, a laborer on the first concrete highway in New York and a shipyard electrician through World War II on Terminal Island.

From May 1947 to December 1962 he was the oldest recruit in any U.S. military outfit, serving as bombardier and electronics expert on a Navy P2V antisub patrol plane flying with the Naval Air Reserve at Los Alamitos.

"Toss in quite a few years of running restaurants and furniture stores in Long Beach, Pasadena, Bellflower, Garden Grove, Santa Ana and Palm Springs."

MAHER laughed heartily. He picked up one of the blemished apples, brushed it on his sleeve, and hunted for a place to bite.

"It was always hubbub and salesmanship in my selling days—people demanding bargains. Now, an earthworm never argues. He doesn't complain. He doesn't question the slice of apple you offer him — he just eats it, happy as can be, and doesn't say a word."

Allison promoted

Levinson named managing editor

Larry Allison, managing editor of the Independent, Press-Telegram since 1969, will begin an interim assignment Tuesday with the Knight-Ridder Newspapers in Lexington, Ky., and Detroit.

David Levinson, the I.P-T's chief editorial writer, will become the new managing editor.

Allison, who came to these papers in 1957, will spend the next six months as assistant to the publisher of the Lexington Herald and Leader.

Following that, he'll work for a year in a managerial capacity in the editorial department of the Detroit Free Press.

Allison, 41, attended Long Beach State University and the Sorbonne in Paris and spent a year at Harvard on a Nieman Fellowship.

Starting as a reporter at the I.P-T, he became, successively, a copy editor, makeup editor, telegraph editor, picture editor, assistant city editor, city editor and managing editor.

DAVID LEVINSON

LARRY ALLISON

He is a member of the board of directors of the Associated Press Managing Editors Association and for two years edited its monthly publication, the APME News.

Levinson, 46, has been the chief editorial writer of these newspapers since 1970. He also has been the papers' music critic, although he will give up his reviewing assignment with the assumption of his new duties.

A native of Gary, Ind., Levinson graduated from the University of Chicago and holds a master's degree in music theory from Indiana University.

He was a reporter in Hartford, Conn., and Chicago, and a copy editor in Cleveland. Before coming to Long Beach, he was city editor and managing editor in Redding, Calif.

He has also taught courses in editorial and feature writing.

Jolly, 80, is still in driver's seat, but pace is slower now

By DENISE KUSEL
Staff Writer

"Don't call me Missus. Call me Jolly."

With that command, the pert, gray-haired woman turned on a slippered heel and shuffled into the kitchen of her North Long Beach home.

"I hope you don't mind instant coffee," she continued. "I can remember when no one would drink it, but now it's popular. But I can remember when the telephone first came in. That was popular, too. Now we take it for granted. Soon we'll take instant coffee for granted. That's just the way things go.

"I'VE BEEN interested in history ever since the first grade. That was back in 1902."

Maybel Jolly placed two steaming mugs of coffee on the kitchen table, sat down and lit a cigarette.

"And don't be telling me about cigarettes being bad for me. I don't want to hear it."

Delivering orders comes easy for Jolly. She's used to it. As the chief dispatcher for the Yellow Cab Co. in San Francisco for 20 years she gave a lot of orders.

Before that she was a cab driver.

"I had a jitney run in Joplin, Mo.," she said from behind a cloud of cigarette smoke. "A jitney is a taxi that has a fixed route. My cab was a Model T Ford.

"I'VE BEEN behind the wheel most of my life. It hasn't always been in cars," said Jolly, who turned 80 on Friday.

"The first ride I remember was in back of a wagon comin' across the prairie from Medicine County, Arkansas, to Baxter Springs, Kan. I was sleeping on a mattress in the back of the wagon.

"I grew up in Baxter Springs. It was just two miles by horse and buggy to the Oklahoma Territory.

No on Proposition 15

Several of the ballot measures in the June 8 California election could have an important impact in our state.

One — Proposition 15 — would have an impact so great that if citizens go to the polls for no other reason they should go to cast a no vote.

Passage of Proposition 15 would mean an end to California's use of nuclear energy to produce electricity.

THE PROPOSITION is advertised as a measure to assure nuclear safety. In fact, its conditions are impossible to meet. One condition would require that the U.S. Congress within one year repeal key provisions of a nuclear insurance law that Congress has just voted overwhelmingly to extend for 10 years. Another provision would allow 14 state senators to shut down California nuclear power plants just by not voting — even if all the assemblymen and most of the senators agreed the plants are safe.

There is no satisfactory substitute for nuclear power. Electricity could be produced from coal, but the resulting air pollution would be horrendous. Electricity could be produced from oil-burning plants, but there would still be added air pollution. And if there is another foreign oil boycott, as there was in 1973, there might not be enough petroleum for both the power plants and for motorists.

Even without a boycott, information from the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration indicates that by 1985 a nuclear moratorium in California woud create an additional demand for oil equivalent to about 30 per cent of current consumption of motor fuel in California. That would inevitably cause large increases in gasoline prices.

IN THIS AND other ways, a nuclear shutdown would cost the typical California family $7,500 in increased prices of energy, goods and services over the next 20 years.

The costs to many Californians would be even greater. If Proposition 15 leaves California unable to meet industrial energy needs, widespread unemployment is likely.

Every industrialized nation in the world uses nuclear power. The U.S. nuclear power industry has a perfect safety record. The major government study on nuclear safety — by Dr. Norman Rasmussen of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology — concluded that the likelihood of any kind of serious nuclear power accident is negligible.

The Rasmussen report found that if the United States had 100 nuclear power plants (it now has 55), the individual chance of a fatality per year was 1 in 300 million. The individual chance of a fatality from being hit by lightning is 150 times as great: 1 in 2 million. The chance of being killed in an automobile accident is 1 in 4,000 — or 75,000 times as great as the chance of being killed from a nuclear reactor accident.

NUCLEAR POWER is the cheapest and cleanest energy source. Despite what the proponents of Proposition 15 say, it is also the safest.

There is no reason for California to lag behind the rest of the nation and the rest of the world in cheap, clean and safe power. Proposition 15 must be defeated.

GOP faces a unique dilemma

LOS ANGELES — One consequence of the possible nomination of Ronald Reagan as the Republican presidential candidate will be unique in this century. In that event, Reagan will have defeated a sitting President of his own party, who will remain in office throughout the campaign, and in fact for five months after the roll is called at the Republican convention.

Nobody knows what problems that might bring. Presidents Truman and Johnson were in nothing like the same position in 1952 and 1968. Each of them withdrew voluntarily. Truman helped choose Adlai Stevenson as the Democratic nominee and Johnson had chosen Hubert Humphrey four years earlier as his vice-presidential running mate.

BUT IF FORD loses the nomination, he will not only have to run the government for half a year after having been repudiated by his own party; he will certainly not have favored Reagan and he will also be in the position of possibly contributing to his conqueror's ultimate victory or defeat by his actions as President.

That possibility could be foreclosed on June 8, the last primary day, but it's not likely. Ford could win the 167 delegates at stake here on Reagan's home ground, which probably would clinch a Ford nomination. But the political betting is that Reagan will win here, with Ford offsetting that victory in Ohio and New Jersey, and the issue remaining to be settled at the convention in Kansas City.

No president in office has had to fight that hard for renomination since Taft in 1912, and none has been defeated by his own party in this century. If the Ford-Reagan battle goes all the way to the convention, two differing political pressures will be at work there.

ONE WILL arise from Ford's incumbency. Uncommitted delegates may fear his power of reprisal, seek his favors, or shrink from the political consequences of rejecting their own President — and by inference all his policies. Some might worry about turning Ford into a lame duck, a caretaker President in a period of worldwide stress, with no one sure whether

Tom Wicker

New York Times News Service

Ford's policy or Reagan's campaign positions were being taken the most seriously in foreign capitals.

On the other hand, the uncommitted delegates who could hold the power of decision might feel, with considerable justification, that Ford had shown himself a weak President and an inept campaigner. They might ask themselves whether, if he could not use the powers of incumbency to defeat a challenger in his own party, he would know how to use them against the Democratic candidate.

That candidate will already have been chosen, when the Republicans meet, and if he is the Southerner Jimmy Carter, an uncommitted Republican might well wonder, too, if another non-Washingtonian with appeal in the South might not be a stronger candidate than Ford.

IRONICALLY, THE issue might well be settled outside the campaign. If Ford found himself embroiled in a foreign crisis — say in the Middle East or southern Africa — as the convention opened, there would most likely be a rally-round-the-President effect. Bad economic news or some other setback could tip things Reagan's way.

If by some means Ford does rescue his nomination, Reagan has been making it plain in recent days that he does not intend to go gentle into that good night. Any way you count the delegates, he is going to come close to nomination; and those supporting him tend to be strongly motivated and ideologically persuaded. What Reagan and his backers might demand in return for their support of a Ford ticket — anything from the vice presidency to platform concessions — could get the Republican campaign off to a disastrous start.

But if Reagan ekes out the nomination, he simply will not be able to ignore the fact that Ford still will hold all the powers of office throughout the campaign. This could produce some high comedy — the spectacle, for example, of victorious candidate Reagan having to put down cash on the barrelhead for a chartered plane, while the defeated Ford flies around in Air Force 1.

BUT THE consequences could be serious, too. Could Ford, for example, proceed with Panama Canal negotiations in good faith, knowing Reagan takes a position flatly contradictory to his own? And what if the Democratic nominee agreed with Ford, as he probably will?

The campaign of 1968 is instructive to recall. Humphrey, the Democratic nominee, obviously feared to move too far from Johnson's position on the Vietnam War, for fear Johnson would retaliate; and Humphrey believes today that if Johnson had let farm prices rise that fall, through the operations of the Commodity Credit Corporation, he might have won rather than suffer a narrow defeat.

On the other hand, the President's announcement of the Paris peace talks in the closing days of the campaign probably gave Humphrey a last-minute lift. Would Gerald Ford do as much for a man who had defeated him for the nomination?

America still longs for faith

FIERY RUN, Va. — The most interesting thing about the presidential election is that so many people in this secularized and largely agnostic country have given their votes to a devout evangelical Southern Baptist.

This hasn't happened because Governor Carter is an elegant preacher like

James Reston

New York Times News Service

Woodrow Wilson, with a compelling vision of the future. He does not have the muscular vigor of President Ford, or the theatrical charm of Ronald Reagan, or the youthful good looks of Governor Brown. He is, on the whole, a pleasant, intelligent, courteous, hopeful and determined man, but no more so than many others like Governor Askew of Florida, who might have come forward.

WHAT, THEN, explains his success? I believe it is that he has come along at a time of reaction against the pessimism and moral anarchy of the present age, when so many people are depressed by the history of the past decade, and perplexed by the consequences of their own lack of personal faith.

It might have been supposed that so liberated and even defiant a generation would have rejected Carter precisely because he gives public witness to his religious convictions, and of course, many people do. Quite a few people regard him as a throwback to the age of illusion and even as a personal rebuke to their hard-won emancipation, and their liberating "life-style."

But it seems that, while Carter will lose this particular vote, he is getting the support of a much wider constituency in America that longs for something it has lost and thinks he represents. And this is not merely the church-going "regulars" — though they are a numerous and powerful political force — but also the social weekend "believers" who are not very happy with the "liberation" or "style" of their lives.

CARTER'S POWER with these folk, which the political and labor union leaders of his party cannot ignore, and Ford and Reagan fear, is that it is strongest in the Republican conservative regions of the South and Middle West. He is doing with personality and theology what Goldwater, Nixon and Ford have tried to do with conservative political ideology — he is not only holding his own with the Democratic organizations in the North, but cutting into the "silent majority" of the "Middle America" that the Republicans thought was their strongest base.

For the moment, Carter is stumbling and may do no more than hold his own in the remaining primary elections, but that's really all he has to do. He has most of the convention delegates and even more important, he has the philosophy that is infuriating the liberal minority in his own party but touching the doubts and hopes of the majority. It will not be easy for his opponents to get rid of him, for they cannot dump him without risking the loss of the people who see him as a new personality appealing to the old but not quite forgotten values.

This struggle between belief and unbelief has been going on in America for a very long time. The old faith may have been destroyed but the longing for faith remains. Even in Lincoln's day, he felt that we were "bereft of faith but terrified of skepticism."

IT IS THE Vietnam War, the Watergate scandals, the revelations of moral squalor around the White House and also of the latest corruption of Wayne Hays and staff in the Congress that have brought all this now to a critical point in the election of 1976.

It is merely more obvious now. Walter Lippmann defined the modern dilemma probably better than anybody else in A Preface to Morals in 1929. "Among those who no longer believe in the religion of their fathers," he wrote, "some are proudly defiant, and many are indifferent. But there are also a few, perhaps an increasing number, who feel that there is a vacancy in their lives. . . .

"What most distinguishes the generation who have approached maturity since the debacle of idealism at the end of World War I, is not their rebellion against the religion and the moral code of their parents, but their disillusionment with their own rebellion. It is common for young men and women to rebel, but that they should rebel sadly and without faith in their own rebellion, that they should discuss the new freedom no less than the old certainties — that is something of a novelty."

This is the spirit of regret Carter seems to have touched, and it is a formidable moral and political force.

How clemency board failed

WASHINGTON — Just eight days after President Ford pardoned Richard Nixon for his Watergate crimes, the President established a clemency board to offer similar charity to the draft dodgers and deserters of the Vietnam War.

He promised at an Oval Office ceremony in September 1974 that the new board would bind up the nation's wounds and would offer the Vietnam violators an opportunity "to earn their return to the mainstream of American society."

For the next year, the board became bogged down in a jungle of red tape.

The board offered conditional clemency to about 100,000 servicemen and 13,000 civilians who had committed offenses related to the war. To encourage the violators to apply, the board pledged not to make the files available "to any other agency of government." It was a promise the board shortly violated by voting to forward evidence of serious crimes to the Justice Department.

This heightened the distrust of members of an alienated generation who, therefore, were slow to respond to the clemency offer. They were just beginning to gain confidence in the board when its charter ran out. The board asked President Ford for a six-month extension. But he extended the board only a month, then another month.

Of 113,337 eligible for clemency, only 21,729 applied before the deadline. The program ended in failure.

The President, under increasing fire from the right wing of his own party, had become uneasy over the clemency program. He wanted to wind it up, according to White House sources, with a report that would appease its conservative critics. The staff produced draft reports, however, that contained blistering criticisms of the selected service system. One report assailed local boards for failing sometimes to inform the registrants of their legal rights.

Selective service officials often refused to certify registrants as conscientious objectors, a staff report charges, because of a "lack of familiarity with teachings of religion (and) lack of general acceptance."

Jack Anderson with Les Whitten

Another staff analysis charged that the military discharge office had failed to consider a man's entire service career before slapping him with an undesirable discharge.

But in September 1975 the board met at the Camp David, Md., presidential retreat and quietly cut out almost all criticism of the selective service system. They produced a final report that our sources describe simply as a "whitewash." As evidence, they have shown us copies of the suppressed draft reports.

From several sources, we have also pieced together the story of how the clemency program was mishandled. Here are the highlights:

• The board unanimously recommended honorable discharges for scores of servicemen who went AWOL after heroic service in Vietnam. The board also urged upgrading the discharges of servicemen who deserted their military units after being injured. Ex-Senator Charles Goodell, R-N.Y., personally presented these recommendations to White House counsel Philip Buchen in late 1974. Goodell made another personal appeal directly to the President. Ford still hasn't acted on the recommendations.

• He has ignored another board recommendation to grant pardons to about 700 servicemen who face prosecution for minor offenses they committed after returning from Vietnam.

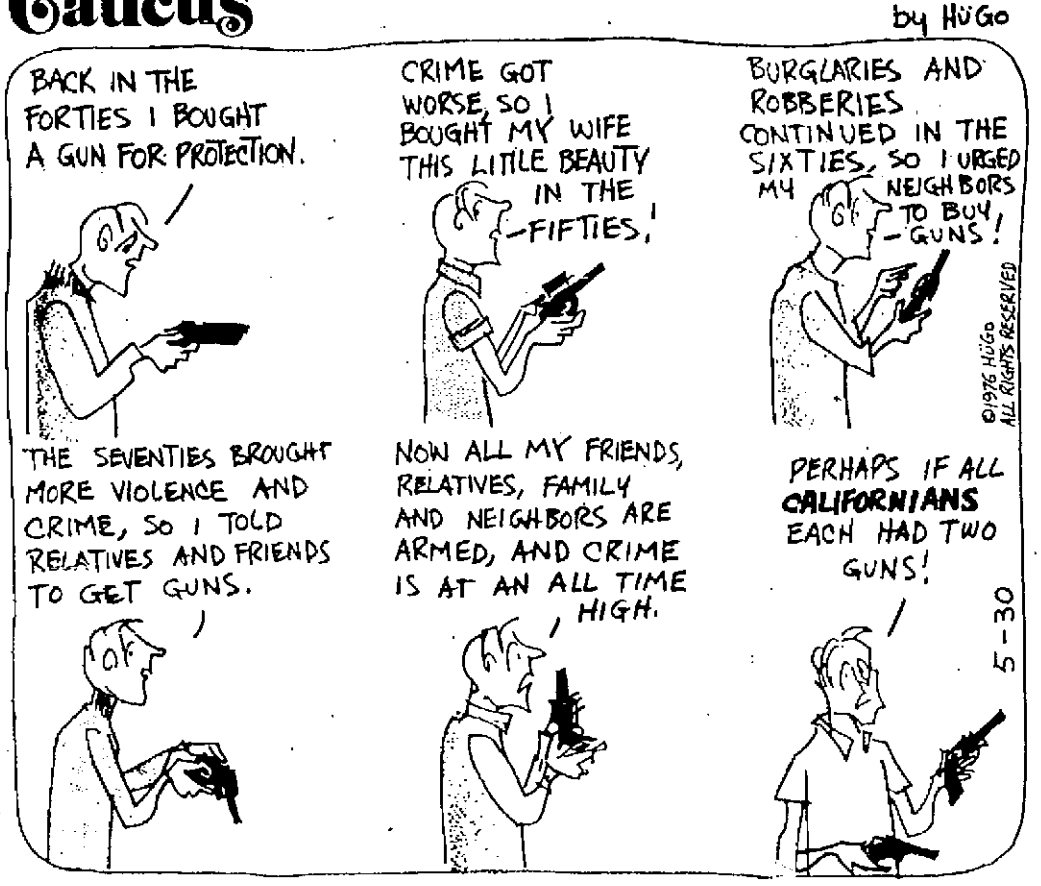

• The board granted "clemency discharges" to thousands of Vietnam servicemen. These were supposed to remove the stigma of an undesirable discharge. Yet, incredibly, servicemen with undesirable discharges have had better results getting veterans' benefits. Goodell has acknowledged privately that a clemency discharge is sometimes worse than an undesirable discharge.

• A clemency discharge is also supposed to improve the veteran's chance of eventually gaining an honorable discharge from the Pentagon. Yet our sources say the Pentagon brass look with scorn upon the clemency discharges. The practical effect has been to make it more difficult for the veterans to upgrade their discharges.

• The clemency board promised applicants that they could comment on the case summaries before they were submitted to the board. These summaries were used by the board members to help them judge the case. However, the board usually made decisions before giving the applicants a chance to respond. When some applicants learned about this, they threatened to sue. The board immediately reneged on the promise, issued new regulations and applied them retroactively.

Goodell acknowledged that certain criticisms had been deleted from the final report. The board felt it shouldn't evaluate the work of other agencies, he said. He also contended that President Ford backed the board on most matters.

Fluoridation 'peril'

Referring to a letter written by Mirian Hippensteel, "John Mansell and his cronies," not only have brought the Queen Mary, the Grand Prix, the oil islands which have ruined the view from our beaches, the filled—in harbor docks which shut Catalina from view and have caused the disappearance of our beach, but are responsible for our city water system being fluoridated. They denied the citizens the right to vote — twice — before the citizens turned down fluoridation. This is a costly project and extremely wasteful, as only 1 per cent of a water supply is used for drinking purposes and the 99 per cent is wasted as far as fluoridating in relation to the teeth.

There are statistics now available which indicate that 25,000 cancer deaths per year can be attributed to fluoridation. The ten largest cities fluoridated before 1960 have a cancer death rate 12 per cent higher than the ten largest nonfluoridated cities and later figures show a continued increase in cancer death rates between fluoridated and nonfluoridated cities.

A fine manager

I am really sick and tired of hearing the so-called in-the-know people request John Mansell's resignation. They are blaming everything on him but the sinking of the Titanic. Does the City Council bear no blame?

I realize that everyone is so disgusted with anyone in a city, state or federal position now, after Watergate, that we are striking out quickly out of frustration. I suggest you make sure of all the facts before anyone asks for this man's resignation.

I grew up in Long Beach. My father worked for almost 20 years for the city as a welder and mechanic. He is retired now, and lives in the East, but I'll never forget his personal knowledge of Mr. Mansell. His opinion, from personal knowledge, was that Mr. Mansell was the only city manager he ever knew who cared for all his men, not just the supervisors and foremen.

The average man working for the city could always count on a fair deal from Mr. Mansell. Ask a city employe — a garbage collector, a mechanic at the police garage, etc. — what kind of man Mr. Mansell is. They are in a position to know.

Ending a tax break

Common Cause and the League of Women Voters are sponsoring Proposition 5 for tax reform. Your editorial "Proposition 5: a step back" says it is the reverse of tax reform, but your arguments are specious and you avoid some important facts.

Today, most taxes can be changed by a majority of the Legislature. Amending the state constitution so that tax laws covering banks, insurance companies and other corporations could also be changed by a majority vote, instead of by the two-thirds vote now required, would make it much more possible to achieve comprehensive tax reform.

The two-thirds provision was placed in the state constitution 65 years ago when the state was predominantly under the control of railroads and banks. Since there there have been numerous attempts to reduce the two-thirds provision. Proposition 5 is the first opportunity the people of California have had to vote on this special protection allowed banks and corporations.

Opponents of Proposition 5 argue that it is an antibusiness measure. But the majority vote provision would make it equally easy to lower taxes as well as raise them. Also, most of the businesses in California are not corporations and do not derive any protection from Article 13 of the constitution.

The overall effect of the two-thirds provision can be seen in where the state gets its revenue. In the past 12 years bank and corporation contributions to the state general fund have declined from 20 per cent to 12 per cent. At the same time the share from personal income tax has increased from 13 per cent to 34 per cent.

Forty-four states, including all other major industrial states, and the U.S. Congress require only a simple majority vote on tax matters. The present discriminating two-thirds vote creates a minority veto vulnerable to the power of corporate lobbyists who need only 14 senators' votes to block tax reform.

Deserved praise

F. C. Anderson's splendid column of May 2, devoted entirely to the quiet courage and tenacity of Frances Bond, community relations director for the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities, is an appropriate tribute to a gallant woman.

It is indeed fitting that her professionalism should be exalted by one of her own calling, for I am sure that appreciative words by one journalist, in recognition of another, are the ultimate compliment.

We at Regional Community Services Administration also have long admired Frances, for all the qualities enumerated by Mr. Anderson.

That we should have waited to acknowledge her dedication only until it was recognized in her home town newspaper is our own frailty — and it stands in stark contrast to Frances' accomplishments as scribe for the annals of the poor.

Thank you for plaudits too long unspoken.

Letter misleads

As a Republican, I resent the letter my family received from Modestus Bauer, asking us to write the name of a Democrat, Mike Cullen, on our Republican primary ballot. The letter did not make clear that Cullen is a Democrat. Should enough Republicans be fooled, our party would have a Democrat as a standard-bearer in the general election in November.

We would then have Cullen vs. Cullen. With his voting record, one Cullen is more than enough.

Irritating advice

I am becoming more and more disgusted with the TV commercials, and the printed material stuffed in my mailbox and handed me at my door advising me to vote No on Proposition 15. The more I am inundated with this propaganda being paid for by the major oil and utility corporations, who have the millions to do it, the more I am determined to vote Yes.

All this proposition will do is to see that the nuclear plants operate efficiently and safely.

Everyone wants help from old Moe Mentum

Russell Baker

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — The most sought-after man in politics this year is Moe Mentum. The political reporters pay attention to scarcely anyone else. It is a rare Tuesday night that doesn't find Walter Cronkite or John Chancellor analyzing the day's returns to find out which candidates have Moe Mentum on their side, and which candidates Moe has rejected.

It is an odd development in the career of a man who, just a few brief years ago, seemed to have no future in politics, and no one is more astounded by his sudden political fame than Mentum himself. Quite by accident, I ran into Mentum the other day and was surprised to discover that he and I had spent three years together in the same high-school Latin class in the 1930s.

AT THAT TIME, of course, he answered roll call to the name of Morris Mentumsky and was famous only for his failed translations, one of his better being the rendering of Caesar's "forte dux in aro" as "forty ducks in a row." By the third year, when he translated Horace's "Non egit Mauris Jaculis" as "Don't egg at Maury's ejaculations," the authorities decided that his Latin suffered from a lack of Morris Mentumsky, or Moe Mentum, as the pundits would call it nowadays, and he was transferred to football.

Recalling these days, Moe told me he had been no more successful at football than at Latin until, just a few years ago, he shortened his name to make it easier for television's football voices to pronounce. "I had noticed," he said, "that there were certain football names that got pronounced constantly, simply because they had names that were so much fun to say on television. Names like Mick Tinglehoff and Mercury Morris were always making great plays."

In short, he saw that a player with a name like Morris Mentumsky, which was no fun at all to pronounce on television, was never going to succeed. He shortened it to Moe Mentum. His triumph was almost instant. How many games has the television watcher seen won these past few years because the victorious side had Moe Mentum?

I REMEMBER just last December seeing the Oakland Raiders beat the Washington Redskins at the final instant because of Moe Mentum's last-minute intervention. Naturally, I did not associate him with the failed Latinist Mentumsky, nor did I anticipate that he was about to launch a brilliant political career.

Neither did Moe. "I was about to hang up the shoulder pads for another season," he said, "when, in early January, a delegation of political reporters called on me. They said no candidate could win without me and I owed it to the country to get into the campaign."

Moe was reluctant at first. Not because he didn't have a normal American thirst for power. He did. But he was afraid of going up against the toughest political king-maker of the past two decades, the mighty Charisma.

SINCE 1960, when he elected John Kennedy, Charisma had become such a political power that the reporters had granted him the accolade reserved for the very greatest stars — billing him simply by his last name, in the manner of Garbo, Gable and Karloff. His full name, of course, is Irving Charisma.

"So I said to the reporters," Moe recalled, "I said, 'You're asking me to go up against Irv Charisma? You think the pols are going to start courting a jock like Moe Mentum when there's a chance they can get Charisma on their side? You've got holes in the head.'"

The reporters told Moe that Charisma was all washed up. He had lost the hum on his fast ball, his legs were gone and he could no longer hit the curve on the outside corner. In 1968 and 1972, Charisma had been a joke. This year the candidates wouldn't go near him. He had begun drinking heavily and talking about getting married, which would seal his fate.

"I don't follow that," said Moe.

"No candidate can risk having Charisma without first making sure Mrs. Charisma will go along," the reporters explained. "Even then, all the candidate can say is that he has the Charismas, which sounds like an admission that he has the D.T.'s, particularly in view of Irv Charisma's drinking problem."

AND SO political triumph came to Moe Mentum simply because there was no one else available to accept the glory, and now the most ambitious men in America camp at his door beseeching boons.

What does it all mean? Perhaps it is best summed up by the Latin philosopher who said, "Amo mentem sea tempora timeo." Or, in Moe's translation, "'I'm Moe Mentum,' said temper at me, oh!"

In a complex state, local boys may make good

By WALLACE TURNER
The New York Times

LOS ANGELES — The political tides seem to run in favor of the home towners as the wave of presidential primaries crests in California June 8.

Former Gov. Ronald Reagan looks to the winner-take-all Republican primary for the 167 delegates that could give him a commanding lead at the Republican National Convention.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. hopes for a big enough bite when the 280 Democratic convention delegation is divided to give him a strong position at New York six weeks from now.

Sen. Frank Church, a Westerner from Idaho, went to college at Stanford University and can be expected to talk about it as he hustles votes up and down the state.

But the third Democratic candidate who will be active here, former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, and the other Republican candidate, President Ford, a former Michigan representative, have no California ties.

Those local relationships are of more than usual importance here, for this is an extremely complex place where the subtleties sometimes escape even the seasoned campaigner.

Among the more than 21 million residents, 900,000 are unemployed. The population is clustered in urban complexes — as the approximately 7 million living around this city, or the 4.5 million around San Francisco.

For a quarter century, the pattern here has been for fields and orchards and even vineyards to disappear under the gradually spreading carpet of real estate developments.

The inner cities of Oakland, San Francisco, and Los Angeles have changed radically in those years as the middle class moved to the suburbs — Orange County, Walnut Creek, the San Francisco Peninsula and so forth.

This immense physical change was accompanied by sociological change that has been at the root of some of the most startling developments in American life.

The litany of "first" developments that came out of California to sweep the country has been repeated endlessly — student revolt that began at Berkeley, black militance with the Black Panthers, senseless mass murder by such as Charles Manson's group and others, the Sexual Freedom League of a decade ago in Berkeley, all were on those lists.

A year or so ago, articles suggested that California was calming, as a volcano cools after eruption. Then two women, one a Manson follower, the other a former Federal Bureau of Investigation informant, tried to shoot President Ford in separate incidents. Patricia Hearst was tried and convicted of bank robbery committed with the radicals who had kidnaped her.

This is a big place. The topography is awesome. It is about 750 miles from Tijuana, Mexico, to the Oregon border. A great deal of the 158,695 square miles of California is rugged mountain.

A lot of it once was desert, and still is, but thousands of acres are under irrigation with water that fell as snow and rain in the damp northern counties and has been moved hundreds of miles in a state-financed system of canals to the desert country.

The agricultural labor force has been one of the causes of social friction, for the "factories in the field" have been built on cheap labor from immigrants. Cesar Chavez and the United Farm Workers built national support for boycotts to attempt to organize field workers, only to be supplanted in many areas by the Teamsters Union.

Brown points proudly to an Agricultural Labor Relations Act passed with his administration's leadership. But his critics point out that the law is moribund because the governor has not been able to get the legislature to renew financing.

The conflict over the farm labor bill involves an industry in which total employment is 256,000. But there are 1.7 million federal, state and local employees in California.

There is no state law providing special union protections for state employees, although at one time Brown spoke favorably of legislation to provide for collective bargaining for public workers.

Labor's position historically has been strongest in Northern California, while in the Southern California counties there still are many nonunion enterprises.

So when public employes in San Francisco struck the city, curtailing many functions, such as public transit, it was assumed that members of other unions would support the strike. They did not.

It is unclear to most observers what the effect of this strike loss will be in the long run on labor's strong influence on political life here. That influence was in part constructed on labor's ability to give big contributions at campaign time.

But a campaign reform law adopted in a statewide vote in 1974 has had a deep effect on that ability to, in effect, buy into a campaign and then dominate it. The state continues to change quickly so that today's truisms are tomorrow's mistakes.

Among registered voters, 57 per cent are Democrats and 36.4 per cent are Republican.

The state has no firm records on numbers of black and Chicano voters. Activists in both groups have estimated that there are 600,000 registered blacks, and 700,000 to 900,000 registered Mexican-American voters.

In the presidential primary, Reagan is thought by most observers to have a substantial margin over Ford.

Reagan managed in 1966 to win the governorship from Edmund G. Brown, father of the present governor, and then to hold onto it by a comfortable margin in 1970. He did this by a combination of the same qualities that have enabled him to mount a credible challenge to a sitting president of his own party — an attractive and compelling speaking style that is used to articulate a political and economic philosophy that is anti-Washington.

Brown, meantime, has in 17 months in office articulated his own brand of anti-government philosophy which — together with the hometown advantage — has given him a lead over Carter and Church, as the stretch drive begins.

60 years of driving

Oh, I'm so glad I grew up in that era. Everything was so fresh and exciting.

"My husband was the first jitney driver in Joplin. He died in the flu epidemic after the war. (World War I). That's where I got the idea about being a jitney driver myself.

"I got my chauffeur's license in 1917. Back in those days you didn't need a license to drive a pleasure car. You just got in and drove. And what drivers. I told you things were exciting," she added with a wink.

"I have 60 years of driving under my belt. There's a 1959 Chevrolet in the garage. Drove it off the showroom floor and it still gets me where I want to go. I just had my California driver's license renewed.

"I was a volunteer driver for Senior Opportunities Services for a few years. I took elderly, sick and handicapped people to the doctor. It's hard to depend on someone else when you're old and sick."

The fiercely independent woman looked down into her mug of coffee. "I've been through three wars — declared and undeclared — and an economic depression. We were poor as church mice, but I wouldn't trade my life for anything."

Jolly walked into the living room and returned with a cream-colored scrapbook. It was thick with memories.

She flipped through the pages and settled on one with yellowed newspaper clippings describing the exploits of Yellow Cab drivers in San Francisco when Jolly was at the helm dispatching the orders.

"Here's the story of the waitress who changed her clothes in the back of a cab after telling the driver, 'Full speed ahead and don't spare the horses.' She was on her way to see her husband before he was shipped overseas, and she wanted to wear a nice dress instead of her uniform.

"Then there was the time I was dispatching a cab to Third and Church streets. The driver misunderstood me and kept saying 'Third and Turk street.' I kept saying 'Church Street' and he kept repeating 'Turk Street.' Finally I said to him, 'Driver, where do you go on Sundays?' He paused and answered, 'On Sundays I go to the show.'"

Back at the table, Jolly flipped through a few more pages of her scrapbook, mingling smiles and frowns as she wandered through brief segments of her life.

Now the memories keep her going as she faces the new experiences of losing some of her prized independence to the inevitable ravages of time.

Several accidents and illnesses have temporarily depleted her vast store of energy.

Her Social Security check doesn't go as far as she'd like. And a recent attempt to sell her charming little house failed because she couldn't find any other place to go.

Yet, she admits, "I'll be 80 and I'm not afraid to admit I'm scared. For the first time in my life, I'm scared."

Mostly, it's the loneliness that the restrictions of age place on people that gets her.

"Loneliness is like any other disease. It saps your energy and keeps you from doing the things you normally do," Jolly said.

Summer job link set for teen-agers

A youth employment service, designed to match teen-agers who want work with community residents and businessmen who need summer help, has been set up at the Los Altos branch of the YMCA in Long Beach.

Stan Welch, director of the service, said 'Y' officials are lining up residents and businessmen who will pay an hourly wage to youngsters from 14 to 18 years old.

"We're really taking a double-pronged approach here," he explained. "We're hoping that homeowners, for instance, will provide jobs such a yard work, window washing and babysitting for the younger kids, and that businessmen will be able to hire the older kids for jobs in their offices."

WELCH said the only requirement for persons who want to hire the youths is that they agree to pay an hourly wage.

"We don't want a youngster to agree to do a certain job for a fixed fee and then find out that it takes him so long to finish the task that he winds up making only 50 or 75 cents an hour," he explained.

Welch said there are no income restrictions for youths who wish to apply for work through the center.

"We feel that there's a need in the community to bring youths and jobs together," he said. "There are no geographic limits—it doesn't matter where the youngster lives—and it doesn't matter how much money his or her parents make."

WELCH said interested youths should come by the YMCA office at 1720 Bellflower Blvd. and fill out a job application form. Each teen-ager will then be given an appointment for an interview with a member of the 'Y' staff before he or she is lined up with a job.

He said the office would be open from 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. on Fridays and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays.

Interviews will be conducted from 1 to 4 p.m. Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays and by special appointment at other times, Welch said.

He added that homeowners or businessmen who wish to offer jobs through the service should contact him at the 'Y', 596-7765. He said a 24-hour answer phone will be hooked up so that interested persons may leave messages at any time.

Services set for Navy's L. Ozsyanyi

Funeral services for Louis Ozsyanyi, a career Navy man who was active in Long Beach activities, will be conducted at 10 a.m. Tuesday at Sheelar/Stricklin Chapel.

Mr. Ozsyanyi, also known as Oscar Lewis, died Wednesday at 62.

A 30-year veteran of the Navy, he served as aide and driver to three admirals. He was the owner of the Fleet Locker Club and was one of the founders of the Independent Business Men's Association.

He is survived by three brothers, Andrew, of Boston, Mass.; and Ernest and Stephen, both of Long Beach; and four sisters, Margaret Takacs and Bertha Herzog, both of Passaic, N.J.; and Susan Enhoffer and Ann Enhoffer, both of Clifton, N.J.

Memorial donations to the Heart Association were suggested.

C.E. Witte funeral set

Services for Charles E. Witte, a 51-year Long Beach resident, are to be conducted at 2 p.m. Tuesday in Ramona Chapel, Ramona. Mr. Witte died at his home in Ramona Friday morning. He was 68.

A native of Lincoln, Neb., Mr. Witte came to Long Beach in 1924. He was a World War II veteran and served as payroll officer at the Seal Beach Ammunition Depot. He left Long Beach 14 months ago to live with his sister in a rest home.

Mr. Witte is survived by four sisters, Ella I. Johnson of Los Angeles, Grace M. Stout of Washington, D.C., Gertrude M. Holland of Ramona and Florence Chettle of Lake Arrowhead, and six nieces and nephews.

Human Relations unit

Hands off panel, says jury

The Orange County Grand Jury has recommended that the Human Relations Commission be allowed to retain its "autonomous status" and not be placed "under the umbrella of the Human Services Agency."

If supervision of the commission is needed, it could best be provided by the county administrative office, jurors said Friday. Jurors also called on the Board of Supervisors for "complete cooperation and encouragement. . .to the commission."

The jury predicted the commission, whose budget for the year is $102,839, will wind up with a surplus of $16,794.

The jury called the money budgeted to the commission "well spent" and said the commission's mission is important because "it seeks to resolve problems relating to prejudice, discrimination and disorder in any field of human relations."

The jury, whose members attended some of the commission'sneighborhood meetings, dealt at length with the commission's work in various cities and neighborhoods.

The report also lauded the Anaheim Police Department for initiating, with the commission, a study of police-community relations in Anaheim.

Referring to the over-all mission of the commission, the grand jurors held that "while a complete solution may not be resolved in the very near future, ...proper steps are being taken to eliminate concerns of the participants."

Sign-up time for schools

Preregistration for kindergarteners and other children entering Long Beach area elementary schools for the first time this fall will be held Thursday.

Parents can sign up their children at local elementary schools from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 3:30 p.m. Proof of age and immunizations required by law must be furnished.

52 Poly High students win $350,000 in scholarships

Fifty-two high school seniors in the newest alternative education program in the Long Beach Unified School District have won scholarships worth more than a third of a million dollars.

Students in the Program of Additional Curricular Experiences (PACE) at Poly High have won $351,556 in scholarships and the total is still growing, according to Nancy Gray, PACE coordinator.

"All the hard work has really paid off," she said. "In addition to scholarships, PACE seniors have taken more than 100 advanced placement tests to earn college credits while still in high school."

She said two PACE juniors, Alexis Brown and Gayle Montgomery, have won summer National Science Foundation Grants to Humboldt State College. Only 70 such grants are awarded in the nation.

Seniors in PACE have received scholarships from Harvard, Yale, Brown, Georgetown, Stanford, MIT and other top universities.

Enrollment in PACE is limited to 200 students.

Problems of elderly will be discussed

A general meeting of senior citizens of Orange County, focusing on concerns of the elderly, will be held Friday in Garden Grove.

The first such meeting ever held in Orange County by the state's Department on Aging, it will hear testimony on such subjects as the cost of living, housing, transportation, health, employment and nutrition.

More than 1,000 senior citizens are expected to attend the sessions at the Garden Grove Community Center, 11300 Stanford Ave. The meeting will run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Senior citizen legal aid will start Tuesday

Assistance on legal problems common to senior citizens will be provided three days a week beginning Tuesday in Torrance and Lomita as part of a continuing program sponsored by the Legal Aid Project.

Julius A. Glogovesan, legal aid officer, will be available from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Bartlett Adult Center, 1318 Cravens Ave., Torrance, on Tuesdays; at the Lomita City Hall, 24300 Narbonne Ave., Lomita, Wednesdays, and Joslyn Center of the Arts, 3335 Torrance Blvd., Torrance, Fridays.

Scholarships awarded to 130 students

Scholarships worth more than $60,000 have been awarded to 130 Long Beach City College students for their academic achievement in the 1975-76 school year.

The top individual scholarship of $2,000 was awarded to Steve Ray, a business administration major, by the Sully-Miller Contracting Co. Ray has an A grade average and will attend USC next fall.

The Ruth Ball Hines Memorial Scholarship of $1,000 was given to David Harvey, an engineering major. Roger G. Jay II and Frank Schreck each won $1,000 from the new Purple Heart Veterans Scholarship Fund.

The Rotary Club of Long Beach gave a total of $11,250 in scholarships to 45 students. Thirty-six students got state scholarships for next year.

Classified Ad Wins Motorcycle Sale

Frank Holguin, 731 Sunnybrook Drive, La Habra, discovered recently that motorcycles and Independent Press-Telegram Classified ads are a winning combination. Jenny Agutter's a new MGM household word

NEW YORK — Jenny Agutter, a big movie star of tomorrow, has difficulty getting people to understand her name.

"The accent," she tells them patiently, "is on the first syllable, making it 'Ah-guter,' and it's spelled like 'a gutter.'"

Miss Agutter is 23, 5 feet 7, brown-haired, London-born and rather serious.

"I do not have a beautiful face," she says. "It changes a lot, and some people couldn't believe it would work at all. I do not have a perfect nose. It's not straight. However, I've become attached to it."

"The color of my eyes is also changeable," further declares the Lady with the Changing Face. "They're mainly gray but yellowish in the middle, tending to become green in the sunlight and gray in dull weather."

Despite all these confessed imperfections, Jenny Agutter is being called MGM's finest talent find since Elizabeth Taylor. While filming "Logan's Run," a futuristic picture about life 300 years from now, she was signed for three more movies by Dan Melnick, MGM studio chief. Studios don't make many multiple-picture deals any more. Now the next job is to make Jenny Agutter a household name.

"I SPENT a long time thinking about my name," she told me on a recent afternoon at 21. "I thought of using my mother's name, Brody, but Jenny Brody sounded a little too cowgirlish. Agutter is not hard when you get used to it. It could be either French or German."

Jenny was headed back to London for a film with Michael Caine and Donald Sutherland based on the novel "The Eagle Has Landed" about an attempt to kidnap Winston Churchill. She plays the girl friend of Sutherland, an alleged Irish traitor trying to help the Germans. Caine heads a team of Germans trying to abduct Churchill.

She's mentioned also for MGM's projected filming of "Forever," the Mildred Cramme story of reincarnation which has been discussed for 30 years. Then there's the Percy Bysshe Shelley tale "The Haunted Summer."

"Logan's Run" is to be released June 23 while there's a science-fiction convention here. Jenny loves science-fiction, and science-fiction should love the Utopia she lives in (in the movie).

Jenny intends to move from London to Los Angeles in two months.

"My desire is to be in the center of the film industry, and I think that's in Hollywood," she said.

JENNY HARDLY seemed aware that she was getting a star buildup such as the studios gave all their new girls 30 years ago. It will take some time. I phoned the Sherry-Netherland Bar for her later after our interview and they had trouble finding her.

"What name did you say?" the headwaiter said.

I finally said, "It's spelled just like 'a gutter.'" They located her.

TODAY'S BEST laugh: A visit to Las Vegas shows that the only thing tougher than the winning of the West is winning in the West.

RETIRED Navy Capt. Joseph Rochefort Jr., of Torrance, left, a hero of the Battle of Midway, discusses his World War II experiences with actor Henry Fonda during filming of scenes for "Midway" at Long Beach Harbor. The motion picture, in which Rochefort is portrayed by Hal Holbrook, opens in the Long Beach area June 16 and also stars Charlton Heston.

BEATLES GO ON

Knight News Service

The Beatles are still getting by with a little help from their friends and millions of fans. Though they disbanded long ago, their legend lingers on. They remain the standard by which all rock music must be judged.

The combination of reunion rumors (backed by a $50-million offer from promoters), the climb of old Beatle hits on the British record charts and Paul McCartney's tour of the U.S. is enough to spark talk of a new Beatle mania.

For many, the Beatles remain a vital link in our personal progression. It goes something like this: They changed rock, rock changed our culture, and the culture changed us. And now a whole new audience that grew up with Elton John and John Denver is discovering the Beatles' musical legacy.

A spokesman for Capitol Records said there are plans to repackage some of the old tunes in a double album to be released in June. The working title is "Rock and Roll Music—Beatles."

A similar promotion effort in England recently put 20 Beatle hits back on the pop charts in England. Among the most successful are "Yesterday," "Get Back," "Paperback Writer" and "Hey, Jude."

Since the Beatles separated in 1970, each former member has pursued his own distinctive interests.

Certainly no other group has stamped its image on our era as have the Beatles. The Rolling Stones might have been meaner, Bob Dylan more profound lyrically, the San Francisco bands more daring—but the Beatles consolidated and led us through the apocalyptic '60s.

Movie Notes

Torrance naval hero portrayed in 'Midway'

By HARRY TESSEL
Staff Writer

A World War II hero, now 78 and living in Torrance, will be portrayed in a new and large-scale film, "Midway," to be released in the Long Beach area June 16.

Retired Navy Capt. Joseph Rochefort Jr., wartime commander of Navy combat intelligence at Pearl Harbor, and his group were credited by Adm. Chester Nimitz with leading U.S. forces to victory at the Battle of Midway.

Historians consider the June 1942 battle as America's most decisive naval engagement and a turning point in the war.

Rochefort and his intelligence group broke a Japanese secret code that made it possible for Nimitz's ships to ambush and defeat numerically superior Japanese forces.

It was at a time when the U.S., still reeling from the Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor, feared that Hawaii or California might next come under attack.

Coded Japanese messages that were monitored indicated that an attack was planned. Was it a ruse or the real thing? The messages included the letter groupings "AF" and "MI."

Rochefort recalled the period:

"Well, the Japanese are real clever. They have this communication system, and in it are two or three little ciphers they would use on occassion.

"They kept referring to the place as 'AF,' and sometimes they would talk about 'MI'—obviously Midway. We figured 'AF' and 'MI' were the same thing, but from different code books.

"We asked Nimitz to send a message by underwater cable (the Japanese couldn't reach it) to Midway telling them to send a message on the air in plain language: "We are short of fresh water on Midway Island,' or something like that. So that the Japanese would later transmit it in code, and we could identify Midway.

"We beefed the message up a bit, but that was the idea. Then we sat back and waited.

"Two days later the Japanese came out in plain language and said, 'There is a water shortage on AF.' And that's how we learned the Japanese objective of attacking at Midway.

I think we sold Nimitz real early on the whole thing."

"Midway" (the film) blends dramatizations of fictional and actual characters' activities with war footage, filmed in color by Navy photographers and by cameras on fighter planes.

The film also reflects U.S. and Japanese viewpoints on the battle.

The cast includes Charlton Heston, Henry Fonda, James Coburn, Glenn Ford, Hal Holbrook (as Rochefort), Toshiro Mifune, Robert Mitchum, Cliff Robertson and Robert Wagner.

Locations for the "Sensurround" Mirisch presentation, released by Universal, included Fort MacArthur, the Long Beach naval facility and Point Mugu naval air station, as well as aboard the USS Lexington at sea.

PETER Fonda will star as a fugitive from jail who becomes a top country-western singer in "Outlaw Blues." Warner Bros. has slated production for September.

JOHN Kander and Fred Ebb, Tony Award-winning composer and lyricist of "Cabaret," have been inked for seven songs for United Artists' "New York, New York," starring Liza Minnelli and Robert DeNiro, directed by Martin Scorsese. Filming begins in June.

DOMINIQUE Sanda will share top billing with George Peppard and Jan-Michael Vincent in 20th Century-Fox's futuristic adventure "Damnation Alley."

HUEY Long, the Louisiana Kingfish and American political phenomenon, will be the subject of a Warner Bros. film based on a Pulitzer Prize-winning biography by T. Harry Williams. Assassinated in 1935 when he was 42, Long was at the summit of his power with his "Share the Wealth" program.

Begins at home

That's what "Sweet Charity" does when the Neil Simon musical stage hit opens its Long Beach Civic Light Opera production Friday at the Jordan Theater, 6500 Atlantic Ave. It runs through June 20, featuring, from left, Karen Aldridge as Carmen, Brenda Thomson as Charity and Toni Kaye as Nickie.

Nashville rediscovers Western swing

By MATT YANCEY

NASHVILLE (AP) — At the height of his career in the late 1930s, Bob Wills and his Texas Playboys could outdraw Glenn Miller at any night club or ballroom in Texas, Oklahoma or California.

Wills' music was a combination of bluegrass, Dixieland, blues and the big dance-band sound. It was produced by slurring steel guitars and fiddles and a dominating rhythm section. Played mainly in dance halls, it became known as Western swing.

Unlike the cowboy ballads or the "listening" type of country music coming out of Nashville, Western swing was for dancing—not a square dance, but the kind in which a man would take hold of his partner and two-step her across the floor.

Wills was not the originator of Western swing, but he was certainly its king. Others like Spade Cooley, Hank Thompson, Al Dexter and Pee Wee King attracted devoted followers throughout the Southwest.

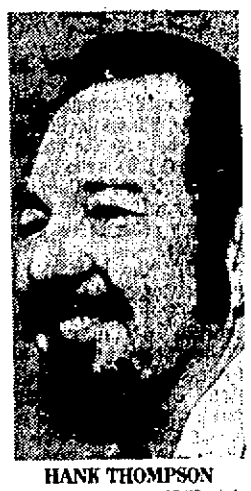

When Elvis Presley and the Twist came along, Western swing went the route of most country music. It fell to the wayside. The younger audiences did not want the same music their parents enjoyed.

To Thompson, it never even faded away.

"Although I was using the Nashville-commercial kind of sound like truck driver songs on records, I certainly was not playing that kind of music at personal appearances," Thompson says.

"When the radio stations went with the big swing to rock during the '50s, we had our biggest surge in personal appearances," he says. "People didn't quit liking country music; other people just stopped offering it to them."

Like the bluegrass revival of the late 1960s and early '70s among a younger group of listeners seeking a return to a more pure,less polished sound, Western swing is now enjoying its rebirth.

Commander Cody spawned the return to swing among rock fans a few years ago. But it wasn't until a young group of East Coast musicians called Asleep at the Wheel emigrated to Austin, Tex., that the revival spread.

Asleep at the Wheel is produced by Tommy Alsup, who put together Bob Wills' last records. Alsup has teamed with Thompson and a group of swing devotees among the studio musicians in Nashville in hopes that the new fans will follow the lead of their bluegrass counterparts.

This month they recorded a back-to-the-basics album that includes a waltz, a polka and some of the songs Thompson and others performed 20 years ago.

"I was probably the last to use Western swing's distinctive styling a few years ago," Thompson says. "It went out of style because, all of a sudden, it was no longer there, and it's coming back because the people want something they haven't got."

Western swing is the only phase of country music that has never had its day on top.

"I think radio really brought about the demise of Western swing," Thompson says. "The radio stations were always trying to reach up above country music. They'd play it, but they'd do it apologetically."

Thompson says the new fans, more attuned to listening than dancing, are swinging away from the Nashville sound and turning to his type of music, mainly because it's more colorful.

"To me, the Nashville sound has always been very bland, kind of neutral," he says. "Everybody's trying to tone everything down to where it's not objectionable to anybody."

The rebellion against Nashville reached its height last year with the emergence of the Austin music scene and its heroes — Willie Nelson and Waylon Jennings.

"This progressive-country thing has progressed right back to Western swing," says Thompson. "Willie Nelson doesn't use the fiddle, but he uses a very definite swing beat. It's different dress-wise and image-wise, but music-wise it's not that much different."

Unlike Nelson with his long hair, bandana and tennis shoes, Thompson is very comfortable with his diamond watch and rings and colorful, mod outfits.

"Flashy dress was associated with Western swing music; it was part of the showmanship," he says. "I know that I got away from it."

Sally Field to star in 'Sybil'

Associated Press

Film castings:

Sally Field, formerly "Gidget" and "The Flying Nun," takes over the title role in "Sybil," NBC's four-hour version of the best-seller about a woman with 16 personalities.

Joanne Woodward, who won an Oscar in a similar role for "The Three Faces of Eve," plays the psychiatrist.

ERNEST Borgnine joins the stellar cast of "The Prince and the Pauper," produced by Alexander and Ilya Salkind.

Alternatives seen for future buyers

Fixed-term mortgages called faulty, obsolete

By GARY WASHBURN
Knight News Service

The traditional fixed-rate, long-term mortgage that Americans have used in buying their homes for decades is under attack as experts search for new ways to finance home purchases.

Some observers who say the traditional mortgage has serious shortcomings, both for lenders and borrowers, go so far as to assert it may become extinct.

Its critics say it has two basic flaws. For one thing, lenders, who are locked into long-term loans at fixed rates of interest, can be ravaged by inflation over the life of mortgages they issue.

The money they are paid back over the years is worth much less than the money they loaned, and their return is set, even though the interest they must pay savers on their deposits may increase.

The second flaw is tied to the increasingly high cost of homes. Fewer people, especially first-time buyers with no equity in another house, can afford to buy because the traditional mortgage is too inflexible, the critics say.

The mortgage, for instance, calls for identical monthly payments over the life of the mortgage without regard to changes in earning power.

One critic is Garth Marston, acting chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, overseer of the nation's federally chartered savings and loan associations.

Marston said recently that the traditional instrument doesn't recognize the typically rising income pattern among young working families, the more level and then declining income pattern of retired home owners, and the periodic lapses of income for temporarily unemployed or incapacitated home owners.

Marston noted the traditional mortgage's shortcomings as he announced the upcoming Alternative Mortgage Instruments Research Study to be conducted by the Federal Home Loan Bank.

The options are many and varied.

Warren Pursell, executive vice president of the Illinois Savings and Loan League, believes the variable rate mortgage (VRM) is the best.

"It is being tested in California by a number of state-chartered S&Ls and they seem to be happy with it," he said.

With VRMs, the interest rate rises and declines over the life of the mortgage with changes in the money market. VRMs protect S&Ls from inflation, supporters say, and at the same time, moderate interest rates. Borrowers obtaining mortgages today at 8 per cent are in effect subsidizing those who obtained them years ago who are paying as little as 5 or 6 per cent, Pursell said.

By letting rates rise and fall with the cost of money, the argument goes that nobody gets a very low mortgage interest rate and nobody gets a very high rate.

The FHLBB has tried to let federally chartered S&Ls offer VRMs on several occasions, but congressional pressure generated by a fear of increasing rates has thwarted it each time.

The Bank of America, meanwhile, has touted the negotiable term "rollover" mortgage as a possible replacement for the traditional instrument.

Under the roll-over, lender and borrower agree on a set interest rate for a limited length of time—say, five years—with amortization based on a 20 to 30-year term.

Monthly payments would be the same per month as if the loan had been written for 20 or 30 years.

At the end of the agreed-upon period, the borrower pays off the remaining principal on the loan or obtains a new loan at a renegotiated interest rate.

In a policy statement the bank said that in Canada, where the roll-over is common, it has resulted in a steady supply of mortgage money.

Another alternative, the bank said, is a flexible payment mortgage featuring a low down payment and graduated monthly payments over the life of the mortgage. Payments would be lower in the early years of the Mortgage and rise in the later years.

"Presently, escalating housing prices effectively preclude 70 to 80 per cent of the population from acquiring a first house," the bank said. By easing early payment schedules, such a new instrument would open the door for many young families now frozen out, it believes.

Other alternatives include:

—Lengthening the mortgage term to make monthly payments smaller and more affordable.

—Deferring interest rate increases to the end of the term of the mortgage, at which time the balance of money due would be paid in one lump sum.

—Sharing in the appreciation of property by both the lender and borrower, with a relatively low interest rate charged by the lender in exchange for a slice of the profits when the home is sold.

Despite talk of these and other alternatives, H. Robert Bartell, president of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Chicago, the local adjunct of the Federal Home Loan Bank, believes that the traditional mortgage won't disappear in a sudden puff of smoke.

"No institution is going to come out and say, 'No more long-term, fixed-rate mortgages,'" he asserted. "That's not in the cards. I think the whole intent (of searching for mortgage options) is to make a wider range of products available in the market. It's seldom that any new product takes over the entire market. There's a certain amount of inertia and comfortableness with what you're doing."

Bartell believes optional mortgages will be offered with the traditional mortgage. What survives and prospers will be determined by what the market dictates, he said.

Forest shadows homes large

Nestled in the woods of the rolling countryside of Lake Forest is the new Schmid Development, Inc. single-family home development of Forest Shadows, a collection of 55 homes.

They are among the largest to be built in the 1,800-acre master-planned residential community. With three, four and five bedrooms and square footage ranging from 2,443 to 2,930 square feet, the new homes designed by William F. Wolsborn of Santa Ana will be ready for occupancy in early September.

Situated beside a wilderness park preserved for the enjoyment of Lake Forest residents, the $5-million development is laced with gently curving drives and cul-de-sac streets. Prices for the executive homes range from $83,950 to $93,700, with conventional financing programs available.

Residents of Forest Shadows are less than a half a mile from 36-acre New Lake and the extensive recreational facilities of the Sun and Sail Club which are at their disposal. The 14,000 square-foot clubhouse is a multilevel structure with a lounge, connecting kitchen and wet bar, card room, pool room and conference center.

Rising more than 45 feet with five separate roof levels, the $1 million clubhouse overlooks the lake. An exercise room, locker rooms and showers complete the facility. A separate Teen Clubhouse is situated on the nine-acre site. A swimming pool, diving pool and children's wading pool are located between the adult clubhouse and the lakeside beach.

Five tennis courts, two sand volleyball courts and a basketball court are available in addition to launching facilities for the small fleet of sailboats and paddleboat maintained by the Lake Forest II Homeowners Association. Members can also launch their own small craft from the areas. A tot lot is located near the clubhouse.

Within the new residential community of Forest Shadows, the homes display expanses of tongue-and-groove wood ceilings with massive open wood beams, hand-laid tile Roman tubs and double basin lavs in the master suite bathrooms, long-life tile roofs, and exteriors of wood and stucco accented by brick and stone.

Each of the three two-story plans is available in a choice of three exterior stylings. Ceramic tile entries and plush wall-to-wall carpeting is standard.

All kitchens at Forest Shadows are equipped with a coop top, built-in microwave oven, self-cleaning oven, dishwasher, trash compactor and disposal. Hardwood cabinets, luminous ceilings and wide ceramic tiled countertops surround the appliances and a pass-through serving window opens to the back patio area. Refrigerator space has plumbing for an ice-maker and each plan has a large storage pantry.

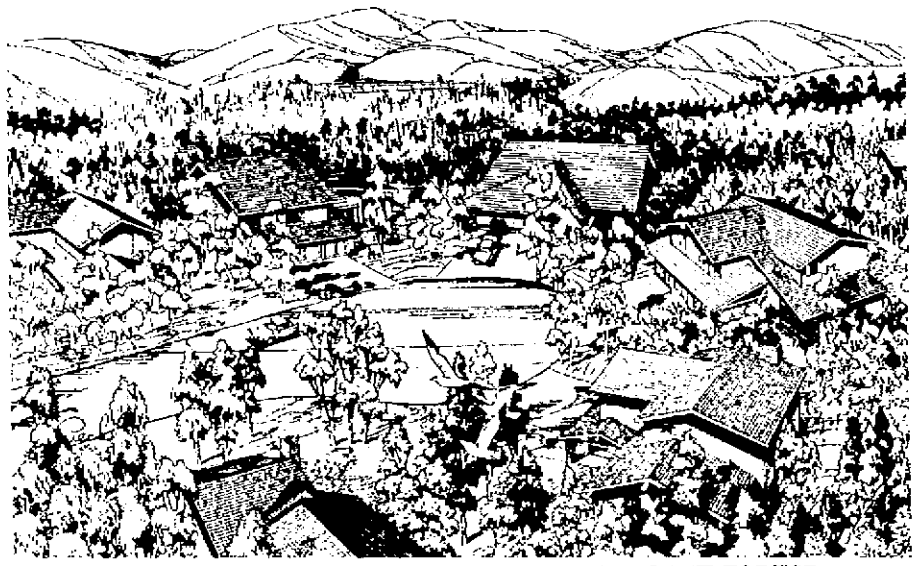

A three-car attached garage is a standard feature with all plans, and direct interior access is provided. A separate laundry service room is located on the main living level. All exterior walls and ceilings are fully insulated for energy-saving comfort.

The homes at Forest Shadows are within walking distance of El Toro High School, within an easy drive of the Laguna Hills Mall with its fashionable shops and restaurants, and have excellent access to the San Diego Freeway.

Homeowners association dues, including membership in the Lake Forest Homeowners Association, are approximately $17 per month.

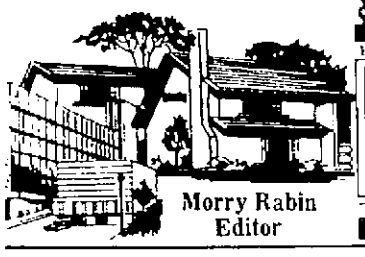

Three models are open daily except Friday for touring from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. The sales information center is adjacent to the models on Toledo Way at Ridge Route.

To reach the new, country homes of Forest Shadows, take the San Diego Freeway and exit at Lake Forest Drive. Travel toward Lake Forest to Toledo Way and turn right to the corner of Toledo and Ridge Route in Lake Forest.

COUPLE VIEWS LAGUNA VILLAGE FROM TOWNHOME

Laguna Village to begin third phase

Laguna Village, a $45 million townhome condominium community located amid rolling hills, announced the construction preview of a third phase of 95 townhomes.

The planned 914 unit development, which offers views of the Saddleback Valley, has all two-story townhome condominiums in the third phase. Two and three bedrooms and two baths are offered. The floor plans vary in size from approximately 1,350 to 1,665 square feet of living area.

Laguna Village, located west on Lake Forest Drive off the San Diego Freeway, has condominiums grouped in clusters of three to five units. Five decorated models are open from 10 a.m. daily and there is a 3,000 square foot decorator center at the sales complex.

The recently opened recreation center features a 5,500 square foot clubhouse and three pools, including therapy pool. The clubhouse has a main lounge with wet bar and large fireplace, card room, kitchen and activity rooms, billiard room and men's and women's saunas. There is a children's play area, two regulation-sized double tennis courts, lawn bowling field and sandlot volleyball court. Clubhouse areas can be partitioned off as well.

A few of the interior touches of the townhomes include central air conditioning, decorative swag lamps, Italian ceramic tile kitchen countertops, private view decks, ash cabinets, single-lever faucets, concrete patios, all-electric appliances, and easy-to-clean fiberglass tubs and showers.

According to Bruce Hill, president of Pacific Coast Realty, agents for Laguna Village townhomes, the current savings program in effect at Laguna Village has done two things. First, since the program was announced hundreds of visitors have personally inspected the Laguna Village models, and, secondly, the program has resulted in a 95% sell out of Phases I and II, since the first of the year.

Here is how Hill explains the savings plan. You purchase a Laguna Village new townhome at $45,500. After two years, the builders projected reproduction cost for the unit would be approximately $55,000, while you have enjoyed the home at today's prices. That's a potential savings of $9,550.

"Buying now is still one of your very best hedges against inflation," Hill advised. Unit 2 prices range from $40,900 to $55,100.

There is a $50 monthly homeowners fee which includes maintenance of the recreational facilities and the townhome exteriors, the green areas and greenbelts, the personal water bill of each homeowner and fire insurance on each unit.

Buyers will be offered current interest protection for 120 days so that at the close of escrow the lowest possible rate will apply.

To reach Laguna Village, take the San Diego or Santa Ana freeways to Lake Forest Drive and go west toward the ocean about one mile.

VAULTED CEILINGS ADD TO THE LUXURY AT MONARCH SUMMIT II

Monarch Summit II unveils second phase of townhomes

The second phase of 47 townhomes opens today at the $23.7 million Monarch Summit II, a community designed for adult living overlooking South Orange County.

Located on top of the highest point along Orange County's coastline, Monarch Summit II has a Mediteranean-like climate and magnificient views that stretch from the mountains to the sea.

Priced from $59,900 to $74,500, three furnished models are open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. for buyer inspection at 22956 Solera Drive, Laguna Niguel.

Constructed by Lan Ron Enterprises, Inc., Newport Beach, homes are located along a plaza, cul-de-sac street system that minimizes traffic flow.

The one-story homes, with three varied floor plans, were designed by Richard L. Martin, Los Angeles, to meet the requirements most often requested by adults, Lane noted.

"The quiet seclusion of this hilltop retreat is evident," Lane pointed out.

All homes have private, enclosed courtyards where homeowners with green thumbs may putter. Private, shaded rear patios provide exciting views, and front and rear yards are fully landscaped.

Roofs are covered with concrete tile that won't burn. Utilities are underground. And a fully landscaped green belt winds throughout the development.

Full exterior maintenance of all painting, landscaping and gardening is provided by the homeowners' association through payment of a monthly homeowners' fee of $46.36. An individual fee title ensures ownership of the townhome and land, and a proportionate share of all community property and the recreation center.

The 6,000 square foot recreation center, now under construction, will include a swimming pool, Jacuzzi, pool and bridge rooms, a lounge with a fireplace and a fully outfitted kitchen. In addition, there are nature and bike trails, several golf courses just minutes away and historical Dana Point Harbor.

"While the outside look of Monarch Summit II continues to remain pleasantly stable, the interiors have undergone changes that make the homes even more liveable," Lane said.

"Some alterations in floor plans now provide more living space, and the addition of General Electric built-ins are proving to be more popular."

Kitchens now have a General Electric range and continuous cleaning ovens, dishwasher and disposal, plus stainless steel double-sinks. There are ceramic counter tops, custom hardwood cabinetry, an old-fashioned walk-in pantry and a luminous ceiling.

Laundry facilities are inside. There are cable TV outlets, prewired telephone outlets, tinted bronze glass windows and doors in the living area, cathedral ceilings, ceramic tile in baths and shower, and cast iron tubs.

Handsome brick, wood burning fireplaces with gas log lighters, thermostatically controlled forced air heating, attached two-car garage, exterior gas and electric barbecue outlets and fully insulated exterior walls and ceilings are other features.

The three floor plans range from a cozy 1,400 square feet to a spacious 1,670 square feet. Homes have two bedrooms and two baths. The two larger models also have a den.

Model homes were decorated by Frank Ferris and Associates and Cheryl Manbeck and Associates, Newport Beach. The landscape architecture was designed by Courtland Paul, Arthur Geggs and Associates, Newport Beach.

Teal & Babcock Realty, Inc., Laguna Niguel, is the sales agent. To reach Monarch Summit II take the San Diego Freeway to Crown Valley Parkway in Laguna Niguel, and turn west to Pacific Island Drive. Turn north up the hill and follow the signs with the sea gull.

Meredith beginning new units

With 65 per cent of the first-unit homes already sold and 50 per cent of the second-unit homes sold, construction has started on the first two phases of luxury residences at Meredith Hills, a new community which will ultimately consist of 146 view homes in Orange County's southern coastal hills just off the San Diego Freeway

In addition, sales have commenced on the third phase of Meredith Hills and work is progressing on four new model homes which are planned to open within 90 days, according to Eddy Meredith, president of the Meredith Company, Tustin-based builder of luxury homes for more than 35 years.

The homes at Meredith Hills, ranging in price from $79,000 to $135,000, offer three to five-bedroom floor plans with up to approximately 3,600 square feet of living area.

Meredith Hills provides home buyers a selection of up to seven elevations for each of eight floor plans, which contributes to the custom-quality character of the project. The homes are all split-level or two-story plans with three-car garages.

Plans include the newest version of Meredith's famous "Galleria" model which features an incredible eight-foot-wide stairway in the two-story entry hall. "Galleria" is now available with five bedrooms as well as the four bedrooms previously offered.

To visit Meredith Canyon, exit the San Diego Freeway at Las Ramblas, drive inland on Las Ramblas, left on Via de Aqua and right on Calle Miramar to the models. Meredith Hills may be reached by taking the San Diego Freeway to the Alicia Parkway exit and turning south on Alicia Parkway to the project.

Lake, stream theme gives style of Europe

Construction is under way on a 368-unit lake-and-stream-oriented apartment complex which will bring the architectural style of a European village to Irvine's adult recreational community of Rancho San Joaquin.

Scheduled for mid-August occupancy, the Rancho San Joaquin Apartments is an $8 million development by The Irvine Co. at Culver Drive and Sandburg Way adjacent to the Rancho San Joaquin Golf Course and the 30-court Irvine Tennis Club and within view of the University of California's Irvine campus.

Designed by the architectural firm of Backen, Arrigoni and Ross, Inc., of San Francisco, the apartments will offer six unit types from one bedroom and one bath to two bedrooms-and-den and two baths with monthly rentals from $250 to $425.

The 17-acre site includes a picturesque lake, a meandering stream, a central recreational complex, two secondary recreational spas and a system of winding pedestrian walkways and plazas. Located on the edge of the 11th fairway, the complex offers views of the golf course, the lake or the streams.

Landscaping is by POD, Inc., with J. Harlan Glenn and Associates as lake and stream consultant.

"OUR CONCEPT in developing Rancho San Joaquin apartments was to create a village situated around a lake and a stream reminiscent of a village in Europe with its simple, vertical walls, interestingly placed vertical windows, sloping roofs with protruding chimneys and quaint pedestrian streets and plazas," William Watt, Irvine Co. vice president in charge of the multi-family division, explained.

Entry to Rancho San Joaquin will be along a tree-lined avenue, past the lake and stream and terminating in a plaza with a fountain at the entry court of the main recreation building.

The main recreation center, overlooking an exquisite golf course lake on one side and the interior lake and stream on the other, will include a lounge wing with pub area, billiards area and the Inglenook lounge conversation area with a massive fireplace.

A LARGE swimming pool and a therapeutic pool will be located on the sun deck of the main recreation center, a second recreation center will include a smaller swimming pool, a therapeutic pool and a sun deck and a third recreation area will have therapeutic pool and sun deck.

Entry to most apartments will be from plaza into one of six unit types: The Bower and The Lakes, both one bedroom and bath; The Springs, one bedroom-and-den and one-and-one-quarter baths; The Arbor and The Greens, two bedrooms and two baths; and The Fairway, two bedroom-and-den and two baths.

All apartments include gas fireplaces, central air conditioning and gas forced air heating, continuous cleaning gas ovens, dishwashers, luminous kitchen ceilings, hollow-core wardrobe doors, carpets and drapes and either a patio or a deck. Golf course units will include parquet entry flooring and eye-level range ovens.

The eight-unit buildings are taken out of the apartment project mold by a unique placement which alternates the front of buildings and the side of buildings to the walkway, and by treating the living and the bedroom areas as two distinct units from the exterior by alternating the roof heights, recessing the walls and utilizing different colors.

The exterior color palette consists of eggshell-white, sierra yellow and dark beige stucco with a warm brown accent on the wood trim around the windows. Selected windows will be protected by brightly striped awnings and will include flower pot holders. Roofs will be natural shake.

The pedestrian walkway, like an European street, will lead to the sequence of plazas, each plaza featuring a tree, benches and enriched paving. A feature will be a broad lakeside promenade, permitting residents and their guests a special viewing area.

About real estate

Social Security benefits may dictate investment plans

By DON CAMPBELL

Whether retirement is going to be a period of relaxation or a nightmare of uncertainties depends, in large measure, on whether we start planning for it just before the paychecks stop or a few years in advance.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

We have just sold our house, giving us $43,000 cash. We have $4,000 in certificates paying 7½ per cent (four years) and also have $4,000 in savings at 5¼ per cent.

Our problem now is what to invest the $43,000 in. My husband is 58, I'm 54, and he is talking retirement at 62. We have no pension to think about, only Social Security.

I would like to go into another house. Do you suggest paying cash for one (it would be smaller than the one we had), or putting a certain amount down and borrowing the rest?

We are now in an apartment paying $280 a month (utilities included) which to me is quite a bit, considering we had our home paid for the last five years. My husband's take-home pay is aboug $13,500 a year. I don't work.—Mrs. R. S., Whitehall, Pa.

ANSWER: It's always painful to pay ANY rent after you've escaped from mortgage payments. I'm assuming you've already checked with Social Security and already know, pretty well to the dollar, what you'll receive after your husband's retirement.

This, rather than whether you should buy a new home outright, will have to be your guideline. I wouldn't advise paying the full amount toward a new home — partially because the tax deductibility of your mortgage interest rates can be a money saver for you, and partially because a good part of that $43,000 can be more profitably employed (as in high-grade corporate bonds yielding about 9 to 9½ per cent a year).

But what size mortage you can handle is directly tied to your Social Security benefits. You might, for instance, buy a $30,000 house, pay half of it down and finance the $15,000 balance. At 9 per cent on a 20-year mortage, this would cost you about $134.96 a month for principal and interest — leaving you $28,000 to invest. This money at 9 per cent (for a corporate bond) would bring you $2,520 a year ($210 a month). In this instance, the bond yield would offset the house payments.

One other point: Your husband has four years to go until retirement. Since he has no pension plan, he should be taking advantage of the new Individual Retirement Account legislation or (if he's self-employed) the Keogh Plan. Both permit him to set aside 15 per cent of his annual income before taxes toward his pension plan. Four years isn't much, but it would add, at least, another $8,100 to your retirement "kitty" ($2,025 times four).

Dear Mr. Campbell:

My husband and I are in our late 20s, have been married five years and have a year-old son. Our total income before taxes is $22,000, based on my husband's $20,000 salary and my part-time income of $2,000. We own a $50,000 home which has an $18,000 mortgage.

Our savings total $30,000, of which $8,000 is in savings certificates maturing in two years. We are now considering investing in a two-family house. Do you think this is a good idea for us at this time, or would you suggest something else?—Mrs. M.A.S., Windsor, Conn.

ANSWER: For a couple of youngsters you're in great shape — $30,000 in savings on a $22,000 income is fantastic!

Are you talking about a two-family house with you occupying half of it, or renting out both halves? In either case, it's all right if your husband is handy enough to take care of the maintenance.

In your situation, though, you need an investment program a little broader than this. You should take a good chunk of that $38,000 and invest in equities (stocks) which, in the 40-plus years you have ahead of you, have a good chance of growing in value faster than the dollar is eroding (and faster than rental property is depreciating). The two-family house idea is a good back-up, but don't put all your eggs into this one basket.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

We recently put our house up for sale (we're retiring to Florida) after living in the same neighborhood, and among the same friends, for nearly 30 years. The first people who looked at our house were completely impossible — really klutzes with a couple of brats that would curl your hair. They met our price without any argument, but we can't inflict these people on our friends. Our real estate man says we can't refuse to sell, since they met our price. —(Mrs. T.A.S., Allentown, Pa.)

ANSWER: Poppyrot. You don't have to accept the proposition. Raise your price, or change your mind.

Campbell welcomes your letters and comments but can answer only representative questions of general interest. Write him in care of the I.P-T.

TWO-STORY, THREE-BEDROOM IN COURTSIDE'S PLAN C

Courtside offering recreation

Courtside, a private $2.6 million community of just 42 single family homes, in Orange, offers a wide array of recreational facilities usually found only in much larger developments.

Residents of the intimate project will have a championship tennis court, swimming pool, therapeutic spa and cabana for their exclusive use, according to Michael T. Murray, marketing manager for First Management Corp., the developer.

"Landscaped greenbelts also run through the community," he said.

Located on Meats Avenue, just east of the Newport Freeway, Courtside offers spacious three and four-bedroom homes, priced from $58,900.

One of the community's most appealing features, in addition to the recreational facilities, is the land plan.

"COURTSIDE is completely self-contained. There are no through streets, which keeps traffic to a minimum and enhances both security and safety," said Craig Page, project manager.

Designed by architect Hai C. Tan, Courtside homes have stucco exterior walls trimmed with wood, heavy shake roofs and large two-car garages.

The two-story, three bedroom house (Plan C) has a formally tiled entry, a magnificent fireplace which soars two stories in height and a first-floor master bedroom suite with adjoining private patio. Both the kitchen and family room have generous outdoor views.

Upstairs, other members of the family have complete privacy in the second and third bedrooms.

The four-bedroom two-story Plan D has a parquet floor entry overlooking a sunken living and dining room. The family room adjoins the kitchen and a serving bar connects the kitchen with the patio area. The downstairs master suite has its own private bath with dual vanities.

Three additional sleeping rooms are located on the second floor, along with a railed lookout deck that is ideal for sunning.

Standard features of the Courtside homes include plush nylon carpeting, gas forced air heating systems, wood-burning fireplaces, cultured marble vanities and cast iron tubs in master baths and double-door entrys.

Kitchens in all homes have built-in pilotless continuous cleaning double ovens, gas cooktops, dishwashers, disposale, ceramic tile countertops, vinyl asbestos flooring and cabinets with decorator finishes.

First Management Corp. also is developing Fullerton Creek, a community of attached single family homes in Fullerton.

The models and sales and information center are open daily except Friday from 10 a.m. to dusk. To reach the project, exit the Newport Freeway at Katella AVenue, go west on Katella to Tustin Avenue, north (right) on Tustin to Meats Avenue. Go east (right) on Meats to Courtside.

2-story townhome in debut

A 1,400-square-foot master suite, with bedroom fireplace, balcony, separate sitting room, dressing room, walk-in closet and bath, is featured in the current offering of Sea Terrace townhomes at Laguna Niguel.

Priced at $65,900, the 1,580-square-foot two-story townhomes are sold complete with carpeting and draperies.

"These unusual two-story townhomes appear almost to be single-family homes because they are designed with a double garage with off-street driveway, private entry gardens, patios and fenced rear yards," said Joseph W. Smith, director of sales and marketing for Avco Community Developers, who are developing the 8,000-acre Laguna Niguel community between the San Diego Freeway and Pacific Coast Highway in Orange County.

Buyers of townhomes in Sea Terrace, which has bridge access to beaches, will receive season memberships in the exclusive Monarch Bay Club with its private beach, clubhouse and sports facilities.

Prices cut on ocean residences

All but eight of the 86 residences at the Versailles condominium, which overlooks the Pacific Ocean at 2691 E. Ocean Blvd. remain to be sold.

In an attempt to sell out the remaining residences the builder-developer Cardinali Enterprises, has reduced the price ranges for the one-two-three bedroom homes from $43,900 to $85,900 and $37,900 to $79,900.

The Versailles offers spacious living rooms, ocean-view verandas, all-electric kitchens with indirect ceiling lighting, walk-in closets and subterranean parking. The full security complex includes swimming pool, jacuzzi, patio deck and large recreation area.

Coast Equities, a Long Beach real estate marketing firm, is exclusive sales agent for the eight-story building.

'Search deep for treasure'

Story and photos
By DICK EMERY
Staff Writer

From a balcony on Floor 18 of the Pacific Holiday Apartments at 1900 E. Ocean Boulevard you look down on the Cherry Avenue sand beach. Only ripples, no breakers just now, mark the Pacific's edge. On the dry sand two boys sift for lost coins.

One boy grabs something from the window-screen sieve. He holds it up for his partner to see. Even so high above him you hear his shout.

"A nickel!"

Treasure!

Little or big, found treasure thrills the finder.

A treasure hunter of world fame, out for bigger treasure and finding it and casually telling how and where, lives there in that 18th floor apartment.

It is home base between his travels as archaeologist, oceanographer, naval military adviser, miner, engineer, ecologist, movie-maker, artist and author.

WILLARD BASCOM at 60 looks like a college track coach whose team has been having a good season.

His approach to the really big treasures waiting for finders goes like this:

(A) Treasures of many kinds have been carried on ships since pre-history. Shipwrecks have been many. The sea bottom under ancient ship routes has more sunken wrecks per square mile than any other part of the ocean floor.

(B) Where the lost ships sank in shallow seas, reachable by divers, most valuables have been picked over. Big treasures lie deeper, even miles deep.

(C) At rare locations on the sea floor there are deeps where lack of oxygen preserves wood and cloth and metal, century after century, and those places under shipping lanes are best bets for searching.

(D) Yes, the bottom under even two miles of sea water, darker than midnight in a coal mine, with pressures inconceivable to surface-living man, can be searched, and treasure down there can be dusted off and lifted to the surface. It takes ultra-sophisticated methods and devices — Bascom's methods and Bascom's devices. They work and he has proved it.

Questions: Treasures? What kind of treasures?

"Gold. Rubies and emeralds, jewels for a queen. A kingdom's treasury, stolen — and lost at sea. Artifacts, priceless! Sculptures! Marble, bronze, the lost loot of pirates and navies!"

WHERE DO we start?

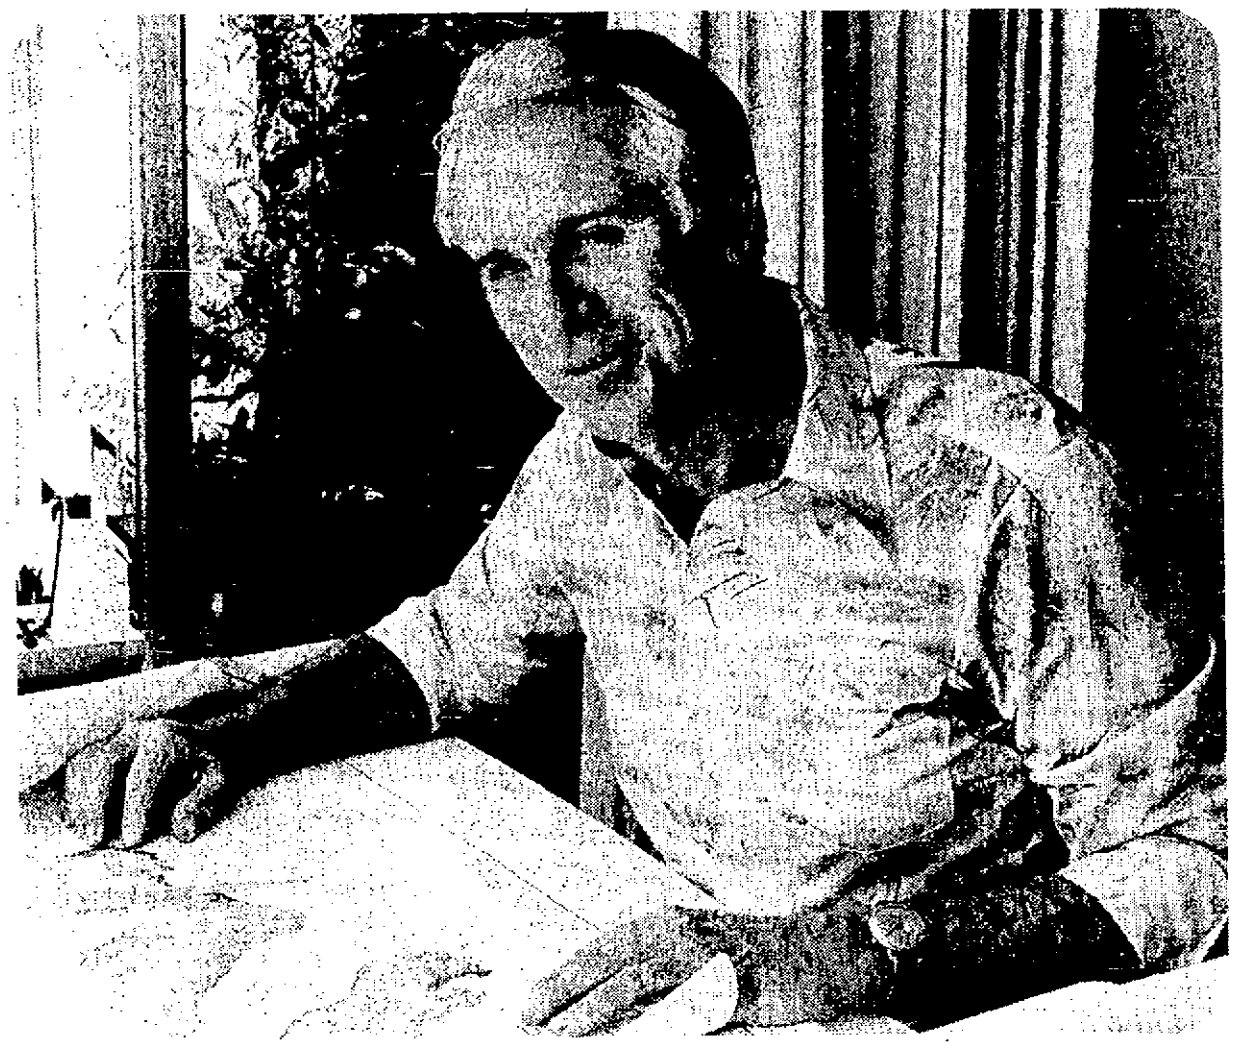

"Along oldest sea-lanes of the Mediterranean, notorious for storms and rocks and shipwrecks. Places where the lanes narrow over deeps, as in the Sea of Marmara, which links the Mediterranean and the Black Sea."

Step by step he wrote out the instructions in his 226-page "Deep Water, Ancient Ships" (Doubleday, 1976), a book which makes the hunt seem simple and the treasure within grasp — until you hit page 201.

Page 201 stuns you with the news that a little old expedition to find and hoist the treasure will cost you $341,000.

If page 201 chills your treasure-hunting fever, perhaps you should become a fellow armchair treasure-hunter while the dozens of big spenders among the IPT's readership hurry forward, each with $341,000 in hand. At least, this latest Bascom book deals with the stuff of California's gold rush, the Hornblower sagas, Jules Verne, the voyaging of Ulysses and the Trojan wars.

About half-way through, "Deep Water, Ancient Ships" gets technical. From sidelines, armchair treasure-hunters may watch, in awe, as an engineer sitting in the search-ship uses side-looking radar, underwater TV and electronic fingers to lift a 300-pound marble statue from mud two miles down.

SCULPTURE of boy's head is a replica of the Marathon Boy, so named for location where fisherman's nets found it in Mediterranean Sea. This replica is a gift to the Bascoms from a Greek friend. The original is in bronze.

IN HIS APARTMENT, sipping black coffee poured by his wife Rhoda (about the book's deication to her as "friend and fellow adventurer" Rhoda Bascom said, "I was the cook!") the man of many talents waved off references to page 201 and the $341,000 cost of an expedition.

"Just one major find could repay that sum three times over. There are archaeological treasures waiting down there, sculptures, tablets, keys to lost languages, links to man's pre-history. The values of such treasures are enormous; they are marketplace values."

The Bascoms moved into their apartment eight years ago expecting to stay only a few months.

"We love it," Mrs. Bascom said. "We don't want to leave it, ever. Just beyond our windows we have the beach and the ocean."

The place is full of books and magazines and curios. On walls hang batiks and paintings. Near the balcony door stands an amphora holding a flowerpot from which trails philodendron. Ancient seashells and man-made trinkets prop a group of books which at close look turn out to be Kipling first editions bound in faded red leather.

Bascom's first book — he has four now — "Great Sea Poetry" in 1969, carries 26 excerpts from Kipling and one each from 10 other writers. His second book was "Waves and Beaches" and his third, "Hole in the Bottom of the Sea."

Another book in mind? Yes, on travels to the American continents "over thousands and thousands of years. There is proof, you know."

COMMENTS in the Bascom manner range free-swinging, like his youth in the Colorado mines. They hit sciences and seafaring, sewage-disposal worries of Athens (he was leaving two days later for talks in Athens about a 10-mile undersea pipeline), Kipling's lore of the sea, and dumbness of Navy big-ship building.

One subject, however, was closed, he said.

"Ask my attorney about that," he said.

(Later, by phone, attorney George E. Wise of Long Beach replied that an

TIME TO TAKE STOCK

Wall Street has promise for women brokers

By LINDA ZINK
Staff Writer

A woman who has made it in the traditionally all-male domain of stocks and bonds sales believes brokerage firms have been remiss by not seeking out more women to enter the industry.

Julia Montgomery Walsh, vice chairman of the board of Ferris and Co., says women have a natural knack for sales. They have been deterred from sales jobs, she says, because of the insecurities of the business. And stocks and bonds sales, she admits, may be the most insecure of all.

"Women, by and large, are not entrepreneurs. We're conditioned to look for the secure position and we aren't usually psychologically prepared for the ups and downs of the brokerage industry.

"Yet, the role the stock broker plays is a natural role for women. It's an advisory-consultant type role — the kind of role that women are conditioned to play."

AN ATTRACTIVE, dynamic woman in her early 50s, Mrs. Walsh entered the brokerage business "as a lark" in 1955 and has been "one of the top two or three producers" in her firm's Washington, D.C., office since she began pursuing the job seriously after the death of her husband in 1968. Despite her personal success, she has resisted the temptation to become one of the women who say "If I did it, they can do it too" and she is continually interested in the progress of other women.

"The brokerage business is insecure," she repeated, "but it doesn't have to be that insecure. If a company finds a good woman it can build in some securities, at least for the first few years.

"I don't think brokerage firms have really thought about what they can do to attract more women. But I think they're missing a bet if they don't."

Mrs. Walsh is also concerned with the kind of business training women receive and currently serves as chairman of the advisory committee to the women in management program at Simmons College in Boston. She explained that the all-female masters' degree program, which places heavy emphasis on the behavioral sciences, is designed to help women overcome their earlier conditioning and learn to function in the "system."

"Men start working prepared to structure their lives around their jobs but too often women don't know how to do this. I've found that women tend to need more help in planning how to get from here to there. They need to learn how to deal with the discrimination they encounter, how to develop support systems in a business or professional situation.

"It's difficult for a woman to take advantage of equal opportunity if she doesn't know what opportunity is," Mrs. Walsh added.

A 1945 GRADUATE of coeducational Kent State University in Ohio, Mrs. Walsh said she has come to believe that single sex education may be the best course for ambitious women. She pointed to studies that indicate that the most successful women are those who attended all-women schools.

"At first I dismissed the studies — after all, I'd gone to a coed school where I'd been student body president. Then it struck me that I'd been in college during the war and there weren't many men around...it was almost like an all-women school. I think that may be one reason there are proportionately more career-minded women my age and older — or they're much younger women in their 20s. Those in the middle — those who went to college in the 50s and early 60s — didn't have the same opportunity to prove themselves."

Mrs. Walsh added that she thinks the type of sensitivity training offered in the Simmons program may become a standard part of business school curriculums at coed universities as well as single sex schools.

Among other things, she said, the special training for women helps raise women's expectations.

"I've found that women don't have very high expectations," said Mrs. Walsh, who is the first woman exchange official on the American Stock Exchange. "There's a tendency to compare themselves to how they're doing with other women, not with others in their industry.

"I did this for a while myself. I was making what to me was a lot of money and I'd become rather self-complacent. Then I realized there were men out there making a lot more money. And I decided that if they could do it, so could I."

MRS. WALSH BUILT her business out of educational programs in the community — "in the beginning I didn't have any wealthy contacts" — and for the first 10 years most of her clients were women. By 1970, two-thirds of her clients were men. Now the pendulum has swung back again and women make up the bulk of her non-institutional clients.

"Women in Washington tend to be very aware and as a result are seeking professional financial advice. My firm has a good reputation for hiring and promoting women — the best in the industry, I think. And women, aware women, are putting their money with firms that are giving women an equal break."

Mrs. Walsh added that there are still too many women — even successful women — who are totally helpless when it comes to money. She said she is appalled by how many women don't have their financial affairs in order but noted that the situation seems to be improving and is likely to improve more as marital patterns change.

"This is a hopeful sign — that women are taking their financial matters into their own hands. I think the world would be a better place if more women took care of their financial dealings."

Mrs. Walsh terms the brokerage business a great field for women — "you can't be discriminated against when you're working on a commission" — and said it's one of the few fields where age is an advantage. She says that she was unusual in that she succeeded in the business so young — "my firm has had very little luck with younger women brokers" — but she admits she probably couldn't have done it without the help she got.

"After my husband died my mother-in-law and I went into a partnership. She took care of my four young children for a percentage of my commissions. The arrangement worked out great. I was making more money than I ever had, my mother-in-law was making more money than she'd ever made and the children were well taken care of. I guess I was probably the only woman in captivity who had a wife."

Glad you asked that!

Q: Ken Murray used to be my favorite vaudeville comedian. What's he doing these days? — Adele Marx, Long Beach, Ca.

A: Ken is editing down highlights of his personal film library of over 150 of Hollywood's greatest stars in preparation for a Christmas release for showbiz buffs. The inventive comic played every major nightclub in the country and produced and starred in the "Blackouts," a constantly changing variety revue that ran for 3,844 performances.

As a one-time star of Earl Carroll's Vanities on Broadway (in the Roaring '20s), he's just completed an affectionate and passionately penned first-rate portrait of his old boss titled "The Body Merchant," in which he reveals certain quaint customs of the controversial but clever showman.

Earl Carroll picked his girls by parading them in a dimly lit theater on a fully lighted stage, lined up in rows of 20, while he would sit in the front row and bark out marching exercise commands — attired in his silk shirt, flowing scarf, brightly colored artist's smock and, underneath it all, silk underwear.

At auditions, Carroll would insist (his biographer insists) that his beauties have undulating hips as well as gorgeous bodies and strikingly beautiful faces. A far cry from the time when he was a Bible salesman in China.

Murray also recalls the famous "Girl Bathing in Champagne" caper which landed Carroll in the federal Atlanta pen. But his 1924 edition of the Vanities was such a sexation (luscious showdolls wearing nothing but big fans made of peacock feathers) the producer was arrested and charged with indecent exposure. He fought the case in court without a lawyer — and was acquitted.

As a reader of the galleys said: "Carroll was way ahead of history...displaying stark nakedness on the Broadway stage beginning in the 1920s — during the Age of Innocence!"

Q: Settle a bet. I remember Joey Bishop when he was working in a New York nightclub and getting belly laughs with his hilarious takeoff of a Chinese waiter. My father says it was Buddy Hackett. Do I win the Chinese dinner? — William Barnett, Jr., Jersey City.

A: No. It was Hackett who had that racket. He introduced that character using only a rubberband over his eyes to give him an Oriental look. His pal Joey, on the other hand, ran away from home at age 16 and took a job as a singing waiter in a Broadway first-floor Chinese restaurant. After he was up to here with sipping won ton soup, chomping chow mein and biting on side orders of roast pork, Bishop returned to the warmth of his Brooklyn parent's home and permitted his mother's cooking to fatten him up.

Q: Why do Lee Majors and Lindsay Wagner hate each other? — Mary Ross, Coral Gables, Fla.

A: Explains the Bionic Woman: "We had fun doing the first two episodes of 'The Six Million Dollar Man' in which I played Majors' childhood sweetheart who becomes bionic herself. All of a sudden this pussycat turned into a tiger, hating me." Lee, on the other hand, counters by referring to her hit show as "The Bionic Rip-Off." Why? Because, they say, her contract is in excess of half a million dollars — higher than his.

Q: We found Margaux Hemingway very believable in the movie, "Lipstick." Especially in that frightening rape scene. Is she really the granddaughter of Ernest Hemingway? — Mildred Lahre, Valley Stream, N.Y.

A: "Yes," she told us. "But I remember him mostly from when dad Hemingway's oldest son, Jack, by his first marriage and I lived briefly at his house in Cuba where he bounced me around on his knee. I never realized what a world-famous person he was until I was grown up and visited New York to model and sign a million-dollar contract to promote an exclusive new Faberge fragrance."

Margaux was disappointed at the way the movie critics smudged her "Lipstick." But discounted photographer Francesco Scavullo's comment in a national magazine that he "made her sit in a swamp full of weeds and bugs, completely topless, without her complaining." "Scavullo's wonderful," she said. "But actually what I did was stand in a cold, slimy mudpit covered to my armpits."

Q: The first of those Howard Hughes wills set me to wondering. Was Hughes ever married to a Mormon? — Sally D., Columbus, Ohio.

A: That's what movie actress Terry Moore claimed, when he was still alive — that she'd wed Hughes in 1939 aboard his yacht, the Hilda, in a ceremony performed by the ship's captain off San Diego. The marriage didn't become public, Terry recently explained, because the "groom" supposedly had the happening stricken from the ship's log. Unless and until her claim can be substantiated, it will likely be considered just hearsay.

MODEL Margaux Hemingway as rape victim in movie "Lipstick," with rapist played by actor Chris Sarandon — critics not impressed with her film debut.

Film festival reels under Hollywood glamor

CANNES — The 30th Cannes Film Festival opened with festive fireworks staged by MGM, bringing back the excitement and glamor of Hollywood's Golden Era.

The party started before the MGM plane ever left the ground, when a flotilla of stars heard some joker paging Irving Thalberg in the first-class lounge at New York's Kennedy Airport. "It's probably Louis B. Mayer seeing how we're doing," laughed Fred Astaire, who celebrated his 77th birthday on the transatlantic flight. If so, L.B. would be happy to know his kids are doing just fine.

There really is some truth to the magic of movie stars. After an all-night flight from New York, with a pre-dawn change of planes in Paris, during which Johnny Weismuller kept the passengers awake with Tarzan yells, the MGM flotilla arrived in Nice looking ready for Technicolor closeups, while the rest of us looked like warmed over cat food.

Giants like Fred Astaire, Gene Kelly, Cary Grant, Cyd Charisse, Kathryn Grayson, Donald O'Connor, Marge Champion and Tarzan himself summed their old MGM training and spent the first three days of the Cannes Festival showing how it was done in the good old days. They posed for mobs of photographers, endured an interminable barrage of interviews in languages they never heard of and never stopped smiling.

rex reed

They weren't just selling or promoting the opening night film, "That's Entertainment Part 2" (called, naturellement, "Hollywood, Hollywood" by the French); they were selling a ticket to a glorious tradition of colorful, dazzling MGM musicals to which their lives had contributed much of the foundation.

No temperaments. No star complexes. They were like kids on a college trip. Chaperoned and guided to and fro by a squad of MGM press agents, the stars gave the stuffy Cannes Festival a shot of vitamins it hasn't had in years.

THEY EVEN BROUGHT their own chef, Patrick Terrail, the French-born Beverly Hills restaurateur who arranges the kind of dinners and lunches you only read about in Gael Greene's four-star roundups.

At the exclusive dinner at L'Oasis the night before the premiere, the MGM stars were joined by their French comrades, Leslie Caron and Georges Guetary (who helped brighten "An American in Paris"), for a 10-course dinner that would put Chasen's out of business.

Fred Astaire finally revealed why he revolutionized movie fashions by using colorful neckties for belts in his dance numbers: "I was so skinny they were the only thing that would hold my pants up!" Johnny Weismuller did another famous Tarzan yell and confessed: "I'm from Austrian descent, you know — that yell started out as an alpine yodel and just sort of went berserk!"

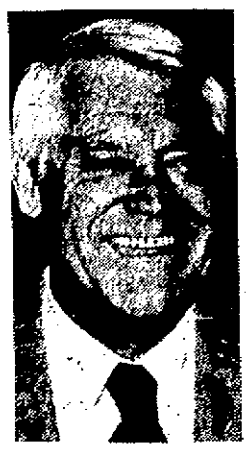

Gene Kelly kept toasting Fred Astaire. Fred kept toasting his beautiful daughter Ava, who came over from her home in Ireland to help him celebrate. And Marge Champion got the recipe for scallops. Cary Grant, the picture of sartorial splendor, got so carried away he tripped and fell into a swimming pool, then staged the whole faux-pas all over again, dripping wet, for the paparazzi.

THE OPENING NIGHT gala, traditionally shunned by most journalists, was worth gold if you could beg or buy a ticket. A riot broke out in the streets, where the striking hotel workers were picketing, but the police showed up in record numbers to clobber the protesting bellboys and get a look at Cyd Charisse at the same time. (Violence and MGM musicals could only co-habit in a place like Cannes.)

It seemed just like home to New Yorkers, who left the apartment building strike back home to find their hotels on strike in Cannes.

The odd thing about previous years, as I've written before, is the way you push, shove and fight your way into the screenings to find yourself sitting next to the maid who made up your bed that morning. This year, you push, shove and fight your way in to find yourself sitting next to the maid who did not make up your bed that morning.

Raquel Welch arrived in the middle of the strike and carried her own bags. Leslie Caron, who made up her own room like everyone else, shrugged: "This is nothing in France. You should have grown up in Paris under the Nazis! I've had plenty of training."

After the opening night standing ovations died down, the stars hosted a lavish American-style banquet at the gambling casino where the Europeans were dazzled by steaks, corn on the cob, baked potatoes and cheesecake, flown to Cannes from Hollywood and served by a battalion of choreographed waiters who carried in the steaming bounty on silver trays raised high above their heads like "Hello Dolly," singing American standards like "California Here I Come" with each new course.

Then the lights went out, and the entire casino turned into a Cinemascope musical with sumptuous fireworks lighting the sky. The French have never seen anything like it and, frankly, neither have I. "It's just like the old opening nights," sighed Kathryn Grayson. The champagne flowed till dawn.

By the third day, the bloom was beginning to fade from the rose. The MGM stars still looked fresh, but the press was worn out from so much excitement. "They woke me up at 9," moaned Cyd Charisse, "and I remember hearing Johnny do his last Tarzan yell at 5!"

At one last glorious lunch at the famous Moulin Des Mougins, next door to the villa of Pablo Picasso, Donald O'Connor poked at a truffle big as a hamburger and asked: "Is this a mud pie?" Fred Astaire said, "The question the French asked most was the same one the folks back home always ask: Which of my dancing partners was my favorite? I really mean it when I say I loved them all.

"I certainly never feuded with Ginger or anyone else. Betty Hutton was the only one who made me blush, though — I couldn't repeat what she said in front of ladies."

Hutton was asked to come, but she didn't make the trip. She now lives in a tiny one-room flat in Culver City surrounded by scrapbooks, wondering what happened to the $9 million she went through in her Hollywood heyday. An MGM spokesman also intimated that Esther Williams didn't come because of her weight problem, and both Jane Powell and Vera-Ellen were hurt because they had been left out of "That's Entertainment Part 2."

The ones who did come, had a ball, reminding everyone what movie legends are made of and giving the Cannes Film Festival the kind of star-studded excitement from which it will never recover, much less duplicate. The stars boarded another plane for the film's premier in London, leaving behind Cary Grant, who chartered a yacht that ran out of gas, and ended up hitchhiking to Monte Carlo.

MEANWHILE, BACK in the projection rooms of Cannes, there was business as usual. After the MGM pizazz, it was hard to work up much enthusiasm for the tiresome parade of movies about Chilean revolution, Nigerian race riots and Algerian nomads. Tennessee Williams is the president of the jury, on which Charlotte Rampling is the sole female juror.

In the next two weeks, they will see new films by Luchino Visconti, Eric Rohmer, Roman Polanski, Joseph Losey, Bernardo Bertolucci, Ingmar Bergman, Alfred Hitchcock. From what I've seen so far, there isn't much to write home about.

As usual, most of the American entries show the U.S. as a blood-splattered hole of terror and violence inhabited by monsters and bullies. "Taxi Driver" won't do much more than fan the anti-American hostilities that already exist here, and the new Dennis Hopper movie "Tracks," which was unveiled in a storm of protest and controversy, opened the critic's week sidebar with an ironic footnote.

Written and directed by Henry Jaglom, a 28-year-old teenybopper whose career began when he contributed part of the financing for "Easy Rider," this interesting failure about a psychotic Vietnam veteran escorting the dead body of an army buddy to his hometown on a cross-country Amtrak begins well enough, with the bizarre soldier (Dennis Hopper) playing tapes of Dinah Shore and Frank Sinatra records in his lonely compartment between futile attempts to communicate with his fellow passengers.

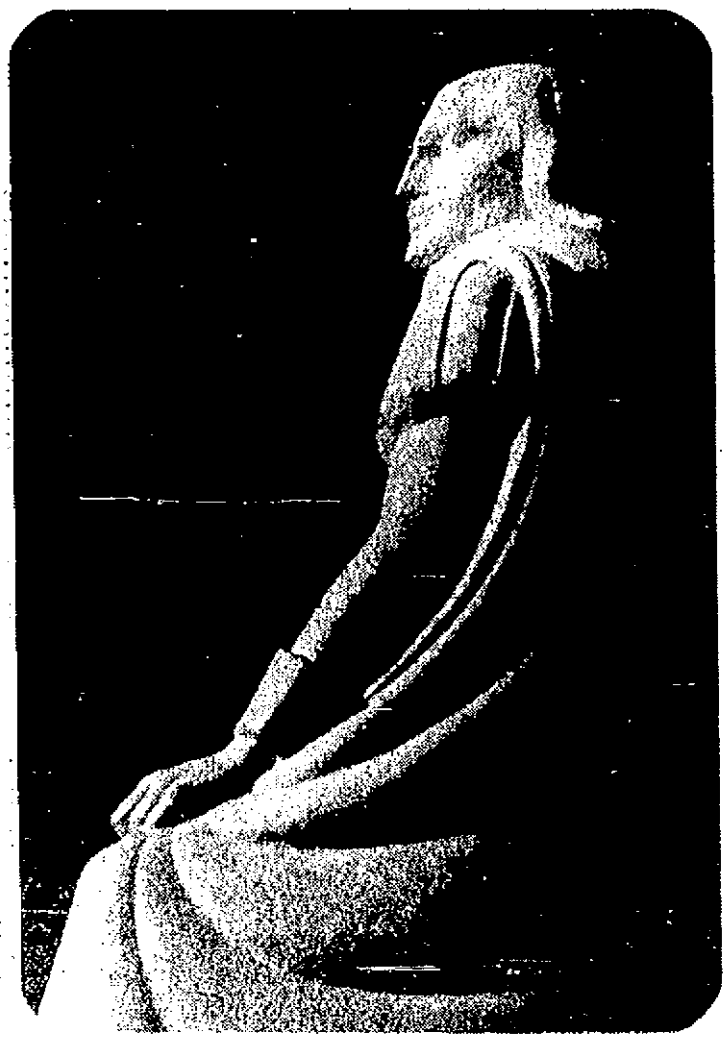

Tensions build as the rhythm of the train accelerates, until the soldier mixes fact and fantasy, and the viewer is lost in the juxtaposition. It all ends up with Hopper lowering himself into the grave, which becomes a Vietnam trench, and the rest of America becomes the enemy he must fight.

At the press conference, Jaglom disgraced himself by defending the violence at the end as a necessary retaliation against "American Innocence," declaring himself an enemy of nostalgia, romance, patriotism, tradition, Mom's apple pie and Fred Astaire. There is no corpse. The soldier is the corpse he came home to bury. It might have been just as well to bury the film itself.

The naivete of young filmmakers like Jaglom is that even if America was a perfect conduit for equality, even if everyone paid equally for the sins of Vietnam, even if everyone grew potatoes and got paid an equal wage like Communist China, the first thing the people would do is invent another Fred Astaire.

"Tracks" is interesting because it does raise questions about the effect the American Dream has had on the innocent soldiers who bought that dream, but it fails because its childish anger drowns out any possibility of logic.

Youthful protest films are now as much a part of our own tradition as MGM musicals, though 100 times less entertaining.

You must be at least 12 years of age to enter the contest. You don't have to be a subscriber to the Independent Press Telegram to enter. Employes of these newspapers and their families are not eligible.

Don't forget to put your name, address, zip code and age on the card. If yours is among the 25 correct entries selected at random, you win $10.

We will publish this photo again along with the correct answers and the list of 25 $10 winners on Wednesday, June 9.

Benefit luau is scheduled

The eighth annual luau presented by Women's Auxiliary to Long Beach Retarded Children's Foundation will take place Saturday in United Auto Workers' Union Hall, 3971 Pixie Ave., Lakewood.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m., with dancing to the music of the Long Beach City College Adult Band continuing from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. There also will be Hawaiian entertainment.

Tickets are $7.50 for adults and $3 for children, with proceeds benefitting the Retarded Children's Foundation and School. Reservations may be made with the Foundation office, 4519 Stearns St.

ADVICE TO THE TAXLORN

Discuss CPA fees in advance

DEAR MR. SMITH: My problem concerns the small company I started five years ago, after leaving an executive position with a conglomerate.

The two CPA firms I have used, both with excellent reputations, seemed expensive and yet unable to see to it that income tax returns be filed that would not bring audits and additional assessments by IRS. In both audits, the IRS people were helpful and cooperative — no complaint there.

I am very pleased with my present CPAs but don't they have a responsibility to defend my company (in a tax audit) without cost to us, and shouldn't they pay any additional tax themselves? They charge $100 per hour on IRS audits. — G.I.

Our income tax system provides for an annual self-assessment by means of forms prescribed by the government. Each individual's chosen activities and attitudes (in addition to his economic income) determine how much tax he pays. There is no one correct way to prepare a tax return. If you are willing to forego every possible advantage of tax planning, legal ambiguities, stumbling constables, options and relief provisions, then IRS will probably never bother you. But you may pay considerably more tax than a less conservative taxpayer with identical situations, and pay it sooner. You make that choice not only at the year-end but also in what you do each day.

When you first engage a CPA, why not discuss services, fees and other details, and include as much as possible in a letter or memo of understanding. Then you know!

DEAR MR. SMITH: Is there any deduction granted for the supplemental care of a retarded daughter who is in a private facility? We pay about $300 per month. My husband says no, since she is not living with us. We have been paying this amount since 1969. Our income is $12,000 a year. We are both retired. — M.G.

IRS ruled that the total cost of maintaining a mentally retarded child in a specially selected home, or in a special school which is capable of alleviating the condition, may be deducted by you as medical expense (assuming you pay more than 50 per cent of your daughter's living expenses). The ruling (Revenue Ruling 69-499) was issued at the end of 1969. If the facility meets the concepts for medical care as expressed in that ruling, you may wish to file for refunds for years 1973, 1974 and 1975 on IRS form 1040X.

DEAR MR. SMITH: Between July 1, 1936, and June 30, 1937, I worked as admitting physician for a hospital in New York City and was paid $125 per month. No social security payments were made on my behalf, although I was a salaried employee, and, I believe Jan. 1, 1937, marked the inception of social security. At the present time I am shy a few quarters of coverage to qualify for social security benefits, and could use the two quarters I think I am entitled to for 1937. The local HEW office tells me it is too late to do anything about it, but I question the accuracy of this statement. I would appreciate your advising me whether or not I have any position in the matter, and how to go about getting the credit for the two quarters. — A.L.

There is hardly a word in the original social security law that hasn't been changed. Originally governmental and other nonprofit activities were not covered. But the general purpose of 40 years of amendments has been to liberalize, not restrict, the law's benefits. For this reason, we find that HEW personnel, in most cases, are extremely fair. It would help no end, if people would request a statement of earnings every three years at least until fully insured with 40 quarters of earnings. Nevertheless, if all else fails, you may get help if you write to your senator or congressman and ask him to have your application carefully reviewed.

Hostesses gamble on parties with French flair

A BIT OF THE French Riveria came to Long Beach when Law Wives staged a Monte Carlo night at the Belmont Shore Lions Club.

Party was a fund raising for the group's scholarships and court tour project. Court tours are provided for school aged youngsters with donations of money and volunteer hours by the Law Wives.

Monte Carlo-style gaming tables were heaped high with phoney money but the "Guess How Many Beans In a Crock" contest was just as popular.

Chairgambler Jan Kight told me that Linda Bennett and husband Bill actually counted 9,440 varicolored beans into the see-through jar.

Eline Fudge made the closest guess. She and husband, Jack will be dining at Chez Cary as a reward AND she got to keep the beans and crock.

Bob and Judy Kilpatrick won a painting by Jan Kight as a door prize. They left before their name was drawn and someone offered to deliver it to them. Jan plans to go by their house this week and make sure it is prominently displayed. (More on Jan's paintings later.)

Mason Kight served as emcee awarding such prizes as a silver tray and a four place setting of Wedgewood china donated by Norma Wisot and husband, Judge Max.

I would tell you who the lucky winners were but Mason can't remember.

He did recall that former Long Beach attorney (now of Riverside) Leland Thompson continued his winning streak (I told you last week that he won the Loyal Pulley Golf Tournament). Leland won a uniperm and permanent eyelashes donated by Continental Hair Fashions.

Pre-party parties were hosted by Pete and Grace Utecht, Ned and Barbara Gaylord and April Griffin.

April was sans husband, Tom, because he attended the Big Wilson-Poly class reunion at the Edgewater Hyatt that same evening.

Immediate Past President Virginia Eagleson also came solo. Husband, Judge Dave, was busy with legal stuff. New President Barbara Gebb, with husband, Sheldon, welcomed more than 200 members and guests.

carolyn mcdowell

SPEAKING OF French.

Which I don't.

Had I been invited to the elegant dinner party co-hosted by John and Kathy Gross in the Huntington Seacliff home of John and Karen Hart, I probably would have had to hire an interpreter.

Novel invitations were hand delivered shortly before midnight at the homes of the invitees.

Ron and Diane Colbert answer the ring of the doorbell and discovered a bottle of chilled champagne in appropriate container tagged with an invitation written entirely in French.

Jerry and Nancy Tanaka, Tom and Judy Wright, Dale and Bobbie Dickie and the Colberts were able to translate their like invitations and all were treated to a five course gourmet spread worthy of Julia Child's best.

French menus served as place cards on the table centered with fresh lemons, lemon leaves and daisies in silver bowls.

WHILE WE ARE ON the International Scene.

Interiors International, new design studio in Our Town, had its Grand Opening which was attended by more than 1, 000 guests.

Co-owner Rick Harris (with his mom, June and dad, Jack,) preceeded the Grand Opening with s Spectacular Spill.

Now I know why people aren't supposed to walk under ladders. If Rick is standing on the top of a tall one, it will surely shatter into a zillion pieces and he might fall on you. As it was, he fell on the floor and outside of bruises, contusions and having to buy a new ladder, everything is fine.

Party featured a look at the works of local artists displayed throughout the studio.

I told you I would get to Jan Kight's paintings. She is one of the artists represented along with Betty Anne Stewart Kirkpatrick, Genevie Overman, Lois Venne, Joan Saunders, Bob Nicholson, Georgia Caldwell Freeman and Linda Homa.

Also Mary Buchanan, Melissa Andrews, Elna McGrew and John Spaulding.

Ralph and Shirley Reece were among dropper-inners. With Shirley's luggage in the car. Ralph was taking Shirley, daughter Terry and Shirley's mom to the airport to catch a plane for Tahiti.

Among others were Sen. George Deukmejian and Gloria, the Jules Bradys, Frank and Betty Sunofsky, Dwight and Charlotte Bennett, Dr. Irving and Cherna Moskowitz, Bill and Mary Klingensmith, Bev Kennedy, Bobbie Thornton, Walter and Ginny Drew and Dr. Cam and Audrey Paschall.

MEMBERS OF Junior Programs of Long Beach freewayed to the Music Center for annual meeting of JP's of California.

Judy Edson, president, beamed with pride as she reported to the assembly that the Long Beach group had its most successful season since it was founded in 1957.

Junior Programs are responsible for bringing live theater to the children of Our Town at minimal cost to them. For the past several years, the group has sponsored six different shows at Lakewood High School each season.

Long Beach contingent included Leslie Alexander, president-elect, Vickie Anderson, Valerie Mattingly, Wanda Ross, Nancy Crandall, Gayle Knapp, Iva Sloan, Marcia Wadleigh, Kathleen Wedul, Bernie Stearns, Linda Benson, Katie Garrison, Dee Quebec and Netia Stults.

Women are asking

'Any diet ideas keyed to summertime menus?'

By REBA and BONNIE CHURCHILL

Like to play the shape-saver game? The idea is to key warm weather menus to calorie-counting. The game rules begin with salads — one surefire way to stay slim or become slimmer.

The scoreboard includes fresh vegetables — low-in-calories celery, carrots, and iceberg lettuce. One salad is dubbed a "tossed sandwich," since it has most of the conventional sandwich ingredients, except bread. Mix chopped lettuce, egg, celery, cheese cubes and chicken and beef strips. Add lemon juice or low-cal dressing.

According to the author of "The Shape Savers," "Eating slowly and chewing thoroughly gives the body time to go through the normal digestion process. When we eat quickly, the food is consumed before the body can make the usual adjustment, therefore we can feel hungry and unsatisfied again too soon, and we have the tendency to keep eating far more than we should."

If you're a brown-bagger or carry a lunch box, you can still have streamlined benefits. Carol Carr keeps her slim figure with a "balanced" menu. Protein-enriched, or natural grain bread, egg-cheese salad, and lettuce provide a nutritious munch for lunch.

If you're at home, or even at a restaurant, you can cut calories by ordering a beef or fish patty (not on a bun), but on a raft of lettuce. The juice from the meat will serve as a dressing for the lettuce, and the meat and salad course are combined.

P. S. Like to lose a pound a day? Compare your measurements with a movie star or model? Check the famous 4 day diet, on which the average, healthy adult can lose 2 to 4 pounds. Send 50 cents, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Reba and Bonnie Churchill, "4-Day Diet for Figure Trimmers," Independent Press Telegram, P. O. Box 46-181, Hollywood, Ca. 90046.

Dear Mother Earth:

by LYNN and JOEL RAPP

As you know, we love to get letters from you about your successes with plants along with your questions about failures or problems with others. Here's one of the "success" letters, so, as usual, we'll share it with you. It's from Mrs. B.M. in California, and says:

DEAR MOTHER EARTH:

I'd like to tell you about our rosebush out in the patio. We bought our home through probate — it was vacant for two years before we moved in. No one had been in the place, let alone cared for the patio. The ground was hard and overgrown with weeds, but I found this gnarled old rosebush and we decided to move it to a different area to make room for a concrete patio. The roots were so old and dry, they crumbled.

After being replanted and fed and watered the old bush blossomed. It was incredible — no one could believe it. Everytime we cut one of its rich, dark roses, it is truly inspirational — a lesson in the will to live. I thought you'd enjoy hearing about it! — Mrs. B.M.

DEAR MRS. B.M.:

Ordinarily, we would have preferred to know exactly how much you had to do with the Return of the Rose. Such as how and where did you plant it? How often did you water, what and how much did you feed? But your letter was indeed so inspirational that we were inspired to print it despite its lack of some facts we still would like to know. Perhaps you might write us again and pass along your secrets to our readers. In the meantime, pin the next rose on yourself, and happy growing!

action filed by Bascom in July, 1975, claiming violation by the Federal government of trade secrets and patents, is pending in the Federal Court of Claims in Washington, D.C.

(In the IPT library a clip from Jan. 28, 1976, referred to the action as a $100 million suit alleging use of Bascom-patented techniques by the CIA spy-ship Glomar Explorer in raising part of a Russian sub from Pacific depths. The Department of Justice had denied misdoing and asked dismissal and judgment for costs.)

Within view from the Bascom apartment, if you look southwesterly over Long Beach Harbor, the derrick-steepled Glomar Explorer loafs near that other mystery, the fortress-clad Spruce Goose. No comment there from Bascom, who, returning from the balcony, taps an ornament perched on a chin-high little shelf inside the door. It stands only six inches tall, with Bascom's name on a gold plate and below, a formal crest.

Flashing a typical grin, Bascom says:

"I sat at a hundred meetings and they gave me that. That's the President's seal."

BACK TO THE COFFEE and random comments:

OF SHIPS AND SHIPWRECK: "More than one out of 10 of all ships that ever sailed sank eventually to the bottom in depths below reach of divers. Some 30,000 went down before the Christian Era. The biggest ship that ever sailed disappeared six weeks ago off the Philippines. A big Greek tanker built recently in France sank 30 minutes out on her first voyage."

OF BUMBLERS: "Most people who find things (on the sea floor) remove all trace and nobody can find the location again. One treasure hunter pulled up two old iron cannons from a wreck he had found after great trouble. Nobody ever could find the ship! When you find the hulk, you're just in the right area; you don't want the dumb cannon — you want the ship's treasure, maybe 10 or 20 or 30 feet under the mud!"

OF BOYHOOD AND KING TUT: "I was born in New York in 1916. When I was 6 my mother used to take me to the New York Museum of Art. We would go to the Egyptian Halls. And every Sunday the newspaper rotogravure sections were full of King Tut's tomb. I've been a nut on the ancient world ever since.

"I live in the ancient world!

"I wanted to grow up and be an archaeologist, which is not a practical way to make a living.

"In order to be a good classical archaeologist you must have much better knowledge of ancient languages and classical history than I have. The guys who have that, don't have the special information that I have in engineering and oceanography.

"ARCHAEOLOGY CALLS for intelligence, energy and hard work. The deeper you get into it, the more interesting it becomes. That's basically true of everything."

OF THE ACADEMIC WORLD: "I am an engineer without a degree. I don't have a diploma — not even from high school.

"I don't fit neatly into any of their schemes.

"I do a great deal of lecturing, at Long Beach State and San Diego State, on ecology, archaeology and marine work of various kinds.

"I am a consultant on ecology for Israel and the Greeks. I am director of the Coastal Water Research Project, studying ecology of Southern California waters. We measure pesticides in water to a level of hundredths of parts per trillion. I am a research engineer for the National Academy of Science and a member of the Naval Research Advisory Committee."

OF TUNNELS AND MINES: "I quit high school in New York for a job in a tunnel-digging crew. I wanted to know more about mining, so I came out to Colorado, got a job as a hard-rock miner to work my way through the Colorado School of Mines. I crossed the faculty and quit without a degree. I've lectured there since. I was a research engineer for the University of California and for Scripps Institute of Oceanography. Then Washington, 14 years; then to Long Beach."

ON "MIKE" THE H BOMB: "I was project engineer in charge of measuring waves from 'Mike,' the first H bomb, at Kwajalein Atoll in 1952, on the ship Horizon, a University of California research vessel."

ON SEA DRILLING: "Nobody thought it could be done. From a ship in deep water we drilled through two miles of the earth's crust. That was the Mohole Project of 15 years ago, for the National Academy of Science. It looked so easy that the government took the project over and poured millions into it and never finished it."

ON DIAMONDS: "Under contract to the diamond monopoly in South Africa we dredged the continent's shorelines for diamond gravel. We found plenty of diamonds!"

ON WAVES AND BEACHES: "My book on the relation of waves to beaches is required reading at the Naval Academy — ours and also Russia's!"

ON THE PANAMA CANAL: "Our being there, world conditions being as they are, is an anacronism. Let Panama have the canal! The biggest ships can't or won't use it anyhow. The Navy wouldn't risk a big ship in the canal under war threat; to sink one there would close the canal. Let Panama run it, in the marketplace — charge what traffic will bear. If they put prices too high, ships will go around and Panama loses the money."

ON NAVY GIANTS: "I suppose I know 40 admirals. Three out of four agree with me that building giant carriers now is stupid. What our navy needs now is small, fast ships, well armed.

"Politicians back big-ship building to provide lots of employment for their home districts. It got started long ago and no one knows how to stop it."

ON FISH SCALES: "Sardines suddenly vanished here, a few years ago. Pollution and overfishing got blamed. Well, fish scales from annual layers of sediment cored from the bottom of Santa Barbara Channel show sardines arriving in numbers, staying a few years and suddenly leaving, every 40 years or so, back for centuries. We don't know why — but it couldn't have been industrial pollution or overfishing.

"IN THE CHANNEL there is a basin where there is no oxygen. This place is rare. The record in the sediments really ought to be searched out. The rules (about drilling now in the Santa Barbara Channel) are so stupid; it's hard to do anything.

"The Sea Probe (the Alcoa Sea Probe, the search and salvage vessel he proposed and helped to design) would be the perfect ship to do it. The National Science Foundation could do it.

"We spend millions on the dumbest kind of research. The Navy spends three billion bucks a year on research, testing and engineering. Yet, here's practical research and we don't do it.

"There are all kinds of treasures on the sea bottom. One of the greatest must be information about the earth we live on. Like the gold and jewels and artifacts buried in the mud, it waits for us to find it and bring it up."

RHODA AND WILLARD Bascom show amphora they use as a plant container in their Long Beach apartment. It was found off the coast of Turkey and is aged 2500 to 3000 years. It's on loan to Bascoms and was discovered cuddled among others on the sea floor, where the fish found it home. —Staff photos by DICK EMERY

THE FORMULA

Keep wood at its best

Wood is a beautiful material. It has a feeling of warmth that other materials don't have. A well-kept wood floor enhances the beauty of any home. But it must be properly cared for to be at its best. One of the major problems is discoloration. Dirt and stains can become ground-in, causing unsightly darkening. When this happens, bleaching is called for. However, advance preparation is essential.

Accumulations of wax, oil and dirt must be removed. The best and most economical way I have found to do this is to use ordinary washing soda and very hot water. About a cup of soda to a gallon of water seems about right. Scrub the floor thoroughly and rinse with clear water. You're now ready to apply the bleach. Here's the formula.

You'll need one-half pound of SODIUM PERBORATE (available at a drugstore) and COLD WATER. Mix sufficient water into the sodium perborate to make a paste of a brushable consistency. Spread paste on floor taking one section at a time, and allow to stand and "work" for about 30 minutes. Remove with clear water. Repeat this procedure as often as necessary to bring surface to degree of lightness you desire. Because both materials you will use can be irritating to the skin, rubber gloves are suggested. Store the excess formula in glass or plastic container.

EPIC SCULPTURE, 'The Vatican Corridor: a Non-Specific Autobiography,' by Robert Cremean is on exhibit at Newport Harbor Art Museum. Figures are 8-feet tall.

Monumental art is a tribute to life

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

As the final event of its current season, Newport Harbor Art Museum has produced a stunning exhibit.

More than 3,000 persons already have seen the heroic sculptures by Northern California artist Robert Cremean and the number will steadily rise through the closing date, June 20.

First of the sculptures to be completed, in 1972, is "Homage to Paul Apostle," actually a work consisting of four marbles, standing about six feet high, conceived as one entity. The artist describes it as "four seated half torsos, a self portrait which spans and attempts to understand certain changes that have occurred over the last 12 years." With this work are 11 original drawings.

It is this same personal vision that is inherent in the monumental "Vatican Corridor; a Non-Specific Autobiography." Created as a tribute to life, this epic work, says the artist, deals with "the concept that one man equals all men."

arts

To see it is not only to understand why it took two years to finish, but also to marvel that it could be completed in that time. The 20 figures, eight feet high, are of laminated sugar pine in rosewood stands. They occupy a space 13 feet tall, 13 feet wide and 40 feet long.

Aligned 10 on each side, the figures form a series of arches through which the viewer can walk. Shapes and forms interact with each other, creating an ambience of peace and tranquility. Negative and positive space meld. One forgets that the laminated sugar pine is a medium that must be handled as delicately as though it were spun glass. The artist uses the term "non-specific autobiography" to define this sculpture as being both personal and introspective, relating to the change each person undergoes in the process of maturing.

CREMEAN is one of the few contemporary artists who works alone on such a massive scale. He uses only two chisels and a mallet — no power tools. Some 7,000 hours went into the creation of "The Vatican Corridor." Not exactly a commercial, rush job.

A special selection of 29 lithographs made from the original sketches and philosophical writings of the artist also are on view. The original drawings have been published in book form by Manuscript Press, Tomales, California, in an edition of 200 signed and numbered.

A native of Ohio, Cremean lives in Marin County. He earned his M.F.A. from Cranbrook Academy of Arts in Michigan and is the recipient of a Fulbright Scholarship, a Huntington Hartford Foundation Fellowship and a Tamarind Workshop Fellowship. His one-man exhibits are seen worldwide and his work is in major museums and private collections in this country and abroad.

The Newport Harbor Art Museum, 2211 W. Balboa Blvd., Newport Beach, will be dark from June 20 until Sept. 9 when it will open for the fall season.

THE EDO PERIOD in Japan, 1615-1868 A.D., was a time of blossoming of the arts. Forty examples from this era will go on view Tuesday at Los Angeles County Museum of Art, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., to remain through Sept. 26.

Highlight of the show will be four huge screens: "Plum Trees" and "Landscape" by Watanabe Shiko, "Pleasuring on the Sumida River" by Hishikawa Moronobu and "Winter Scenes" by Maruyama Okyo.

Important scroll paintings by Matsumura Goshun, Soga Shohaku, Nakabayashi Chikuto and Totoki Baigai also will be shown. Executed in ink and brilliant colors, these works depict landscapes, birds, flowers and scenes of urban life.

Colorful enameled porcelains, subtly shaped stonewares, sword guards, lacquered inros and boxes, embroidered textiles and tie-dyed robes will complete the exhibit.

The show may be seen Tuesdays through Fridays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturdays and Sundays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission is free.

THE REAL REASON that Leonardo da Vinci, Ben Franklin and Tom Edison became inventors was that they were, purely and simply, fascinated tinkerers.

At least, this is the belief of Gerald Richer, young, enthusiastic director of the Summer Science Workshop at California State Museum of Science and Industry, Exposition Park, Los Angeles. He has designed a program of classes to help kids learn to enjoy science.

And so, for the 15th consecutive summer, the workshop throws out the textbooks, and opens its doors for registration in 26 classes for preschool through senior high school students, and in special classes for teachers and parents.

Workshops will be conducted in one and two week sessions from June 28 through Aug. 20.

What keeps the kids coming summer after summer? Maybe it's the lure of courses with names like Creepy Crawly Critters; Stones, Bones and Dinosaurs; and Sorcerer's Apprentice. Maybe it's the chance to make and launch their own rockets. Whatever the formula, it has worked since 1962 with 40,000 students completing courses.

Kindergarteners and students through the fourth grade can attend one-week classes for $17. Those in grades 3 through 12 can enroll for 2 weeks for a fee of $28. Some classes also charge a modest lab fee.

SPEAKING of young people, let's congratulate winners in the annual All District Senior High School Art Competition in Long Beach Unified School District. The competition was under auspices of Gibraltar Savings. Vickie Civello of Lakewood High received the three-dimensional Sweepstakes Award and a first prize for a ring and buckle. Diana Chin, Polytechnic High, won a Sweepstakes Award and a first prize in the two-dimensional category with her watercolor, "Study in Red."

Sweepstakes awards were $75, first prizes $35, second places $20 and third, $10.

Other first place winners were Antonio Edles, Kim Kniss, Gerald White, Cindy Valenta, Veronica Wells and Ellen Steinberg. A total of $670 in prizes was awarded to 24 students.

FUTURE scientist (?) shrieks with joy as he gets acquainted with one of the animals to be studied in Summer Science Workshop at California State Museum of Science and Industry.

JAPANESE JAR of porcelain is from Old Kutani Kiln of the Edo Period, 1615-1868 A.D. This object is one of many in 'Art of Edo' exhibit which opens Tuesday at Los Angeles County Museum.

Alliance elects new board

At the 15th annual meeting of the Long Beach Art Museum Alliance, Peter Ridder was elected president. Other new officers are Mrs. Antoine Venne, Dr. Richard Simms, Mrs. Clifford Kermochan, Mrs. Ellsworth Beam, Mrs. Leo Vander Lans and Mrs. Palmer Wentworth. Mrs. Wentworth, outgoing president, will serve as parliamentarian.

New directors are Mmes. Marie Wendell, Norman Gunnerson, Timothy Cameron, Michael Johns; Messrs. Eric Laddey, John Fialko and Anthony Fallon.

Also on the board, representing Friends of the Museum, are Mrs. James Morford and, from the Film/Video Council, Dr. Ron Selvester. Both are new presidents of their organizations.

THE MEETING, a gala affair sponsored jointly by the Friends and the Alliance, marked the silver anniversary of the city's purchase of the building at 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., for an Art Center in 1951. Further, it symbolized the cooperation of groups which now work together under the new Alliance umbrella organization.

Although his leg is still in a cast because of an injury which occurred during his recent visit to New York, museum director Jan Adlmann was there to greet members and guests. A video tape, commissioned by the Alliance to tell the museum story to interested groups, was shown. It was made by David Ross, deputy director of video for the museum.

SPENCER S. WHITTED
Elegant champagne brunch each Sunday

MANY TRAVELERS who stop today at the Edgewater Hyatt House, 6400 E. Pacific Coast Highway, will make a pleasant discovery. They'll find an enticing champagne buffet brunch displayed in the hotel's plush Hugo's dining room.

The brunch also will attract many guests from Long Beach and nearby cities. They dine there nearly every Sunday because they know from experience that Hugo's brunch is one of the most imaginative and generous in this area. Many drop in after church, after a round of golf or perhaps after going for a ride on their boat, moored at the nearby Long Beach marina.

Hugo's brunch is served from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. It is $4.50 for adults, $3.50 for children under 12. It is a beautiful array of the freshest hot or cold dishes, including a glass of champagne, assorted chilled fruit juices, sliced fresh fruit, assorted cold meats, including ham breast of turkey; many colorful salads and such hot dishes as roast beef, eggs Benedict, scrambled eggs, sausage, bacon, chicken, stuffed crepes, hashbrown potatoes, rice pilaf, other hot entrees, muffins, rolls and choice of beverage. Guests sit at tables covered with linen cloths and can return to the buffet display as often as they wish. They also enjoy table service by well-trained waiters and bus boys.

The Hyatt House's brunch is created through the teamwork of the hotel's top executives including general manager Norm Howard, food and beverage manager Spencer S. Whitted, executive chef Antonio Jacobo and restaurants' manager Frank Jimenez. Antonio is a master chef who was formerly on the staff of the large Hyatt Regency Hotel in Los Angeles.

Spencer is the newest member of the local Hyatt's executive staff. He is a graduate of the school of hotel administration at Cornell University and was formerly divisional manager for four Orange County restaurants operated by Specialty Restaurants of Long Beach. He was also formerly an executive with the Velvet Turtle restaurant chain.

The Long Beach Hyatt is a large facility with many banquet and party rooms, dancing in the Sabre entertainment lounge, a 24-hour coffee shop and 200 hotel rooms. Hugo's restaurant, which serves dinner nightly including Sundays, is a deluxe operation with impressive table settings and many epicurean touches. The dinners include Hugo's garden salad, a cone of tart sherbet to refresh the taste buds between courses, fresh vegetables, mixed brown rice or baked potato, fresh fruits and afterdinner cordials or hot plum wine.

The entrees, $5.50 to $9.95, include sea delicacies, roast duckling, prime rib, veal scallopine, beef Stroganoff and the choicest steaks.

THE WORD IS "GO!" For many active Long Beach families, the Memorial Day weekend is a time to go fishing and picnicking, hiking or biking, boating and water-skiing.

They burn up energy right and left. Soon they grow ravenous. They gotta eat — right now! — so they can build up more energy. That's when the Colonel comes to their rescue.

Throughout the Long Beach-Lakewood-Bellflower area, families will stock up today and Monday on great quantities of Colonel Sanders' fresh, hot chicken. They'll buy it by the bucket or barrel at the 10 Kentucky Fried takeout shops owned by Ray Weidemann. Those are award-winning shops, highly praised and honored by the parent corporation for the fresh quality of their chicken and the spic-and-span condition of their kitchens.

The 10 Weidemann shops will operate extra hours this weekend. They will be open today from 11:30 a.m. on. Normally they open Monday at 4 p.m., but tomorrow they will open at 11:30 to accommodate holiday shoppers. If you plan a huge picnic with dozens of guests, it is suggested that you place your order as early as possible, perhaps a day in advance.

Keith Nuttall, top supervisor for the 10 shops, and his well-trained staff, will offer a variety of different-sized takeout packages. Among them are the bucket, $6.79, including 15 pieces of tender, juicy chicken, a pint of gravy and five buttery rolls, and the Thrifty Banquet, $5.19, nine pieces of chicken and many other items. The biggest order is the barrel, $9.29, including 21 pieces of chicken. Among the smaller orders are "corn and cluck," $1.19, including two pieces of chicken, corn cobbet, mashed potatoes, gravy and roll, and the chicken and French fries dinner, $1.69, including three pieces of chicken and other items.

Also featured for takeout are 79-cent containers of macaroni salad, potato salad, fruit salad and coleslaw as well as $1.79 pies. The fresh pies — topped with genuine whipped cream — are chocolate, coconut cream and lemon.

The 10 shops are located at 129 E. Pacific Coast Highway, 10003 E. Alondra Blvd., 5530 E. Atherton St., 3430 E. Artesia Blvd., 4917 Bellflower Blvd., 6081 Atlantic Ave., 3352 Los Coyotes Diagonal, 11545 E. Carson St., 1601 W. Willow St. and 1601 E. Seventh St. They feature the crisp-style of chicken as well as the regular kind. Each is prepared with 11 different herbs and spices.

Imager detects cancer

PHO-CON Multiplane-Imager, a unique nuclear medicine instrument now in operation at Long Beach Community Hospital, is capable of producing 12 internal pictures of the body all in a single scan.

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

A whole-body scanning instrument that will improve cancer detection has been acquired by Long Beach Community Hospital.

The new device, an advanced radionuclear instrument, is now in operation, it was announced by Dr. William H. Olson, chairman of the hospital's department of nuclear medicine.

Known as the PhoCon Multiplane-Imager, the device takes 12 internal pictures of the body instead of one. And it's all done in a single scan without increasing radiation.

Each image focuses on a different plane of the subject, thus determining depth and detecting tumors often not seen by conventional X rays or nuclear medicine procedures.

health

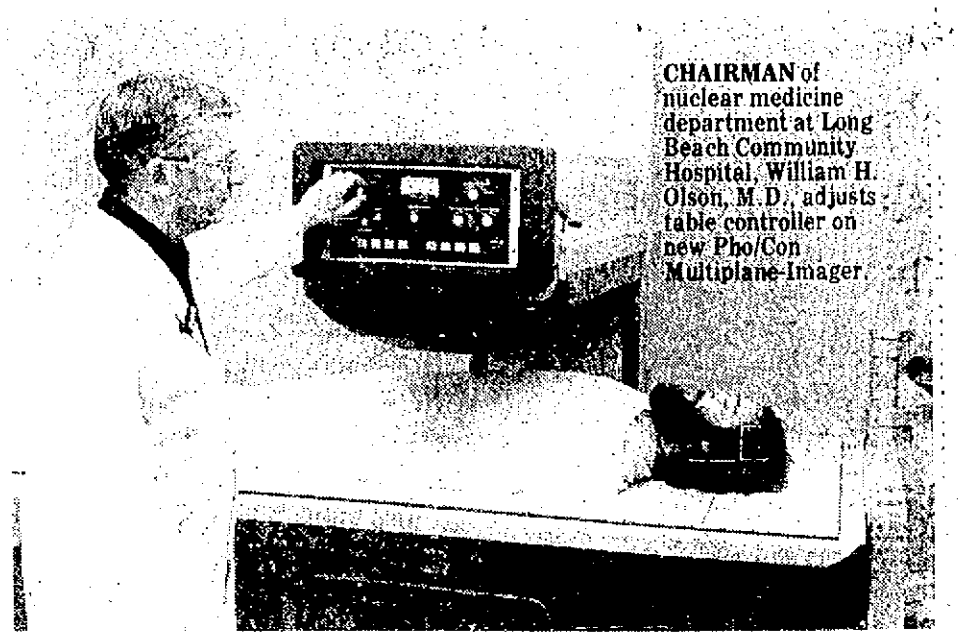

The instrument at Community Hospital will be the first of its kind to be put into clinical use in the Long Beach area, according to a manufacturer's spokesman.

Dr. Olson says that whole body imaging is considered by many to be "The procedure of choice following a diagnosis of cancer of the lymph gland, breast, lung or other organs." Reason: A nuclear scan can reveal if a malignancy has spread to other areas of the body.

"If we can determine that a patient has localized cancer that has not spread, we probably would remove the diseased organ," Dr. Olson says. "However, if the cancer has been transmitted to other parts of the body, we generally would use other methods such as chemotherapy, radiation therapy or a combination."

DR. VINOD SINGHI, a specialist in nuclear medicine, put it this way:

"We expect it may prove best to use the PhoCon for the initial screening of most cancer patients because it can effectively scan the whole body in slightly more than an hour, approximately half the time of conventional scans."

CHAIRMAN of nuclear medicine department at Long Beach Community Hospital, William H. Olson, M.D., adjusts table controller on new Pho/Con Multiplane-Imager.

Abnormalities show up as a greater-than-normal concentration of dots on a film transparency and are easily detected by a physician trained in interpreting this type of picture.

Dr. Olson notes that the new instrument complements computerized axial tomography (CAT), a procedure that recently has revolutionized the field of radiology. The capabilities of the two techniques are different.

"The PhoCon imager used radioactive isotopes which are injected into the patient to visualize the soft tissue, individual organs and the skeletal structure of the body," Dr. Olson says. "In CAT scanning, X rays from an external source penetrate the body and are recorded on film."

Another physician, Dr. Ernest W. Fordham, chairman of nuclear medicine at Presbyterian St. Luke's Hospital in Chicago, who tested a prototype of the instrument, says, "The PhoCon is particularly helpful for problem cases."

IN A FORMAL STUDY of brain scanning, nearly 15 per cent of patients required more than conventional scans, he says. In these case, multiplane imaging with radioactive materials practically doubled diagnostic accuracy. Similar results were obtained in a study conducted by Dr. Leslie R. Bennett, professor of radiology at UCLA.

Although the PhoCon's major use will be in cancer detection, it is also useful in detecting acute injury to heart muscles, bone abnormalities other than cancer, inflammatory processes in the chest or abdomen, various types of liver disease and other noncancerous diseases.

The PhoCon was invented by H.O. Anger, Ph.D., who also devised the widely known Anger Scintillation Camera which bears his name. One medical observer has cited the PhoCon scanner as "undoubtedly the most ingenious imaging device yet developed in the field of nuclear medicine."

Acquisition of the PhoCon is one in a series of cancer detection and treatment programs developed over the past four years by Community Hospital at a cost of more than $2 million.

Long Beach Community Hospital has been named the charity recipient of the annual Dick Whittinghill Golf Tournament to be held July 31. Most of the proceeds of this tournament will be used to pay for PhoCon equipment.

The hospital's 850 employes and members of the Long Beach Community Hospital Foundation will be active in fund-raising efforts, hospital officials announced.

IN-SIGHTS

Mom takes a job

dr. walt menninger

DEAR DR. MENNINGER:

I am a hard-working, middle-aged man who has done a pretty good job of providing for my wife and three children for 20 years. My wife has been a good mother to the kids. She has been a den mother in Cub Scouts and has worked hard in the PTA. But now she wants to go to work! For pay!

We can use the extra income. The kids are soon to start college; and much as I have tried, I haven't been able to set aside much toward those expenses.

But I am uncomfortable with my wife going to work. I feel that I should be able to provide fully for her, and she shouldn't have to work. It's as though I'm less of a man if she has to work. And perhaps I'm just a male chauvinist, but I think she should be home for the kids' sake, too. I would appreciate your thoughts.

Sincerely H.W.

Dear H.W.:

Your feelings are not unique and should not be passed off simply as male chauvinism. You are responding to the traditional American family image of a bread-winning husband and a dutiful wife and mother who looks after home and the children.

Of course, the image is changing, and many factors have contributed to the change. It started during World War II, when many women joined the work force to take on jobs the men left behind; in addition, some needed to supplement the meager military pay allotments.

In recent years, the pressures of inflation have contributed to wives going to work. For many young couples just starting out, that has been the only way to pay for the major purchases of a car, furniture and a house as they establish a new family. For other families, it is a way to improve the standard of living. And college costs, like those about to face you, H.W., have prompted a good number of women to supplement the family income.

ANOTHER MAJOR impetus these days is the thrust for equal rights and the wish of many women to assert themselves. Many have worked diligently for years without pay, not only in raising a family and keeping house, but in putting in a tremendous amount of time in volunteer activities in the community. Now these women are feeling a new sense of self-worth and want to be paid accordingly.

Your wife is also at a significant point in life where she is completing one "career" — raising her children — and searching for another. She is no different from the man who joins the service in his late teens and spends 20 years in the military, only to retire and embark on a new career.

Of course, there are adjustments to be anticipated if she does go to work. There are adjustments in the household responsibilities. Before she starts, you should both discuss the division of labor for the usual household tasks and explore changes in who is responsible for what. Unless there is some sharing of the load, there are bound to be problems.

Equally important are the adjustments in feelings, like your feelings that you have failed her, or your feelings about sharing household jobs. You shouldn't feel you have failed her, for it may well be that by working, she is able to satisfy some needs which you could never do for her, no matter how wonderful a husband you might me.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Knuckle joints replaceable

A substitute knuckle for persons severely crippled with arthritis has been developed by Dr. Robert J. Schultz, director of orthopedic surgery at the Hospital of Albert Einstein College of Medicine.

The replacement device permits the patient to be able again to grip and to pinch objects together. The hand's stability and mobility are increased.

ben zinser

To date, Dr. Schultz has replaced 150 knuckle joints. If all four joints are replaced, the operation takes about two hours.

A report on the prosthesis appears in the Journal of the American Medical Association. A summary is given in the Journal of the American Osteopathic Association.

Fungal disease

Sporotrichosis is now the most frequent fungal disease seen in Latin America, researchers report.

The disorder is an infectious ailment characterized by the formation of nodules, ulcers and abscesses, usually confined to skin and superficial lymph channels.

The number of cases is increasing daily, investigators have reported to a meeting of the International Society of Tropical Dermatology.

Doctors say there are no treatment problems with the disease.

Details appear in Dermatology News, a medical newspaper.

Lower blood pressure

A drug called atenolol, taken once a day in tablet form, can effectively lower blood pressure in persons with mild or moderate hypertension.

Two British physicians say atenolol in once-daily doses can control blood pressure for at least 24 hours.

The drug is also known in England by the name Tenormin.

The simplicity of the treatment (once a day) plus a lack of side effects should make this drug valuable in the long-term treatment of high blood pressure, the doctors say.

The report is in British Medical Journal.

Curbing fear

A dentist reports he is using "conscious sedation" to make dental visits more pleasant for the patient.

Dr. Bob Swepston, a practicing dentist from Texas, uses the gas nitrous oxide as a "vapor tranquilizer whose main purpose is to eliminate fear and apprehension."

He says the patient is fully conscious during the treatment and experiences no aftereffects.

Dr. Swepston has given more than 100 seminars on the use of nitrous oxide in curbing fear.

AT WIT'S END

Keeping up with family news

erma bombeck

I found a letter to my sister the other day that I had forgotten to mail.

It just needed a little updating to send. After "The baby is . . . " I crossed out "toilet trained" and wrote in "graduating from high school this month."

And in the P.S. where I had written, "I found my first gray hair today," I ran a line through gray and substituted "black."

The rest of the letter was still current. "I am on a diet as my skin does not fit me anymore. The children are rotten and I am slipping away from reality. I am going to paint the bathroom and write to the rest of the family next week."

The trouble with me is I don't like to write letters unless I have something exciting to report. I am intimidated by letter writers whose correspondence electrifies you.

I have one group of friends who only write me once a year — from a cruise ship. They know it's going to make me spit up with jealousy and they write cute little messages that begin, "Luv: Thinking of you as we island-hop," and end with, "Must dash. A Robert Redford lookalike has been chasing me all over the ship."

OTHER PEN PALS I can live without are the people whose children are over-achievers. Their letters are filled with news of "Robbie" who just won a "Being" scholarship to Harvard. (He's so exceptional, all he has to do is sit there and breathe for four years.) There's also nine-year-old Rachel who is competing in the Baton Olympics, makes all her own clothes, just sold her first story to Reader's Digest, and is going to spend her entire summer reading the Bible. And don't forget little Kenneth who gets up during the night to change his own Pampers. (Does you-know-who still have a plastic liner in his football uniform?)

The letter-writers who really bug me, though, are the ones with the stationery whose paper matches the envelopes. Sure it's easy to write a letter when you have all the equipment, but for me, it's a real hassle finding clean paper, a pencil, and a stamp.

IT HAS BEEN four days since I sent my sister the letter and when I didn't hear from her this morning, I lifted the phone, called, and said, "What's the matter? Is your arm broken?"

"I just got your letter," she said. "I'll answer it this afternoon."

"Well, hurry up. I have another three-cent stamp that's burning a hole in my pocket!"

DEAR ABBY

Putting advice to use brings her happiness

abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: Around this time last year I wrote to you telling you that I was a very unhappy 12-year-old adopted, diabetic girl whose parents and teachers were always on my back. You wrote back with lots of suggestions and told me to try to see things their way.

I didn't believe a word you wrote, and I got into big trouble at school. It got harder and harder for me to live with myself anymore, so I went to talk to my best friend's mother, and she helped me see that everything you wrote to me was 100 per cent true. Then I read your letter over and over again, and after a while it sunk in.

I changed myself just in time to save my reputation and get back with all my friends, and, Abby, your letter was the cause of it all. Thank you! I couldn't have done it without you. Now I'm a better person and can talk to my parents, which I couldn't do last year.

Abby, please put this in your column because I'm sure a lot of teen-agers don't realize that you write personal answers to those who send stamped, addressed envelopes.

All my love — M.L. IN BARSTOW, CA.

DEAR M.: I am pleased to know that my letter helped you to get it all together, but you deserve more credit than I do. I only offered suggestions. YOU followed through. God bless you, honey.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently moved into a furnished apartment. We have no children, but we have two small dogs that we love very much.

At first when we went out, we left the dogs alone in the apartment, and they ripped up everything they could get their little paws on. They simply ruined the furniture and rugs!

After we saw the damage our dogs had done, we took to locking them up in the bathroom, but, Abby, this upsets them so much, it just breaks my heart. I can't blame them. I know I wouldn't want to be locked in a tiny bathroom for five hours, would you?

Is there any other solution? We don't have anyone who can watch the dogs when we go out. Please suggest something. — LOVES MY DOGS

DEAR LOVES: If you can't train your dogs to refrain from tearing up their surroundings when left alone, rather than submit them to cruel and unusual confinement, take them with you or find them another home. Dogs have rights, too.

DEAR ABBY: I am a secretary to a very fine family man. About once a week, my boss invites me to have lunch with him downtown. I find it very enjoyable, but I understand there has been some talk about it around the office. In fact, I hear that his wife has been asking questions about me.

I wish you'd tell me just what two people could do between noon and 1 p.m. in a crowded restaurant. — MS. UNDERSTOOD

DEAR MS.: They could make plans to meet after 5, where it's not so crowded.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Lends recipe for cookies

After studying his extensive knowledge of figures, we asked him if he could figure his own income tax. He hesitated, then replied, "Well, I probably could — but I don't. I'm far too busy to find the time."

Virg Sewell, today's chef of the week, devotes his professional hours to serving as vice president, regional loan manager, Fidelity Federal Savings & Loan Association, Long Beach.

Born in Fairview, Kan., a town of 1,300 population, Sewell came to Long Beach in 1937. He graduated from Long Beach City College and Woodbury College, Los Angeles, before receiving his certificate in real estate from Long Beach Community College.

mildred flanary

Sewell continued his education through UCLA Extension courses in real estate and real estate appraisal before graduating from the American Savings and Loan Institute, and Mortgage Banking at Stanford University.

SEWELL'S FIRST POST was as vice president, manager, WestWinds Realty. Since then, he has served as manager, Real Estate Loan Department, Bank of California, Newport Beach, and as sales supervisor-senior account manager, Business Development Department, Title Insurance and Trust Co., Los Angeles. He has carried the title of vice president of the Belmont Savings & Loan Association; the DeBek Homes, and Bear State Construction Company of California. He has taught Mortgage Lending at Long Beach City College.

A member of the Mortgage Bankers Association, and the Apartment Association of California, he is active in the Toastmaster's Club, and is also a member of the National Pilot's Association.

HIS WIFE, BOBBIE, is a real estate appraiser with the Bank of America. He says, "She's a real gem! One of the few women real estate appraisers in California." They have one son, 21-year-old Christopher (better known as Chris) a student at Long Beach City College.

Sewell says, my hobbies are "Being with my wife and son; flying; bicycling and real estate." He's also interested in music, ably manning a saxophone, clarinet and flute.

Bobbie says, "Virg is extremely thoughtful, and shares all home responsibilities with me. As for his cooking, he adds a little bit of this, and a little bit of that, without ever a thought of measuring."

Regarding his recipe, our 'chef' says, "Since so many people are cholesterol conscious, I would like to share a recipe that I particularly like, and one that is very satisfying while not violating any diet no-no's."

VIRG SEWELL

Here's his recipe for No Cholesterol Cookies.

NO CHOLESTEROL COOKIES

¾ cup wheat germ
½ cup chopped raisins
½ cup chopped walnuts
3 tablespoons water
1 tablespoons molasses
3 tablespoons oil
¾ cup flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cloves
1 egg white
¾ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix wheat germ, raisins and walnuts. Stir in the flour, baking powder and salt. In a separate bowl, blend together the water, molasses, oil, egg white, vanilla and spices. Beat into the raisin-nut mixture. Divide into 25 cookies. Place on a baking sheet and flatten each with a fork. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for 8 to 10 minutes.

FLEA MARKET FINDS

Q. "Our latest find is a silverplated cake basket marked 'Toronto Silver Plate Company'." — Mr. and Mrs. J. L., Lafayette, Ind.

A. Silverplated cake baskets were gracing tabletops and sideboards around the turn-of-the-century. Jewelry company catalogues listed many elegant versions priced at between $8 and $12 each. Your find originated at the Toronto Silver Plate Company of Toronto, Canada, a firm active between the late 1880s and 1920. They manufactured various sterling silver and silverplated articles. Most wares were marked with the firm's name or initials. Their silverplated cake baskets rate as tasty acquisitions. Value guide: cake basket, silverplated, circa 1890, $50.

dan d'imperio

Q. "Can you list some affordable old 78 RPM records for this budget-minded scavenger?" — Joe, Houston, Tex.

A. Here is a partial listing of old 78 RPM records you should be able to find spinning about yard sales and flea markets in the $2 price range: Decca, Dick Hymes, "That's For Me" "It Might As Well Be Spring"; Decca, Helen Forrest, "Guess I'll Hang My Tears Out To Dry" "Don't Ever Change"; Columbia, Frank Sinatra, "Cradle Song" "Nancy"; RCA Victor, Perry Como, "When You're Smiling" "My Melancholy Baby"; Majestic, Morton Downey, "Blue Skies" "All By Myself"; Mercury, Frankie Laine, "I've Only Myself To Blame" "But Beautiful."

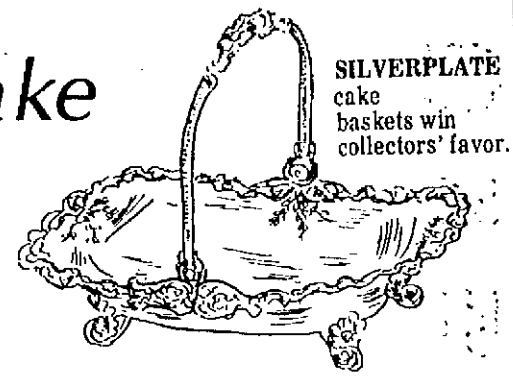

Q. "Have you any data on Edward Howard, the watchmaker?" — Henry, Fond du Lac, Wis.

A. Other watchmakers referred to Mr. Howard as the "man of the hour," thanks to his pioneering the machine-made precision watch in America during the 19th century. He established his original factory at Roxbury, Mass., in 1842. Between 1850 and 1857 he formed a partnership with A.L. Dennison. When this partnership was dissolved, Howard continued operating the Boston Watch Company. The Howard Watch & Clock was organized in 1861, and was renamed the E. Howard Clock & Watch Company in 1881. Highly regarded Howard precision watches are proving to be timely investments. Value guide: E. Howard, open face, Keystone Howard case, 21 jewel, $115.

Q. "Can you assist me in appraising my ever-growing collection of antique typewriters?" — Mary, Burlington, N.C.

A. Hope these representative prices on antique typewriters spell out MONEY for you. Collector interest centers on examples made prior to World War I. Value guide: Blickensderfer No. 7, $100; Corona, No. 3, $35; Fox, $40; Hammond, with original wooden case, $160; Oliver, No. 5, $25; Remington Standard No. 7, $50; Smith Premier, No. 2, $55; Underwood, No. 5, $35; Wellington, No. 2, original case, $70.

Appraise your antiques with the aid of Dan D'Imperio's book and value guide "The ABC's of Victorian Antiques", Dodd, Mead & Co., $9.95. An autographed copy may be ordered from the Star-Telegram Syndicate, Inc., P.O. Box, 681, Weatherford, TX 76086. Please include check or money order.

The workshop

There's never been a better year to discover the joys of historic America. And what better way than cruising on your own easy-to-build 22 foot, twin-hull deck boat. It boasts over 10 square feet of open deck space enclosed by a railing, and over 40 cubic feet of storage space beneath the twin hulls and the galley.

You can build it from marine plywood with no special tools or hardware required. And after you've built the simple box hulls, and interlocking deck pieces, the whole thing can be taken apart for easy transportation or storage.

We used a 15 h.p. motor to power our boat. Start off simple if you wish, and later add carpeting and a canopy. You can start a fun-filled future of fishing, swimming, picnicking, and just cruisin' down the river on lazy afternoons.

To order the easy-to-follow plan, Family Deck Boat (No. 578), send $4 (includes first class postage and handling) by check, cash or money order to Steve Ellingson, Independent Press Telegram, Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys, Ca. 91409.

ira corn

Aces on bridge

Dear Mr. Corn: I recently moved from Texas to the Northeast and find my bidding philosophies are not accepted by the "in" group. Is it just the group I've joined or is this a common situation?

Out of Step,
Jamaica, N.Y.

Answer: The situation is a common one and applies to several geographic regions. In general, Texas players tend to play a "loose" style and bid freely, where players in the N.Y. area lean to a more disciplined style.

Here's a quote from the ACBL Bulletin published daily at the national tournaments:

Overheard in a team game after an expert went for a big number: "I thought you'd had that famous Texas operation where they cut out the word 'pass'!" And a kibitzer asked, "You mean a pass-ectomy?"

Dear Mr. Corn: We were playing a hand and one player had one fewer card than the others. What should we have done?

Big Mixup,
Whitakers, N.C.

Answer: It depends upon the circumstances. A search is made and if the missing card was played to a previous trick in error, that player plays the remainder of his hand with fewer cards than the others and does not play to the final trick.

If the missing card is found elsewhere than in a previous trick, that card must be restored to the deficient hand and may become a penalty card, and failure to have played it may constitute a revoke.

Complicated and harsh? Maybe. But it would never happen if all players make sure they have 13 cards to start with.

Dear Mr. Corn: My partner opened one heart and I held this hand. What should I have bid after RHO's pass?

♠ ——
♥ A J 8 7 4 2
♦ K Q J 10 7 4 3

5-30-A

Jammed Up,
Springfield, Mass.

Answer: There is no "correct" bid and one must decide to go quickly or slowly. If you go slowly, the opponents may find a good sacrifice (or make!); if you go quickly, you may bid too much or too little.

On average days, I would bid six hearts. On extremely lucky ones, I would try seven.

Dear Mr. Corn: My opponents played in two hearts and went down one. Declarer had 100 honors. It doesn't make sense to me that she should have scored a net plus of 50 points after she had gone down. Any comments?

Bonus Babies,
Oswego, N.Y.

Answer: In rubber bridge, honors are scored by any player lucky enough to hold them and the award is not tied to the success or failure of the contract.

On the opposite side of the coin, one might ask, "What if a defender had 100 honors and declarer made the contract? Why should the defender score honors?"

School menus

The following menus will be served in Long Beach elementary schools during the week of May 31 to June 4. All lunches include milk.

MONDAY: Holiday.

TUESDAY: Hot dog, corn, pears, peanut cookie.

WEDNESDAY: Pizza, green beans, orange peach pudding with whipped topping, hot French bread.

THURSDAY: Taco, carrots, applesauce, California fruit bread.

FRIDAY: Barbecued beef on a bun, French fries, fruit cup with strawberry garnish, oatmeal cookie.

JUNIOR-SENIOR HIGH

MONDAY: Holiday.

TUESDAY: Italian spaghetti with cheese topping, green beans, pears, French bread.

WEDNESDAY: Chopped steak on mashed potatoes, garden salad, fruit cup with strawberry garnish, California fruit bread.

THURSDAY: Charbroiled beef pattiie on a bun with trimmings, French fries, orange wedges.

FRIDAY: Cheese enchilada or fish square with tartar sauce and oven browned potatoes, green salad, applesauce, whole wheat bread.

Change of scene in gay Paree

By HERB SHANNON
I.P-T Travel Editor

PARIS, France — Every 15 years or so, I used to have someone snap my picture strolling on the Champs Elysees, the proudest promenade of this effervescent city of two million dedicated pedestrians. Sort of a boulevardier's Before and After, or sentimental Then and Now collector's item.

This time, after careful scrutiny of the Etoile scene as reflected in the plate glass of the U.S. Bicentennial display half a block from the Arc de Triomphe, I decided to forego the traditional photo. Too many signs of wear and tear.

On me, not the monument. A lot of water has passed under the bridges of the Seine since that first visit two or three snapshots ago, but the masssive sculptured arch at the end of the tree-lined boulevards converging upon it is still the Star of Paris, a bright backdrop to the passing parade by day or blazing with floodlights at night.

The footloose throngs in the Champs Elysees are as familiar and eternal as the flame winking from the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at the base of the Arch of Triumph. Itinerant troubadors, street artists with portfolio at the ready, young lovers on the move in close emmbrace, native and visiting sightseers provide the best free show in town.

Front row seats for this enchanting performance are available at nominal charge under the awnings and parasols of sidewalk cafes. The tip is included in the price of a snack or glass of wine or beer. The only hustle is in the service by traybearing waiters.

Across the broad boulevard, two world-famous establishments attract distinctly separate clienteles with more substantial provender. Fouquet's Restaurant posts a warning at the door in the form of a menu and price list. Barely a block away, Le Drug Store dispenses le hamburger Americain with French fries, ketchup, mustard and relish. The pharmacy department provides instant after-dinner remedies.

UNLIKE MY foreground reflection in the Champs Elysees windows, most changes in the Parisian panorama are for the better. New high-rise hotels and civic structures are discreetly distributed around the city to preserve the skyline and a continuity of character in the various districts. The Metro subway system still runs on rubber tires, but the tournstiles are now efficiently automated.

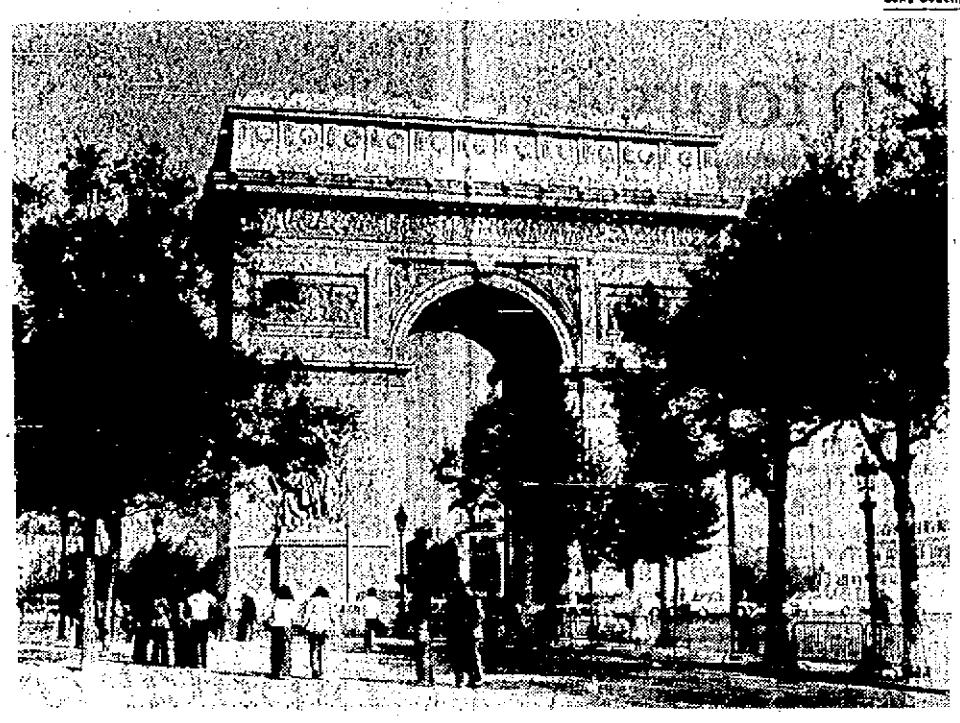

The most startling change comes on arrival at the ultra-modern Charles de Gaulle Airport, the new arrival point for non-stop Air France polar flights from Los Angeles. The introduction is appropriate for the dawn of the supersonic age. Needle-nosed Concorde aircraft nestle side by side with their subsonic sister ships around the satellite terminals. Moving walkways whisk pasengers underground to the multi-level main terminal building.

In the immense hollow core of the circular structure, the moving sidewalks criss-cross from level to level in transparent tubes, allowing arriving and departing passengers to view each other as they pass effortlessly through the conveyor belt maze. The end of this short trip into the future deposits passengers and baggage at the door where buses and taxis await.

SOME TOURIST welcoming customs also have changed from former years. The last time I saw a Paris taxi driver smile, I knew I had made a serious mistake in the payment or tip. In his favor. In those days, cabbies were prone to slap the meter flag down before the vehicle stopped, and then rattle off the fare in a dialect known only in some remote province.

They don't do that any more. The flag stays up, the meter reading is visible, extra charges for luggage are dutifully explained and all of the drivers I dealt with this trip acknowledged the tip with a courteous "Merci."

Remembering the earlier experience, I took the airport bus into town with two friends. We transferred to a taxi for the short ride to a hotel. The total cost was 90 francs, about $20 or $6.50 each. Checking this against a straight taxi ride to the airport on departure, I discovered the convenience added nothing to the bill. It can be even less if traffic on the express motorway is light.

ARCH OF TRIUMPH REMAINS CENTER OF ATTENTION AT THE ETOILE

THERE IS one regrettable change on the Champs Elysees. In the name of traffic management in the vicinity of the Etoile, a tunnel now diverts vehicles under the circular crossroads. Entrances to the tunnel on either side of the boulevard have wiped out the outdoor kiosk comfort stations which used to be located at convenient intervals.

This venerable institution for men only has been replaced with coeducational facilities in the basements of the sidewalk bistros. They are separate and I suppose equal in status, leading from a common foyer supervised by an attendant. The one I patronized had an automatic sprinkler system activated by an electronic beam monitoring the equipment.

But some customs never die. I noticed that the distaff facility was equipped with a door clearly labeled "Dames." There was no door on the gents. And the attendant collecting coins on a plate in the outer office was a young lady.

Vive le tradition!

Friendly Paris budget booklet

A new 48-page brochure entitled "Friendly and Inexpensive Paris, 1976" is available without charge from the French Government Tourist Office. It lists more than 100 hotels with rates from $22-$25 a day, and well over 600 inexpensive restaurants in the $3.50-$5.50 price range.

The handy pocket-sized booklet is ideal for visitors to carry with them as a help to finding quick snack services for use between sightseeing as well as budget menu spots and restaurants with local quarter atmosphere.

It is particularly useful in finding inexpensive hotels in the Paris district of the visitor's choice. There is also a handy subway map in the centerfold.

The French Government Tourist Office's brochure has a good deal of practical information compactly included in the first nine pages, such as a list of department stores and shops selected for their reasonable prices as well as practical information regarding public transport in the Paris region.

Also included is information about post office services, currency exchange offices, the location of open-air markets, antique shops and flea markets, and "how-tos" for duty-free shopping and sales tax reimbursements.

To obtain a copy of "Friendly and Inexpensive Paris, 1976," write the French Government Tourist Office, 610 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10020.

SUITING ALL TASTES

Tailored English tours

The Cotswolds, England

Spring came at last and all England is in bloom. We're driving today past fields of bouncy white lambs with The Remarkable Mrs. Hoade.

Mrs. Hoade runs a tailored, made-to-your-measure-guide service. It includes a car. Mrs. Hoade drive and, knowing what you want, she'll have you there in no time.

A Beverly Hills decorator wants a special Victorian wire garden furniture — you just can't find it anymore. Mrs. Hoade looked at the snapshots I showed her. Drove down hedgerow lanes to a walled farmhouse.

In the barn there was a wonderful old gentleman, designing and making this ornamental wire work. May be the only person in the country still doing it.

MRS. HOADE is a proper English lady. She has a crofter's cottage on the wild north coast of Scotland.

She fishes. Plays golf and tennis. Adores England, the Royal Family, flowers and animals.

I found Mrs. Hoade knows the history and the local ghosts. When shops open and when banks close.

She detests freeways. We travel on flowery country lanes, impassable for tour buses. And you lunch in villages that have one pub with seats for eight people.

stan delaplane

The word gets around and Mrs. Hoade gets letters. A Dutch woman wants to tour Britain's cheese producing areas. A Japanese wants to see the Colchester oyster beds. These can be handled by staff assistants.

Mrs. Hoade handles the ones that make her Remarkable.

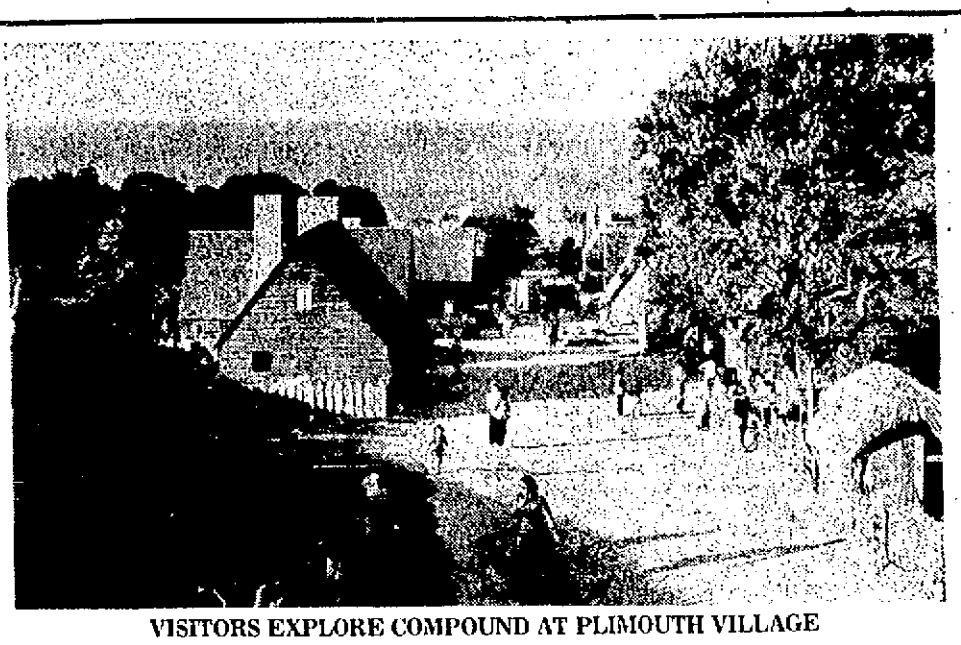

THIS JUNE she will get 10 people into Windsor Castle to see 2 new Knights of the Garter installed. There are only 26 Knights. (If you're in line, you have to wait for one to die.)

The whole Royal Family attends. Great trooping of the Household Brigades. Military bands. Bagpipes.

Getting into this is like front row seats on the opening night of the biggest hit of the year. Remarkable woman, Judy Hoade.

Write her at Grosvenor Guide Service, 13 a. Harriet Walk, London, S.W.1. If you don't know WHAT you want to do, she's got an interesting list. Maybe lunch at Hampton Court Palace in a "Grace and Favor Apartment"? (Don't know what that is, but it sounds graceful and favorable.)

Cost of this smooth service is $75 a day. If you have four people, it's still only $75.

VISITORS EXPLORE COMPOUND AT PLIMOUTH VILLAGE

Colonial scene renewed

In spite of a false start under the name of Plimouth, the Massachusetts city of Plymouth eventually flowered as the first permanent European settlement north of Virginia. And as a birthplace of American traditions.

American Airlines, which offers frequent daily service to Boston, where rental cars, buses or tours are available to Plymouth, reports that the old days can be relived at the 100-acre Plimouth Plantation. Located south of town, the plantation comes complete with costumed guides and period buildings.

For other yesteryear reminders, visit the Plymouth National Wax Museum and the historic graves at Burial Hill and Cole's Hill. Also tour some of the old homes, with artifacts dating back to the 17th and 18th centuries. These include Sparrow House, Spooner House, Harlow Old-Fort House and Jabez Howland House.

Of course, the original Plymouth Rock should not be missed. It is housed beneath a granite portico. Also see the Mayflower II, a full-scale replica of the original colonizing ship.

Visitors to Plymouth during the Thanksgiving season get a special treat. Local residents dressed in Pilgrim attire re-enact the first Thanksgiving.

S.S. Universe now official name

Orient Overseas Line has officially renamed the S.S. Universe Campus as the S.S. Universe, effective with the liner's July 6 cruise to Mexico.

From 1971 to 1975, the ship had sailed as a floating college under auspices of Chapman College, Orange. In late 1975 the liner was returned to Orient Overseas and refurbished as an all-first-class cruise ship.

Currently, the S.S. Universe sails on a series of year-round cruises to the Mexican Riviera from Los Angeles.

This Summer in the Mediterranean

Two Week Air/Sea Cruise Vacations from $1398*

Including Round Trip Jet Air

The Mediterranean summer. From Piraeus' Naval Week in June through the late summer opera season in Venice, it's an unending parade of pageantry and color. It's the only time to see Greek Tragedy classically performed in the ancient amphitheatre that witnessed its debut 2,000 years ago—or the critically-acclaimed Venice Shakespeare Festival.

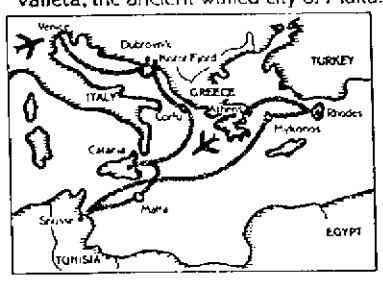

Sail the Seas of Ulysses aboard the world's newest cruise ship and enjoy all the Mediterranean has to offer.

The greatest ports of call:

Venice (where the GOLDEN ODYSSEY, in the Grand Canal, is just minutes from St. Marks Square)

Athens — with plenty of time to explore the Parthenon and modern Greece

Valleta, the ancient walled city of Malta.

Catania, port city of sunny Sicily, gateway to the Roman village of Taormina.

Greek Islands of Rhodes, Mykonos, Corfu

Sousse (Discover the mysteries of North Africa!)

Kotor Fjord — its spectacular beauty rivals any in Norway.

Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia's "Pearl of the Adriatic"

Two-week Air/Sea "Seas of Ulysses" cruise departures:

May 2	June 19	Aug. 6
May 14	July 1	Aug. 18
May 26	July 13	Aug. 30
June 7	July 25	Sept. 11

from $1398* including round trip Pan Am jet air transportation from Los Angeles.

*Per person, double occupancy. The ms GOLDEN ODYSSEY is registered in Greece

Where does Pan Am go in Latin America?

As you can see by the map, there's practically no place Pan Am can't take you to.

Either direct. Or through one of our frequent and convenient connections.

The key to our service from Los Angeles is our daily Flight #515.

It goes direct to Guatemala, and depending on the day of the week, on to Panama, Caracas, or Rio. (Look at the map again and see how many places you can connect to from these cities.)

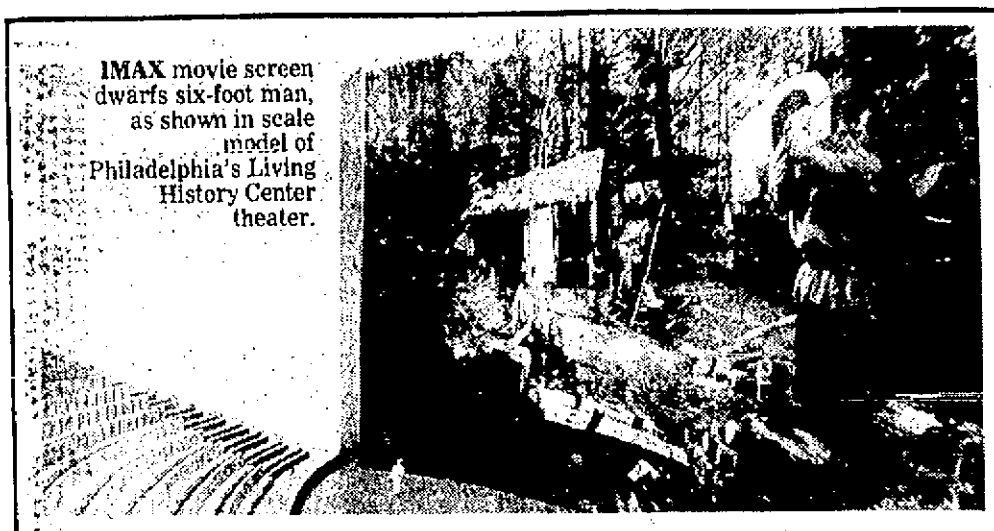

Besides the fact we can take you to all those places, it might be interesting also to note how we take you to all those places.

To Rio, we have the only 747. To Central America, we have the only daily 747. To Rio, São Paulo, Buenos Aires, Montevideo, we go five times a week. And to Caracas, three times a week.

For more information or to book a flight (or to get on one of Pan Am's low-cost tours), just call your travel agent.

IMAX movie screen dwarfs six-foot man, as shown in scale model of Philadelphia's Living History Center theater.

Big Bicentennial show

Philadelphia, known as the site of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, now is the home of the world's largest movie screen in honor of that event.

Part of an $11.5 million addition to Philadelphia's historic and cultural attractions, the 6,300-square foot screen is mounted on a seven-story frame in the city's new Living History Center.

The gigantic screen was built to show a special Bicentennial film in the IMAX process, which uses the widest motion picture film available with individual frames the size of postcards to surround the viewer with the image.

The film showing throughout 1976 is the 48-minute "American Years," a special production directed by Academy Award winner Francis Thompson.

Dig this, tourists

travel

By ROB HEATON
Ridder News Service

GREENSBURG, Kan. — Back in 1887, a small army of men with shovels began digging a hole here. The Santa Fe Railroad was coming through town. Back then, trains needed water.

So the railroad and the city of Greensburg cooperated and the small army dug.

And dug and dug and dug and dug.

Two years later, the hole was 109 feet deep. It was 32 feet in diameter and had walls of native stone, brought in by wagon from a quarry 13 miles south.

It was the largest hand-dug well in the world. It still is.

The railroad never did make it to Greensburg. But the city had all the water it needed for more than 50 years.

Greensburg discontinued using the well for a municipal water supply in the 1930s, but the big well still has about 20 feet of water.

TODAY, the well is open as a tourist attraction. It is visited by 50,000 people a year. About 10,000 walk to the bottom, to the water's edge.

Greensburg is on U.S. 54 in Kiowa County, 109 miles west of Wichita.

With the well visit behind them, visitors to Greensburg may call at "Burketown," a frontier village owned, operated and built by George Burke and his two sons.

Burke is a collector.

"It really doesn't matter what, "according to one son, Larry. "So long as it is old."

Burke's most visible collection is vehicles.

Ninety are housed in his transportation museum. Most are horse-drawn vehicles from the era of well-digging. Fifteen are old automobiles.

He also has a restaurant in Burketown. A native of Greensburg, Burke's mother ran a restaurant there "for as long as anyone can remember now," Larry said.

Other facets of Burke's collection are housed in other buildings in static displays. There is a hardware store, a blacksmith shop and a livery stable display.

WHEN Burke acquired a miniature steam engine, train and track, he gave rides to children who visited Burketown.

With a train, it only seemed right to have a depot, so he bought the depot at Wilmore, Kan., and had it moved to Burketown, where he restored it and set up a display of antique railroad gear inside.

Greensburg also has the world's largest pallasite meteorite. It weighs 1,000 pounds and was discovered in 1950 on the Ellis Peck farm near the city. The Chamber of Commerce bought it from the owner for $1 per pound.

It is on display at the chamber building by the big well. The same farm near Greensburg previously turned up a 750-pound meteorite.

More than 7,000 pounds of meteorites have been dug up in a two-mile square area.

PENNY-WISE TRAVELER

Follow George's example

WASHINGTON, D.C. — George Washington slept here, and this summer it's expected that more than 4.5 million visitors will want to follow his example.

Obviously, the city's unparalleled collection of monuments makes it a nice place to visit. The question is, with so much company anticipated, do you have to know someone to stay here?

jane morse

The answer is that it certainly helps. But don't worry; the right people are easy to get to.

As it turns out, a funny thing happened on the way to the Bicentennial. Some of the program planners finally took notice of a bad old American habit.

There are, it seems, an unhealthy number of loose-living citizens who like to declare independence from advance travel planning. They even dare to show up at different places at the heart of high season without so much as a single night's lodging arranged.

IN WASHINGTON the authorities wrestled with the nasty problem of how to handle them and opted for something almost revolutionary: help instead of hindrances. The result is the Washington Area Bicentennial Housing Information Service.

Tucked away in the National Visitors Center at Union Station, a band of specialists attached to telephones now supplies free current-day loding information. Callers who need rooms are told which of the area's 182 hotels and motels have space for that night and the numbers to call.

What this means is that the Big Birthday has indirectly given Washington visitors a new freedom. No longer must they stand over a hot pay phone and listen to 75 straight turndowns from bored room clerks holding a full house. One call points you in the right direction.

Each morning the city's housing bureau "speed-calls" the entire hotel-motel list via automatic equipment to find out what's available. Callers can ask what's open in a given area or price range. They can also get the word on private homes, dormitories and campgrounds.

What's more, they can get it seven days a week from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. possibly later if business booms.

Whether the Bicentennial will cause the projected boom is still a big question. So far, the Convention and Visitors Bureau reports, there has been some space available every night, even during the peak month of April.

OFFICIALS ARE, however, wary of forecasting for summer. They're guessing that there may be spot shortages of accommodations at different times and price ranges but foresee "no real problems."

People not employed in the tourist promotion business like to point out that anyone who arrives without a reservation and is fussy about facilities or location IS likely to have problems. So is a family of four that doesn't have at least $25 per night for accommodations.

The Greater Washington area extends about an hour's drive beyond the city limits, and only 63 hotels and motels fall into the $25-and-under category for double rooms. By no means do all have swimming pools or color TV.

For all these reasons, a small spender with big ideas clearly does need to plan ahead. The Bicentennial Housing Service can still help.

It will mail out a free accommodations list with prices to anyone who calls or writes. Address is Room 322, Union Station, Washington, D.C. 20034.

Western expands service

Western Airlines will begin nonstop service between Los Angeles and Miami on Aug. 1 with two DC-10 roundtrips per day.

In addition, the Western schedule pattern also will provide one-stop service between Seattle-Tacoma and Miami in both directions, through-plane, one-stop service eastbound from Honolulu to Miami and connecting service at Los Angeles.

Eastbound flights will leave Los Angeles at 8:45 a.m. and 10:20 p.m., arriving in Miami at 4:30 p.m. and 6:05 a.m. respectively. The morning departure from Los Angeles will originate in Honolulu at 11:20 p.m. and arrive in Los Angeles at 7:25 a.m.

The night flight will depart Seattle-Tacoma at 6:55 p.m.

TRAVEL TOPICS

BY HOWARD JONES

Lake Tahoe and the surrounding region is one of California and Nevada's most beautiful tourist attractions. Most Southern Californians have yet to visit it and enjoy its spectacular beauty.

A recent visit there (my first in over 10 years) indicated that, while there has been some increase in hotels, motels, and guest attractions, it is still generally undisturbed with miles of beautiful wooded shoreline, spectacular bays and great recreation attractions such as golf, tennis, riding, boating and hiking.

Excellent air service is now available by two California carriers PSA and Air California and for those seeking the Las Vegas or Reno type of excitement plenty of that is available as well.

We've got some great "package plans" including air and hotel arrangements. For a mini-vacation or a summer of fun Tahoe has much to offer. Drop in soon and let us tell you about it.

Your last chance to be part of a first.

The Mississippi Queen

1976 will be remembered as the maiden year of the luxurious new steamboat, the Mississippi Queen. If you're a part of America's only new riverboat to be built in 50 years, you'll never forget the experience. Particularly if you've chosen one of the special Inaugural cruises scheduled when the Fall colors are at their peak. Or a unique Old South cruise highlighting antebellum homes, plantations and Civil War battlefields.

Riverboat Days

Start your adventure at St. Louis, Cincinnati or New Orleans. Then wind your way along the mighty Mississippi and beautiful Ohio. Romance and history await you around every bend as the old river towns pass by. Natchez, Vicksburg, Memphis, Cairo, Hannibal, Louisville, Paducah — all the old ports of call are calling you in '76. And for a refreshing change of pace, you might enjoy the Queen's swimming pool, sauna, or exercise room.

Festive Nights

Lie back and relax in 20th Century comfort as a forgotten America flows past your air-conditioned stateroom. Take in a movie in the Mississippi Queen's theatre. Unwind in one of three cocktail lounges. Or let your hair down for a rollicking evening of banjo pickin', five Dixieland jazz, and a good old-fashioned sing-along. The food? Pure Americana, served up southern style with special riverboat touches.

A Week or Weekend

Spend it aboard America's luxurious new riverboat, the Mississippi Queen. Or the First Lady of the Mississippi, her legendary sistership, the Delta Queen. (Imagine lazy summer days on Huck Finn's river aboard this famous old steamwheeler!)

The British Barbara Walters

(See Page 4)

TELEVISION LOG OF THE EVENING INDEPENDENT PRESS TELEGRAM AND THE EVENING NEWS

Channel 2's new news format is making news

PATRICK EMORY, SANDY HILL, JOSEPH BENTI . . . three's a crowd?

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Dinah Shore vs. John Chancellor, Harry Reasoner and Barbara Walters?

Walter Cronkite vs. Paul Moyer, Jerry Dunphy and Christine Lund?

Yes, that's the way it'll be when the recently announced programming changes on KNXT (Channel 2) go into effect.

Starting June 28, the CBS owned-and-operated television station in Los Angeles will drop its 6-to-7-p.m. local newscast (while retaining its 5-to-6 news program); will move the "CBS Evening News With Walter Cronkite" from 7 to 6 p.m., and will shift the "Dinah!" talk show from the afternoon to the 6:30-to-8 p.m. slot.

This means that Dinah will be competing against the national newscasts of NBC (Chancellor) and ABC (Reasoner and, starting Sept. 20, Miss Walters) from 7 to 7:30 p.m. in the Los Angeles-Long Beach area.

And that Cronkite, instead of being up against the national newscasts of the other two networks, will be competing here against the local newscasts of KNBC (Moyer) and KABC (Dunphy and Miss Lund) from 6 to 6:30 each weekday evening.

It means, too, that we'll be getting a national newscast that is only two hours old instead of three. As of now, the Cronkite, Chancellor and Reasoner programs all air three hours later here than they do in the East.

WHAT WILL KNXT's cutting in half of its early evening local newscast mean in the way of personnel cutbacks? And, in particular, what's in store for anchorpersons Joseph Benti, Sandy Hill and Patrick Emory?

BOB SCHAEFER

CHRIS DESMOND

Pat has been anchoring the 5-to-6 news, with Joe and Sandy coanchoring the 6-to-7 program. One or more of them is likely to lose out as an early evening anchorperson under Channel 2's new format. All three must be having some anxious moments these days waiting to learn their fate.

When KNXT gets around to announcing who's going to stay and who, if any, is going to leave, it will be big news to many TV viewers. For television newscasters are more than just reporters of the news; they are celebrities — TV stars — themselves, with many devoted fans. Barbara Walters is just one example of a newscaster-star. To the many viewers who bring Sandy Hill, Pat Emory and Joe Benti into their homes regularly, these newscasters, too, are stars — and they seem like friends.

And it hurts to see one of your favorites go down the tube.

"ALL KINDS of rumors have been going around to the effect that we've already decided who will anchor our program," said Bob Schaefer, KNXT's director of news, "but that's not correct. We're still weighing it — no decision has been made yet.

"We haven't decided if we'll cut back one, two or three of the anchorpersons — or keep all three. If a decision had been made, we'd let them know now to end the rumors."

What about reports that Emory appears to be the safest?

"Wrong," replied Schaefer. "I know it's being said because we worked together in St. Louis, but there's no truth to it."

The news director admitted there's little likelihood of having triple anchors from 5 to 6, but said "we could break them up." Emory now does the 11-to-11:30-p.m. news as well as the 5-to-6 program.

"There's not much security for newscasters, is there?" I asked.

"Or for news directors," Schaefer replied, with a laugh. "But anyone going in knows this. Along with the good pay, you have to accept this."

He is KNXT's third news director in less than a year and a half.

HE WAS ASKED if he has the responsibility for all hiring and firing in the news department.

Replied Schaefer: "We have a dialogue on hiring and firing, especially when it involves anyone as important as an anchorperson. No one likes to be the sole executioner. If so, something's wrong with him."

Schaefer was named director of news by Chris Desmond just a day or two after Desmond succeeded Russ Barry as vice president and general manager of KNXT early last March. He had been news director of KMOX-TV, the CBS-owned station in St. Louis, for more than five years, and Desmond had been general manager there since August 1975.

Since Desmond took over at KNXT, there have been a number of changes in the executive ranks, and some of the other newcomers have been brought in from the St. Louis station. The new regime has been dubbed "the Missouri Mafia" by some staff members.

I interviewed Schaefer for an hour in his office and, afterwards, talked briefly with Desmond in his quarters. Both seem convinced that an hour of local news in the early evening is enough for a TV station to offer.

WALTER CRONKITE

DINAH SHORE

Desmond scoffed at reports that the reason for the news cutback is to save money, and said he intends to spend just about as much on the one-hour program as is being spent for two hours.

"I'M ASHAMED of some of the things we have to put on to fill two hours," Schaefer told me. "We're not equipped to do two hours of news.

"I want an hour of news — professional news. We're interested in getting a quality product on the air. You should never equate quantity and quality. Is Cronkite any less good because he has just 30 minutes?

"The Wall Street Journal doesn't have the space of most newspapers, but it certainly does a good job."

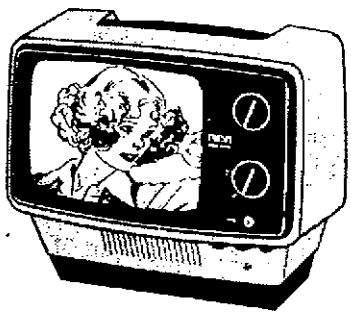

In answer to a question, Schaefer said there are 165 persons in the KNXT news department, counting camera crews.

"If I'm news director here, there won't be a major cutback," he told me. "I've heard rumors that 60 persons will be cut — why, that's ludicrous. I've also heard — and I can't say for sure that this is correct — that only 10 persons were added when the station went from one hour to two hours of news."

KNXT was the first Los Angeles station to expand from a half-hour to an hour newscast, in the early 1960s, and "The Big

'Ball Four' heads for the tube as comedy series

By GARY DEEB
Chicago Tribune

In one of the more promising moves in preparation for the 1976 fall television season, CBS has decided to make a weekly comedy series out of one of the funniest and most humanistic books ever written about sports.

"Ball Four," the 1970 baseball classic by ex-New York Yankee pitcher Jim Bouton, will become a Wednesday night TV program this September.

And Bouton, who became persona non grata in some baseball quarters because of the tattletale nature of his book, will play the starring role — that of a relief hurler named Jim Barton.

"NO, DON'T say I'm the star," Bouton told me in a phone conversation the other night. "Just say I'm gonna be the lead. There are a few professional actors in the cast who'll probably steal the thunder away from me. But that's OK — as long as it's good."

The adaptation of his book into a TV series brings Bouton to the fourth stage of a most amazing career.

A star pitcher in the early '60s for the Yanks, Bouton lost his fastball and became a fringe big leaguer by the close of the decade. At the tail-end of his playing days, he began jotting notes and making tapes in locker rooms, bullpens, and airports.

THE RESULT was "Ball Four," a controversial best-seller that cast a whimsical eye on baseball. The book was funny and it was true. It upset a lot of players who didn't appreciate their superstar bubbles being burst.

"I didn't write that stuff to put guys down," Bouton says. "I wrote it because I thought it was funny as hell. There's a certain kind of jock humor that I've always liked."

"Ball Four" led to Bouton's next lucrative pastime — a TV sportscasting gig in New York where he currently handles the 11 p.m. report for WCBS-TV.

"But I'm quitting that job," he says, "because I'll have to devote full time to the TV show."

BOUTON created the TV version of "Ball Four" in collaboration with Vic Ziegel, a New York Post sportswriter, and Marvin Kitman, TV critic for the Long Island newspaper Newsday. All three also will write scripts for the series.

Ziegel just resigned his newspaper job. And Kitman, according to Bouton, "probably is on his way to Hollywood to purchase a kidney-shaped swimming pool."

The show will find Bouton and his jock buddies toiling for a fictional club called the Washington Americans. One of the supporting characters, a

England's Barbara works for lot less

LONDON (AP) — The hottest TV property here is a comely, 30-year-old woman who can speak English like the Queen and maul Muhammad Ali in an interview — and would like to earn one-thirtieth of the $1-million-a-year America's Barbara Walters reportedly is getting from ABC.

Angela Rippon is her name. Every night she gazes a little myopically out of the tube at 8.5 million viewers as the first female anchor — called "news reader" here — of the British Broadcasting Corp.'s most popular news program.

She also takes her turn with the BBC's three male news readers on less prestigious news programs from midmorning until signoff at 11:30 p.m.

Although Angela Rippon just won Britain's "Newscaster of the Year" award, her working conditions are a bit different from those of Barbara Walters, a star of NBC's "Today" show for 13 years.

ANGELA RIPPON

SHE DOESN'T rate a limousine or even a private office. She shares a cubicle with the BBC's three male headline-spinners, does her own hair, and gets along without that necessity of American TV correspondents, the agent who negotiates the new contracts.

Despite the dutiful attentions of the British press, which went into paroxysms when one of her earrings fell off during a broadcast (she didn't miss a syllable), there is little showbiz glamour about her.

Miss Rippon comes from the cigar-store Indian school of BBC newscasting. Unlike the suspiciously mobile eyebrows of American anchormen, Miss Rippon's are fixed in a manner that gives her the air of a gazelle reproving a hunter.

And her tone reminds many viewers of their fourth grade math teacher.

WHILE NOT complaining about her peaches-and-cream complexion, or the distribution of her 119 pounds, a London newspaper recently urged Angela to shed her matronly, high-necked wardrobe and slip into something more representative of the land that gave the world Carnaby Street.

Next day she received 1,000 letters that in effect said: "Stay as sweet as you are."

The BBC considers it vulgar to talk about money, but indications are that $30,000 a year would make her contact lenses pop out.

During a recent interview, Miss Rippon laughed heartily at the thought of the cool millions Miss Walters soon will earn at ABC. She wished her well, but doubted if all the BBC announcers together even earn Walter Cronkite's paltry stipend, which is believed to be between $300,000 and $400,000 a year.

"But then, you must remember," she added, "we pay our dustmen (garbage collectors) even less."

MISS RIPPON isn't tempted by the big money on the other side of the Atlantic, having strong opinions about commercials — which pay for the American networks' news shows — compromising a journalist's credibility.

"People have to believe what I say, and if some of what I say is for sale it leaves everything else open to questions of bias," she explained.

At the BBC, there are no sponsors to worry about. The money comes from the annual fee each owner of a radio or TV set pays the government.

"Nobody ever offered to make me a star," Miss Rippon said, alluding to the book — which she hasn't read — by American newswoman Sally Quinn, called "We're going to Make You a Star."

The book concerned Miss Quinns trials and travails at CBS, where she lasted only six months as co-anchor of the "CBS Morning News" before quitting to rejoin the Washington Post.

ANGELA only wants to be called a pro, and she's earned it. She got her start as a reporter, then as a news reader on a regional station.

Her weekly grind usually includes about three 15-hour days, followed by three days off, during which she pops into her sports car and drives 250 miles to the wild country of Dartmoor in southwest England to join her businessman husband, Christopher Dare.

They still talk at the BBC about the way her cultured consonants cooled the talkative Muhammad Ali. He wanted to expand on the fate of his next victim in the boxing ring, but she kept hammering away about the time Ken Norton broke his jaw.

BBC veterans said they'd never seen [illegible] Louisville Lip so flummoxed.

The INFINITY WAVE TRANSMISSION LINE COLUMN incorporates two woofer drivers, one a "sub-woofer", the other an "upper-woofer." Uniquely, both woofers act together through the active transmission line to yield high efficiency in the low frequencies with exceptional dynamics. The UPPER MIDRANGE section employs two tweeters in a front and rear configuration — a direct radiating tweeter and a transient tweeter. The TWEETER section uses a WAVE TRANSMISSION LINE TWEETER — probably Infinity's most stunning achievement. It's not a cone or piston drive and not an electrostatic. This "Walsh-tweeter" emits 360° coherent radiation and has a frequency response past 30k Hz. Sure we've got great deals on receivers, turntables, and tape decks, too! But you don't have to buy anything else to take advantage of this super deal on these INFINITY COLUMNS. Buy a pair, buy two pair!

Hate commercials? You can always gripe

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press

Watching television may not cost money but, as everyone knows, there is a price to be paid: sitting through commercials.

Yet, for all the griping people do about commercials, they don't seem to pass much of it along to those in a position to bring about changes.

CBS says that at the network level it receives an average of no more than 75 letters a month complaining about commercials. ABC says it gets 20 at the most.

Consumer groups, network officials, advertisers and advertising agencies, asked what recourse the individual TV viewer had to objectionable television commercials, generally agreed that a letter often is worth the effort — especially if a lot of other people are complaining about the same subject.

"I THINK the most effective thing is writing a letter to the guy that paid the bill — the sponsor," said Jack McQueen, director of broadcasting in Los Angeles for the Foote, Cone & Belding advertising agency.

"We're in business," said Ernie Filice, national commercial coordinator for McDonald's restaurant chain, "and you're only as good as your customers. If they're unhappy, if they are turned off by what you're doing, you might as well hang it up."

Individual TV stations are equally sensitive to criticism because they are licensed by the federal government to serve the public, and licenses can be revoked.

Filice said McDonald's once used a foreign car in a television commercial, got a batch of angry letters and now specifies that only American-made products are to be used in its messages.

CBS EXECUTIVE Jack Hinton said Alka Seltzer cut short the run of a commercial showing Salvadore Dali painting an upset stomach on a woman in a body stocking because of viewer complaints. And Shake 'n' Bake withdrew a spot from the network after TV watchers in the South wrote in about the phony southern accent one of the characters was using.

A media activist group based in the Boston area, Action for Children's Television, persuaded the Federal Communications Commission to reduce the number of minutes devoted to commercials on Saturday morning children's shows.

The organization also convinced a station not to use fireworks commercials on a children's show.

If you feel there are too many commercials during a program or that they are too loud, write the station you're watching and, if it's a network show, the network in question.

A copy also should go to the Federal Communications Commission, which is charged with regulating the broadcast industry.

If you believe a particular commercial contains false or misleading information, write the Federal Trade Commission in Washington or the National Advertising Division or the Council of Better Business Bureaus in New York City.

WHERE TO SEND YOUR COMPLAINTS

Here is a list of agencies to which you can write to complain about — or praise — television commercials:

ABC Television, 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019.

CBS Television, 51 West 52nd St., New York, N.Y. 10019.

NBC Television, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10020.

Federal Communications Commission, 1919 M St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20590.

National Advertising Division, an advertising watchdog set up by the Council of Better Business Bureaus, 845 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.

National Citizens Committee for Broadcasting, a media activist group, 1346 Connecticut Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Action for Children's Television, another media activist group, 46 Austin St., Newtonville, Mass. 02160.

The addresses of manufacturers sponsoring commercials are available in the Standard Directory of Advertisers, published yearly by the National Register Publishing Co. and available in most big libraries.

Your local TV stations and governmental consumer agencies set up by your city or state.

Channel 2's news in news

News" was the ratings leader until the early 1970s. In the spring of 1974, the three network stations in L.A. expanded their early evening local news programs to two hours.

Over a period of years, the once-dominant Channel 2 news has declined in popularity to the point that it now trails the local news shows on Channels 4 and 7.

NOT ONLY that, but Newsroom 2 has been attracting fewer viewers from 5 to 7 p.m. than some of the syndicated rerun series on independent stations.

Thus, the new 5-to-8-p.m. format will be put into effect to combat the popularity of such shows as "The Partridge Family," "Adam-12," "Bewitched" and "I Love Lucy," as well as to compete against the news programs on the other two network stations.

Desmond pointed out that studies of the local market show that viewers prefer watching entertainment shows to news from 6:30 to 8 p.m. He said a higher percentage of the 5-to-6-p.m. viewers watch news than do viewers from 6 to 7, and that even a larger share of the audience watches news from 11 to 11:30 p.m.

Schaefer, also, noted that the independent stations show a "dramatic increase" in viewers from 6 to 8.

He said Channel 2 is aiming both for higher ratings and "better demographics." In other words, it wants more viewers and, in particular, it wants more women in the 18-to-49 age group, who are the biggest shoppers.

Miss Shore's nationally syndicated "Dinah!" talk show is counted on to appeal to the women's audience.

IF SANDY HILL, Patrick Emory and Joseph Benti are wondering what's going to happen to them under the new setup, two Channel 2 on-camera personalities already are assured of having roles on the revised 5-to-6 newscast.

Bill Stout, veteran reporter and former anchorman, will do a new feature "Perspective," and Jim Hill will be the sportscaster on the program, it has been announced.

Hill, a 1968 graduate of Texas A&I and a former pro football player, joined KNXT last February as weekend sportscaster after experience as a TV sports reporter in Green Bay, Wis., and San Diego.

Hill already has replaced the veteran Tom Kelly, who was dropped, on the 5 p.m. news.

With "Perspective," Stout will continue his role as an investigative reporter and also will offer news analysis.

In making the announcement about Stout's role, Desmond said he "will ferret out stories of human interest which pit the little guy against the massive bureaucracy of government. He will dig deep for pieces on wasted government spending or fraudulent consumer practices.

"He will expose hypocrites and applaud heroes. He will know this community inside and out. He will be its conscience."

Schaefer told me "Perspective" will "put controversies into light."

Added the news director: "I don't know anyone doing it in this market. In fact, I haven't seen too much investigative reporting. We need imaginative, bold, innovative reporting. Every reporter should be an investigative reporter.

BILL STOUT

JIM HILL

"'Perspective' has to have some bite to it — it will have to rankle people. Otherwise, it will just be bland.

"At the same time, it will have to be fair and accurate."

SCHAEFER is a native of St. Louis and a 1958 graduate of the University of Missouri. His studies were interrupted for two years as he served a stint in the Army. He claims he "flunked out" of journalism school — "I was the only person ever to take News 101 three times" — and changed his major to English literature.

After graduation, he journeyed to Wilmington, Calif., and tried to get in the Merchant Marine, but failed, he told me. Then, after working at a Santa Monica parking lot for a couple of months, he went to New Orleans to visit his sister. While there, he spotted a small ad in the paper for a reporter in Lafayette, Ind., answered the ad and launched his career in journalism.

After a short stay in Lafayette, he worked for United Press International in Dallas, Baton Rouge, La., and New Orleans. Then, in 1966, he began his TV career as an on-camera investigative reporter for WDSU-TV in New Orleans. After about a year, he became assistant news director there, and, in September 1970, he went to KMOX-TV in St. Louis as news director.

He is married and has two children, and is waiting for his family to join him as soon as school is out in St. Louis.

Schaefer's rise has been rapid, and he says he doesn't worry too much about the insecurities in his line of work.

"I love a challenge," he said, "and I'm confident we'll become No. 1. The hardest thing is to keep your interest from lagging after achieving a goal."

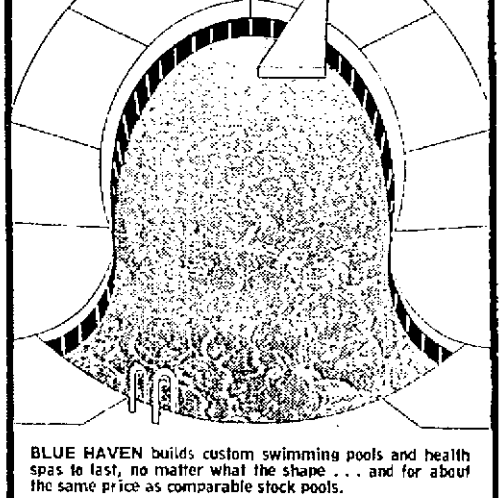

In St. Louis, his station's news ratings zoomed 10 points to take over first place. It might be more difficult in L.A., but at least his interest won't lag for awhile.

'Ball Four' coming to TV as comedy series

beefy catcher named Rhino, is played by ex-pro footballer Ben Davidson.

"THE APPEAL will be very similar to 'M-A-S-H,'" Bouton explains. "That's because baseball humor is a lot like Army humor. You've got a bunch of men under a lot of pressure, living in close proximity. It leads to tension and hilarity and all kinds of craziness.

"Athletes don't mince words. I mean, a guy with an acne problem is called 'Pizza Face.' There's a certain kind of roughness to it that's honest and funny."

Bouton feels most movies about baseball go awry because they're written by folks who aren't athletically oriented.

"They also cast it all wrong," he says. "You end up with a bunch of actors and models dressed up in baseball suits — people like Cary Grant and William Bendix and Tony Perkins. When it comes time for one of those guys to swing a bat, it's all over."

"Ball Four" will enjoy an enviable time slot — at 8:30 p.m. Wednesdays, right before "All in the Family," which is being moved to a new night.

ROBERT MacNEIL anchors "The Robert MacNeil Report," a Public Broadcasting Service program of news commentary and analysis, which airs Monday through Friday at 7:30 p.m. on Ch. 28.

SPECIAL

CARMEN: THE DREAM AND THE DESTINY (50), 6:00 p.m. — Interweaves the tragic story of "carmen" by composer Georges Bizet with the rehearsals and preparation for the production of his work at the Hamburg State Opera House.

THE D.A. (28), 9:00 p.m. — Presents live debate featuring the six candidates for L.A. District Attorney. Program will be presented in press conference format with candidates questioned by panel of three political journalists.

FREE PRESS/FAIR TRIAL (4), 10:00 p.m. — "Is the First Amendment Unconstitutional?" An extensive examination of the apparent conflict between two Constitutional guarantees — a defendant's right of a fair trial and the journalist's right to freely report information about those criminal proceedings. Edwin Newman reports.

BILLY GRAHAM — TAIPEI & HONG KONG (9), 10:00 p.m.

FRED SANFORD (Redd Foxx) is angered by Lamont's change to African dress and customs in "Lamont Goes African," on NBC's "The Best of Sanford and Son," Wednesday at 9 p.m. Then, two nights later, it's Fred who seems ridiculous to Lamont; he's trying out to the senior Olympics on "Sanford and Son," at 9 p.m. Friday. Both repeat shows are on Ch. 4.

The BIBLE Says

J. T. Smith

MIRACLES HAVE CEASED #6

Of course, we are still in possession of the people in our congregation who need healing and also in possession of the $5000.00 that we offered for such a miracle being performed. In this article we want to answer an objection that is offered by our friends who believe in miraculous divine healing today.

We are often charged with being like the Pharisees of old whom Jesus told there would be no sign given them . . . or like the people in Corinth who were condemned for seeking a sign. I deny that we are in this category. Here's why.

1. God made His confirming miracle available for all unbelievers (Acts 19:11-12). Signs were given to convince the unbeliever. They were never refused to an honest searcher of truth.
2. Today the dodge is for those who put the modern miracle workers to the test that we are like the Pharisees. However as we have already stated, this is not true.
   a. John 6:31—They wanted to fill their bellies. This is not our aim.
   b. Matthew, John—They had seen many signs. We have seen none.
   c. Luke 23:8-12—Some wanted to see miracles only for "kicks." We want to see them, if real, for a godly purpose.
   d. Matthew 12:22-37—The Jews said Jesus worked by the power of the Devil. We know it was by the Holy Spirit.
   e. Therefore, we are not like the Pharisees. This is only a dodge.

Modern miracle workers deny the plain Bible statement that miracles have ceased. "Charity never faileth: but whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away. For we know in part, and we prophesy in part. But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away" (1 Cor. 13:8-10). Next week, we shall discuss these passages in detail.

CLARENCE KELLEY

J. EDGAR HOOVER

Q. How does Clarence Kelley, current head of the FBI, compare to J. Edgar Hoover? I realize comparisons are frequently invidious and based on opinion. Even so, I would like to know.—D. L., Media, Pa.

A. Sanford J. Ungar, author of "FBI," one of the most thoroughly researched books on the bureau and also one of the most objective, says that Hoover was "prejudiced and narrow-minded, overtly biased against black people." Hoover once promised that so long as he was head of the FBI, it would never have a black agent. He was also, according to Ungar, "intolerant of women in any but subservient positions." Hoover also conspired to break the law by countenancing burglaries, break-ins, and mail intercepts of organizations and people with whose politics he disagreed. Although Clarence Kelley worked under Hoover, he is of a different breed. Kelley is more honest, open, tolerant, understanding and democratic. To him has fallen the Herculean job of restructuring the morale, image and organization of the FBI. Under Hoover, the FBI was an authoritarian agency beyond the control of the Congress and in whose ranks men rose by virtue of sycophancy rather than merit. "FBI," by Sanford J. Ungar, is published by Atlantic Press-Little Brown.

Q. Is Chris Evert, the tennis star, suffering from a broken heart because Jimmy Connors dumped her for Marjorie Wallace?—P. T. Owens, North Las Vegas, Nev.

A. Last year Chris Evert won $323,977 in tennis tournament prize money. At 21 she held 16 major championships, had won 56 consecutive matches, was well-liked and widely respected. She is still 21, and while she may have lost Jimmy Connors as a sweetheart, such a loss may eventually prove a blessing. Connors is playing the field. No one woman deserves what he has to offer in charm, manners and intellect.

Q. Was the late Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery of World War II fame a practicing homosexual?—T. E. E., Berkeley, Cal.

A. There is no evidence that Montgomery was a practicing homosexual. He had an unhappy childhood, feuded with his mother, and when his wife passed away after 10 years of marriage, displayed relatively little need for other women. He was rude, brusque, cocky, domineering, emotionally immature, incapable of giving love. Montgomery felt that his mother had denied him love, and as he grew into manhood he never learned how to bestow it upon others. He was, however, friendly and sympathetic to junior officers, and this behavior stimulated rumors concerning his sex life. One of the most revealing and controversial books on Montgomery is "The Field Marshal," by Alun Chalfont.

Q. People say that the richest man in the South is a man named Claude Canada. Can you tell anything about him, or if there even is such a man?—Mary Lerner, New Orleans, La.

A. Claude Canada, 57, of Kimper, Ky., is owner of the Canada Coal Co. in Pike County. He is worth about $250 million, owns eight Rolls-Royces, a $2-million home, pays his employees a minimum of $50 a day, provides each of his foremen with a company Cadillac for personal use. He is one of the new so-called "Coal Multimillionaires."

PENNY AND CLAUDE CANADA

Q. How old are Gregory Peck and Bette Davis? I know they share birthdays.—Lena Harris Gould, Hickory, N.C.

A. Gregory Peck and Bette Davis are respectively 60 and 68. Peck was born April 5, 1916; Davis, April 5, 1908.

Q. I recall a Jimmy Carter who was a country and western singer. Is this the same Jimmy Carter who wants to be President of the U.S.?—Carol Trombly, Wyoming, Minn.

A. It is not. The Jimmy Carter who wants to become President is non-guitar-playing. He is in the peanut-farming business. He is also a good old country boy.

HUMPHREY BOGART AND THIRD WIFE, MAYO METHOT

Q. Is it true that the late Humphrey Bogart used to slap his wives around just so that he could get in a tough-guy mood?—Louise Richardson, Raleigh, N.C.

A. Bogart and his third wife, Mayo Methot, when alcoholically stimulated, would haul off at each other. After Bogie married Lauren Bacall in 1945, however, and she gave birth to two children, Stephen and Leslie, Bogart nipped less and softened his lifestyle.

Q. I wonder if you can tell me what happened to Sam Bowers, who used to be the Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan in Mississippi?—T.P., Laurel, Miss.

A. Samuel Bowers and six others were convicted by an all-white jury in 1967 of depriving citizens of their constitutional rights in the shooting to death in 1964 of three civil rights workers, Michael Schwerner, 23; James Chaney, 21, and Andrew Goodman, 20. Bowers was sentenced to a 10-year term in the federal penitentiary. This past March, after serving six years, Bowers was released from McNeil Island federal penitentiary in Washington. He was granted time off for good behavior and placed on probation.

Q. Bill Wyman, guitarist for the Rolling Stones, has been living with a Swedish chick for years. What's her name, where do they live, and is Wyman really 45?—Ann W., Darby, Pa.

A. Bill Wyman, 38, is a British tax exile, recently built a $750,000 home near Vence, in the South of France, where he lives with Swedish girlfriend Astrid Lundstrom.

Keeping Up...With Youth

by Pamela Swift

THE LOOK: BACK TO THE '50'S

Old-Time Elegance

The Teddy Boy cult of the jiving 1950's is the rave all over again in London. Each week thousands of ruck 'n' rollers show up at various dance halls wearing the type clothes their big brothers wore 20 years ago. The kids have fallen in love with what they call "the Teds look."

Read and Write

The Veterans Administration has a new booklet, "Home Buying Veteran," which explains all areas of concern to prospective home buyers.

If you're a veteran of World War II, the Korean war, or have service after Jan. 31, 1955, your GI loan rights are available until you use them, with no deadlines.

For a free copy of "Home Buying Veteran," write Consumer Information Center, Dept. 8, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Deaf Generation

If they keep listening to rock music, many such enthusiasts by age 70 will be more interested in hearing aids than music.

Rock music with a noise level which exceeds 104 decibels can lead to hearing loss.

This is why Julius Bloom of New York City's Carnegie Hall has forbidden any rock concert above that decibel level. Under this restriction, such groups as Led Zeppelin, Slade, Grand Funk Railroad, Rolling Stones, and Black Sabbath cannot make it at Carnegie.

The noise level in an average discotheque is the equivalent of a thunderstorm, and the noise generated by a live rock group is twice as loud. According to a study conducted by the Association of German Engineers, such music can lead to "permanent hearing defects or deafness."

Noise is measured by decibels and becomes detrimental to health when it crosses the 90-decibel range. Led Zeppelin in concert reportedly plays in the 123-decibel range and the Slade rock group in the 127-decibel range.

Female Dentists

There are 59 accredited dental schools in this country. Currently, 1861 women are enrolled in them. These women comprise 9% of the 20,767 pre-doctoral students in dental schools. This is more than twice the number two years ago.

In the past five years the number of women entering dental schools has increased more than sevenfold.

Exclusive of living costs, a first-year dental student spends somewhere between $4200 and $4600 on tuition, instruments, supplies, textbooks, and other fees.

Tuition costs for resident and non-resident dental students have jumped 68% and 62% respectively since 1970.

Protest Spreads

The protest songs of Joan Baez, Bob Dylan, and other American artists are getting young people in Czechoslovakia into serious trouble. A few weeks ago, 18 of them were arrested and charged with "rowdiness and disturbing the peace."

Those arrested were young writers, artists, students and members of pop groups singing for freedom, a dangerous theme in a Communist country.

In addition to the 18 who were arrested and threatened with three-year jail sentences, dozens of others have been interrogated in Prague, where house searches have resulted in the confiscation of Baez, Dylan, and other American recordings.

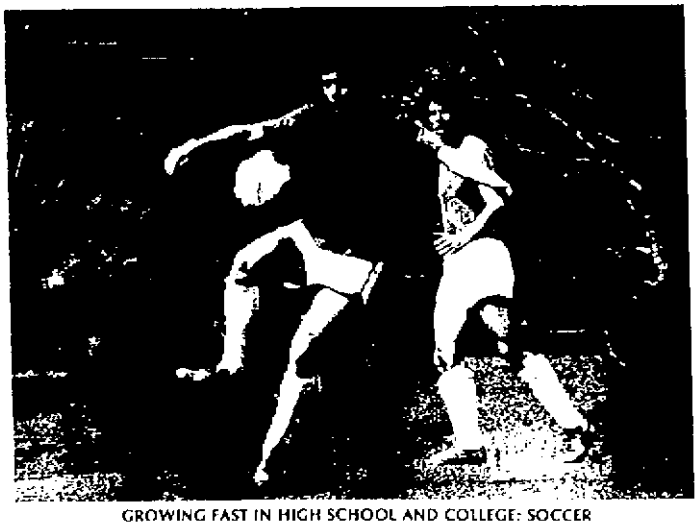

Traffic Victims

Children in Western Europe suffer a higher rate of traffic fatalities than those in the United States.

An average of 364 of every 100,000 children under age 15 in West Germany, for example, die annually in traffic accidents. In Great Britain the figure is 362 per 100,000.

Other countries whose traffic kills more than 200 children per 100,000 each year include Belgium (292), Austria (281), Switzerland (233), The Netherlands (216), and Denmark (212).

In the U.S. 160 children per 100,000 die on our streets and highways. And the statistics are even better in France (156), Italy (110), and Hungary (75).

GROWING FAST IN HIGH SCHOOL AND COLLEGE: SOCCER

Soccer Boom

At the secondary school and college levels, soccer is becoming one of the fastest-growing team sports in athletic programs.

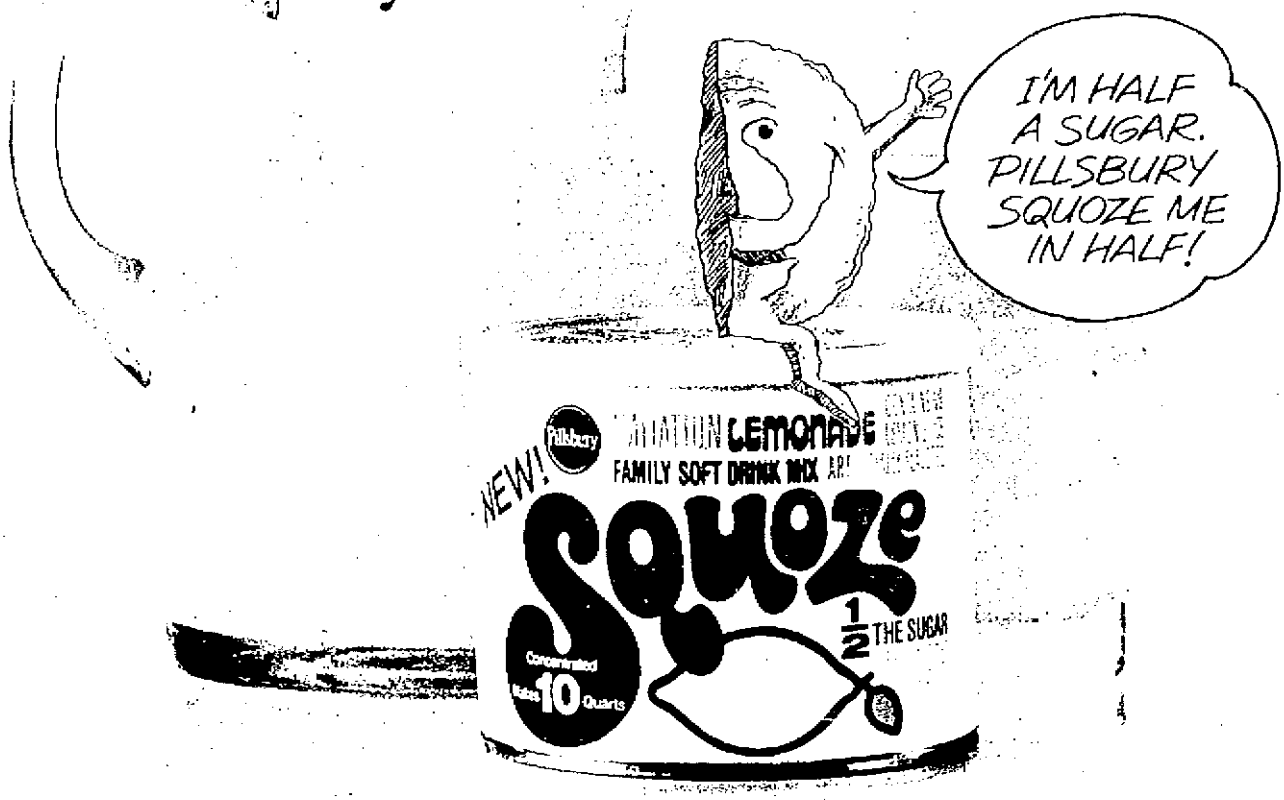

"Economics and safety have played key roles in soccer's popularity," says Bob Anderson, editor and publisher of Soccer World. "Many school boards have cut athletic budgets and added soccer, because it can be played without a lot of fancy, expensive equipment.

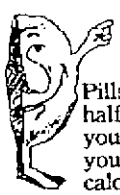

"Moreover," he adds, "soccer is safer than football. And one doesn't have to be a 210-pound strongman to play the game. Parents are enthusiastic about the sport because they know their kids are having a good time without getting killed."

Soccer is in its infancy in the U.S. but growing fast.

Introducing Squoze™

Pillsbury's new family drink mix with half the sugar.

Half the sugar makes sense for the whole family.

Pillsbury knew that a drink mix with just half the sugar would make a lot of sense for your entire family. Because while reducing your family's sugar intake, it would reduce calories, too. So we squoze sugar in half. Result: Squoze, with only half the sugar and half the calories of most pre-sweetened drink mixes.

Half the sugar means a lower price.

New Squoze has a much lower everyday price per quart than any other leading pre-sweetened drink mix. Because when we squoze out half the sugar, we squoze down the price.

Half the sugar means a smaller 10 quart can.

Sugar adds to bulk. So when we squoze out half the sugar, we squoze our can to about half the size of other 10 quart cans. It's easier to handle, easier to store and easier to keep more flavors on hand.

Half the sugar makes a great tasting all-family drink.

Grown-ups, teenagers, even kids will love new Squoze from Pillsbury. Because we squoze out half the sugar and came up with six delicious flavors: Lemonade, Cherry, Orange, Lemon-Lime, Grape and Punch. Take 20¢ off and introduce your family to the great taste of Squoze.

New York has been plastered with thousands of these posters heralding Moon's rally on June 1.

Here is the self-ordained Reverend Moon as he spoke behind a bullet-proof screen in New York's Madison Square Garden at a previous rally. He preached love while thousands of his followers were in the streets collecting money.

Sun Myung Moon: Prophet for Profit

by L. H. Whittemore

NEW YORK, N.Y.

Next Tuesday night in Yankee Stadium a pudgy, round-faced, 56-year-old evangelist from South Korea will launch his greatest effort to date to convince Americans that he has been chosen to lead us all to salvation.

The preacher is the self-ordained Rev. Sun Myung Moon who, since coming to this country, has added thousands of young Americans to his global army of followers, amassed a fortune that includes at least $50 million in property, publicly embraced a President of the United States—and been accused of brainwashing, misleading and virtually enslaving his converts. Moon's Yankee Stadium rally kicks off a national tour he calls the "Bicentennial God Bless America Festival."

To his followers, who are often called "Moon Children" or "Moonies," the persuasive Moon is "the third Adam, the next Jesus Christ, and the true parent of mankind"—a new Messiah who will, in the not too distant future, rule the world.

To many concerned American parents, however, he is a false prophet who has lured their children into his "Unification Church" by appealing to their idealistic instincts and then cut them off from their families and set them to work peddling, recruiting and raising money for him and his worldwide organization.

One Moonie who managed to escape from the movement is Ford Greene, 23-year-old godson of Sen. James Buckley (R.-Cons., N.Y.). Like thousands of others, Greene was hooked by attending a weekend workshop that was never outwardly identified as being part of the Moon organization, which has set up several front groups bearing names like the Collegiate Association for the Research of Principles and the Creative Community Project. Most are run by Moon followers brought from other countries to do recruiting here.

'Love-bombed'

Says Greene: "Anyone who goes for the weekend introductory program gets 'love-bombed.' That means all the Moonies are super-friendly. They say how glad they are to see you. Everyone laughs and sings and has a good time. I tell you, it's quite a trip.

"They tell you the Messiah is now here on Earth, and they hint very strongly that it's Moon. After listening to hours of lectures and never having a chance to think things over for yourself, you're ready to believe."

According to Jean Merritt, a psychiatric social worker in Lincoln, Mass., those who join up with Moon "are usually idealistic young men and women who are having difficulty deciding what to do with their lives." The cult offers an attractive alternative to the outside world, she says. But at the same time their "ego functioning is manipulated" by the group until they are "mentally imprisoned."

What is it that Moon followers are supposed to believe? Although Moon calls himself a Christian, he holds that Christ failed in his mission on Earth. In Korea, Moon was dismissed as a Presbyterian in 1948. Since then he has evolved his own religious concepts, including the assertion that "America has been chosen as the nation to receive the Messiah for ultimate world salvation in our century."

Moon, who delivers his public exhortations in Korean with an interpreter translating his words into English, asserts that God works through nations, as does Satan. America, being "God's nation," must be prepared to do battle for the Lord against the Soviet Union, Communist China and North Korea. The only way to win such a global confrontation, he indicates, is to join the Unification Church before it's too late —both God and Moon are losing their patience.

"Kings and queens and heads of state will someday bow at my feet," Moon has told his followers. "I will conquer and subjugate the world."

The Korean link

There is a link between Moon and the South Korean government. President Chung Hee Park not only gives Moon his open support but sends thousands of civil servants to an anti-Communist school run by the Unification sect. Moon's chief associate is Col. Bo Hi Pak, who was a military attaché for the South Korean government in Washington, D.C., from 1961 to 1964. Pak has also been associated with the Korean CIA.

Whatever Moon's beliefs and principles may be, there's no doubt that he has been able to turn them into hard cash. Although he claims to have between 2 and 3 million followers in 100 countries, principally Japan and South Korea, it's the United States that has really turned out to be a money machine for him.

"In 1975," reports Neil Salonen, 31, president of the American branch of the Unification Church, "we received nearly $12 million in cash at our national headquarters in New York City. But the total collected all over the country was much larger."

Moon and his movement have purchased $10 million worth of property in Tarrytown, N.Y., near the Hudson River, not to mention real estate in more than 100 cities and in every state. Minimum total value is put at $50 million. To acquire his 22-acre Belvedere estate in Tarrytown, Moon plunked down $850,000 in cash. He also paid $625,000 for a mansion in nearby Irvington, N.Y., where he lives with his fourth wife and their eight children. The cult also owns a 254-acre estate and seminary in Barrytown, N.Y., about 50 miles north of Tarrytown, which is said to be worth $1.5 million. The seminary is unofficial world headquarters for the Unification Church, whose spiritual home remains in Seoul, the South Korean capital. Moon also is the proprietor of two seagoing yachts and a Manhattan town house. His wealth has helped create a high-powered propaganda machine that would turn a Presidential candidate green with envy.

A numbing regimen

According to those who have managed to break loose from the cult, it has also created near prison-like conditions for the true believers.

Moonies live in homes rented or purchased by the Unification Church. According to Salonen, there are at least six "training" or "residential" centers in each state, some with just a few members and others with up to 100. Members are ordered to refrain from alcohol and sex. Men and women are separated in the living quarters and even close friendships are discouraged.

Former members of the cult insist that they never got more than five hours of sleep a night. Moonies, they report, are kept busy with a regimen of exercise, group discussion, lectures, songs and prayers, games like tag and, of course, long stretches of recruiting and peddling in the outside world. Beneath an exterior of cheerfulness, they are often tired, hungry and even numb, performing their tasks with only the thought that they are "saving the world for God and Moon" to keep them going.

The typical Moonie

The typical Moon disciple in the U.S. is a man or a woman, average age 23, from a white, upper-middle-class family. Many are college students disenchanted with American life. Most are carried away by the initial workshop experience, and then find that they're being put through increasingly lengthy training sessions.

Jaime Sheeran in her room at a Moon seminary. She's one of three daughters of New Jersey Insurance Commissioner James Sheeran who won't quit the cult.

"We'd get letters every week or so," says Mrs. George Swope of Port Chester, N.Y., referring to the time when her 19-year-old daughter suddenly dropped out of college after one of the cult's weekends. "She wrote how 'happy' she was but that she couldn't come home. And she never did come home either, until we got her out."

Her daughter, Winnie, left after six months, but only after being "rescued" by Ted Patrick, 45, the best-known practitioner of "deprogramming"—a rigorous technique of talking it out. Patrick is nicknamed "Black Lightning" by the Moon followers, both for the color of his skin and for his swift appearance in their lives. He claims to have "rescued" more than 1000 members of various cults, all of which, he says, use some sort of "brainwashing."

In a recent book called Let Our Children Go, Patrick accuses the Unification group of "brainwashing" methods like those used in the Korean war, "when many of our prisoners were subjected to intensive political indoctrination."

Virtually all former Moonies say that they were "programmed" to think and behave in a certain manner. "My daughter said that she and others would be willing to do anything for Moon," says Mrs. Swope, "because he really represents God to those in the cult."

"They completely ripped off my mind and my free will," says Denise Peskin, 21, of Plainview, N.Y. "I was a robot for Moon. My mind was empty. It was just a reflector of everything they told me."

'Eyes out of focus'

Denise says that she worked in San Francisco selling flowers and recruiting new members on the streets. "We were told to say anything to get money," she reports. "I pushed flowers for 'youth educational guidance' and did very well. I also got 50 recruits."

One of Moon's most ardent foes, Rabbi Maurice Davis of White Plains, N.Y., says he and a group of 900 concerned families have helped at least 95 Moonies out of the cult. "At first," he says, "the kids have their eyes out of focus, with plastic smiles on their faces. There's a total lack of genuine emotion. One boy saw me and actually shriveled into a corner in stark terror. He said the cult had told him I was the Devil. I kept talking to him, trying to get him to think for himself again. He said, 'Moon is fighting for my soul and so are you. How do I know where the truth is?' I told him, 'Moon wants you to stay in his organization. I want you out in the world, free.' When he finally snapped out of it, he broke into tears and said, 'Just tell me one thing—where have I been?' It was frightening."

Meanwhile, thousands of Moonies work unbelievably long hours soliciting funds and peddling candy, peanuts, flowers and the like, on street corners and in parking lots. Former members say they lost all track of time and that they collected no less than $100 a day.

Since April, 1973, Moon has had a permanent residency visa from U.S. immigration, even though questions have been raised about his past. He has been accused of holding sex orgies as part of his rites. A spokesman for him in Seoul says: "It is true that Teacher Moon was tried on morals charges, but he was eventually acquitted."

'God loves Nixon'

In 1973, during the Watergate crisis, Moon launched a huge campaign in support of President Nixon. He marshaled 1000 Moonies into rallies and marches with signs proclaiming "God Loves Nixon." At a White House meeting, the pudgy cult leader embraced the then President.

One of the few public responses to Moon by a prominent politician has come from Sen. Mark Hatfield (R., Oreg.), who said in 1974, "The appeal to nationalism of any country, as if somehow God has favorites among his creatures, is very, very dangerous, particularly when you mix that with the cultic adulation and devotion of his followers and the implicit, if not the explicit, statement that he [Moon] is the new Christ."

Hatfield's warning is echoed even more strongly by ex-Moonies who charge that Moon is really seeking world political power and is assembling an army of young zealots ready to die for him.

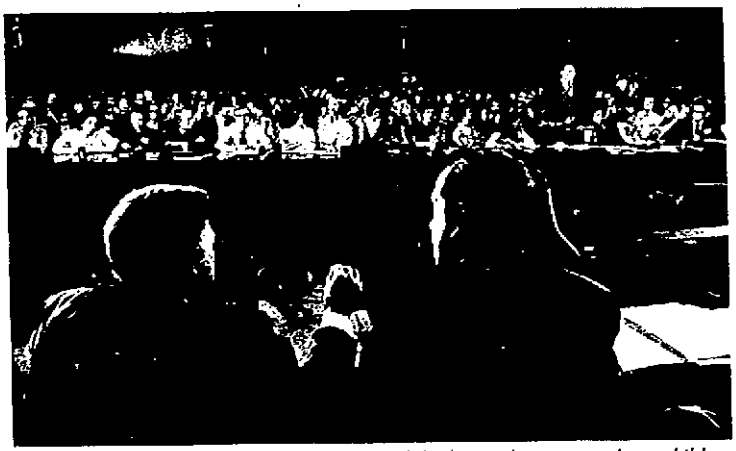

PARADE interviewed a former high-ranking member of Moon's cult in the United States who had been in charge of its "political arm" called the Freedom Leadership Foundation. Alan Tate Wood, 29, now a psychology student at Rutgers University in New Jersey, said that he left Moon's group "because it's not a church, but a fascist political movement. His group is the most powerful analogue to the Hitler youth that we have at this time."

The parents act

Last February, more than 300 parents of Moon disciples from 30 states converged on Washington for a meeting arranged by Sen. Robert Dole (R., Kan.). They met with representatives of the Internal Revenue Service, the Labor Department, the Postal Service, immigration authorities and others in hopes of persuading federal officials to investigate the Unification cult.

So far, however, there has been little action by the government. An IRS spokesman, Leon Levine, told PARADE that investigation of Moon's group as a tax-exempt organization poses a touchy, perhaps crucial problem: "The law says that churches are tax-exempt. The question is, when does a group qualify as a religion? It's not easy to answer."

Meanwhile, the Rev. Sun Myung Moon goes right on holding meetings, making converts, acquiring property and preparing for his own version of Armageddon.

Sens. James Buckley and Robert Dole listen while distraught parents whose children have joined Moon's Unification Church ask for a federal investigation of the cult.

If you are a smoker:

There are many reasons to smoke Now.

If you're a smoker who has been thinking about 'tar' and nicotine, these are the reasons to smoke Now.

Reason: Now has the lowest 'tar' and nicotine levels available to you in a cigarette, king-size or longer. 2 mg. 'tar', .2 mg. nicotine.

Reason: Now also gives you real smoking satisfaction. Mild and pleasant flavor. It comes in both filter and menthol.

Reason: Now draws free and easy for a cigarette so low in 'tar' and nicotine.

Reason: Only Now has the specially designed filter which makes all this possible.

Compare 'tar' numbers. You'll see that 2 mg. is the lowest of all king-size cigarettes.

You couldn't ask for better reasons to smoke Now.

Now. 2mg 'tar' is lowest.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

THE HEIMLICH MANEUVER: TWO WAYS TO SAVE YOURSELF IF YOU CHOKE ON FOOD.

THE HEIMLICH MANEUVER—SOLO

If a person is alone and starts to choke on food, how can he or she dislodge the food?

Dr. Henry Heimlich of Cincinnati, developer of the Heimlich bear-hug maneuver which PARADE first brought to public attention in September, 1974, suggests the following:

Make a fist with one hand. Place it thumbside against your abdomen, slightly above the navel but below the rib cage. With your other hand, press the fist in and up in sharp, thrusting moves.

Another method is to drape yourself across the back of a chair or press your abdomen against a porch rail or any similar object so that the air is forced out of your lungs and up the throat to shake loose the piece of food which is lodged there.

Dr. Heimlich reports that he knows of 16 persons--the youngest 10, the oldest 85--who have saved themselves from choking to death by the above two methods.

AGE IN THE SENATE

Has the U.S. Senate become a haven for old-timers?

John L. McClellan (D., Ark.) is 80. John Sparkman (D., Ala.) is 76. James Eastland (D., Miss.) is 71. John Stennis (D., Miss.) is 74. Clifford Case (R., N.J.) is 72. Jacob Javits (R., N.Y.) is 72. Stuart Symington (D., Mo.) is 75. Roman Hruska (R., Nebr.) is 71. Michael Mansfield (D., Mont.) is 73. Carl Curtis (R., Nebr.) is 71. Hugh Scott (R., Pa.) is 75.

Many of these men plan to retire. The average age of a Senator at present is 56.8; the average age on taking office is 45.

CHAMPAGNE'S OPS AND DOWNS

The French are drinking champagne as if there were no tomorrow, but the bubbly-bubbly is not doing too well in other countries.

Statistics released by the French Champagne Trade Association reveal the biggest export losses suffered last year were to Great Britain and Italy.

For 200 years, Great Britain has been France's best customer abroad. Last year it slipped to third place, behind Belgium and Italy. Two years ago, before the recession really hit, the British downed more than 10 million bottles of champagne. Last year they consumed little more than 3 million.

The U.S.A. is France's fourth-largest customer for champagne, taking 2.8 million bottles last year, just ahead of West Germany, in fifth place with 2.2 million.

Of the 122 million bottles France produced in 1975, the French consumed 94 million.

Nigeria, one of Africa's leading oil producers, has become the fastest-growing market abroad for French champagne. In 1974 the Nigerians ordered 260,000 bottles. Last year they quadrupled consumption.

POSTAL SERVICE SCORES ONE

The U.S. Postal Service has made an amazing discovery--that the National Rifle Association, which is dead set against gun control, is a lobbying outfit. It is not primarily a nonprofit organization that is mostly educational, scientific or philanthropic.

Were it such an organization, it would be entitled to preferential second- and third-class postal rates.

In 1974, Darwin Sharp, director of mail classification for the Postal Service, ruled and was upheld this year by Administrative Judge William Duvall that the National Rifle Association did not qualify for preferential treatment on the basis of educational activity.

Last year the NRA, an organization which is 105 years old and boasts 950,000 dues-paying members ($10 a year), mailed out 12 million letters at cut-rate postage, which in effect amounts to a taxpayers' subsidy of the gun lobby.

From now on, instead of paying 1.8 cents for each two-ounce letter, the National Rifle Association will have to pay 7.9 cents.

"It will cost us," says one NRA spokesman, "an additional one million bucks in postage."

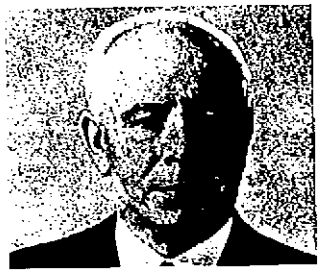

However one feels about gun control, it's about time the Postal Service accurately applied its mail classification system. The people in this country who object to what the NRA stands for should not subsidize its lobbying.

LEONID BREZHNEV

NIKOLAI PODGORNY

PACEMAKERS FOR SOVIET LEADERS

This past April, Charles F. Cuddihy Jr., a vice president of Medtronic, a corporation based in Minneapolis, suggested to a reporter the likelihood that Soviet leaders Brezhnev and Podgorny were each wearing a Medtronic heart pacemaker.

As soon as the news broke in The New York Times, Medtronic officials were queried by other newsmen as to how the company could be sure about Brezhnev and Podgorny.

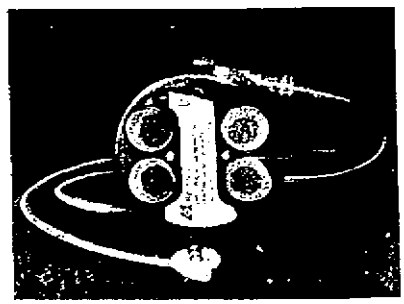

Medtronic issued a statement explaining that since 1960 it had sold thousands of pacemakers and had kept follow-up records on patients. But this procedure was impossible on sales to the Soviets since an agent was used for the transaction. Medtronic therefore could not determine the identity of the Soviet recipients.

It has long been held that Brezhnev was equipped with a heart pacemaker several years ago. France Soir was the first to break the news, which the Soviets have never denied, but Podgorny's wearing of a heart pacemaker has yet to be confirmed.

Medtronic, Inc., introduced a heart pacemaker in 1958. Today approximately 300,000 people have a miniature pacemaker, half the size of a pack of cigarettes, implanted under the skin near their shoulders or their abdomens. Alfred Hitchcock, Curt Jurgens, Henry Fonda...the list of pacemaker-wearers is a lengthy one.

The most popular of the pacemakers, powered by mercury-zinc batteries, cost about $1300 each and must be renewed every four or five years. The latest nuclear models, powered by plutonium-238 batteries, last at least 10 years. They sell for $5000.

If Brezhnev and Podgorny wear heart pacemakers, it's an even-money bet that they carry within them the nuclear models or soon will.

A MEDTRONIC HEART PACEMAKER

How Candice Walker got Slender and stayed Slender.

Candice Walker's thick, auburn hair falls softly to her shoulders. Her eyes are sky blue. She has the cheekbones of a model. She has the figure of a model—almost. Yet Candice once weighed 220 pounds and rarely went outside her house.

Today, Candice, who's 5'7" tall, weighs 137 pounds. Her waist measures 26," not 39"; her hips are 37," not 48" Instead of a matronly 40" bustline, she's a trim 34B.

Candice did it with Slender* diet food and sensible portions of solid foods. It took 14 months. But Candice is a realist. She'd spent half her life putting it on.

"I tried lots of diets before Slender but I couldn't stay on them. I tried pills but they made me climb the walls. I screamed at everybody I was so nervous.

"You see my downfall was that I loved things like ice cream and milk shakes...so when I finally found Slender it was like a thick, creamy shake to me. I prefer Slender powder because you can shake it up. I put in the milk and a couple of ice cubes and shake it until it becomes thick and foamy. Then I sip it with a straw. I varied my Slender diet with solid foods. Sometimes I'd have nothing but Slender for 3 or 4 days. Then I'd start off with a light breakfast, Slender for lunch, and a salad and lean meat for dinner. After a week or so, I'd go back to Slender again for 3 or 4 meals a day. Yet I never think of Slender as a diet; it's more of a newfound way of eating—for my newfound life. My friends see me in the store and say—'Gee, you've REALLY lost the weight,' and they look in my shopping cart and say, 'I see you buy Slender.' I say, 'Yes, it's my favorite pal. I have it in the kitchen at all times. I put it in my purse, I take it to work with me.'

"Today I wear a size 11 or even a 9 in some clothes," says Candice, "and I used to take a size 34½. I look great in my clothes and I know it. When I'm walking down the street, men look at me. I'll admit it—it makes me feel great! I feel like a woman again!

"I'm not rich. I'm not famous. But I want to make some kind of mark in this world that says I've been here. I could be an entertainer, a country rock singer, even a face model. If I can lose 83 pounds I can do anything!"

Candice knows the hardest part is keeping it off. "Oh sure, every now and then I consume large quantities of sweets for 2 or 3 days. Then I get out my Slender and say, ok, pal, let's get together and take off those two or three pounds. That's the trick...never gain more than 5 pounds back or you're done. And I've only varied from 135 to 137 in three years. So I'm proud of myself for keeping it off.

"Slender's worked for me, and I say anybody can do it."

Candice Walker is a real Slender success story. And it all started the day she decided to pick up Slender at her market—and stayed with it. You can do the same. Just get Slender, and get started.

Kissinger and Reagan With Their Nancys

Secretary of State Kissinger and ex-California Gov. Ronald Reagan with their supportive wives in California. Both women are attractive, well-educated, well-bred and complement their husbands. Nancy Kissinger is 41, Nancy Reagan is 53.

Kissinger Strikes Back

by Lloyd Shearer

PALM SPRINGS, CAL.

Given the proper set of circumstances, basically time and format, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger does not "exclude the possibility" of debating Ronald Reagan on foreign affairs.

Reagan, former Governor of California, has made Henry Kissinger the leading issue in his race for the Republican Presidential nomination. And because of that the Secretary of State has taken umbrage. He is therefore willing to debate Reagan, he told PARADE in a recent poolside conversation here, "providing I have the time and some reasonable ground rules can be set out."

What the Secretary of State envisions is a question-and-answer format, similar to "Meet the Press" or other TV programs in which three or four knowledgeable journalists ask questions of the two guests. What Kissinger wants to avoid is a "stand-up debate" in which he and Reagan simply make speeches and refutations.

The secretary expects that any confrontation between him and Reagan would merit national coverage by the TV networks. He realizes, of course, that Reagan is the most professional and experienced political performer on TV today. Reagan understands the medium perfectly. Does he understand foreign policy as well?

Reagan has argued that Kissinger has cozied up to the Soviets, that Kissinger is reconciled to accepting the Soviet Union as the world's No. 1 superpower with the U.S. playing No. 2. He has accused Helmut Sonnenfeldt, Kissinger's expert on East-West affairs, of playing into Soviet hands by espousing a doctrine which in effect betrays the Eastern satellite nations. Reagan has said flatly that he would not retain Kissinger in his Cabinet. And he has, in his campaign speeches, charged the Ford Administration with opening a credibility gap by not telling the American people of the Ford-Kissinger intention to negotiate "the giveaway of the [Panama] Canal."

Reagan's TV speech

On March 31 this year, in a nationwide TV address, Reagan declared: "The Canal Zone is not a colonial possession. It is not a long-term lease. It is sovereign U.S. territory every bit the same as Alaska and all the states that were carved from the Louisiana Purchase. We should end those negotiations and tell the general [Torrijos]: 'We bought it, we paid for it, we built it, and we intend to keep it.' "

It has long been known that James Schlesinger, former Secretary of Defense, has been advising Reagan on U.S.-Soviet defense postures, providing Reagan with accurate information and analysis.

Who has been advising Reagan on the Panama Canal and Panamanian history is another matter. Supposedly Reagan's adviser is Phillip Harman, 55, a California businessman self-described as an "anti-Communist fanatic" who claims he is the "grandson-in-law of the founder of the Republic of Panama."

Harman is associated with Arnulfo Arias, 74, who was overthrown three times as President of Panama and would like a fourth incumbency.

Kissinger does not particularly mind Reagan's calling for his removal as much as he minds Reagan's conversion of the very "delicate Panama negotiations" into a political football.

"If Reagan keeps inciting hawkish audiences with his demagoguery," Kissinger asserts, "he is not being particularly helpful to this country. We have a touchy situation in Panama, and no one should be trigger-happy unless he relishes a military involvement or a guerrilla war. One should be sure of his facts before he uses the Panama Canal for political campaign rhetoric."

Ronald Reagan is not a scholarly man, but he is surely a fair and honorable one. And he must certainly know that the U.S. relationship with Panama is one of the shabbiest, most shameful, unfair episodes in our history.

When he declaims, "We should tell Panama's tinhorn dictator just what he can do with his demands for sovereignty over the canal. We bought it, we paid for it, and they can't have it," he is plainly inviting war; he is stimulating the antagonism of all Latin America; he is advocating the continuity of flagrant unfairness, or he is acting irresponsibly with jingoism designed to advance his political objectives.

Offer to French

The truth is that in 1902 the U.S. began to negotiate for a canal across the Isthmus of Panama, then owned by Colombia. President Teddy Roosevelt offered the French Panama Canal Co. $40 million for its rights and property, providing Colombia would cede a strip of canal land for a U.S. payment of $10 million.

When Colombia asked for an additional $15 million, the French company, encouraged by the U.S., promptly promoted a revolution, led by Philippe Jean Bunau-Varilla. He took over Panama while Roosevelt ordered the U.S. Navy to prevent Colombia from sending troops to Panama. Later, Roosevelt proudly declared: "I took Panama."

On Nov. 3, 1903, Panama proclaimed its independence. On Nov. 6, the U.S. recognized Panama. On Nov. 18, a treaty between the U.S. and Panama was signed by Secretary of State Hay and Bunau-Varilla, giving the U.S. the right to build an Isthmian canal.

Under the treaty we paid $10 million to Panama, not for territory—as we paid for the purchase of Louisiana and Alaska—but for treaty rights. We paid $10 million for a 10-mile-wide strip of land, plus $250,000 a year, increased to $430,000 in 1936 and $1.9 million in 1955.

Help to J. P. Morgan

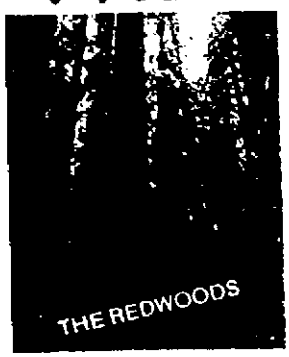

It was the most obvious of U.S. imperialist adventures and recognized as such throughout the world.

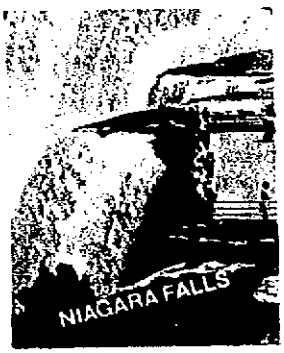

In financial circles it was also known that one of Teddy Roosevelt's contributory motives in helping Panama secede from Colombia was to prevent the banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. from losing $40 million.

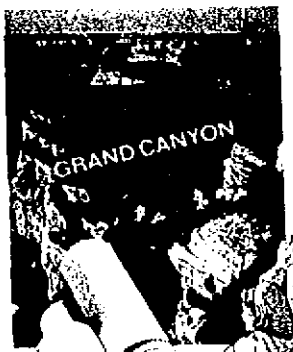

"Had President Theodore Roosevelt negotiated his treaty with Colombia," an editorial in the Christian Science Monitor recently pointed out, "the French Panama Canal Co. charter would have lapsed and its stock would have been worthless. Roosevelt, by choosing to get his canal through instant revolution rather than slower negotiation, saved the $40 million for J. P. Morgan

"Yawl" come. With sails billowing and ensigns fluttering, a proud armada of square-rigged windjammers from 30 countries will parade up New York's Hudson River in Operation Sail, a seagoing bicentennial event on July 4. Some 225 classic sailing vessels, including stately brigs, brigantines, barques, and schooners, will be saluted by modern men-of-war from the U.S. and 33 foreign nations.

Other bicentennial celebrations recommended by the new Mobil Travel Guide: a dance festival and "colonial" sound-and-light show in Philadelphia and an encampment of real covered wagons in nearby Valley Forge State Park. There'll be Italian lawn bowling, and Greek bouzouki music at ethnic festivals in Baltimore, and tin lizzies at a Sistersville, W. Va., antique auto show. You can watch a muzzle-loading firearms contest in Logansport, Ind., or squint through the smoke of a mock 18th-century battle in Dearborn, Mich.

"I'M GIVING A LITTLE BICENTENNIAL DINNER PARTY. I'D LIKE A BOTTLE OF RED WINE, A BOTTLE OF WHITE WINE, AND A BOTTLE OF BLUE NUN."

Energy savings. They can be substantial in summer. Surprisingly, though, fewer than one in ten buyers bother to inquire how much electricity their new appliances use, says a recent Roper Report. Yet, the hourly operating cost of comparable-size air conditioners, for example, can vary as much as 65%. More air-conditioning savings come from keeping shades pulled down. Even a standard light-colored, opaque roller shade admits roughly half the heat of an unshaded window, according to an Illinois Institute of Technology study.

From Stewart Udall, Secretary of the Interior under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson and now a private environmental consultant: "The scapegoating of the oil industry—saying that if it would just straighten up and fly right, the problem would go away—appalls me. Two years after the Arab embargo, two-thirds of the American people still do not believe there is a serious long-term energy crisis." And getting worse every year, we might add. Because of inadequate encouragement of new energy production in the U.S., America now leans on foreign countries for more than two-fifths of the oil it uses.

Reagan charges Ford and Kissinger with "giving away" the Panama Canal to a "tinhorn dictator," Gen. Omar Torrijos, shown above surrounded by his officers. By raising this charge, Reagan forces Ford to delay negotiating an agreement with Torrijos and makes a guerrilla war against the U.S. almost inevitable.

& Co. That was the value of the stock of the old company whose charter was about to expire."

The French Panama Canal Co. had previously contributed $60,000 to the Republican party. In those days foreign contributions to U.S. political parties were more than welcome. No doubt Roosevelt was influenced by the French largesse.

Understandably, constantly expanding Panamanian nationalism has caused anti-U.S. riots in the Canal Zone. This is why Kissinger, more than a year ago, assigned veteran troubleshooter Ellsworth Bunker to help negotiate a new treaty with Panama—a treaty in which both nations would share operation and defense of the canal. In 1970 canal profits totaled $175 million. Panama received only $1.9 million, a little more than 1 percent on its major resource.

What does Reagan suggest we do in Panama?

Kissinger says: "Reagan has plenty of complaints but no alternatives." Destructive criticism without constructive alternatives is what irks the secretary.

Kissinger recognizes the Reagan technique of firing up his audiences by calling for Kissinger's removal from office. Yet he recognizes, too, that Reagan studiously refrains from saying anything too bellicose which might equate the former actor with the let's-bomb-them-back-to-the-Stone-Age mentality of Gen. Curtis Lemay, Barry Goldwater or George Wallace. In his political campaign speeches, Reagan punches hard then deftly retreats, an excellent technique.

This is not to say that Ronald Reagan has no cause to call Kissinger to account for his conduct of foreign policy. Kissinger is vulnerable on many counts.

George Ball, Under Secretary of State in the Kennedy and Johnson Administrations, charges that Henry K's personal brand of diplomacy has reduced U.S. ambassadors to briefcase-carriers, set back diplomacy 300 years, and immobilized the entire U.S. foreign policy apparatus.

Other Kissinger detractors accuse him of fouling up the Turkey-Cyprus war, the U.S. intervention in Cambodia, the India-Pakistan war, and criticize his step-by-step peace brokerage in the Middle East. They fault him for losing Angola to the Communists, Chile to the military, and for his general lack of openness and candor.

No one denies Ronald Reagan the right to make Henry Kissinger his main campaign issue. Perhaps Kissinger deserves it, or Reagan can find no other issue of such responsiveness and reward.

In fairness, however, Reagan should be willing to meet the Secretary of State side-by-side or face-to-face and in a question-and-answer session, explain to the nation how he would approach and possibly solve or implement the solution of our foreign policy problems.

Kissinger, if he has the time, is willing to appear with Reagan and submit to a battery of inquiring reporters. The next move is Reagan's.

If the former Governor of California says yes, it should make for a fascinating program.

Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker has been working more than a year to effect a fair and workable treaty with Panama.

If You Have Feminine Itching...

A doctor-tested medication can now bring you prompt temporary relief.

Many women think they are "alone" in suffering from external feminine itching. But this is an extremely common condition among both married and unmarried women.

Now, however, there is a creme medication, called Vagisil,® which is specifically formulated to help stop external feminine itching almost instantly.

Vagisil leaves a cooling, protective film to help check bacteria, soothe irritated membranes and so speed natural healing.

Doctor-tested, Vagisil Creme Medication needs no prescription. Greaseless and non-staining, it's also delicately scented. Available in feminine hygiene sections everywhere. Or if you would like a sample, just send 25¢ to Vagisil, Box 328PX, White Plains, New York 10604.

New Help for the Allergic

by Lawrence Galton

Sneezing, runny nose and watery eyes are signs of hay fever caused by wind-borne pollen; Scientists are learning more about this and other allergies and are working on a pill to stop allergies before they start.

With more than 31 million American victims, allergy ailments rank as the No. 1 cause of chronic discomfort. Each year, they're responsible for children missing 9 million days of school and adults 9½ million days of work.

Now, medical developments promise better relief for many and, in some cases, relief not possible before.

HAY FEVER. While ragweed pollen is the major offender, other wind-pollinated grasses, trees and weeds also bring on attacks for which victims spend hundreds of millions of dollars a year on antihistamines, decongestants, other medications and injections.

Is there another way?

A four-months-a-year, 20-year victim, Dr. Donald J. Dalessio, a neurologist at the Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation, La Jolla, Cal., surveyed all treatments and arrived at his own.

Each morning on awakening during his hay fever season, he applies a tiny amount of a potent cortisone-like cream—either flumethasone, 0.03%, or fluocinonide, 0.05%—with his fifth finger to the mucous membrane lining of his nose, then snuffs vigorously to inhale the cream farther into nasal passages. At night he repeats the process and adds a six-milligram bedtime dose of an antihistamine, Polaramine, as a special aid during the night when pollen counts rise and the drug's sedative effects are not unwelcome.

The results: gratifying—an occasional sneeze, sometimes a bit of tickling, but almost complete elimination of paroxysmal sneezing and great reduction of nasal discharge.

In reporting to doctors, Dr. Dalessio emphasizes there has been no large-scale, scientifically controlled study; his personal treatment just works for him; it may work for others.

Asthma drug for hay fever

Meanwhile, Mayo Clinic investigators have another hopeful finding. Cromolyn sodium, a new drug for preventing asthma attacks, might do the same for hay fever. Mayo investigators chose 26 sufferers for a trial. Half inhaled cromolyn powder three times a day; the others inhaled inert powder. No question about it—especially in the most highly allergic—cromolyn led to a substantial reduction in severity of symptoms.

FOOD ALLERGIES. Many people thought to be "neurotic" may, in fact, be suffering from food allergy, according to a report early this year by Dr. Frederic Speer of the Speer Allergy Clinic, Shawnee Mission, Kan., in the American Family Physician, the publication of the American Academy of Family Physicians.

Food allergies can produce such varied symptoms as constipation, diarrhea, diffuse abdominal pain, nasal and bronchial congestion, headache, foul breath, eczema, sweating, tension and fatigue.

Dr. Speer reports that by far the chief offenders are: cow's milk, chocolate, cola, corn, eggs, the pea family (chiefly peanut, which is not a nut), citrus fruits, tomatoes, wheat and other small grains, cinnamon and artificial food colors.

The only treatment for food allergy is avoidance of offending foods. To find out what they are, Dr. Speer recommends "elimination and challenge." If two or more foods are suspect, they are removed from the diet for three weeks. Then, one is returned to the diet; later, at two-day intervals, the others are reintroduced. If only one food is suspect, it is similarly removed for three weeks.

If symptoms improve with a suspected food out of the diet then reappear when the food is added again, the blame is clear.

ASPIRIN SENSITIVITY. Valuable though it is, aspirin is not well tolerated by almost 1 percent of the population. But if you're allergic to other things, your chances are increased.

In a recent study, 1.4 percent of those with allergic rhinitis, or nasal congestion, also proved to be sensitive to aspirin. And the rate was still higher —3.8 percent—among asthmatics.

Curiously, in asthmatics, the predominant reaction to aspirin is bronchial spasm, such as occurs in an asthma attack. But in rhinitis sufferers, it's hives. In the general population not otherwise allergic, the symptoms of aspirin intolerance are about equally divided between bronchial spasm and hives.

For the aspirin-sensitive, trouble can be avoided by use of an aspirin substitute such as acetaminophen.

THE CULPRITS IN CLOTHES. A growing number of persons recently have been found to suffer itching and rash caused by formaldehyde used in crease-resistant fabrics.

After analyzing 112 samples, Dr. William F. Schorr of the Marshfield (Wis.) Clinic has found that fabrics with the highest concentrations of free formaldehyde are 100% rayon, 100% cotton, 65% dacron-35% cotton, and 50% polyester-50% cotton. Those with the least: 100% polyester knit and 100% orlon acrylic.

Rash from rubber elastic in undergarments is not uncommon. But physicians at the Medical College of Virginia, Richmond, recently were puzzled by a series of patients with similar rash but without sensitivity to the elastic. The solution was the discovery that laundry bleach action on elastic produces a chemical that may cause allergy. The cure is simple: Wear underwear without elastic or wash without bleach.

SOME STRANGE SENSITIVITIES. When someone breaks out with hives—not because of allergy to foods, inhalants or chemicals—what can the problem be? Cold hypersensitivity is a possibility.

At the National Jewish Hospital and Research Center, Denver, investigators have found that ice cream may cause lips to swell and hives to develop. Likewise, hands puff up and hives appear when a cold object is gripped, or a swimmer in cold water may develop hives or lose consciousness.

The cold investigators report good results in treatment with an antihistamine compound, cyproheptadine.

Why do some people sensitive to poison ivy, poison oak or poison sumac break out in a rash, even a whole body rash, when they haven't been exposed to any of the poison plants?

Physicians at the Hitchcock Clinic, Hanover, N.H., finally found the problem: raw cashew nuts. When roasted, cashews may produce no reaction, but raw they contain a shell oil that is similar to the oleoresin that produces the rash from poison plants.

Nerves or allergy?

When a child develops a barking, dry cough and no physical cause can be found, must it be psychogenic, or "nervous"? It may be allergic in nature.

An example: A 10-year-old girl who coughed every 15 to 30 seconds wasn't helped by medication and coughed more when tense or excited (making it seem especially likely that the coughing was "nervous").

When, however, tests showed sensitivity to molds and house dust, allergy treatment eliminated the cough.

ON THE HORIZON. If current promising work continues to yield results, allergy sufferers may have something almost ideal to look forward to.

At the University of California School of Medicine, San Diego, Dr. Robert N. Hamburger and a medical team have identified and produced a fragment of protein, pentapeptide, that may occupy the site on body cells that allergens, or allergy-causing materials, use.

The pentapeptide, arriving there first, can usurp the sites so that when allergens come, they have no place to lodge and may thus be swept away by normal body-cleansing processes.

More testing is needed, but in early trials the compound has worked without undesirable side effects. If tests continue to be rewarding, this protein particle could be the way toward an easy anti-allergy treatment—a pill to stop allergies before they start.

The United States of America Bicentennial Gold Piece

(Illustrated 1½ times actual size.)

NOW EVERY AMERICAN has the opportunity to possess an historic Gold Piece. It has been more than 40 years since Americans have been able to acquire a gold piece for just $20. Containing lasting values and issued during the year of our nations 200th Anniversary, it will be much-sought after by future generations who will not have this opportunity.

This important gold piece is being struck and issued by the Columbia Mint in .500 fine gold. Each piece will measure 18 mm in diameter and will weigh 2.31 grams. The face of the gold piece portrays the proud American Eagle poised ready for flight into the future. The other side honors our first president, George Washington.

LIMITED EDITION—RARE PROOF FINISH

The gold pieces are being issued in a strictly controlled limited edition with the final minting taking place on July 4, 1976—two hundred years to the day of the birth of our nation. After that day no further pieces will be struck. The special dies used for the minting of these gold pieces will be retired and presented to The Smithsonian Institution for permanent safe-keeping along with a record of each purchasers name.

Each gold piece, struck with a flawless Proof finish, will be accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity—forever attesting to its rarity and limited edition status.

A GOLD PIECE OF HEIRLOOM VALUE

To possess this important gold piece for just $20. during our nation's bicentennial is an opportunity unequaled in our time. The United States of America Bicentennial Gold Piece is certain to be among the most prized and treasured possessions of those families which act in time to acquire it. A possession to be passed on to future generations with pride.

ACT NOW

This historic collector's gold piece is being issued in a single, strictly limited edition with a restriction of two gold pieces per family. The total number of pieces issued will be permanently limited to the number of orders accepted and received postmarked by July 4, 1976 with the final day of shipment taking place within 30 days of that date. Due to the inflationary pressure on the price of gold, the Mint reserves the right to withdraw this offer before July 4, 1976, should it become necessary. To be sure of receiving your gold piece—send your order now to The Columbia Mint, 1709 New York Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

my favorite jokes

by ed bluestone

EDITOR'S NOTE: You might say that life for Ed Bluestone has a strong casual component. He says: "I was adopted. My father got me from this place that gives kids to anyone who belongs to a union. And my mother, she had one weird sense of humor. When I lost my baby teeth, she said: 'That's it! Soup the rest of your life!'"

There were times, though, when Ed was growing up that his parents enjoyed making real sacrifices for his sake. "My parents were always overprotective. I mean, for my benefit they joined a swim club without a pool. It had 600 deck chairs around a fire hydrant."

Bluestone has entertained at Catch a Rising Star and The Improvisation in New York, and on TV's Griffin, Douglas, and Carson shows.

Here then is Ed Bluestone:

I can never con anyone. I saw this guy selling chestnuts the other day. I tried to get a free one. I told him I was reviewing him for Chestnut magazine. He points to a squirrel and says: "I'd like to help ya but the boss is watching."

I've cut back on a lot of things. Dog food's expensive. I started to feed my dog plant food. He got used to it. Spends his days looking for sunlight.

People are nuts. They adopt orphans. It's bad luck to have an orphan in your house. Look, he became an orphan once, he may do it again!

Actually I have no rapport with kids. I was in Florida last week. I sent my nephew two baby alligators. He threw them in a blender and tried to make Gatorade. One time I gave him an ant farm. He hired an anteater to manage it.

Saw my old girlfriend yesterday. Ronda the Cruel. It's strange—you haven't seen a girl in a year and she greets you with: "Make it short!" She broke up with me on the beach last year. I let her bury me up to my neck. Then she put a pail on my head and ran away.

Breakups are rough. What happens is I get depressed and start eating out alone. I go to restaurants we used to go to, try to relive everything for half the price. When you break up, you should just push the person out of your mind. I always dwell on it. I start picturing her with her new boyfriend doing the same things we used to do—eating with my parents. They liked the new guy better than me.

Women leave me for terrible reasons. My last girlfriend broke up with me so she could devote more time to helping her sister move. Another girl left me so she could study for a civil service test.

I had a pen pal in prison. He broke up with me. The guy's in solitary; he told me he didn't have time to write.

I had a great high school girlfriend, Esther Feiffer. Very quiet, passive girl. Quiet girls are great at certain things. Esther was a cheerleader for the golf team. She led the crowd going, "Sh, Sh."

I have a new girlfriend now, a nurse who's a kleptomaniac. She took 40 thermometers from the hospital. We use them to mix drinks.

She's filled my house with ridiculous things. She brought over a faulty cuckoo clock. Cuckoo comes out late and says, "I'm sorry, I fell asleep."

My sister's a Vassar graduate. Super-sophisticate. Used to drive with her legs crossed.

"Frankly, you've got us stumped. Mind if we call in a general practitioner?"

Citizen's Band radio is turning out to be the biggest thing in personal communications since the telephone. If you haven't had CB installed in your car yet, the chances are that you will within the next year or two. Its contributions to safety, security and convenience while driving are too valuable to ignore.

CB, in case you haven't heard, enables you to communicate with other cars, with police, even with your home. Many trucks are equipped with CB so drivers can keep instantly abreast of road conditions and problems ahead. Now ordinary motorists are taking up CB, both for safety and fun.

A CB radio is easy to install and use with the help of a handy book called CB Radio: A Complete Guide. Written in clear, understandable language by Len Buckwalter, an expert in the field, it tells how CB radio can help you meet and avoid road emergencies.

It tells you where you can get CB equipment, what the buyer should look for, and how to install and operate your set. It tells you how to get your CB license form and contains a complete copy of the FCC rules and regulations you're required to know.

CB Radio: A Complete Guide has a glossary of CB operators' lingo you'll hear along the highway. There's even a special listing of truckers' terms, which should add to your enjoyment and understanding as you drive.

This book, fully illustrated and bargain-priced for PARADE readers at $1.50 plus 25¢ postage and handling, tells you everything you need to know about CB and can help you start operating your own set very quickly and at minimal cost. CB is the country's fastest-growing highway accessory. Let this helpful book put it into your life.

Fast Set | Slow Set | Snooze/Alarm Set | Alarm On/Off

"Beep-Tone" alarm is loud enough to wake you, but so gentle it doesn't jangle your nerves. Large, readable LED display shows hours and minutes — colon flashes to indicate seconds. Small dot in upper left of display indicates PM operation, and flashes (with "Beep-Tone," if alarm is set) to signal incorrect time if there has been a power failure. Hidden easy-access controls give cabinet a modern, streamlined look. 24-hour setting, 10-minute snooze button. 2½x4x4½". For 120 VAC. U.L. listed.

RADIO SHACK POLICY ON ADVERTISED ITEMS

During the normal or stated life of this ad, we intend to have every item in every Company-operated store unless a limitation is stated. If a shipping delay results in an out-of-stock, these stores will issue a Rain Check on request. If item was canceled or sold out, they will offer similar savings on another similar item available in that store at that time. Dealer/Franchise stores determine their own policy. We appreciate your business and understanding.
